PREFACE

The completion of the second revised and enlarged edition of Volume I of the History of Dharmaśāstra, marked by the publication of this its second part, gives us solace and a feeling of redemption.

Soon after the release of the fifth and final Volume of the History of Dharmaśāstra in November 1962, Professor KANE began working on the revised edition of Volume I. Of course, it was not then visualised that the revision would ultimately result in the Volume becoming almost double its original size. But KANE was not a man to be satisfied with anything less than thorough and exhaustive. As his work of revision was progressing and growing in size, we thought that it would be advisable if the Volume was issued in two parts. The first part was, accordingly, published in May 1968 on the occasion of the Golden Jubilee of the Institute. It was then hoped that the second part also would be published in the course of the next couple of years.

But unfortunately that was not to be. What with the increasing difficulties of printing and what with the sudden collapse in KANE's usually sound health, the publication of this second part had to wait - sadly enough - till the third death-anniversary of the author. It is to be particularly regretted that this part had to pass through press without KANE's imprimatur.

We would like to reiterate, in all humility, that the Institute prides itself upon the kind of reflected glory which it enjoys on account of its close association with the History of Dharmaśāstra which has made a veritable history in the field of Indological studies and research.

SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS

[PART I]

Sec. 1 Meaning of Dharma :

Defies exact rendering in English - In the Ṛgveda, used as adjective or noun - means 'upholder or supporter' in some Ṛgvedic passages - in most Ṛgveda passages means 'religious ordinances or rites' and in rare cases 'fixed principles or rules of conduct' - in Aitareya-brāhmaṇa dharma means 'whole body of religious duties' - in Chāndogya-Upaniṣad dharma means 'peculiar duties of āśramas' - dharma came to mean 'duties and privileges of a person as a member of the Āryan community, as member of one of the varṇas or as in a particular stage of life' - the same meaning in Taittirīya Upaniṣad (I. 11), Bhagavadgītā, Manusmṛti and other smṛtis - according to Medhātithi, dharma five-fold viz., varṇadharmā, āśramadharmā, varṇāśramadharmā, naimittikadharmā, gunadharmā - this meaning of dharma taken in this work - definitions of dharma according to Jaimini, Vaiśeṣikasūtra, Hārīta, Mahābhārata and Buddhist works - subjects treated in this work, viz. sources of dharma, contents of works on dharma, their chronology.

Sec. 2 Sources of Dharma :

.. pp. 6-11

According to Gautama, Āpastamba, Vasiṣṭha, Manu, Yājñavalkya - principal sources were Veda, smṛtis and custom - Vedas do not contain positive precepts on dharma, but give information incidentally - examples from Vedic literature suggesting dharmasāstra rules - division of ancient Sanskrit works into three groups, viz. the Vedic Saṁhitās, the Brāhmaṇas and Sūtras - Kalpa is one of the six aṅgas of the Veda - Kalpa distinguished by Tantravārtika from Kalpasūtras - comprehensive meaning of Kalpa - Kalpasūtras classified into three classes, viz. śrautesūtras, Grhyasūtras and Dharmasūtras - brief review of Dr. Ram Gopal's large work on 'India of Vedic Kalpasūtras' - mainly deals with Grhya and Dharmasūtras, that too, not critically or thoroughly.

Sec. 3 When Dharmaśāstra works were first composed .. pp.12-19

It is difficult to say when composed - Nirukta (III. 4-5) exhibits controversies about inheritance and quotes a verse (śloka) from some work on dharma - Bühler's view about such verses - Gautama and Baudhāyana speak of dharmaśāstra - Baudhāyana and Āpastamba mention numerous sages on dharma - Vārtika of Kātyāyana and Jaimini speak of dharmaśāstra - Patañjali on dharmasūtrakāras - dharmaśāstra works existed prior to Yāska or at least before 600 B. C. and in 2nd century B. C. dharmasūtras had become authoritative - method of dealing with the whole dharmaśāstra literature followed in this book, first dharmasūtras, then early metrical smṛtis like those of Manu and Yājñavalkya, later versified smṛtis, then commentaries and digests, such as the Mitāksarā - chronology of early writers very difficult to settle - Max Müller's view that works in continuous śloka metre followed sūtra works not acceptable.

Sec. 4 Dharmasūtras :

Many of them formed part of the Kalpa and were studied in distinct sūtra-caraṇas - dharmasūtras of Āpastamba and Baudhāyana presuppose gṛhyasūtras of their caraṇa - no dharmasūtras extant corresponding to the śrauta and gṛhya sūtras of Āśvalāyana, Śāṅkhāyana and Mānava - Tantravārtika on what dharmasūtra was studied in what particular Vedic Śākhā - all dharmasūtras gradually became authoritative in all schools - close connection between gṛhyasūtras and dharmasūtras on certain topics - scope of dharmasūtras - gṛhyasūtras sometimes refer to dharmasūtras - points of distinction between dharmasūtras and the other smṛtis.

Sec. 5 Dharmasūtra of Gautama :

Gautama's is the oldest extant dharmasūtra - specially studied by followers of Sāmaveda - Gautama one of the nine subdivisions of the Rāṇayaniya school of Sāmaveda - Gautamadharmasūtra points to close connection with Sāmaveda - Gautama refers to his own previous dicta - contents of 28 chapters of Gautamadharmasūtra - the work is entirely in prose - Gautama's language agrees more with Pāṇini's rules than Āpastamba's - explanation of this - Haradatta prefers Pāṇinian readings of Gautama's text - some sūtras of Gautama quoted in the Mitākṣarā and other works not found in extant text - extent of literature known to Gautama - the only author named is Manu - the meaning of 'ācāryāḥ' whose views are cited by Gautama - earliest reference to Gautama on dharma is in Baudhāyana-dharmasūtra - Baudhāyana (III. 10) borrows chap. 19 of Gautama - close correspondence between many other sūtras of Gautama and Baudhāyana - Vasiṣṭha (4.35 and 37) refers to views of Gautama - Vasiṣṭha's 22nd chap. is borrowed from 19th of Gautama - many sūtras the same in Gautama and Vasiṣṭha - Gautama referred to by Manu as son of Utathya - Gautama referred to by Yājñavalkya, Bhaviṣyapurāṇa, Kumārila, Śaṅkarācārya, Medhātithi - Gautama's reference to Yavana - probable age between 600-400 B.C. - Haradatta and Maskarin commented on Gautama - Asahāya also did so - special matters presented by Gaut. Dh. S.-śloka - Gautama and Vṛddha-Gautama.

Baudhāyana is a teacher of the Black Yajurveda - arrangement of Baudhāyana kalpa according to Dr. Burnell and Dr. Caland - Baudhāyanagrhya presupposes the Baudhāyanadharmasūtra - grhya (III.9.6) speaks of pravacanakāra Kaṇva Bodhāyana and sūtrakāra Āpastamba - tarpaṇa in Baudhāyana dharmasūtra (II. 5. 27) mentions Kaṇva Bodhāyana, Āpastamba and Hiranyakeśin - contents of Baudhāyanadharmasūtra - extant sūtra has not come down intact - fourth praśna probably an interpolation - third praśna also not free from doubt - Baudhāyana III.10 taken from Gautama - Baudhāyana III. 6 agrees closely with Viṣṇudharmasūtra 48 - Dr. Jolly thinks both borrowed from a common source - probably Viṣṇu borrows from Baudhāyana - repetitions exist even in the first two praśnas - form and structure of Baudhāyana - quotes numerous verses, even in the first two praśnas - language of Baudhāyana often departs from Pāṇinian standard - literature known to Baudhāyana - several authors on dharma together with their views mentioned by Baudhāyana - Asura Kapila said to be originator of āśramas - Śabara, Kumārila, Viśvarūpa and Medhātithi refer to Baudhāyana dharmasūtra - home of Baudhāyana - Baudhāyana is styled pravacanakāra and Āpastamba sūtrakāra - Bühler holds that Baudhāyana was a southern teacher - sets out five peculiar usages of southern part - quotes several views about Āryāvarta - age of Baudhāyana dharmasūtra.

sūtra - later than Gautama - Bühler's reasons for placing Baudhāyana a century or two earlier than Āpastamba not convincing - divergences between Baudhāyana and Āpastamba - style of Baudhāyana compared with that of Āpastamba - Baudhāyana to be placed between 500-200 B. C. - numerous sūtras of Baudhāyana identical with those of Āpastamba and Vasiṣṭha - Baudhāyana mentions several appellations of Gaṇeśa, just as Mānavagṛhya does and mentions seven planets, Rāhu and Ketu - Govindasvāmin commented on Baudhāyana.

The Āpastambakalpasūtra of the Black Yajurveda divided into 30 praśnas, dharmasūtra constituting 28th and 29th praśnas thereof - Āpastamba is one of the five subdivisions of the Khāṇḍikya school of Taittirīyaśākhā - Āpastambagṛhya and dharma-sūtras are compositions of the same author - some sūtras of the two are identical - Āp. gṛhya does not treat of some topics as they are dealt with in dharmasūtra - though Dr. Ram Gopal points out ten sūtras in Āp. Gṛ. about the choice of a marriageable girl there is only one rule worth something - there are several passages where Āp. Dh. S. presupposes Āp. Gṛ. - contents of Āp. dharmasūtra - form and structure of Āp. dharmasūtra - Āp. is more archaic and un-Pāṇinian than any other dharmasūtra - many unfamiliar words in Āp. - several verses quoted in Āp. - literature known to Āp. - Āp. mentions six aṅgas of Veda and ten writers on dharma by name - Śvetaketu and Āp. - Hārīta quoted frequently by Āp. - Āp. controverts several views - striking coincidences between Gautama and Āp. - Āp. quotes a verse from Purāṇa and speaks of the view of Bhaviṣyatpurāṇa - Āpastamba and Manu - Āpastamba presupposes many rules of the Mīmāṃsā and agrees closely with Jaimini's sūtras - age of Āp. Dh. S. - quoted by Śabara, Kumārila, Śaṅkarācārya, Viśvarūpa and Medhātithi - home and personal history of Āpastamba not known - Dr. Ram Gopal's view about Āpastamba being earlier than Pāṇini who gives Āpastamba's name in Bidādigaṇa, refuted - reply to Dr. Ram Gopal's puerile arguments about the home of Āpastamba etc. - Āp. is later than Gautama and probably Baudhāyana - Āp. Dh. S. may be assigned to the period of 450-350 B. C. not 600-300 B. C. (as in the first edition) - Āp. condemns niyoga, rejects secondary sons, does not admit paiśāca and Prājāpatya forms of marriage - divergence between the views of Āp. and Gautama and other sūtrakāras - Haradatta's is the only commentary extant on Āp. - Āpastamba smṛti in verse.

Sec. 8 Hiranyakeśidharmasūtra :

Hiranyakeśidharmasūtra forms 26th and 27th praśnas of the Hiranyakeśikalpa - Hiranyakeśin's can be hardly called an independent work, as it borrows hundreds of sūtras word for word from Āp. - a few additions made to Āp. in Hiranyakeśi Dh. S. - Hiranyakeśin's readings are smoother and more classical than Āpastamba's - arrangement of sūtras also is somewhat different in the two - com. of Mahādeva called Ujjvalā on Hyraṇyakeśin is almost the same as Haradatta's on Āp. - Bühler thinks Mahādeva borrows from Haradatta - Mahādeva's com. in a few places contains more matter than Haradatta's and Mahādeva differs from Haradatta.

Sec. 9 Vasiṣṭha-dharmasūtra :

Different editions of Vasiṣṭha contain different numbers of chapters - Kumārila says it was specially studied by Ṛgvedins - explanation of this statement - nothing special in the Vasiṣṭhadharma sūtra to connect it with Ṛgveda - contents of the Vasiṣṭhadharma sūtra - style of Vas. Dh. S. resembles Gautama's - many sūtras of Vas. identical with Gautama and Baudhāyana - form of Vasiṣṭha-dharmasūtra resembles Baudhāyanadharmasūtra - Medhātithi and Mitākṣarā quote from almost all chapters of extant Vasiṣṭha and so does Viśvarūpa - literature known to Vasiṣṭha - Vasiṣṭha prohibits learning language of Mlecchas - authors on dharmasāstra named by Vasiṣṭha - Vasiṣṭha's references to the views of Manu are made with reference to a work of Manu almost identical with the present Manusmṛti and do not compel us to formulate the existence of a Mānavadharmasūtra - Bühler wrong in taking Vas. Dh. S. 4.8 as a quotation from Mānavadharmasūtra - only Vas. Dh. S. 12.16 and 19.37 where Manu is quoted have no corresponding verses in the present Manusmṛti - over forty verses are entirely common to Vas. and present Manusmṛti - conclusion that Vas. contains borrowings from the present Manusmṛti or its prototype in verse - Vas. Dh. S. 22 is the same as Gautama 19 - Dr. Jolly's view that Vas. Dh. S. 28. 10-15 and 18-22 are borrowed from Viṣṇudharmasūtra chap. 56 and 87 or its original the Kāthakadharmasūtra is wrong - home of Vas. to the north of Narmadā, according to Bühler - this is mere speculation - earliest reference to Vasiṣṭha as a writer on dharma is in Manu (8.140) - age of Vasiṣṭha - Vasiṣṭha's views are ancient, particularly about secondary sons, about Dattaka son, about niyoga and remarriage - he mentions only six forms of marriage - but in other matters differs from Gaut. or Baudh. viz. on adoption, on documents - Vas. Dh. S. between 300-100 B. C.- whether Vas. 18.4 (Rāmaka v. l. Romaka) contains a reference to the Romans - the author of the extant Vas. Dh. S. appears to be eclectic and the extant Vas. Dh. S. is only a re-hash of the Āp. Dh. S., Baud. Dh. S. and Manu - passages from the Saṁhitās and Brāhmanas quoted in or referred to by Vas. Dh. S. outnumber the Rgvedic passages - this shows that Vas. Dh. S. did not at first attach itself to the Rgveda - Dr. Ram Gopal's remarks on the passages of Vas. and the three Gr. sūtras attached to Rgveda are misleading - Vṛddha-Vasiṣṭha, an early compilation - there is a Bṛhad Vasiṣṭha and a Jyotir Vasiṣṭha - Yajñasvāmin commented upon Vas. Dh. S.

Viṣṇu Dh. S. contains 100 chapters and yet sūtra not extensive - several chap. (40, 42, 76) contain only one sūtra and one verse - first chap. and the last two are entirely in verse, the rest in mixed prose and verse - Viṣṇu Dh. S. closely connected with Kāthasākhā - Dr. Jolly says chap. 21, 67, 73 and 86 of Viṣṇu closely correspond with Kāthaka gr̥hya - but Viṣṇu Dh. S. is not the work of the author of Kāthaka gr̥hya - contents of Viṣṇu Dh. S. - Viṣṇu resembles Vas. Dh. S. - its peculiar feature that it professes to be revealed by God Viṣṇu - its style, easy and diffuse - work contains old and new material - hundreds of sūtras are prose renderings of hundreds of verses occurring in our Manu - hypothesis of a common origin or borrowing by both from a floating mass of verses untenable - extant Viṣṇudharmasūtra borrows from Manu - Viṣṇu contains verses identical with the Bhagavadgītā and Yājñavalkya smṛti - Dr. Jolly's view that Yājñavalkya borrows his anatomical section from Viṣṇu not correct - Viṣṇu Dh. S. contains long list of tīrthas, the word Jaiva for Jupiter - those wanting in Yājñavalkya - extant Viṣṇu Dh. S. later than Manusmṛti and Yājñavalkyasmṛti - Viśvarūpa does not quote a single sūtra of Viṣṇu by name, though he refers to Viṣṇu (ch. 97) for orders of saṁnyāsins - Mitākṣarā quotes hardly any verse from Viṣṇu - Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā quote Viṣṇu profusely - verses were added at a late date to original sūtra - literature known to Viṣṇu Dh. S. - Viṣṇu mentions the seven days of the week, recommends the practice of sati, speaks of pustakas, of many good and evil omens among which the sight of yellow-robed Buddhist ascetics is included - it prohibits speech with Mlecchas and journeys to Mleccha countries, it dilates on worship of Vāsudeva - though Viṣṇu agrees in some respects with Kāthaka-grhya, on some points it differs from it - date of older kernel of Viṣṇu may be 300 to 100 B. C. - additions made after 3rd century A. D. and before 7th century - some sūtras agree closely with Nārada - Bṛhad Viṣṇu and Vṛddha Viṣṇu and Laghu Viṣṇu - Nandapāṇḍita's com. on the Viṣṇu Dh. S. - probably Bhāruci also commented on it.

Sec. 11 The Dharmasūtra of Hārīta :

Baudhāyana, Āpastamba and Vasiṣṭha quote Hārīta as an authority - Mr. Islampurkar secured a ms. of Hārītadharmasūtra at Nasik in 30 chapters - contents of that ms. - its relation to Maitrāyaṇīyasamhitā - it mentions the Kaśmirian word "Kaphella" — two-fold classification of śruti and its explanation - quotations in commentaries and digests show that Hārīta dealt exhaustively with the same topics that are found in other dharmasūtras - Kumārila mentions Hārīta as dharmaśāstrakāra but does not assign him to any particular carāṇa as he does Āpastamba and others - notable doctrines of Hārīta - mentions worship of Gaṇeśa - Hārīta's verses on vyavahāra quoted in nibandhas are later than the sūtra - quoted by Aparārka, Kalpataru, Brahmacārikāṇḍa, Sm. C. - Laghu Hārīta and Vṛddha Hārīta - latter in verse is later than Yājñavalkya, Nārada and Kātyāyana.

Sec. 12 The Dharmasūtra of Śaṅkha-Likhita :

From Tantravārtika it appears that dharmasūtra of Śaṅkha-Likhita was studied by Vājasaneyins - Mahābhārata (Śānti 23) contains story of brothers Śaṅkha and Likhita - Pāli story in Dīghanikāya seems to be based on the story in the Mahābhārata - various compilations ascribed to Śaṅkha alone or Likhita alone or to both - restoration of Dharmasūtra in the Annals of Bhandarkar Institute (vols. VII, VIII) - Verse Śaṅkhasmṛti stricter than prose Śaṅkha-Likhita - com. on dharmasūtra mentioned in Kalpataru and Vivādaratnākara - doctrines of dharmasūtra similar to those of other dharmasūtras - speaks of twelve secondary sons - allows niyoga - speaks of several oracles - defines Āryāvarta as between Sindhu-Sauvīra and Kāmpilya - literature known to Śaṅkha - Likhita - probable age between 300 B. C. - 100 A. D.

Sec. 13 Mānavadharmasūtra : Did it exist ?

Max Müller and Weber responsible for the theory that the extant Manusmṛti was a recast of an ancient Mānavadharmasūtra now lost - hardly any data for the sweeping generalisation of Max Müller that all genuine dharmaśāstras are nothing but more modern texts of earlier sūtra works on kuladharma - one main plank of this theory that the continuous employment of the śloka metre was unknown in the sūtra period is now exploded - Bühler supports Max Müller's theory by some additional arguments - Vasiṣṭha IV. 5-8 on which Bühler relies not properly understood by him - Vasiṣṭha (19-37) quotes a Mānava śloka which is not in the Anuṣṭubh metre and not found in extant Manu and Bühler thinks it is taken from Mānavadharmasūtra - Bühler's reliance on a fragment of Uśanas which is corrupt is not worth consideration - Bühler relies on Kāmandakīyanīṭisāra (II. 3 and XI. 67) where Mānavas are said to hold that there are three vidyās for a king and that Manu said that king's council should consist of 12 ministers - These views not the same in extant Manu - Bühler's conclusion not correct - Kāmandaka is only paraphrasing Kauṭīliya - Bühler's generalisation about Mānava or Mānavāḥ without foundation - Kumārila, Śaṅkara and Viśvarūpa all employ ' Mānava ' for Manusmṛti - Bühler relies on analogy of the complete set of Āpastamba and Baudhāyana sūtras for holding that a Mānavadharmasūtra existed - Proper explanation of Vas. Dh. S. IV. 5-8 - Bühler not right in saying that Vas. Dh. S. 11. 23, 12. 16, 23. 43 either contradict Manu or find no counterpart therein - analogy of Āpastamba sūtras of no use - excepting the three caranas of the Black Yajurveda, no carana of any Veda has a dharmasūtra attributed to the founder of that carana - an explanation suggested - existing materials not sufficient to establish theory that a Mānavadharmasūtra once existed.

Sec. 14 Arthaśāstra of Kauṭilya :

... pp. 149–256

The three words used in the same sense viz. Arthaśāstra, Dandanīti and Rājaśāstra or Rājanīti or Rājanītiśāstra or Nītiśāstra - meaning and scope of arthaśāstra and relation to dharmaśāstra - arthaśāstra, an upaveda of Atharvaveda - Mr. Kavi wrongly holds that Kauṭilya borrows from the Cākṣuṣīya Arthaśāstra - the Arthaśāstra of Kauṭilya, first translated by Dr. Shāma Śāstri and text published in 1909 - other editions - numerous works and articles inspired by the publication of Kauṭilya Arthaśāstra - Kauṭilya is the oldest extant work on Arthaśāstra - purpose of this śāstra - rule in case of conflict between Dharmaśāstra and Arthaśāstra - thinking on politics, economics, law etc. prevailed in India several centuries before Christ as is clear from the Mbh., and early Dharma-sūtras of Gautama, Baudhāyana and Āpastamba - Arthaśāstra of Bṛhaspati - principles, and phraseology of Arthaśāstra in the Mbh. and the Rāmāyaṇa - Cāṇakya and Viṣṇugupta are names of the same person - glowing tribute paid to Cāṇakya or Viṣṇugupta by Kāmandakiyanītiśāra, Tantrākhyāyikā, Danḍin - Bāṇa and Pañcatantra on Kauṭilya as author of Arthaśāstra - Bṛhatkathā of Guṇādhya contained his story - Mudrārākṣasa connects his name with Kuṭila - these works along with the Kathāsaritsāgara, Kāvyaadarśa etc. naming Viṣṇugupta, Cāṇakya and Kauṭilya singly or collectively, dealt with - Purāṇas mentioning Candragupta and his minister Kauṭilya - Candragupta and Seleucus - Bāṇa refers to Kauṭilya's work as a cruel work and so also does the Matsya Purāṇa - the extant Arthaśāstra itself claims that it is a work of Kauṭilya - Candragupta and the epithet Vṛṣala used for him - Viṣṇugupta, an astrologer mentioned by Varāhamihira must be entirely different from the author of the Arthaśāstra - controversy as to whether Kauṭilya can be the work of a busy minister of Candragupta Maurya - Jolly, Winternitz and Keith hold that extant work is not by the minister of Candragupta - Megasthenes, silence about Cāṇakya explained - whether the Kauṭilya is the product of a school or of an individual author - Kauṭilya's views cited about 70 times in the work in the third person - explanation of this - Dr. Jolly wrong in his explanation of apadeśa (in XV. 1) - Keith thinks that an author would not parade an uncomplimentary epithet like Kauṭilya (derived from kuṭila) - Is the name Kauṭilya or Kauṭalya - works on gotra and pravara give various forms such as Kauṭali, Kauṭilya and Kauṭili - form, style and contents of the Kauṭīliya - a few verses interspersed in the work, generally at the end - in all 375 verses excluding mantras - some verses are certainly quotations - work abounds in numerous technical and rare words - deviations from Pāṇini - summary of contents - section on judicial administration interesting - greatest correspondence between Kauṭīliya and Yājñavalkya - some striking examples - it is Yājñavalkya that borrows - reasons - Yājñavalkya represents a far too advanced stage of juristic principles than Kauṭīliya - close agreement between Manusmṛti and Kauṭīliya also - but they differ on niyoga, as to nomenclature of vyavahārapadas, about heirship of mother and paternal grandmother, on remarriage of widows, divorce, gambling - Kauṭīliya long anterior to the extant Manusmṛti - Kauṭīliya's five references to Mānavas explained - references to Svāyambhuva and Prācetasā Manu contained in the Mahābhārata suggest that there were two works in verse on dharma and politics attributed to these or perhaps one work containing both, subsequently recast as the extant Manusmṛti - only two views ascribed to Mānavas in Kauṭīliya not found in extant Manusmṛti - in the dharmasthīya section the only other authors or schools cited are Bārhaspatyas and Auśanasas - none of the dharmaśūtras of Gautama and others are anywhere quoted by name - views cited on the question as to whom a child belongs (to the begetter or to him on whose wife it is begotten) can be traced to Baudhāyana, Gautama and Vasiṣṭha - views of Ācāryas cited in the Kauṭīliya - Kauṭīliya later than Gautama and Āpastamba but earlier than extant Manusmṛti - date of Kauṭīliya - it is certainly not later than 2nd century A. D. and not earlier than 325 B. C. - schools named by Kauṭīliya and also individual authors - views of Ācāryas are quoted over fifty times and Kauṭīliya differs in each case - meaning of 'ācāryas' - literature known to Kauṭīliya - Sanskrit official language and the work mentions guṇas of composition - Kauṭīliya agrees with Kāmasūtra in several respects - Dr. Jolly and Prof. Keith opine that both works composed about same time - points of difference between the two works - countries and peoples mentioned by Kauṭīliya - silks from Cīna and blankets from Nepal - home of Kauṭīliya, southern acc. to Dr. Jolly who concludes so, on two quite worthless grounds - Buddhist and Jain traditions associate Cānakya with Gāndhāra - was resident of the extreme North-west of India - three principal groups of writers on the question of the age of Kauṭilya – corporations of Licchavis, Vṛjikas and others mentioned - meaning of ‘rājaśabdopajīvinah’ (in XI. 1) - best breeds of horses - Mlecchas sold or pledged children - references to Buddhists and Ājīvakas - weights to be made from stones of Magadha and Mekala - most of the stories cited as illustrations by Kauṭilya occur in the Mahābhārata, but some divergence exists in the case of Janamejaya, Māṇḍavya - Kautilya’s knowledge of drugs and of rasa (mercury) - references to shrines of Śiva, Skanda &c.- traditional date of 300 B. C. more likely to be correct than 3rd centnry A. D. approved of by Dr. Jolly and Winternitz - two commentaries on Kauṭilya, Nayacandrikā of Mādhavayajvan and Pratipadapañcikā of Bhaṭṭasvāmin - sūtras attributed to Cāṇakya - several nīti collections in verse ascribed to Cāṇakya are later than Kauṭilya.

Sec. 15 Vaikhānasadharmasūtra :

Vaikhānasa is one of the six sūtra carāṇas of the black Yajurveda mentioned by Mahādeva in his Vaijayantī on Satyāśādhāśrautasūtra - Vaikhānasa occurs in Gautama, Baudhāyana, Vasiṣṭha (9.10) and Manu (6. 21) - Vaikhānasadharmapraśna divided into three praśnas - contents of the work - its age later than Gautama and Baudhāyana - names more mixed castes than even some of the verse smṛtis - devotion to Nārāyana looms very large in the work Vai. Gr. S. - Dr. Caland’s view that Manusmṛti borrows from Vaikhānasagṛhya not correct - parallelisms between Manusmṛti and Vai. Dh. S. put forward by Dr. Caland too flimsy Vai. Gr. and Vai. Dh. later than Yāj. - may be assigned to 300 to 400. A D.

Sec. 16 Atri :

.. pp. 261–264

Atri named in Manu (III. 16) – Ātreya dharmasāstra in nine adhyāyas – summary of contents – form of Atridharmasāstra – several works styled Atrismṛti - summary of Atrisamhitā printed by Jīvananda - Atri quoted as an authority on adoption - Laghu Atri and Vṛddhātreya smṛti - Mahābhārata (Anuśāsana 65.1) quotes a verse of Atri - Aparārka quotes about a hundred verses of Atri on various topics - Ātreya-smṛti edited by Aiyangar.

Sec. 17 Uśanas :

. . pp. 264-272

Uśanas, ancient sage in the Rgveda - wrote on politics, as Kauṭīliya shows - Mahābhārata (Śānti 56. 29-30) refers to work of Uśanas on politics - Nītiprakāśikā on Śukra as arranger of rājaśāstra - An Auśanasa dharmaśāstra in verse - contents - peculiar views of Uśanas about offspring of inter-caste marriages-several verses common to Uśanas and Manu - names the views of numerous writers on dharma - Haradatta and Smṛticandrikā knew a work of Uśanas dealing with all branches of dharma - Uśanas smṛti in verse - verses of Uśanas on vyavahāra - acc. to Uśanas the son of a brāhmaṇa from a kṣatriya wife is a brāhmaṇa and that of a kṣatriya from a vaiśya wife is a kṣatriya - quoted by Aparārka, Mahābhāṣya - Śukranītisāra edited by Oppert.

Sec. 18 Kaṇva and Kāṇva :

. . pp. 273-274

Āp. Dh. S. (I. 6. 19) shows that Kaṇva and Kāṇva were two distinct authors - verses of Kaṇva quoted in Smṛticandrikā - Mit. quotes a verse of Kāṇva - Maskarin frequently quotes passages from Kaṇva.

Sec. 19 Kāśyapa and Kāśyapa :

. . pp. 274-276

Baudhāyana (Dh. S. I. 11.20) cites a verse in which Kāśyapa's view is contained - there was a dharmaśūtra of Kāśyapa - a Kāśyapa smṛti in prose contained in Deccan College Mss. - contents thereof - Maskarin quotes a verse of Kāśyapa - the Vanaparva (29. 35-40) quotes five gāthās of Kāśyapa - Aparārka mentions Kāśyapa 13 times and Kāśyapa six times - Smṛticandrikā includes Kāśyapa among 18 upasmṛtis.

Sec. 20 Gārgya :

. . pp. 276-277

A śūtra work of Gārgya on dharma existed - Gārgya and Vṛddha Gārgya - a Gārgīsamhitā on astronomy and astrology - Jyotir Gārgya and Bṛhad Gārgya - Garga, an astronomer mentioned in Anuśāsana and Śalya probably different from the Dharmaśāstra writer Garga - Vṛddha-Gārgya.

Sec. 21 Cyavana : . . pp. 277-278

Cyavana famous in Ṛgveda - stories of Cyavana in the Mbh.- seems to have written a sūtra work on dharma - quoted by the Mit., Aparārka.

Sec. 22 Jātūkarnya : . . pp. 278-279

A verse of Vṛddha Yājñavalkya names Jātūkarnya as a dharmaśāstrakāra - quotations in verse in Mitākṣarā and later works.

Sec. 23 Devala : . . pp. 279-284

Devala frequently occurs in the Mbh. - referred to by Śaṅkarācārya as relying on Sāṅkhya tenets—A dharmasūtra of Devala existed once - Mitākṣarā, Kalpataru, Smṛticandrikā and other works also contain quotations in verse on ācāra, vyavahāra, śrāddha - this latter a later compilation - Devalasmṛti in 90 verses on purifications is also a late work - jurist Devala flourished about the same time as Bṛhaspati and Kātyāyana.

Sec. 24 Paithīnasi : . . pp. 284-286

An ancient sūtrakāra, as Viśvarūpa quotes his sūtras - Dr. Jolly thinks he belongs to Atharvaveda - Paithīnasi on satī, inheritance, on absence of untouchability under certain circumstances. (Also vide Sec. 46).

Sec. 25 Budha : . . pp. 286-287

A sūtrakāra cited by Hemādri, Aparārka, Kalpataru and Jīmūtavāhana - a brief compilation and not very early in age.

Sec. 26 Bṛhaspati : . . pp. 287-290

An ancient teacher of arthaśāstra mentioned in Kauṭīliya-Mahābhārata (Śānti 59. 80-85) credits him with compression of vast work of Brahmā on trivarga and mentions several of his views - Kāmasūtra speaks of Bṛhaspati as writer on artha - peculiar views of Bṛhaspati according to Kauṭīliya - Bṛhaspati also wrote a prose work on vyavahāra and peyāścitta - probably the authors of the two are different - 700 verses on vyavahāra ascribed to Bṛhaspati are quoted in the Mitākṣarā - this is an independent work composed between 300–500 A. D. - smaller compilations in verse ascribed to Bṛhaspati - Bārhaspatya Arthaśāstra edited by Dr. Thomas is a late work.

Sec. 27 Bharadvāja and Bhāradvāja : . . pp. 290–294

A śrautasūtra and gṛhya of Bhāradvāja exists - Viśvarūpa's work establishes existence of a sūtra work on dharma of Bharadvāja - there was a smṛti in verse also attributed to Bhāradvāja - Kauṭīliya shows that Bhāradvāja was an ancient author on politics - some views of Bharadvāja - Mahābhārata on Bhāradvāja - Bhāradvāja (Bārhaspatya), sage of the 6th Maṇḍala of the Ṛg-veda - mentioned by Pāṇini as a predecessor - Mahābhāṣya mentions Bhāradvājīyas, a school of grammarians - Kauṭīliya probably lumps Bharadvāja, Vyāsa and Manu and refers to them collectively as ' ācāryāḥ ' - verses on vyavahāra attributed to Bhāradvāja - this probably different from work on politics.

Sec. 28 Śātātapa : . . pp. 294–296

A sūtra work of Śātātapa on dharma dealing with prāyaścitta, śrāddha and ācāra must have existed - verses of Śātātapa quoted in Mitākṣarā and other later works - this is probably different from smṛti work - several verse compilations ascribed to Śātātapa - Vṛddha Śātātapa and Bṛhat Śātātapa.

Sec. 29 Sumantu : . . pp. 296–299

A sūtra work on ācāra and prāyaścitta ascribed to Sumantu existed - Paithīnasi includes Sumantu among 36 expounders of Dharmaśāstra - quoted by Viśvarūpa, Kalpataru, Aparārka-Yājñavalkya and Parāśara do not enumerate Sumantu among expounders of dharma - Sumantu mentioned in Mahābhārata and Bhāgavata - verses from Sumantu on dharma are cited by Aparārka - this is a different work - numerous verses on vyavahāra quoted from Sumantu in Sarasvatīvilāsa - reconstruction of Sumantu by Prof. T. R. Chintamani.

Sec. 30 The Smṛtis : pp. 299–306

Two senses of the word smṛti, viz. all orthodox ancient non-Vedic works (such as Pāṇini's grammar, Śrauta sūtras, Mahābhārata, Manu, &c.) and (a narrower sense) dharmasāstra - smṛti, a source of dharma according to Gautama and others - references to smṛtis in early inscriptions - smṛtis mirrored the beliefs and practices of people and also influenced writers and ordinary people - number of smṛtis went on increasing - Yājñavalkya enumerates twenty writers of smṛtis, Parāśara 19 - Tantravārtika speaks of 18 dharmasamhitās - Caturviṃśatimata gives views of 24 writers - a smṛti called Ṣaṭ-triṃśanmata - Paithīnāsi enumerates 36 and so does Aparārka - Vṛddha Gautama enumerates 57 - Vīramitrodaya enumerates 18 smṛtis, 18 upasmṛtis and 21 more - total number of smṛtis about 100 - these are products of widely separated ages - some entirely in prose, some entirely in verse, some are mixed - chronology of smṛtis presents perplexing problems - two or three smṛtis go under the same name, e. g. Hārīta, Atri, Śātātapa - sectarian zealots fabricate certain smṛtis - the prefixes laghu, bṛhat and vṛddha applied to smṛtis - well-known verses are ascribed to different authors, as authors quote from memory.

Sec. 31 The Manusmṛti :

Numerous editions - Manu as the father of mankind in the Rgveda and other Vedas - Manu and the deluge in Śatapatha-brāhmaṇa - Manu in the Nirukta - Manu quoted as law-giver in Gautama, Āpastamba and Mahābhārata - introduction to Nārada smṛti and Manu - how the Manusmṛti is narrated - four versions of Svāyambhuva śāstra according to Bhaviṣyapurāṇa - almost impossible to say who composed extant Manusmṛti - Bühler's theory that our Manu is a recast of Mānavadharmasūtra shown above to be unsustainable - the Mānavagṛhya differs from Manusmṛti in several particulars - Vināyakaśānti of Mānavagṛhya and tests for selecting a bride not contained in our Manu - Mahābhārata distinguishes between Svāyambhuva Manu and Prācetasa Manu, former promulgating dharmasāstra - these two works combined in the present Manu - extant Manu has 12 chapters and 2694 verses - its style - contents of Manusmṛti - extent of literature known to Manusmṛti - the author of the Manusmṛti is not the first legislator - recognised as an ancient writer on Dharmasāstra in the Dharmasūtras - number and names of Manus in Purāṇas - confusion caused by ancient texts referring to Svāyambhuva Manu, Prācetasa Manu and Manu - views of Svāyambhuva are mentioned in Manu VI. 54, VIII. 124, IX. 158 – Manu Prajāpati is mentioned in X. 78, XII. 123 – in I. 35 among ten Prajāpatis primeval Manu is mentioned – criticism of some one-sided and biased remarks of Hopkins about Manu – involved account in Manusmṛti about the creation of the world by Paramātman – the fact that the Manusmṛti mentions human authors like Atri, Bhṛgu etc. and refers to dasyus who speak mleccha and Ārya languages etc. indicates that the extant Manusmṛti is not older than 200 B. C. – age of Manusmṛti – external evidence – Medhātithi's is the first extant commentary – Viśvarūpa quotes 200 verses – Śaṅkara, Kumārila and Śabara refer to Manu – Bṛhaspati had the present text of Manu before him – Aśvaghoṣa in his Vajrasūci quotes several verses from 'Mānavadharmā' some of which are found in our Manu – Rāmāyana (Kiṣkindhā 18. 30-32) contains Manu VIII. 318 and 316 – Manu attained present form long before 2nd century A. D. – there are earlier and later strata in Manu – contradictory statements as to Brāhmaṇa marrying a śūdra woman, about appropriate forms of marriage, about niyoga, about flesh-eating – Bühler's conclusion is that cosmological and philosophical portions in 1st and 12th books, rules about mixed castes and duties of castes in 10th book are later additions – all additions made before 3rd century A. D. – Manusmṛti has not suffered several recasts – quotations cited as Vṛddha Manu and Bṛhan-Manu are later than Manusmṛti – extant Manu older than Yājñavalkya – Manu mentions Yavanas, Kāmbojas, Śakas, Pahlavas and Cīnas – extant Manusmṛti composed between 2nd century B. C. and 2nd century A. D. – relation of Mahābhārata and Manu – conflict of views between Mandlik, Hopkins and Bühler – Hopkins holds that there was a mass of floating verses ascribed to mythical Manu on which both Manusmṛti and Mahābhārata drew – Bühler says that the floating mass of verses was not all attributed to Manu – Manu mentions stories and names that occur in the Mahābhārata but these names go into Vedic antiquities – Manu never names the Mahābhārata, while the latter often refers to 'rājadharmas or śāstra of Manu' or to 'what Manu said' – Jayaswal's remarks on Manu XII. 100 are worthless for settling the date of the Manusmṛti – both Hopkins and Bühler hold that the Anuśāsanaparva and Śāntiparva knew a Manusmṛti, but earlier books, whenever they speak of Manu, refer to floating mass of popular verses – this conclusion not correct – final conclusion, viz., long before 4th century B. C. there was a dharmaśāstra in verse attributed to Svāyambhuva Manu, there was another work on rājadharmā attributed to Prācetasā Manu, that probably there was one work, then between 200 B. C. and 200 A. D. Manusmṛti was recast – extant Mahābhārata later than extant Manusmṛti-Vṛddha-Manu, if a separate work, must have been composed before the 7th century A.D.-influence of Manu spread to Cambodia and other countries beyond India – Manu had several commentators, Medhātithi, Govindarāja, Kullūka, Nārāyaṇa, Rāghavānanda, Nandana and Rāmacandra - Asahāya commented on Manu – Udayakara is another commentator and so is Dharaṇīdhara – Nārāyaṇa flourished between 1100-1300 A.D.-Rāghavānanda later than 1400 A.D.-Vṛddha Manu and Br̥han-Manu – explanation as to how these originated.

The two great Epics contain numerous passages bearing on topics of Dharmaśāstra – Mbh. itself claims as being composed by Vyāsa as a great Dharmaśāstra, as Arthaśāstra etc. – Mbh. consists of one hundred thousand verses – a great deal has been written about the Two Epics – a work for popular education long before the 7th cent. A. D. – Ānuvaṁśa Śloka in Mbh. – From the references in Pāṇini and Patañjali it is certain that the story of Mbh. is different from the story of Rāmāyaṇa – there was considerable scope for adding stories and didactic matter and hence the Mbh. became very much inflated by additions at different times - literature known to Mbh. – criticism against four passages relied upon by Hopkins as referring to Rāmāyaṇa – the core of the Mbh. existed before 500 B. C.-references to Mbh. in some early inscriptions – Nīlakaṇṭha's commentary on Mbh. – date of the Mahābhārata war – both the Epics inspired many later writers to compose Sanskrit dramas on the characters and stories contained in them – the Mahābhārata, predominantly a Vaiṣṇavite work.

Several recensions of the Rāmāyaṇa – the three well-known being Southern, Bengali and North-Western – relation to the Daśarathajātaḥ – references to the legends in the Mahābhārata occur in the extant Rāmāyaṇa - Rāmāyaṇa mainly being a Kāvya is less quoted than the Mahābhārata, but is relied upon as a source of dharma – the Rāmāyaṇa exists in Bali in the Kavi language- 'Kaccit-praśna' chapters in the two epics – the Rāmāyaṇa is not earlier than 300–200 B.C. – verses in the Sundarakāṇḍa of great significance on the date of Rāmāyaṇa – Srinivasa Sastri's 'Thirty Lectures on the Rāmāyaṇa' – commentaries on the Rāmāyaṇa – Mr. Tadpatrikar's theory about the Mūlarāmāyaṇa.

Sec. 33 The Purāṇas :

Yājñavalkya includes Purāṇa among the fourteen sources of Vidyās and of Dharma - Chāndogya Up. speaks of Itihāsa-Purāṇa as the fifth Veda – originally there was a single work called Purāṇa-eighteen Purāṇas – number of upapurāṇas varies – chronology of Purāṇas, a perplexing problem – main characteristics of the teachings of the extant Purāṇas – Bhakti an important aspect dealt with by some Purāṇas – Mit. on Yāj. quotes several Purāṇas such as Brahmāṇḍa, Matsya, Bhaviṣyat, Skanda etc. – difference of opinion among the Purāṇas about the names and extent of the several Purāṇas – Matsyapurāṇa gives the extent of 18 Purāṇas as four lakhs of verses – Padmapurāṇa divides the 18 Purāṇas into three groups viz. sāttvika, rājasa and tāmasa – a table showing which dharmaśāstra topics are dealt with in which purāṇa.

Sec. 34 The Yājñavalkyasmṛti :

Yājñavalkya, a name most illustrious among Vedic sages – stories about strained relations between Vaiśampāyana and Yājñavalkya - Yājñavalkya and Janaka in the Śatapathabrāhmaṇa - Yājñavalkya, a great philosopher in the Bṛhadāraṇyaka – Yājñavalkya smṛti claims that the Āraṇyaka and Yogaśāstra were composed by the author of the smṛti – slight variation in the number of verses contained in Yājñavalkyasmṛti according to Viśvarūpa, Mitākṣarā and Aparārka – arrangement of verses different in Viśvarūpa and Mitākṣarā, particularly in the prāyaścittakāṇḍa – readings of the two commentators also differ – Agnipurāṇa affords excellent check for consideration of text of Yājñavalkya – readings of Agnipurāṇa compared with those of Viśvarūpa and the Mitākṣarā – conclusion is that the Agnipurāṇa represents a text midway between Viśvarūpa and that of the Mitākṣarā – so Agnipurāṇa represents a text of Yājñavalkya current about 900 A. D. – total number of verses on vyavahāra in the Agnipurāṇa is 315, out of which the first 31 are not taken from Yājñavalkya – almost all of these 31 taken from Nārada – Garuḍapurāṇa (chap. 93) expressly says that the dharma promulgated by Yājñavalkya was imparted therein – Garuḍa (chap. 93–106) contains dharmaśāstra material taken from ācāra and prāyaścitta sections of Yājñavalkya – Garuḍa (93–102) deals with ācāra and (102–106) with prāyaścitta – Garuḍapurāṇa omits rājadharmā section of Yājñavalkya – only a few verses of Yāj. are repeated word for word, while a summary only is given of several verses – comparison of the text of the Garuḍapurāṇa with Viśvarūpa's text and that of the Mitākṣarā – Garuḍapurāṇa represents text intermediate between Viśvarūpa and Mitākṣarā – are there different strata in Yājñavalkya? text mainly the same from 700 A. D. and little evidence to show that the text of Yājñavalkya as we have it contains several strata – comparison of Yājñavalkyasmṛti with Manusmṛti – close agreement in phraseology between the two – Yājñavalkya usually tries to compress Manu's dicta – Yāj. adds Vināyakaśānti and Grahaśānti and ordeals, while Manu omits first two and cursorily refers to two ordeals – Yāj. silent on origin of world which we have in Manu – style of Yājñavalkya – contents of smṛti – literature known to Yājñavalkyasmṛti – enumerates 19 authors on dharma – Yoga-Yājñavalkya – contents of its twelve chapters – some recommendations of Yoga-Yājñavalkya – it is a small work on Yoga and has little to do with Dharmaśāstra – close agreement between Viṣṇu Dh. S. and Yājñavalkya and between Kauṭilya and Yāj. – Manu and Yāj. differ on several points and Yāj. represents a more advanced state of thought than Manu – Manu allows brāhmaṇa to marry śūdra girl, Yāj. does not – Manu condemns niyoga, Yāj. does not – same case with gambling – Yāj. takes Vināyakaśānti from Mānavagṛhya – Yājñavalkyasmṛti in intimate relation to white Yajurveda and literature appurtenant to it – Yājñavalkya closely agrees with Pāraskaragṛhya – Dr. Jolly's theory that Yājñavalkya's work goes back to a dharmasūtra of White Yajurveda is without foundation – date of Yājñavalkyasmṛti – Viśvarūpa separated from the smṛti by several centuries – probable date of Yājñavalkya between 100 B. C. and 300 A. D. – Laṅkāvatārasūtra (gāthās 814–816) refers to Yājñavalkyasmṛti – Dr. Jolly thinks that Yāj. shows acquaintance with Greek astrology – Dr. Jacobi's theory that naming of week-days after planets first introduced by Greeks and borrowed by Indians – these theories untenable – Yāj. does not mention week days, but only the nine planets (in I. 296) – Yāj. does not mention the zodiacal signs – he arranges the nakṣatras from Kṛttika to Bharanī (I. 268) as the Taittirīyabrāhmaṇa does – 'susthe indau' in Yāj. explained by Viśvarūpa without reference to zodiacal signs – from Vedic times nakṣatras divided into auspicious and inauspicious – Yājñavalkya's reference to nānakas – Yāj. regards sight of yellow-robed people as an evil omen – Dr. Jolly's date of 400 A. D. for Yājñavalkya is far too late – there is a Vṛddha-Yāj., a Yoga-Yāj. and a Bṛhad-Yāj.-Vṛddha-Yāj. is quoted by Mādhava and Aparārka – Bṛhad-Yāj. is quoted by Jitendra and Mit. and as such must be earlier than 1000 A. D. – editions of Bṛhadyogi-Yāj. – Bṛhadyogi-Yāj. is a large work in 12 chapters and has about 930 verses – topics dealt with in Bṛhadyogi-Yāj. – it quotes dozens of verses from Manusmṛti, Bhagavadgītā and several Upaniṣadic passages without acknowledgement – editions of Yoga-Yāj. – criticism of Mr. Divanji's arguments – several commentaries on Yājñavalkya, viz. of Viśvarūpa, Vijñāneśvera, Aparārka, Śūlapāṇi and Mitramiśra.

Sec. 35 Parāśarasmṛti :

Yāj. mentions Parāśara, but the extant Parāśarasmṛti is probably a recast of an older smṛti – Garuḍapurāṇa (chap. 107) gives a summary of 39 verses of Parāśarasmṛti – from Kauṭilya it appears there was a work of Parāśara on politics in which vyavahāra was also dealt with – extant Parāśara in 12 chapters and 592 verses deals with ācāra and prāyaścitta alone – Parāśara, an ancient name – Parāśara mentions 19 smṛti writers – contents of the smṛti – Parāśara has peculiar views – authors cited by Parāśara – views of Manu frequently cited – several identical verses in Manu and Parāśara – age of Parāśarasmṛti between 100-500 A. D. – a Bṛhat-Parāśara saṁhitā in 12 chapters and 3000 verses – contents thereof – it is a late work – Vṛddha Parāśara quoted by Aparārka – Jyotiḥ-Parāśara quoted by Hemādri, Bhaṭṭoji and Smṛti-candrikā.

Sec. 36 The Nāradaśmṛti :

Two versions of Nārada on vyavahāra, a smaller and a larger one – com. of Asahāya as revised by Kalyāṇabhaṭṭa is contained in Dr. Jolly's edition – Nārada not mentioned by Yāj. or Parāśara in the list of expounders of dharma – mentioned by Manu (I. 35) as one of the ten Prajāpatis – sage Nārada frequently figures in the Mahābhārata – three introductory chapters on judicial procedure and on sabhā, then 18 vyavahārapadas, then an appendix on theft from Nepal ms. – some difference in the names of titles between Nārada and Manu - printed Nārada contains 1028 verses – about 700 verses of Nārada quoted in digests – Viśvarūpa's and Medhātithi's quotations from Nārada agree with printed Nārada – Agni-purāṇa chap. 253 contains thirty verses of Nāradaśmṛti defining the eighteen titles from ṛṇādāna to prakīrṇaka in the same order - Nārada's verses on ācāra, śrāddha and prāyaścitta quoted in Smṛti-candrikā, Hemādri – probably this is a different Nārada – form, style and metre of Nārada – literature known to Nārada – 50 verses are identical in Manu and Nārada - many more verses of Nārada closely correspond to Manu's – Nārada based upon Manu, almost the same as the extant one - some verses of Mahābhārata are same as Nārada's – some verses of Kauṭilya and Nārada agree – points in which Manu and Nārada differ – many subdivisions of topics in Nārada – some topics peculiar to Nārada, viz. 14 kinds of impotent persons, three punarbhūṣ and four svairiṇīs - Nārada somewhat later than Yāj. - Nārada propounds several juristic and political principles, fixes the period of minority at 16 - Nārada earlier than 8th century at the latest – Bāṇa's reference to Nāradiya explained - Nārada wrote a work on politics also - one half verse common to Vikramorvaśīya and Nārada - 'dīnāra' occurs in Nārada - Dr. Jolly says Nārada is later than 300 A. D. - Jolly's assumption wrong - dīnāras may have been introduced into India about beginning of Christian era - Nārada flourished between 100-300 A.D. - Nāradiya Manusamhitā - differences between the longer and shorter versions of Nārada pub. by Jolly - Bhavasvāmin, bhāṣyakāra of Nārada, was a brāhmaṇa from Kerala - his date not free from doubt - may be placed conjecturally between 700-1000 A. D. - home of Nārada cannot be ascertained - Dr. Jolly's theory that he came from Nepal is pure guess-work - Jyotir-Nārada, Bṛhan-Nārada, Laghu-Nārada - Mahābhārata quotes Nārada's view on flesh-eating, on utpātas.

The complete smṛti of Bṛhaspati on vyavahāra not yet discovered - Bṛhaspati closely follows Manu, pointedly refers to Manu's text and explains and defines the laconic terms of Manu - Bṛhaspati treats of nine ordeals - order in which topics of vyavahāra were dealt with in Bṛhaspati - Bṛhaspati first to clearly distinguish between civil and criminal justice - elaborate rules of procedure - close agreement between Nārada and Bṛhaspati on many points - Bṛhaspati agrees closely with Manu, but differs from him as to partibility of clothes and as to maximum interest on corn, fruit, wood and beasts of burden - age of Bṛhaspati - later than Manu and Yāj. - Bṛhaspati uses the words nānaka and dīnāra - probably of the same age as Nārada - Kātyāyana who is regarded as an ancient sage by Viśvarūpa about 825 A. D. frequently refers to the views of Bṛhaspati - Dr. Jolly wrong in assigning Bṛhaspati to 6th or 7th century - Bṛhaspati flourished between 200-400 A.D. - home of Bṛhaspati cannot be determined - verses of Bṛhaspati on ācāra, śrāddha, āśauca and saṁskāra in Mitākṣarā, Smṛticandrikā and other works - a Vṛddha Bṛhaspati and a Jyotir-Bṛhaspati - Bṛhaspati's smṛti reconstructed by Prof. K. V. Rangswami Aiyangar and published in Gaekwad's Oriental Series - arranged in seven parts - a laborious performance, but still some verses and prose passages remain unnoticed - Prof. Renou's criticism against Prof. Aiyangar.

Work of Kātyāyana on vyavahāra not yet recovered - collection of Kātyāyana's 973 verses with English translation by Dr. P.V. Kane and collection of 121 verses by Prof. Aiyangar - Nārada and Bṛhaspati are models of Kātyāyana - on several points he presupposes Nārada - Nārada very brief on strīdhana, while Kātyāyana's treatment is classical - Kātyāyana first to give definitions of some kinds of strīdhana - Kātyāyana often refers to Bṛhaspati's views - About 900 verses of Kātyāyana on vyavahāra quoted in digests - he refers to Bhṛgu 20 times - only a few of these are found in Manu - many of the views attributed in Kātyāyana to Manu are not found in extant Manusmṛti - some of the views ascribed to Mānavas by Kātyāyana differed from the views of the extant Manusmṛti - some verses are ascribed to Kātyāyana and Manu, Yājñavalkya and Bṛhaspati in the digests - Kātyāyana is in advance of Nārada and Bṛhaspati in the matter of definitions and as to rules on strīdhana - Kātyāyana probably first to distinguish between jayapatra and paścātkāra - date of Kātyāyana - later than Yājñavalkya, Nārada and Bṛhaspati - flourished between 400-600 A. D. - Medhātithi (on Manu 7.1) quotes a Kātyāyana sūtra in prose - Bṛhat Kātyāyana and Vṛddha

Kātyāyana - Hemādri speaks of Upa-Kātyāyana - the Karmapradīpa of Kātyāyana or Gobhilasmṛti in 500 verses – contents thereof – authors named by Karmapradīpa – some verses of it identical with Manu, Yājñavalkya and Mahābhārata – Karmapradīpa profusely quoted in Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā and to a lesser degree by Mitākṣarā – some quotations ascribed to Kātyāyana on topics other than vyavahāra are not found in the Karmapradīpa – Kātyāyana composed some large work of which Karmapradīpa is part or abridgment – no sufficient data to identify jurist Kātyāyana and the author of the Karmapradīpa – many verses ascribed to Bṛhaspati in some Dharmaśāstra works and to Kātyāyana by others.

... pp. 507–509

Quoted frequently on all topics except vyavahāra by writers from Viśvarūpa – Smṛticandrikā quotes some prose passages from Āṅgiras - several compilations on prāyaścitta attributed to Āṅgiras - Bṛhad-Āṅgiras and Madhyamāṅgiras – Āṅgiras-Smṛti in Ānand. Collection of Smṛtis has 168 verses – Āṅgirasasmṛti published by Mr. A. N. Krishna Aiyangar contains over 1200 verses.

... p. 510

Frequently quoted by Mitākṣarā, Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā on ācāra, āśauca and śrāddha – one verse on partition – a prose quotation in Smṛticandrikā – quoted by Aparārka on prāyaścitta and vyavahāra – the verse of Yāj. II. 32 ascribed to Ṛṣyaśṛṅga also – quoted by Kalpataru on a wife's duties.

... p. 510

... pp. 510–513

Embodies in 525 verses the opinions of 24 sages – contents – quoted by Mitākṣarā and Aparārka, but not by Viśvarūpa and Medhātithi – suggests alternative penances even for very heinous sins – quoted many times by Smṛticandrikā on Āhnika and śrāddha – (probably compiled about 8th or 9th century A. D.) – Bhaṭṭoji commented upon it.

Sec. 43 Dakṣa : ... pp. 513-514

Mentioned by Yāj. – Viśvarūpa quotes him several times – Aparārka quotes a prose passage – contents of printed Dakṣasmṛti in 220 verses.

Sec. 44 Pitāmaha : ... pp. 514-516

Quotations from Pitāmaha occur mostly on vyavahāra, particularly ordeals – he treats of nine ordeals – 50 chalas enumerated by Pitāmaha in which king took action without a complaint – views peculiar to Pitāmaha, viz. 18 lowest castes, eight constituents of hall of justice, &c. – mentions Bṛhaspati – flourished between 400-700 A. D.

Sec. 45 Pulastya : ... pp. 516-517

An expounder of dharma named in a verse of Vṛddha Yājñavalkya – Viśarūpa, Mitākṣarā, Aparārka cite many verses on āhnikā and śrāddha – Dānaratnākara cites a prose passage of Pulastya – composed between 4th and 7th century A. D.

Sec. 46 Paiṭhīnasi ... pp. 517-519

Mentioned among 36 Smṛtis quoted by Aparārka – deals with all three branches of Dharmaśāstra – ācāra, vyavahāra and prāyaścitta – prose quotations from him outnumber quotations in verse – Mit., Aparārka and Kalpataru quote several passages from Paiṭhīnasi.

Sec. 47 Prācetas : ... pp. 519-520

A dharmaśāstra writer mentioned by Parāśara, though not by Yāj. – prose and verse quotations cited by Mitākṣarā and Aparārka – a few prose quotations in Haradatta on Gautama and Smṛticandrikā – Vṛddha Prācetas and Bṛhat Prācetas.

Sec. 48 Prajāpati : ... pp. 520-521

Prajāpati cited as authority by Baudhāyana Dh. S. (II. 4. 15) and Vasiṣṭha (III. 47 &c.) – they mean probably Manu – a compilation in 198 verses ascribed to Prajāpati – Mit. and Aparārka and others quote Prajāpati on āśauca, prāyaścitta, śrāddha, ordeals and vyavahāra.

Sec. 49 Marīci : ... pp. 521–522

Quoted on āhnika, āśauca, śrāddha and vyavahāra by Mitākṣarā, Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā - recommends writing as essential for sale, mortgage, gift and partition of immovables.

Sec. 50 Yama : ... pp. 522–528

Yama quoted in Vas. Dh. S. (18. 13–15 and 19. 48) – various printed compilations in verse ascribed to Yama – Bṛhad Yama in 5 chapters and 182 verses – Viśvarūpa and others quote over three hundred verses of Yama on all topics including vyavahāra – some of these found in printed text – a few prose passages of Yama quoted by Aparārka – Anuśāsanaparva 104. 72–74 quotes gāthās of Yama – some views of Yama on vyavahāra set out – Bṛhad Yama, Laghu Yama – Yama is profusely quoted in various kāṇḍas of Kalpataru.

Sec. 51 Laugākṣi : ... pp. 528–529

Mitākṣarā quotes verses on āśauca and prāyaścitta, while Aparārka quotes prose and verse passages on ācāra, āśauca, order of forest-hermits – Laugākṣi's definition of yogakṣema quoted by Mit. – quoted by Maskarin on Gant. Dh. S. as Lokākṣi.

Sec. 52 Viśvāmitra : ... p. 529

Sec. 53 Vyāsa : – pp. 529–535

Printed compilation ascribed to Vyāsa in 250 verses – contents – quoted by Viśvarūpa, Kalpataru, Maskarin – about two hundred verses of Vyāsa on vyavahāra cited in Aparārka, Smṛticandrikā and other works – his doctrines closely agree with those of Nārada, Bṛhaspati and Kātyāyana – some of his views on vyavahāra set out – flourished between 200–500 A. D. – Aparārka cites many verses from Vyāsa on saṃskāras, śrāddha &c. – probably Vyāsa the jurist is identical with the latter – Gadya-Vyāsa, Vṛddha-Vyāsa and Bṛhad-Vyāsa, Mahā-Vyāsa and Laghu-Vyāsa.

Sec. 54 Ṣaṭ-trīṃsan-mata :

This was a compilation like Caturvīṃśati-mata – quotations from it cited in Kalpataru, Mitākṣarā, Smṛticandrikā and Aparārka – Viśvarūpa and Medhātithi do not mention it – date between 790-909 A. D. – no verse quoted from this on vyavahāra.

Sec. 55 Samgraha or Smṛtisamgraha :

Quoted by Mitākṣarā, Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā on several topics of dharma – quotations on vyavahāra are many and important for history of Hindu Law – views of Samgrahakāra and Dhāreśvara coincide in many respects and were criticized by Mitākṣarā – date of Samgraha between 8th and 10th centuries.

Sec. 56 Samvarta :

... pp. 541-543

Mentioned as dharmaśāstrakāra by Yāj. – cited on all topics of dharma by Viśvarūpa, Medhātithi, Mitākṣarā – Aparārka quotes about 200 verses – some of his views on vyavahāra – contents of printed Samvarta in 230 verses – Bṛhat Samvarta and Svalpa Samvarta.

Sec. 57 Hārīta :

Verses from Hārīta on vyavahāra deserve special treatment – some of his views set out, e. g. definition of vyavahāra, four aspects of vyavahāra, importance of writing, defects of plaint and reply, protection of long possession, when title by itself is decisive against long possession, five kinds of sureties, treatment of erring wives – his date between 400-700 A. D.

Sec. 58 Commentaries and Nibandhas :

Dharmaśāstra literature falls into three periods, the first from 600 B. C. to 100 A. D. being the period of the dharmasūtras and of the Manusmṛti, the 2nd from 100 A. D. to 800 A. D. of Yājñavalkya and other smṛtis and third from 700 to 1800 of commentators and authors of digests – first part of this last period contains commentaries – digests written from 11th century – no hard and fast line between commentaries and digests – these to be treated of in chronological order as far as possible.

Sec. 59 Asahāya :

Portion of his bhāṣya on Nārada (up to verse 21 of abhyupetyāśuśrūṣā) published by Dr. Jolly – Kalyāṇabhaṭṭa revised it – exact relationship of Kalyāṇabhaṭṭa's revision to original not clear, but he took great liberties – Kalyāṇabhaṭṭa was encouraged by Keśavabhaṭṭa – Viśvarūpa on Yāj. (III. 263–264) mentions Asahāya by name and quotes latter's explanation of Gautama 22. 13–Asahāya's com. on Śaṅkha-Likhita mentioned by Ānandagiri – Hāralatā of Aniruddha speaks of bhāṣya of Asahāya on Gautama – from a passage of Sarasvatīvilāsa it appears that Asahāya commented on Manu also – Medhātithi on Manu 8. 156 quotes Asahāya – Mitākṣarā mentions the views of Asahāya – date of Asahāya between 600–750 A. D.–a few views of Asahāya set out, viz. definition of dāya, succession to Śulka of a woman, succession to a childless brāhmaṇa.

Sec. 60 Bhartṛyañña :

An ancient Bhāṣyakāra mentioned by Medhātithi (on Manu 8. 3) – his views cited by Trikāṇḍamaṇḍana – he wrote bhāṣya on Kātyāyana śrautasūtra and Pāraskara gṛhyasūtra – probably he commented on Gautamadharmasūtra – his explanation of Manu V. 143, Gaut. V. 41, XIV. 35–40, Vas. VIII. 1 quoted by Kalpataru – probably commented on Pāraskaragṛhya – flourished about 800 A. D.

Sec. 61 Viśvarūpa :

His commentary called Bālakriḍā on Yāj. published at Trivandrum – Mitākṣarā refers to it in introductory verses and on Yāj. (I. 80 and III. 24) – printed com. of Viśvarūpa on vyavahāra portion of Yāj. is very meagre – literature referred to or quoted by Viśvarūpa – most of the quotations from Svāyambhuva found in extant Manu, but not so those ascribed to Bṛgu – quotes prose passages of Bṛhaspati on vyavahāra – quotes a verse of Viśālākṣa on politics and refers to arthaśāstras of Bṛhaspati and Uśanas – Kauṭilya not named, yet Viśvarūpa seems to have had his work before him – Viśvarūpa's work saturated with doctrines of Pūrvamīmāṃsā – quotes Śabara and Śloka-vārtika – quotes his own kārikās on Yāj. I. 7 and other places – his philosophical views identical with Śaṅkarācārya's – Dr. Jolly's view that citations of Viśvarūpa in the Smṛticandrikā on certain points not traced in the printed Bālakrīḍā examined and shown to be incorrect – some citations of Viśvarūpa's views in Gṛhastharatnākara and Hemādri not found in printed text of Viśvarūpa – points in which Viśvarūpa and Mitākṣarā differ set out – Viśvarūpa must have flourished between 750 and 1000 A. D. – If Viśvarūpa identical with Sureśvara, pupil of Śaṅkara, then he flourished between 800–850 – reasons for identity set out – Maṇḍana and Sureśvara not identical – Bhava-bhūti and Umbeka identical, but not same as Sureśvara – Viśvarūpa was probably an inhabitant of Malwa or stayed there for some years – a digest called Viśvarūpanibandha by another Viśvarūpa – a Viśvarūpasamuccaya mentioned by Raghunandana.

His views quoted by Mitākṣarā on Yāj. I. 81 and II. 124 – a Bhāruci mentioned as an ancient teacher of Viśiṣṭādvaita system by Rāmānujācārya in his Vedārthasaṃgraha – Bhāruci the philosopher is probably identical with Bhāruci the jurist – from notices in the Sarasvativilāsa Bhāruci seems to have commented on the Viṣṇudharmasūtra – Bhāruci and Mitākṣarā disagreed on numerous points – Trivandrum Ms. of Bhāruci's commentary on Manu – According to Dr. Derrett Bhāruci is nearer A. D. 700 – his suggestion that Bhāruci is Ṛju not be acceptable.

Sec. 63 Śrīkara

Views of Śrīkara set out – first writer to propound the view that spiritual benefit was the criterion for judging of superior rights to succession – probably a Maithila – difficult to say whether he wrote a commentary or an independent digest – flourished between 800–1050 A. D.

Wrote an extensive commentary on Manu – in Dr. Ganganath Jha's ed. ten verses in the 3rd adhyāya are wanting – printed bhāṣya corrupt in 8th, 9th and 12th chapters – reference to king Madana having restored Medhātithi's bhāṣya explained – Dr. Jolly says Medhātithi was a southerner – this is wrong – He was a northerner and probably a Kashmirian – literature known to Medhātithi – smṛtis quoted by him – mentions Asahāya, Bharṭṛyajña, Yajvan, Upādhyāya, Rju, Viṣṇusvāmin – Medhātithi saturated with Pūrvamīmāṃsā – his bhāṣya is full of the terms vidhi and arthavāda – he mentions several nyāyas for explaining Manusmṛti – his reference to Śārīraka explained – Medhātithi and Śaṅkarācārya – Medhātithi names only a few Dharmaśāstra writers and does not quote any Smṛtikāra with the prefix ‘bṛhat’ or ‘vṛddha’ – peculiar views of Medhātithi set out – wrote Smṛtīviveka from which he quotes verses in his Manubhāṣya – date of Medhātithi – flourished between 825–900 A. D.

[PART II]

Sec. 65 Dhāreśvara Bhojadeva

... pp. 585–591

Mitākṣarā (on Yāj. II. 135 and III. 24) mentions views of Dhāreśvara – Dhāreśvara is to be identified with king Bhojadeva of Dhārā – works on numerous branches of knowledge attributed to Bhoja of Dhārā such as on Poetics, Rājamṛgāṅka (on astronomy), a com. on Yogasūtras – Śuddhikaumndī of Govindānanda mentions Rājamārtanḍa of Bhoja on śrāddha – Mitākṣarā and Dhāreśvara disagree on several points, e. g. on the question whether ownership was known from śāstra alone, on the meaning of ‘duhitarah’ in Yāj. – on other points the two agree – Bhūpāla-paddhati or simply Bhūpāla or rāja refers to a work of Bhojadeva – Bhujabalabhīma of Bhojarāja quoted in Tithitattva and Āhnika-tattva of Raghunandana as distinct from the Rājamārtanḍa – two works of Bhoja on Sanskrit poetics – inscriptional references to Bhoja – pedigree given in the Ujjain plate – Bhoja reigned from 1005–1054 A.D. – Dharmapradīpa of Bhoja is the work of another Bhoja, who was son of Bhāramalla and king of Āśāpura – it was written between 1400–1600 A. D.

Sec. 66 Devasvāmin :

... pp. 591–593

Said by Smṛticandrikā to have composed a digest of smṛtis – Nārāyaṇa, commentator of Āśvalāyanagrhya, relies on bhāṣya of Devasvāmin – he composed a digest on ācāra, vyavahāra and āsauca – Smṛticandrikā quotes his views on the meaning of Yautaka, on the meaning of duhitarah in Yāj., on Manu 9. 141 – A Devasvāmin commented on Pūrvamīmāṃsāsūtras and on the Samkarṣakāṇḍa – difficult to say whether he is identical with the writer on dharmaśāstra – Devasvāmin flourished about 1000–1050 A. D.

Sec. 67 Jitendriya :

He is frequently quoted by Jīmūtavāhana in his three works – Jitendriya held that the wives of a person whether separated or joint succeeded to their deceased husband – no early writer other than Jīmūtavāhana cites him – flourished between 1000–1050 A. D.

Sec. 68 Bālaka :

Mentioned by Jīmūtavāhana, Śūlapāṇi, Raghunandana – several views of Bālaka set out – flourished before 1100 A. D.

Sec. 69 Bālarūpa :

... pp. 596–598

The opinions of Bālarūpa are cited in the Smṛtisāra and Vivādacandra – also in the Vivādacintāmani – he wrote at least on vyavahāra and Kāla – Bālaka and Bālarūpa are probably identical – Bālarūpa is certainly earlier than 1250 A. D. – Vivādacandra once speaks of ‘author of Bālarūpa’, suggesting thereby that Bālarūpa was a work.

Sec. 70 Yogloka :

... pp. 598–599

Known only from works of Jīmūtavāhana and Raghunandana – Jīmūtavāhana only rarely agrees with him and generally criticizes him and taunts him with being a logician merely – Bṛhad Yogloka and Svalpa Yogloka – Yogloka wrote at least on vyavahāra and Kāla – flourished between 950–1050.

Sec. 71 Vijñāneśvara :

The unique position of the Mitākṣarā on account of being esteemed as of paramount authority by British Indian courts – the several names of the Mitākṣarā – quotes a host of smṛti writers and six predecessors as authors of commentaries and digests – noticeable features of Mit. – chary of quoting from Purāṇas – mentions the views of many Smṛti writers with the prefix ‘bṛhat’ or ‘vṛddha’ e. g. Bṛhan-Manu, Vṛddha-Manu, Bṛhad-Vasiṣṭha, Vṛddha-Viṣṇu etc., particularly on āśauca and prāyaścitta – personal history of Vijñāneśvara – profound student of pūrvamīmāṃsā – date of Vijñāneśvara – between 1100–1120 – Dr. Derrett's facile assumption about Vijñāneśvara being a judge, based on the Mit. on Yāj. II. 4 not acceptable – criticism against Prof. R. Aiyangar who makes an hasty and biased remark about Mit. as referring in its concluding verses to Kalpataru of Lakṣmīdhara – out of many commentators of the Mitākṣarā three famous – peculiar doctrines of the Mitākṣarā – seems to have been author of Āśaucadaśaka also – several commentaries on Āśaucadaśaka by Harihara, Raghunātha and Bhaṭṭoji – Vijñāneśvara not the author of Trīmśat-śloki – Nārāyaṇa, a pupil of Vijñāneśvara, wrote Vyavahāra-śiromaṇi.

Sec. 72 Kāmadhenu :

An ancient digest not yet discovered – quoted by Kalpataru, Hāralatā, and other works – Gopāla, the author of Kāmadhenu – Aufrecht's view that Śambhu is the author of Kāmdhenu wrong – Śambhu is a nibandhakāra on dharma cited by Smṛticandrikā and Hemādri – Mr. Jayasval wrongly ascribes Kāmdhenu to Bhoja – probable date of Kāmadhenu between 1000–1100 A. D.

Sec. 73 Halāyudha :

Several Halāyudhas – the first, the author of Kavirahasya and Mṛtasañjivani, flourished in the latter half of the 10th century – interesting features of Kavirahasya – another Halāyudha, the author of Brāhmaṇa-sarvasva and four other works – personal history of this Halāyudha – patronized by Lakṣmaṇasena, king of Bengal – his literary activity to be assigned to the period of 1160–1200 A. D. – La. Sam. – voluminous literature on it – this Halāyudha is different from one who was a jurist – composed a work on law – meaning and exposition of the words 'Vyavahāra' and 'Vivāda' – yet another Halāyudha who composed a com. called Prakāśa on Kātyāyana's Śrāddhakalpasūtra – he must have flourished before 1509 A. D. and later than 1150 A. D. – Halāyudha, the author of Karmopadeśinī – earlier than 15th century.

Sec. 74 Bhavadevabhaṭṭa :

Author of Vyavahāratilaka – and of Sambandhaviveka – also of Karmānuṣṭhānapaddhati or Deśakarmapaddhati – contents of latter – another work is Prāyaścittanirūpaṇa – yet another work called Tautātītamataṭilaka is concerned with elucidating Pūrvamīmāṃsā doctrines – Raghunandana criticizes Bhavadevabhāṭṭa's views several times, but also accepts his views many times - light on personal history of Bhavadeva in inscription at Bhuvaneśvara - he was a great builder of temples and tanks - explanation of the epithet 'Bāla-valabhi-bhujāṅga' applied to Bhavadeva - authors and works quoted - in Prāyaścitta prakaraṇa - review of Bhavadeva's Śivasūtikāśauca-prakaraṇa ed. by Dr. R. C. Hazra - contents of Śivasūtikāviśuddhi-prakaraṇa - flourished between 1050–1150 A.D. - Bhavadeva and Pradīpa - other authors on dharmaśāstra named Bhavadeva.

An ancient work on vyavahāra, dāna, śrādhda &c. - whether an independent digest is doubtful - was probably a commentary on Yājñavalkyasmṛti composed between 1000–1100 A.D. - Mahārṇava-prakāśa, Smṛtimahārṇava or Mahārṇava quoted by Hemādri are all names for the same work - probably Prakāśa and Smṛtimahārṇavaprakāśa are identical.

Sec. 76 Pārijāta :

Several works on dharma end in Pārijāta - an ancient work called Pārijāta quoted by Kalpataru - it dealt with at least vyavahāra, dāna - composed between 1000–1125 A. D.

Sec. 77 Govindarāja :

Wrote com. on Manusmṛti and a work called Smṛtimañjarī - personal history of Govindarāja - he is not to be identified with king Govindacandra of Benares - Kullūka frequently criticizes Govindarāja - contents of Smṛtimañjarī - date of Govindarāja between 1000–1110 A. D.

Sec. 78 The Kalpataru of Lakṣmīdhara :

An extensive work which exercised great influence over early Mithilā and Bengal writers - work divided into fourteen kāṇḍas - their arrangement and contents - eleven kāṇḍas edited by Prof. K. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar - personal history of Lakṣmīdhara - date of Kalpataru between 1125–1145 A. D. - passages in Kalpataru on vyavahāra are more or less identical with those of Mit. - Prof. Aiyangar's arguments for holding Mit. as knowing or relying upon Kalpataru not correct - Kalpataru, Manusmṛti and Yājñavalkya-smṛti - Kalpataru has extensive size and wide range, but in quality it is inferior to Mit. and some other digests - passages of Devala in Aparārka and the Mokṣakāṇḍa of the Kalpataru - composed in the realm of Govindacandra.

Sec. 79 Jīmūtavāhana :

He is first of the three great Bengal writers on dharmaśāstra - only three works known, Kālaviveka, Vyavahāramātrkā and Dāyabhāga - these three parts of a projected digest called Dharmaratna - object and contents of Kālaviveka - works quoted in Kālaviveka - profound study of Pūrvamīmāṃsā displayed therein - contents of Vyavahāramātrkā - works quoted in it - Dāyabhāga most famous of his works and of paramount authority in Bengal on Hindu Law - contents of Dāyabhāga - doctrines peculiar to Dāyabhāga - authors and works named in the Dāyabhāga - personal history of Jīmūtavāhana - his date - divergent views - literary activity lies between 1090-1130 A. D. - Did Jīmūtavāhana know the Mitākṣarā? - commentaries on Dāyabhāga.

Sec. 80 Aparārka :

... pp. 713-723

Wrote a voluminous commentary on Yājñavalkyasmṛti - History of Śilāhāras - three branches of this family - two kings called Aparārka or Aparāditya belonged to the branch that ruled in North Konkan - authors and works quoted by Aparārka - studiously avoids naming his predecessors who were writers of digests - peculiar views of Aparārka - evidence to show that Aparārka knew the Mitākṣarā - date of Aparārka - Smṛticandrikā criticizes Aparārka - Aparārka was a Śilāhāra prince - inscriptions of Śilāhāras - commentary written about 1125 A. D.

Sec. 81 Pradīpa :

An independent work on vyavahāra, śrāddha, śuddhi and other topics - between 1100-1150 A. D.

Sec. 82 Smṛtyarthasāra of Śrīdhara : ... pp. 725-727

Contents of - personal history of Śrīdhara - authors and works relied on as authorities - Śrīdhara probably composed another larger work - date between 1150-1200 A. D.

Sec. 89 Kullūkabhṭṭa :

... pp. 756-759

A famous commentator of Manusmṛti - he drew largely upon Medhātithi's bhāṣya and Govindarājā - Sir William Jones on Kullūka - authors and works quoted by him - personal history - he wrote Smṛtīviveka, of which Aśaucasāgara, Śrāddhasāgara and Vivādasāgara were parts - contents of Śrāddhasāgara - this is full of Pūrvamīmāṃsā discussions - date of Kullūka uncertain - flourished between 1150-1300 A. D.

Sec. 90 Śrīdatta Upādhyāya :

... pp. 759-763

One of the earliest nibandhakāras on dharmaśāstra from Mithilā - contents of Ācārādarśa and authors quoted therein - his Chando- gāhnika - principal topics in it - works quoted in it - his Piṭṛbhakti-authors quoted in it - his Śrāddhakalpa - his Samayapradīpa - contents of the work - flourished between 1200–1300 A. D., probably about 1275–1300 A. D. - hardly gives any information about himself or his family - liberal enough to allow Vaiśvadeva to śūdras

- another Śrīdattamiśra, a Maithila writer, who flourished towards end of 14th century.

Sec. 91 Caṇḍeśvara :

... pp. 763–775

Most prominent among Maithila nibandhakāras - compiled extensive digest called Smṛtiratnākara in seven sections on dāna, kṛtya, vyavahāra, śuddhi, pūjā, vivāda and gr̥hastha - contents of Kṛtya- ratnākara, Gr̥hastharatnākara, Dānaratnākara, Vivādaratnākara and other ratnākaras - he also compiled Kṛtyacintāmaṇi, the Rājanītiratnākara, Dānavākyaṅgāvali and Śivavākyaṅgāvali - contents of Rājanītiratnākara - he drew principally upon five viz. Kāmadhenu, Kalpataru, Pārijāta, Prakāśa and Halāyudha - authors and works quoted - Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya's papers on Caṇḍeśvara- personal history of Caṇḍeśvara - genealogy - he was minister of Harisimhadeva of Mithilā and later of Bhavēśa and weighed himself against gold in 1314 A. D. - Karṇāṭa and Kāmeśvara dynasties
- Vidyāpati, paternal cousin of Caṇḍeśvara - literary activity between 1314–1370 A. D.

Sec. 92 Harinātha :

rities - contents - flourished sometime between 1300–1400 A. D. - several works styled Smṛtisāra.

Sec. 93 Mādhavācārya :

... pp. 778–792

The most eminent of dākṣiṇātya writers on dharmaśāstra - two works on dharmaśāstra deserve special notice, viz. Parāśara Mādhaviya and Kālanirṇaya - authors and works quoted in them - contents of Kālanirṇaya - published in 1889 and 1936 - Sāyana, the minister under four kings viz. Bukka, Kampaṇa, San̄gama II and Harihara II - Father Heras' 196 inscriptions - life-sketch of Vidyāranya - Heras' conclusion that the ascetics of Śringerimath fabricated the story of Vidyāranya as the founder of Vijayanagar
etc. and the opinion about Vidyāranya superfluous - the identity of Mādhavācārya and Vidyāranya – family and personal history of Mādhavācārya – his brother Sāyana – Mādhava founded Vijayanagar in 1335 A. D. – Burnell's theory about the identity of Sāyana and Mādhava refuted by Narasimhachar – works of Mādhavācārya – pedigree of Vijayanagar kings – Parāśara Mādhaviya and Kālanirṇaya were composed between 1340–1360 A. D. – literary activity of Mādhava Vidyāranya between 1330–1385 A. D. – Fleet is wrong in identifying Mādhavānka with Mādhavācārya – Mādhava Vidyāranya different from Mādhava Mantrin who was governor of Banavase and Goa – several commentaries of Kālanirṇaya.

Sec. 94 Madanapāla and Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa : ... pp. 792–804

Four works attributed to Madanapāla, a great patron of learning like Bhoja, viz. Madanapārijāta, Smṛtimahārṇava or Madanamahārṇava, Tithinirṇayasāra and Smṛtikaumudī – Madanapārijāta really composed by Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa – contents of Madanapārijāta – its proposition with regard to kṇina and secondary sons – its style simple and lucid – authors and works quoted in it – Mahārṇava ascribed to Māndhātā, a son of Madanapāla – principal topics of the work – Tithinirṇayasāra – Smṛtikaumudī deals with dharmas of śūdras – contents – all the above four works probably composed by Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa – Subodhini, com. on Mitākṣarā by Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa is a leading authority in Benares school of Hindu Law – pedigree of Madanapāla – other works on astronomy and medicine attributed to Madanapāla – date of Madanapāla, between 1300–1400 A. An extensive digest on dharmaśāstra, variously styled – seven uddyotas of it on samaya, ācāra, vyavahāra, prāyaścitta, dāna, śuddhi, śānti – contents of uddyotas on samaya, dāna, and śānti – Dānoddhyota published by the Sanskrit Academy in 1964 – subjects treated in Dānoddhyota – D. C. Ms. dealing with Śānti section – authors and works referred to in it – work composed under Madanasimhadeva, son of Śaktisimhadeva – pedigree of the family – Madanasimha called together four learned men, Ratnākara, Gopīnātha, Viśvanātha and Gaṅgādhara, and entrusted composition of work to them – Vyavahāra section edited by the present author – its contents – date of Madanaratna between 1350–1500, probably about 1400–50.

Born in Biśapi, a village in north Bihar – fourth in descent from Dhīreśvara, uncle of Caṇḍeśvara – Love songs of Vidyāpati – credited with the authorship of 12 works – he was believed to be a great Vaiṣṇava, while in Mithilā he was held to be a Śaiva – he made Queen Viśvāsadevi's work Gaṅgāvākyāvalī faultless and supplied textual authorities in support of her propositions – there appears to be agreement about the date of his death viz. 1448 A. D. – he may be held to have flourished between 1360–1448 A. D.

Sec. 97 Vyavahāranirṇaya of Varadarāja :

... pp. 815–823

Vyavahāranirṇaya having no Maṅgala śloka at the beginning – one of the four South Indian works on Dharmaśāstra – Varadarāja's explanations often same as in the Mit. – on the whole Vy. N. a pedestrian performance – quotes many smṛtis, works and authors, but nowhere refers to Bhāruci – Varadarāja a puny figure in the matter of Mīmāṃsā as against the Mit. – later than the Mit. – but certainly earlier than 1515 A. D.

Sec. 98 Śūlapāṇi :

An eminent writer on Dharmaśāstra from Bengal – Dīpakalikā commentary on Yājñavalkya, his earliest work – holds archaic views on inheritance – his fourteen treatises ending in 'viveka' never mentioned as parts of his Smṛtiviveka – Durgotsavaviveka is amongst his latest works – Śrāddhaviveka is his most famous work – authors and works named by him – Sambandhaviveka edited by Dr. J. B. Chaudhuri – Dolayātrāviveka of Śūlapāṇi – Dolayātrā, the festival of swinging, when to be celebrated – half of the work taken from Skandapurāṇa – Prāyaścittaviveka – printed with the com. Tattvārthakaumudī of Govindānanda – etymology of the word 'prāyaścitta' – contents – works and authors quoted – Śūlapāṇi and Vācaspatimiśra – his Tithiviveka edited by Prof. S. C. Banerji and by Dr. J. B. Chaudhuri – Caturāṅgadīpikā ed. by Mr. Mano Mohan Ghosh in 1936 – commentaries on Śrāddhaviveka –

Śūlapāṇi hardly gives any information about himself – in colophons styled Mahāmahopādhyāya – and also Sāhuḍiyān – probably came from some place called Sāhuḍi – flourished between 1365–1445 A. D.

Sec. 99 Rudradhara : ... pp. 840–842

65. Dhāreśvara Bhojadeva

The Mit. (on Yāj. II. 135) says that Dhāreśvara tries to reconcile the conflicting texts about the right of the widow to succeed to her husband's estate by saying that she succeeded if her husband was separate and if she was willing to submit to niyoga. On the same verse the Mit. says that following Mānu IX. 217 Dhāreśvara placed the paternal grand-mother immediately after the mother as an heir and even before the father. On Yāj. III. 24 the Mit. says that certain texts of Ṛṣyaśṛṅga about impurity on death were not accepted as authoritative by Dhāreśvara, Viśvarūpa and Medhātithi. Vide sec. 60 Viśvarūpa about the remarks of the Smṛticandrikā on Dhāreśvara and Viśvarūpa. The Hāralatā⁷⁷⁷ (p. 117) remarks (as does the Mit. on Yāj. III. 24) that Bhojadeva, Viśvarūpa, Govindarāja, and the Kāmadhenu did not cite certain texts as Jātukarṇa's and that therefore they were not authoritative.

That Dhāreśvara is to be identified with Bhojadeva of Dhārā, perhaps the most famous Indian prince as a patron of learned men, follows from several considerations. The Dāyabhāga⁷⁷⁸ cites Bhojadeva and Dhāreśvara without making any distinction between the two. Some views that are ascribed to Dhāreśvara in one work are ascribed to Bhojadeva in another. The Vivādatāṇḍava of Kamalākara ascribes to Bhojadeva the same views as to the widow's rights as are ascribed to Dhāreśvara by the Mit. Mss. of the Rājamārtanda (commentary on the Yogasūtras) have colophons saying that the work was composed by Dhāreśvara Bhojarāja. Dhāreśvara is styled ācārya by the Mit. (on Yāj. III. 24) and sūri by the Smṛticandrikā (II p. 257). Works on numerous branches of knowledge were composed by (or in the name of or under) Bhoja of Dhārā. On Poetics we have two extensive works of his, viz. the Sarasvatikanthābharana and the Śṛṅgāraprakāśa.

A verse at the⁷⁷⁹ beginning of the Rājamārtanḍa tells us that Bhoja composed a work on grammar, a commentary on the Yogasūtra and a work on medicine called Rājamṛgāṅka just as Patañjali wrote on these three subjects (vide Mitra's Notices of Mss, vol. I, p. 115 for the medical work of Bhoja called Rājamārtanḍa (alias Yogasāra). He composed a work on astronomy called Rājamṛgāṅka. A work of his on the Śaiva āgama called Tattvapraṇkāśa has been published in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series. There are several other works ascribed to him, which need not be set out here. That he composed an extensive work on the principal subjects of Dharmaśāstra follows from the numerous references to him contained in the Mit., the Dāyabhāga, the Hārataṭṭa and other works. The Śuddhi-kaumudī⁷⁸⁰ (B. I. edition) of Govindānanda frequently speaks of a work called Rājamārtanḍa of Bhoja on Śrāddha. The Jayasimha-kalpādruma (p. 26) quotes Rājamārtanḍa and Bhojarājiya on the same page. Whether Bhoja composed on Dharmaśāstra one work or two (as he composed two on Poetics), and whether his work was a commentary or an independent digest it is difficult to say. M. M. Haraprasādaśāstri in one of his reports threw out the suggestion that the Kāmadhenu was the work of Bhoja, but this is entirely wrong, as the words of Śrīdatta in his Pitr̥bhakti⁷⁸¹ will show.

Besides the two points noted above (about widow's rights and about the grandmother, there are others on which the Mit. and Dhāreśvara disagreed : viz. Dhāreśvara held ownership to be known only from śāstra, while the Mit. held it to be laukika (vide Vīramitrodaya pp. 528, 536). Dhāreśvara held that the word 'duhitarah' in Yāj. stands for putrikā in the order of succession (Smṛticandrikā II. pp. 295-96). On other points the views of Dhāreśvara coincide with those of the Mit., viz. on the usage of giving a special share to the eldest son having fallen into desuetude, on the daughter's son's right to succession, on the father's inability to give a greater or smaller share to his sons in ancestral property on a partition during his life-time. Vide my article on Bhojadeva in JBBRAS for 1925, pp. 223-224 for details of these and other views ascribed to Bhojadeva. A few other references may be noted here. The *Nirṇayāmṛta*⁷⁸² (p. 68) quotes a Bhojarājīya text. In the Kālaviveka of Jīmūtavāhana two verses about taking food at the time of eclipses are cited from Bhojadeva (p. 539). In several works certain views are stated to be those of a Bhūpālapaddhati or of Bhūpāla or of Rāja. The reference seems to be to a work of king Bhoja. For example, in the Dānaratnākara, a Bhūpāla-paddhati and Bhūpāla are frequently quoted.⁷⁸³ The *Samayapradīpa*⁷⁸⁴ and Ācārādarśa of Śrīdatta speak of both Bhūpāla and Rāja. In other works also the views of Bhoja are often referred to as those of Rāja (the king par excellence). For example, the *Ekāvali*⁷⁸⁵ (a work on Poetics) says that in the Śṛṅgāra-prakāśa, the king accepted only one rasa. Dr. Raghavan has recently published (in 1963) a complete and learned exposition of the Śṛṅgāra-prakāśa of Bhoja (1009 pages). The Varṣakaumudī (p. 107) says that a certain verse is cited by the Gangāvākyāvalī without naming the author, but as it is not cited by the Rājā and the rest, it is unauthoritative.

The several tattvas of Raghunandana mention two works of Bhojadeva or Bhojarāja. For example, the Tithitattva (Jivananda vol. I, p. 17) cites a text as quoted in the Bhujabalabhīma by Bhojarāja; similarly, in the Śrāddhatattva (Jivananda vol. I, p. 266) two texts are cited as quoted by Bhojadeva in Bhujabalabhīma. Raghunandana also mentions Rājamārtanḍa of Bhojarāja (vide Āhnikatattva, vol. I, p. 451) He often cites the Rājamārtanḍa and the Bhujabalabhīma on the same page without the author's name (e.g. vide Udvāhatattva, vol. II, p. 124). Raghunandana often speaks of a Brhad-Rājamārtanḍa along with the Rājamārtanḍa on the same or the next page (vide Tithitattva, vol. I. pp. 25-26 and Jyotistattva pp. 605 and 655). That the Bhujabalabhīma and the Rājamārtanḍa are two different works appears to be clear. Whether the Brhad-Rājamārtanḍa and the Rājamārtanḍa are distinct works is not quite clear. (Vide Tri. Cat. of Madras Govt. mss. for 1919-22, p. 4562, No. 3079 for Bhujabalanibandha of Bhojarāja in 18 adhyāyas on astrological matters in relation to dharmaśāstra such as strījātaka, karṇādivedha, vrata, vivāhamelakadaśaka, grhakarmapraveśa, saṁkrāntisnāna, dvādaśamāsakṛtya). The Bhujabalabhīma is also mentioned by Śūlapāṇi and by Rudradhara in his Śrāddhaviveka.

Vide the present author's paper on, ' King Bhoja and his Works on Dharmaśāstra and Astrology in J. O. R. (Madras), Vol. XXIII pp. 94-127, where five works of Bhoja are named. Vide also a paper on ' Passages from the Rājamārtanḍa on 'Tithis, Vratas and Utsavas' by the present author in ABORI Vol. XXXVI (Parts III and IV) pp. 306-339 (286 verses out of 1462 on the basis of three Mss.). Dr. Derrett, in Bulletin of L. S. O. A. S. Vol. XV (part 3) pp. 598-602, draws attention to the commentary Durghatārtha-prakāśinī of Vimalabodha on Mahābhārata, Śānti. and Chap. 121, 14ff, where the commentator mentions Bhojadeva's interpretation of those verses in the latter's work called Vyavahāra-mañjarī. Vide Dr. Gode's paper in the Silver Jubilee number of B. O. R. I. pp. 146ff. about a ms. of this com. in the Bhandarkar O. R. Institute of Poona.

For two works of Bhoja on Sanskrit Poetics called 'Sarasvatikanṭhābharana' and the 'Śṛṅgāraprakāśa', vide the present author's 'History of Sanskrit Poetics' pp. 257-264 (ed. of 1961) and for the Śṛṅgāraprakāśa, Dr. Raghavan's monumental work on it (containing over a thousand pages) published very recently (1963) which contains a full exposition of Bhoja's great work.

Bhoja of Dhārā, according to the Bhojaprabandha, had a long reign of 55 years. Bhoja's was a remarkable career. In spite of the fact that he was constantly waging wars with different kings, he became the most famous Indian King as the patron of learned men. Considering the fact that he ruled long (about 50 years or so) and was generous to learned men the inscriptional references to him are rather few. There are only six records (of which five are copperplates) contemporary in time with him. They are: (1) The Ujjain plate in I. A. vol. VI p. 53 of Samvat 1078, Māgha dark half, 3rd tithi Sunday (1021 A. D.). It gives the pedigree as follows. Sīyakadeva-Vākpatirāja-brother Sindhurāja or Sindhula-son Bhojadeva. The grant was issued from the capital Dhārā; (2) the Banswara plate of Bhoja (E. I. Vol. XI p. 181-133), dated Samvat 1076, Māgha bright half (23rd January 1020 A. D.) issued on the festival for the conquest of Koṅkaṇa (Koṅkaṇa-vijayaparvaṇi); (3) the Betma plate (in E. I. Vol. 18 pp. 320-325 issued in Samvat 1076, Bhādrapada bright half, 15 (September 1020 A. D.) on Koṅkaṇa-grahana = vijayaparvaṇi); (4) the Tilakvādā plate (in Proceedings of the First Oriental Conference, 1919, pp. 319-326 of Samvat 1103, Mārgaśīrṣa, 1046 A. D.); (5) the Kalvan plate (E. I. XIX p. 69) refers to conquest of Koṅkaṇa by Bhoja and sets out a private person's grant of certain pieces of land to the temple of Munisuvrata on Caitra amāvāsya (when there was a solar eclipse); (6) Inscription on the pedestal of an image of Sarasvatī made in Samvat 1091 i. e. 1035 A. D. (which found its way to the British Museum) and it records that Bhoja caused the image of Vāgdevī to be prepared by a sculptor. In 'Rūpam' (edited by O. C. Gangoly) for January 1924 the image of Sarasvatī is reproduced as the frontispiece and pp. 1-2 give some details and a slightly mutilated verse (in Śārdūla-vikrīḍita metre) is set out with translation by Mr. Dikshit and the date saṃvat 1091 also is inscribed on the pedestal. In E. I. Vol. VIII p. 96 there is an inscription of Arjunavarmadeva, a descendant of Bhoja where it is stated that the drama Pārijātamañjarī was first performed in the hall of Śāradādevī built by Bhoja. Dr. Raghavan's latest work on Bhoja's Śṛṅgāraprakāśa, 1963, has a fine reproduction of this image as a frontispiece.

In the Navasāhasāṅkacarita of Padmagupta alias Parimāla, Vākpatirāja is mentioned in XI. 81, Sindhurāja in XI. 101 and in XI. 102 it is said that in the assemblies of warriors he is mentioned as Navasāhasāṅka (Vīragoṣṭhiṣu gīyate) and in XVIII. 62 his coming to Dhārā is mentioned. But all this does not state how many years he ruled. He must, however, have ruled for some years in order to be called Navasāhasāṅka for his valour. Vākpatirāja was also called Muñja, who was slain by Cālukya king Tailapa between 994-997 A. D. Therefore, Bhoja, son of Sindhurāja, may be held to have begun to rule about 1005 A. D. The Māndhātā plate of Jayasimha, successor of Bhoja (issued from Dhārā), is dated in saṃvat 1112 (Āṣāḍha, dark half i. e. 1055 A. D.); Vide E. I. Vol. III pp. 46-50 (gives the names as Vākpatirāja-Sindhurāja-Bhojadeva-Jayasimha). Therefore, Bhoja must have ruled from about 1005 A. D. to about 1054 A. D.⁷⁸⁶

The stories (in Prabandhacintāmaṇi) about Muñja's trying to do away with Bhoja must be treated as legendary trash. Tawney's translation of Prabandhacintāmaṇi (p. 32) refers to a prophecy made on the horoscope of Bhoja that he would rule for fiftyfive years, seven months and three days.

There is further definite data. The Rājamṛgāṅka of Bhoja (an astronomical work) takes śaka 964 (1042-43 A. D.) as its initial date.⁷⁸⁷

786 Vide 'History of Paramāra dynasty' (1933) by Dr. D. C. Ganguly pp. 82-122 (for Bhoja).

It is strange that the Madanaratnapradīpa (on Vyavahāra p. 324) refers to Bhoja as Dhāreśvarabhaṭṭa.

There is a work named Dharma-pradīpa by Bhoja (Govt. Mss. Lib. at the B. O. R. I. Poona, No. 26 of 1874-75). It is a work by another Bhoja later than 1400 A. D., as it quotes Vijñāneśvara and the Madanapārijāta. It was composed by an assembly of pandits at the bidding of king Bhoja of Āśāpura, son of Bhāramalla. The ms. was copied in saṃvat 1695 (i. e. 1638-39 A. D.).

66. Devasvāmin

The Smṛticandrikā tells us that Devasvāmin composed like Śrīkara and Śambhu a work in the nature of a digest of smṛtis (smṛtisamuccaya). Vide note 748 above. The commentary of Nārāyaṇa of the Naidhruva gotra, son of Divākara, on the Āśvalāyanagr̥hyasūtra⁷⁸⁸ says that it relies upon the bhāṣya of Devasvāmin on the same work. Gārgya Nārāyaṇa, son of Narasimha, in his commentary on the Āśvalāyana-śrautasūtra, tells us that he follows the bhāṣya of Devasvāmin thereon. It is hardly likely that two writers of the same name flourished about the same time. Hence it may be assumed that Devasvāmin wrote bhāṣyas on the Āśvalāyana Śrauta and Gr̥hya sūtras and a digest of smṛtis, where he discussed all topics of dharma, such as ācāra, vyavahāra, āśauca &c. The commentary of Bhaṭṭoji⁷⁸⁹ on the Caturvīṃśatimata refers to the view of Devasvāmin on srāddha and āśauca. Hemādri⁷⁹⁰ (vol. III, part 2, p. 324) and Mādhava (on Parāśara, vol. I, part 2, p. 328) also quote Devasvāmin. The Smṛticandrikā quotes the views of Devasvāmin on vyavahāra and āśauca several times. For example, Devasvāmin⁷⁹¹ explained the word Yautaka differently from the Nighaṇṭu (which explained it as the wealth that was given to a woman when she was seated on the same seat with her husband at the time of marriage). Devasvāmin explained that the word of the Saṁgraha⁷⁹² that, when a son was born to one of several full brothers, he stood as a son to all and that the same rule applied to several co-wives when one of them had a son, meant that in both cases another son should not be adopted. Devasvāmin held the view (like Bhojadeva) that the word 'duhitṛ' in Yājñavalkya's verses on succession meant putrikā.⁷⁹³ Devasvāmin explained Manu⁷⁹⁴ 9. 141 as saying that the adopted son (in the particular case mentioned by Manu) took all the wealth and the gotra of his adoptive father. Vide Smṛticandrikā (Mysore ed.) on āśauca p. 22. The Vaijayantī of Nandapandita (on Viṣṇu 22. 32) quotes the view of Devasvāmin that on the death of unmarried daughters mourning was to be observed for ten days.⁷⁹⁵ The

The स्मृतिच० (II, p. 289) says ' तस्य पूर्वोक्तेन सहाविरोधाय देवस्वामिना तात्पर्यार्थ उक्तः उभयत्र नान्यः प्रतिनिधिः कार्य इति ग्रन्थेन'. The same words occur in the स. वि. Smṛticandrikā quotes a verse from Devasvāmin⁷⁹⁶ on śrāddha also.

In the Prapañcahṛdaya (Tri. S. series, p. 39) we are told that Devasvāmin composed a brief gloss on the 12 adhyāyas of the Pūrvamīmāṃsāsūtra and the four adhyāyas of the Saṃkarsakāṇḍa, seeing that the bhāṣyas of Bodhāyana and Upavarṣa were vast. The Govt. collection of Mss. at Madras has Devasvāmin's bhāṣya on the Saṃkarsakāṇḍa (vide Tri. Cat. vol. III, part I, Sanskrit C, p. 3841). There are not sufficient data available to establish the identity of this writer with Devasvāmin, the writer on dharmaśāstra.

As the Smṛticandrikā quotes Devasvāmin so profusely, he cannot be later than 1150 A. D. His earlier limit can be determined in several ways. Gārgya Nārāyaṇa's comment on Āśvalāyanaśrauta (II. 1. 14) is quoted by Trikāṇḍamaṇḍana, who is himself (quoted by Hemādri. Therefore Gārgya Nārāyaṇa could not have flourished later than 1100 A.D. (vide Bhandarkar's Report on search for mss., 1883-84, pp. 30-31). Therefore Devasvāmin probably flourished about 1000-1050 A. D., if not earlier. The fact that Devasvāmin held certain views similar to Bhojadeva's also corroborates the chronological position thus assigned to him.

67. Jitendriya

Jitendriya is one of those writers who at one time held an eminent position but in course of time sank into unmerited oblivion. The works of Jīmūtavāhana bear abundant testimony to the fact that Jitendriya wrote an extensive work on dharmaśāstra. In his Kālaviveka (p. 380) Jīmūtavāhana says that Jitendriya⁷⁹⁷ wrote on the topic of kāla (i. e. on determining doubtful points about the months, the tithis, saṃkrāntis, &c. and the religious rites to be performed on them). In several passages of the Kālaviveka the very words of Jitendriya are quoted. Jitendriya said that a rite that occupies in performance only a short time must be performed at the principal time indicated for it⁷⁹⁸ (and not at a gauna time). From another quotation it appears that Jitendriya controverted the views of a predecessor Sambhramabhaṭṭa.⁷⁹⁹ Jitendriya is said to have enumerated the names of the fifteen muhūrtas of the day from the Matsyapurāṇa ;⁸⁰⁰ vide pp. 257, 367 of the Kālaviveka for other places where the views of Jitendriya on kāla occur. In the Dāyabhāga of Jīmūtavāhana also Jitendriya is frequently mentioned. The Dāyabhāga says that, if a man takes another's gold believing it to be iron or takes what is another's believing (in good faith) that it is his own, Jitendriya held in his remarks on the section of prāyascitta that he is not guilty of theft.⁸⁰¹ The peculiar doctrine of the Dāyabhāga that the widow of a person, whether he was separate or a member of a joint family, succeeded to her deceased husband's estate had been already expounded by Jitendriya.⁸⁰² The view of Jitendriya was that whatever is acquired by a person without using means or materials jointly owned by all members of a family is his exclusive property and that maitra (gifts of a friend) and audvāhika are only cited (by Yāj.) as examples of this proposition.⁸⁰³ Jitendriya held the daughter's son entitled to succeed after the daughter, just as Viśvarūpa, Bhoja and Govindarāja did. In the Vyavahāramātrkā of Jīmūtavāhana also Jitendriya's views are cited (on pp. 302, 334). This shows that he wrote also on procedure in law courts. Jitendriya is also referred to in the Dāyatattva of Raghunandana.⁸⁰⁴ But no other early writer quotes Jitendriya. Therefore it appears that Jitendriya was probably a Bengal writer and flourished about 1000-1050 A. D. and that he was completely eclipsed by the brilliant Jīmūtavāhana.

68. Bālaka

Bālaka like Jitendriya is no more than a name to us. Jīmūtavāhana's works make frequent reference to him. He held the view that the daughter's son, not being expressly mentioned as an heir by Yāj., came in after those expressly mentioned from the widow to the brother.⁸⁰⁵ The Dāyabhāga notices that Bālaka read a text of Āpastamba in a wrong way.⁸⁰⁶ Bālaka said that the words of Śaṅkha 'svaryāasya aputrasya bhrātṛgāmi dravyam...jyeṣṭhā vā patnī' apply either to a widow belonging to a caste other than her husband's or to a very young widow or in case her husband was undivided or re-united.⁸⁰⁷ Bālaka says that when some property is acquired by one brother by means of learning, other brothers are not entitled to that wealth.⁸⁰⁸ The Dāya-bhāga refers to a passage from Bālaka in which the latter relies on the Pūrvamīmāṃsā example of mudga and māṣa.⁸⁰⁹ In the Vyavahāramātrkā of Jīmūtavāhana (p. 346) it is stated that Bāla held the same views as those of Śrīkara-miśra on a certain point. In the Prāyaścitta-nirūpaṇa of Bhavadeva a writer named Vāloka is mentioned (vide JASB 1912 at p. 336). This seems to be a Bengali scribe's way of pronouncing the name Bālaka. Bālaka is mentioned in Raghunandana's Vyavahāratattva p. 47 also as holding the view with Śrīkara and others that adverse possession for twenty years conferred ownership in the case of immovable property. Śūlapāṇi in his Durgotsavaviveka twice quotes the views of Bālaka and once refutes the latter.⁸¹⁰ Hence it appears that Bālaka was an eastern or Bengal writer, composed a work on several branches of dharmaśāstra (such as vyavahāra and prāyaścitta) and flourished before 1100 A. D.

69. Bālarūpa

In the Smṛtisāra of Harinātha (I. O. cat. No. 301, folio 128a ff) there is a long passage setting out the views of Bālarūpa on the question of the succession to a childless man. In the Vivādacandra⁸¹¹ of Misaru-miśra the opinions of Bālarūpa (Bālarūpamata) that the words of Yāj. (II. 117 tābhya rte'nvayaḥ) mean the offspring of the mother and on the succession to re-united coparceners are cited. In the Vivāda-cintāmaṇi of Vācaspati⁸¹² the views of Bālarūpa are frequently cited. Relying on the words of Parāśara Bālarūpa held that an unmarried daughter was entitled to preference over a married one as an heir to a sonless man. As regards the verse of Hārīta that if a young widow was karkaśā (quarrelsome, 'suspected of unchastity' according to others), then she was to be given maintenance alone (out of her husband's estate), Bālarūpa's view was that it refers to the widow of a re-united coparcener.⁸¹³ Bālarūpa was of opinion that ātma-bandhus, pitṛbandhus and matṛbandhus succeeded in the order stated.⁸¹⁴ The Kālādarśa of Ādityabhaṭṭa names Bālarūpa among the authorities on which it relies. This shows that Bālarūpa wrote not only on vyavahāra but also on kāla.

As Harinātha and the Vivādacandra mention Bālarūpa he is certainly earlier than about 1250 A. D. The important question is whether Bālaka and Bālarūpa are identical. I think, though with some hesitation, that they are identical. The difficulty is caused by the fact that Harinātha speaks of 'the author of Bālarūpa,' which implies that Bālarūpa is a work and not an author, while the others speak of Bālarūpa as an author. The Dāyabhāga always speaks of Bālaka and never of Bālarūpa, while the Mithilā writers, Misaru-miśra, Vācaspati and Harinātha, speak of Bālarūpa and not of Bālaka. Bālaka is not mentioned by any writer belonging to a province other than Bengal. It is not likely that there were two early authors belonging to the same locality on vyavahāra bearing two names so nearly the same as Bālaka (or Bāla) and Bālarūpa. Moreover, if we read one quotation from the Dāyabhāga between the lines (vide note 621) where Jimūta-vāhana makes fun of Bālaka by charging him with having exposed his Bālarūpatva (being Bālarūpa, being childish) it appears that the Dāyabhāga looked upon Bālaka and Bālarūpa as identical. If so Bālaka or Bālarūpa becomes an ancient writer, who flourished certainly before 1100 A. D. As he held the same views as Śrīkara's and an antiquated view about the rights of the daughter's son he must not be later than 1050 A. D.

70. Yogloka

Yogloka like Jitendriya and Bālaka is a writer about whom we know only from the works of Jīmūtavāhana and Raghunandana. He is the last of the series of writers enumerated in one place by the Kālaviveka as having dealt with the subject of kāla (vide note 611 above). The Vyavahāramātrkā of Jīmūtavāhana very frequently⁸¹⁵ cites the views of Yogloka and generally twits him with thinking himself as being a logician or a new-fangled (nava-tārkikan-manya) logician. Both in the Kālaviveka and the Vyavahāramātrkā Yogloka is generally cited for being refuted (e. g. pp. 457-58, 465, 483 of the Kālaviveka). It is only very rarely that Jīmūtavāhana agrees with Yogloka (as on p. 369 of the Kālaviveka). From certain passages of the Kālaviveka it follows that Yogloka composed two works, one called Brhad-Yogloka (larger work) and the other styled Svalpa-Yogloka (a smaller-work).⁸¹⁶ It appears that Yogloka was later than Śrīkara and accepted certain illustrations given by the latter.⁸¹⁷ The Vyavaharatattva of Raghunandana informs us that like Śrīkara and Bālaka, Yogloka held the view that twenty years' adverse possession of immovables conferred ownership (vide note 624 above). The same work tells us that the Maithilas followed the view of Yogloka that the verse of Kātyāyana (yadyekadeśavyāptāpi...nṛṇām) was intended to apply to a case where a litigant threw down the challenge that if even

The foregoing establishes that Yogloka wrote at least on kāla and vyavahāra and composed two treatises on kāla.

Jīmūtavāhana⁸¹⁹ says that a predecessor of his styled Dīkṣita criticized a certain reading of Yogloka's, i. e. Yogloka preceded Dīkṣita, who was a predecessor of Jīmūtavāhana. Jīmūtavāhana further refers to ancient (purātana) mss. of Yogloka's work. Hence Yogloka must have preceded Jīmūtavāhana by at least a hundred years. He is later than Śrīkara (note 632 above). Therefore he must have flourished between 950-1050 A. D.

71. Vijñāneśvara

The Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara occupies a unique place in the Dharmaśāstra literature. Its position is analogous to that of the Mahābhāṣya of Patañjali in grammar or to that of the Kāvya-prakāśa of Mammata in Poetics. It represents the essence of dharmaśāstra speculation that preceded it for about two thousand years and it became the fountain head from which flowed fresh streams of exegesis and developments. Under the decisions of the Courts in British India, the Mitākṣarā is of paramount authority in several matters of Hindu Law (such as adoption, inheritance, partition etc.) throughout India except where, as in Bengal, the Dāyabhāga prevails.

The Mit. professes to be a commentary on the Yājñavalkyasmṛti. In the colophons of several mss., it is described as Rjūmitākṣarā, Pramitākṣarā or simply Mitākṣarā. These names are probably due to some of the verses appended at the end of the commentary.⁸²⁰ The Mit. is not only a commentary explaining the verses of Yājñavalkya, but it is in the nature of a digest of smṛti material. It brings together numerous smṛti passages, explains away contradictions among them by following the rules of interpretation laid down in the Pūrvamīmāṃsā system, brings about order by assigning to various dicta their proper scope and province (viśayavyavasthā) and effects a synthesis of apparently unconnected smṛti injunctions.

The Mit. quotes a host of smṛti writers and six predecessors, who were commentators and authors of digests on dharmaśāstra.⁸²¹ Besides, it quotes Vedic works (like the Kāthaka), the Brhadāranyakopaniṣad, the Garbhopaniṣad the Jābālopaniṣad and other works like the Nirukta, Bharata (author of Nāṭyaśāstra), Yogasūtra, Pāṇini, Suśruta, the Skandapurāṇa, the Viṣṇupurāṇa, Amara, Guru (i. e. Prabhākara).

A noticeable feature of the Mit. may be mentioned here. Though it quotes from more than 80 Smṛtis and Smṛtikāras it is very chary of quoting from the Purāṇas. Only five Purāṇas are mentioned by name in the Mitākṣarā viz. the Brahmāṇḍa⁸²² (one verse on Yāj. III. 30), the Bhaviṣyat (on 822 तथा ब्रह्माण्डपुराणे । ' शैवान्पाशुपतान् स्पृष्ट्वा लोकायतिकनास्तिकान् । विकर्म-स्थान् द्विजान् शूद्रान् सवासा जलमाविशेत् ॥ मिता. on या. III. 30.

Yāj. III. 6), Matsya (Mit. on Yāj. I. 297-298 quotes eleven verses from the Matsya, chap. 94. 1-9 verses and verses 11-12 of Chap. 93 of the same), Viṣṇupurāṇa (15 verses are quoted on Yāj. III from the Viṣṇupurāṇa about Nārāyaṇabali for one who committed suicide). Skandapurāṇa on Yāj. II. 290 (Smaryate hi Skandapurāṇe Pañcacūḍā nāma kāścanāpsarasah tatsantatir-veśyākhyā pañcamījātiḥ).

This sparing use of Purāṇas in the Mit. is in consonance with Yāj. I. 3 which states that fourteen are the sources of Vidyā and of Dharma, viz. Purāṇa, Nyāya (Tarka or logic), Mīmāṃsā, Dharmaśāstra, the Aṅgas (six auxiliary lores of the Veda) and the (four) Vedas. It should be noticed that the fourteen classes of works are enumerated in a rising scale of importance and authoritativeness i. e. the Vedas are the highest authority on matters of Dharma and the Purāṇas are the lowest. Dharmaśāstra is given a high place after the Vedas and Aṅgas. All early writers hold that the Veda is the basis of Dharma and so are the Smṛtis (vide Gaut. Dh. 1-2, Vas. 1.4, Manu II.6) and Manu states (II.10) that Smṛti means Dharmaśāstra.

The Mitākṣarā is, in the matter of citing Purāṇas as authorities, in great contrast to the Kalpataru and the commentary of Aparārka. In the very first Kāṇḍa (Brahmacāri) of the Kalpataru eleven Purāṇas are quoted as authorities viz. Āditya, Kālikā, Devī, Narasimha, Brahma, Brahmāṇḍa, Matsya, Mārkaṇḍeya, Vāyu and Viṣṇu and of these the Brahma is quoted 11 times, Bhaviṣya 28 times and Viṣṇu 11 times. Taking the last Kāṇḍa (on Mokṣa), among the works cited as authorities seven Purāṇas figure viz. Narasimha, Brahma, Brahmāṇḍa, Matsya, Mārkaṇḍeya, Vāyu and Viṣṇu, of which, the Viṣṇupurāṇa is quoted oftener than any other work (except the Mahābhārata, the Bhagavadgītā and the Manusmṛti).

Vide below under 'Aparārka' for the large number of Purāṇas and Upapurāṇas (22 in all) mentioned by Aparārka.

Another noticeable feature of the Mit. is that it mentions the views of many Smṛti writers with the prefix 'brhat' or 'vrddha'. For example, it quotes verses of Vrddha-Manu on Yāj. II. 135-36, 270, 272, III. 5, 20, 260 and Brhan-Manu on Yāj. II. 135-136 (on Sapiṇḍa and Samānodaka); it quotes Vṛddha-Yāj. on Yāj. III. 1-2 (one verse), III. 6, III. 19 (two verses), III. 289 ; it quotes Brhad-Yājñvalkya on Yāj. III. 253 ; it quotes Vṛddha-Vasiṣṭha on Yāj. III. 20 (prose), Yāj. III. 21 (verse), III. 24 (four verses on ' āśauca ' in one of which the view of Yama is mentioned), on Yāj. III. 311 (prose); it quotes Brhad-Vasiṣṭha on Yāj. III. 287 (2½ verses). Mit. quotes Vṛddha-Viṣṇu on Yāj. II. 135-36 (prose), on Yāj. III. 266-67 (verse); Mit. quotes Brhad-Viṣṇu on Yāj. III. 20 (prose), on Yāj. III. 234-242 (long prose passage on various kinds of pātakas) and on III. 253 (1½ verses), III. 263-4 (one verse); the Mit. mentions Vṛddha-Śātātapa on Yāj. I. 231 (verse); Mit. mentions Vṛddha-Hārīta (2½ verses of Vṛddha Hārīta on Yāj. III. 266-67 and prose on Yāj. III. 325, on Yāj. III. 254 (prose), 259 (prose), 261 (prose); Mit. on Yāj. III. 261 quotes Vṛddha-Brhaspati (1½ verses on nine kinds of saṅkara ; Mit. quotes Vṛddha-Pracetas (verses) on Yāj. III. 265 and Brhat-Pracetas (verses) on Yāj. III. 20 (one), III. 263-64 (1½ verses); III. 265 (2½ verses); Mit. quotes Brhad-Yama (4 verses) on Yāj. III. 254, 255 and 260 ; Mit. quotes Brhad-Saṁvarta on Yāj. III. 265.

Viśvarūpa on Yāj. I. p. 10 quotes verses of Vṛddha-Yāj. enumerating the names of ten expounders of Dharma (other than those mentioned by Yāj.). Viśvarūpa on p. 136 (on Yāj. I. 195, MM. Ganapati Shastri's ed. of 1922) quotes a prose passage of Vṛddha-Gārgya.

It would be noticed from the above statements of the Mit. about authors mentioned with the prefixes vṛddha and ' brhat ', that many of the passages quoted from them are concerned with matters relating to āśauca and prāyaścitta. It is probable that during the centuries of foreign invasions such as those of Hūṇas and the ascendancy of Buddhism and other schisms, more attention was paid to idealogical matters of purity, penances and the like and additions were made to the already existing Smṛtis by means of works to which Mit. words like brhat, vṛddha or ' laghu ' were prefixed.

It may be stated here that Aparārka who is not far removed in time from the Mit. cites quotations from authors with the prefix Vṛddha, viz. Gārgya, Gautama, Parāśara, Pracetas, Brhaspati, Manu, Yājñavalkya, Vasiṣṭha, Vyāsa, Śātātapa, Hārīta and the word ' brhat ' to Pracetas, Yama, Manu, Viṣṇu and Hārīta. It is noteworthy that Aparārka (on Yāj. III. 23-24) first quotes Manu II. 67 (for the proposition that in the case of women marriage has the place of Upanayana) and immediately afterwards quotes Vṛddha-Manu's verse about the impurity (āśauca) to be observed by maidens not grown up, by grown-up but unmarried girls and by those that are married. It is beyond doubt that Aparārka regarded the Manusmṛti and Vṛddha-Manu's work as distinct. The Kalpataru on Vyavahāra quotes Vṛddha-Manu eight times, but the first half of one verse quoted as Vṛddha-Manu's on p. 402 of (Vyavahāra-Kāṇḍa) occurs in the Manusmṛti VIII. 157.

The author styles himself Vijñānayogin in the concluding verses of his commentary and later writers frequently refer to him in that way. He belonged to the Bhāradvāja gotra and was son of Padmanābhabhaṭṭa. He was a paramahansa (i. e. an ascetic) and was the pupil of Uttama. He tells us that when he wrote the Mitākṣarā, king Vikramārka or Vikramādityadeva was ruling in the city called Kalyāna⁸²³ (now in the Nizam's dominion). The verses at the end containing the personal history appear to be genuine. They occur in the oldest Mss. of the Mit. such as the Government of Bombay Ms. dated śakasaṃvat 1389.

The author of the Mit. was a profound student of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā system. Throughout the Mit. discussion of Pūrvamīmāṃsā nyāyas and their application to dharmaśāstra are sown broadcast. For example, the Mit. on Yāj. I. 81 (whether it is a niyama or parisaṃkhyā), I. 86, II. 114, II. 126, II. 265 &c., may be consulted. The Mit., as the very name implies, is generally concise and to the point. But in his desire to make his work a repository and synthesis of varied smṛti dicta the author does not mind if he has occasionally to expand his commentary to enormous lengths. For example, the Mit. on Yāj. III. 265 and 290 occupies several pages of closely printed text.

A remarkable merit of the Mitākṣarā is that it relies on the Mīmāṃsā sūtras and maxims for solving difficult and doubtful points in the Dharmaśāstras. A few examples may be briefly noticed here. On Yāj. I. 4-5 (where 20 Dharmaśāstrakāras are named), Mit. remarks that these verses are not to be held as parisaṅkhyā (these verses do not exclude others being recognised as Dharmaśāstrakāras) but are only illustrative. Parisaṅkhyā, Niyama and Vidhi are explained at great length on Yāj. I. 79 and 81. On Yāj. I. 249, the Mit. remarks that the verse is a niyama and not parisaṅkhyā. On Yāj. I. 253-54 the Mit. quotes on the question of the Sapindi-karaṇa of one's deceased mother texts of Paithīnasi, Yama and Uśanas and brings out order (i. e. makes a vyavasthā). The Kalpataru on Śrāddha quotes Yāj. I. 253-54 (on p. 257), does not quote the varying views of several writers but only one view and makes no vyavasthā on the point. Another example of Vyavasthā on varying dicta of over a dozen writers occurs on Yāj. I. 256, where difference of views of the Dākṣiṇātyas and Udīcyas are set out and PMS III. 6.9 is also discussed. Kalpa° on Śrāddha has no such discussion. On Yāj. II. 114, the Mit. refers to the Lipsāsūtra (Jaimini IV. 1. 2, in which the word lipsā occurs) and quotes a passage of Prabhākara (called Guru). Vide H. of Dh. Vol. III. p. 550 and n. 1027 for this. Vidhis are of two kinds, 'Kratvartha' and 'Puruṣārtha' and the Mit. on Yāj. I. 103 holds a discussion on this. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. V. pp. 1232-35 for explanations of these two. The particle nañ ('na' meaning 'not') may indicate a prohibition (pratishedha) or a provision or exception (paryudāsa). The Mit. on Yāj. I. 129 remarks that not only in that verse but everywhere in that prakaraṇa (Yāj. I. 129-166) the particle 'nañ' conveys 'paryudāsa'. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. V pp. 1248-49 for explanation. On Yāj. I. 86 where an objector raises the question that a woman is prohibited from becoming a satī after her husband's death, the Mit. refers to the Śyenayāga and points out that the Śyenayāga passage is entirely different in purport from passages about the practice of Satī. Vide on this H. of Dh. Vol. V pp. 1183 and 1245.

The Mit. refers to the division of Vikalpas (options) into Vyavasthita and Avyavasthita on Yāj. I. 96; vide (for exposition) about Vikalpa H. of Dh. Vol. V pp. 1250-1252. The Mit. is fond of citing Nyāyas. For example, on Yāj. I. 81 it cites the nyāya 'nimittvārttau naimittakam-apyāvartate', which is based on Jaimini VI. 2. 27-29. The same nyāya is mentioned by the Mit. on Yāj. III. 263-264 and on III. 288. On Yāj. II. 126 the Mit. refers to the Daṇḍāpūpikanyāya, which is very frequently employed in Dharmaśāstra works. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. V. p. 1344 for other places where it is employed. On Yāj. II. 265, the Mit. refers to the rule of equal division (samam syāt-aśrutivāt) PMS XV. 3. 53, which is referred to by several works (vide H. of Dh. Vol. p. 1350 for other references. Some Jaiminisūtras are mentioned as Nyāyas e. g. 'ekārthās-tu vikalperan' iti nyāyenaikārthānāmeva vikalpo na daṇḍatapa-sor-ekārthatvam' on Yāj. III. 257, the sūtra being P. M. S. XIII. 3. 10. Vide also śāstroktam phalam prayoktari iti nyāyenādhikārikartṛgataphalajanakā devakūpa-taḍāga nir-māṇdayaḥ' (Mit. on Yāj. III. 227). This refers to Jaimini III. 7. 18-20, the first sūtra which begins with Śāstra-phalam prayoktari'. On Yāj. III. 220 Mit. refers to the Jāteṣṭinyāya (explained in H. of Dh. Vol. V. p. 1343). On Yāj. III. 226 the Mit. applies the Rātrisattranyāya for which vide H. of Dh. Vol. V. p. 1227. On Yāj. III. 298 the Mit. follows Śabara's bhāṣya saying ' kim-iva vacanam na kuryāt '. This is frequently mentioned by Śabara and Dharmaśāstra works (in slightly different forms). Vide H. of Dh. Vol. V p. 1345 for references. The Māṣa-mudganyāya based on Jai. VI. 3. 20 is relied upon by the Mit. on Yāj. II, 126 for an explanation of which vide H. of Dh. Vol. V. p. 1347.

One of the well-known maxims of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā is called ' Sarvaśākhā-pratyayanyāya ' or śākhāntarādhikaraṇa-nyāya (Pūrvamīmāṃsā-sūtra II. 4. 8-33). This means that all the śākhās (branches) of the Veda and the Brāhmaṇa works attached to the Vedic recensions form one corpus, that such rites as Agnihotra or Jyotiṣṭoma are one and the same, though the details may vary here and there in the Vedic works. The Vedāntasūtra (III. 3. 1-4) accepts the same position about the Upaniṣads as regards Upāsanās. This maxim was extended to Smṛtis also by such writers as Viśvarūpa, Medhātithi, Vijñāneśvara and Aparārka. The result was that an option was given where Smṛti passages were in conflict, otherwise all details in the several works were to be added up. The Mit. on Yāj. III. 325⁸²⁴ states this, as also on other occasions (e. g. on Yāj. I. 4-5). Vide pp. 1272-74 of Vol. V of H. of Dh. for explanation and references.

The Mit. quotes hundreds of verses simply as 'vacanam' or 'vacanāt' or as 'smaraṇa' or smṛtyantaram' and sometimes verses so referred to are well-known and are found in Smṛtis like those of Manu and Nārada. For example, on Yāj. I. 80, it quotes the verse 'Pumān pum'soḍhike' as a vacana; it is Manu III. 49. On Yāj. I. 87 the Mit. quotes 'Prāgupanayanāt... bhakṣāḥ' as smaraṇa though it is a well-known sūtra of Gaut. (II. 1.). On Yāj. II. 305 the Mit. quotes 'Pādo gacchati... rājānam-ṛcchati' as a vacana, which is a well-known verse of Manu 8. 18 and Nārada (3. 12). On Yāj. II. 49 Mit. quotes as a vacana 'Bhāryā putraśca dāsaśca &c' which is Manu IX. 416. On Yāj. I. 90 Mit. quotes as 'smaraṇa' a half verse which is Manu X. 41. Some verses quoted as Manu's are not found in the Manusmṛti. For example, on Yāj. I. 179, a verse 'Yathāvidhi niyuktastu... vimśatim' is cited as Manu's but it is not found in the present Manusmṛti. In introducing Yāj. I. 217-218, Mit. quotes as Manu's the verse 'Dadyād-aharahaḥ śrāddham' &c. which is not found in the Manusmṛti. On Yāj. III. 18 the printed Mit. ascribes the verse 'asvargyam...caren-na tu' to Manu, but it is really Yāj. I. 156. On Yāj. I. 8 Mit. quotes 'Yatrai-kāgratā tatrāviśeṣāt' as from Patañjali's sūtra work. It is really a sūtra of the Vedāntasūtra (IV. 1. 11).

On Yāj. I. 224 the Mit. quotes 'Vṛddhau ca mātāpitarau... Manurabravīt' as 'Samānadarśana' (meaning probably Manusmṛti). That verse is printed (within brackets) in several editions of the Manusmṛti after XI. 10 (as in Mandlik's and Nir. ed. with Kullūka's com.). It is possible that some of the mistakes pointed out above are due to scribes. Yāj. II. 165 provides a fine of 'ardhatrayodaśapaṇa' for a cowherd through whose fault a cow or other domestic animal dies. The Mit. explains this as 13½ paṇas, but the explanation of the Mit. is against the rules of grammarians (as laid down by the Vārtika on Pāṇ. II. 2. 24 and the Mahābhāṣya thereon (Kielhorn vol. I p. 426), and vide H. of Dh. Vol. III. pp. 140, 499 and notes thereon.

A striking feature of the Mit. may be noted here.

The whole of the Mit. printed at the Nir. Press (of 1926) with the text of Yāj. comes to 492 closely printed pages; the ācārādhyāya with 368 verses covers only 112 pages, the 2nd on Vyavahāra with 307 verses occupies 181 pages, while the third adhyāya of 334 verses covers 199 pages. That shows that the Mit. spends nearly twice as many pages on the third adhyāya (that has a lesser number of verses) as on the 1st adhyāya. That also conveys that Prāyaścittas and cognate matters had come to hold a far greater grip on Hindus at the end of the 11th century than in the days of Viśvarūpa, who devotes 201 pages to first adhyāya of 363 verses, 98 pages only to Vyavahāra (310 verses), and 180 pages to 3rd adhyāya of 330 verses.

As the Mitākṣarā names Viśvarūpa, Medhātithi and Dhāreśvara, it must have been composed after 1050 A. D. The *Smṛticandrikā*⁸²⁵ of Devanābhaṭṭa (which as will be seen later on was composed about 1200 A. D) several times criticizes the views of the Mit., viz. the latter's remarks that the giving of an additional share to the eldest son is disapproved of by the people, the reasons given for preferring the mother to the father and the definition of dāya.

King Vikramāditya VI of the Cālukya dynasty with his capital at Kalyāṇa (or – nī) ruled for about fifty years, from about 1076 A. D. to 1126 A. D.⁸²⁶ Fleet pointed out on p. 446 of Bombay Gazetteer (vol. I, part 2) that the Vadageri Inscription proves that the coronation of Vikramāditya VI took place sometime before the 5th of the bright half of Phālguna in the year Nala, śaka, 998 i. e. before the end of Śaka 999 (current 1076–77 A. D.), and that the Cālukya Vikrama era started very probably from Caitra-śuddha 1 of Chikkavāḍavatti is in the Mundargi Peṭha of the Dharwar District. It is inscribed on a slab built into the wall of Kalameśvara temple. Vide ' Indian Culture ', Vol. IV, for 1937 pp. 43–52 on Cālukyas and their political relations with the contemporary Northern States.

the year Nala, śaka 998 (expired), corresponding to 8th March 1076 A. D. As regards the date of his death it may be observed that the Chikkavaḍavatti Inscription (South Indian Inscriptions, Vol. XI part 2 No. 178 pp. 236-239) belongs to his reign and cites Cālukya Vikrama year 51, Parābhava, Māgha, Śukla 5, Wednesday, corresponding to 19th January 1127 A. D. Since his son and successor Someśvara III is known to have counted Parābhava as his first regnal year (Bom. Gaz. Vol. I part II p. 455) the death of the father Vikramāditya VI and the accession of the son seem to have taken place between 19th January and March 14 (end of Phālguna) in 1127 A. D. This indicates that Vikramāditya passed away sometime between 20th January and 1st March of 1127. Therefore, it would be accurate enough to hold that Vikramāditya VI ruled from 1076 A. D. to 1126 A. D. The 4th verse⁸²⁷ at the end of the Mitākṣarā may be translated thus: ' On the earth, there never was, nor is, nor will hereafter exist a capital similar to Kalyāṇa ; a king like Vikramārka was not seen or even heard ; and moreover another matter is that the Pandit (called) Vijñāneśvara has no one else for comparison with him ; may this triad that is like Kalpalatikā (the fabulous desire-yielding plant) firmly endure till the end of the world '. In verse 6 at the end Vijñāneśvara prays ' May king Vikramāditya, whose feet are refulgent with the brilliance of the diadems on the heads of kings bowing down from the eastern ocean, protect as long as the moon and stars last the whole world from the Setu of Rāma (in the South), from the Himālaya (in the North), from the Western ocean with its waves rising high on account of the movements of shoals of fishes. The prayer in verse 4 is expressly limited. Verse 6 (at end) expresses only a pious hope. No single Indian king can be said to have ruled during historical times over the country from the Himālayas down to Rāmeśvara.

The lowest limit for Vijñāneśvara is provided by the fact that at the end of his work he refers to Vīkramāditya Cālukya who had become a great king and prays that the monarch may live long. As seen above the Cālukya king passed away sometime in the first two months of 1127 A. D. Therefore, the completion of the work cannot be placed in any case beyond 1125-26 A. D. But such an erudite and exhaustive work cannot be completed in a short time. Therefore it would have to be held that the work was spread over some years and the period that can be properly assigned to its being undertaken and finished by a Paṇḍita single-handed must be placed between 1100 to 1120 A. D. The present author holds that Dr. Derrett is wrong in following the late Professor R. Aiyangar in placing the Mitākṣarā between 1121-25 (as he does in J. I. H. vol. 30. pp. 35-55 at p. 36).

No one has put forward any positive and reliable evidence for being so cocksure about the exact date of the Mitākṣarā. It is impossible to assign the completion of the Mitākṣarā to a date later than 1126 A. D. How much earlier it was completed it is difficult to say. It mentions Dhāreśvara (Bhojadeva) who ruled between about 1005-1054-55 A. D. Therefore the Mit. was composed some decades after 1055. That is all. There is no positive evidence to put it between 1121-25 A. D. That is purely conjectural and arbitrary. There is no evidence to establish the exact time when the work was undertaken.

The period of the writing of the 14 kāṇḍas of Kalpataru has to be placed at the earliest between 1125-1145 A. D. (as argued below under the heading ' Kalpataru ') i. e. some years later than the completion of the Mitākṣarā. In the colophons Vijñāneśvara is described as Paramahansa and Parivrājaka (a sannyāsin). Acc. to the Anuśāsanaparva (141. 89), the Vaikhānasasūtra VIII. 9 and several other authorities ascetics were of four grades, the last being called Paramahansa; vide H. of Dh. Vol. II pp. 938-940. But, in medieval times and later all parivrājakas (ascetics) were spoken of or addressed as 'paramahansa'. In verse 4 at the end he describes himself as Paṇḍita. That tends to suggest that the work was undertaken when he was not an ascetic and became an ascetic about the time of the completion or after the completion of the work.

Dr. Derrett, in his paper (on 'New light on the Mitākṣarā as legal authority' (in J. I. H. Vol. 30 pp. 35-55) holds that the comment in the Mit. on Yāj. II. 4 proves that Vijñāneśvara was a judge (note 6 p. 37). I regret that I cannot accept such a facile assumption. Yāj. II. 4. states that the sabhyas (members of the court of justice) that give a decision opposed to the dicta of smṛtis owing to partiality, greed or intimidation should each be ordered by the king to pay double the amount of fine that would be imposed on a defeated party and Yāj. II. 305 prescribes that the king should review a decision given through partiality &c. The Mit. adds the comment that this provision in II. 4 does not apply if the sabhas delivered a wrong decision through ignorance or folly.

The Mit. expressly refers to the Mīmāṃsā rules (about vādhī and niyama). It says that as only three grounds are mentioned (in Yāj. II. 4) the provision is to be restricted to these three and is not to be extended to cases of ajñāna, moha and others. Manu IX. 231 deals with cases decided by sabhyas taking bribes and prescribes confiscation of all wealth and Manu IX. 234 provides that if a king's minister or judge renders an improper decision the king should himself decide the matter correctly and impose on him a fine of one thousand paṇas (this contemplates cases other than those where bribes were accepted). Nārada (SBE Vol. 33 p. 22) has similar provisions. For laying down such a provision and such distinctions (on Yāj. II. 4 and 305) a very learned commentator of the first quarter of the 12th century need not have been a judge at all.

As to the question about Vijñāneśvara's original home and later habitation, if any, nothing definite can be asserted beyond this that he lived somewhere in Vikramāditya's realm, probably not far from the capital Kalyāṇa (in the Bidar District) in what was a few years ago the Nizam's dominion.

In the Preface to his edition of Vyavahāra-kāṇḍa (published in 1953) Prof. Rangaswami Aiyangar makes the astounding assertion (on p. VII) 'In its (Mitākṣara's) concluding verses there is a reference to the Kalpavṛkṣa (the wish-yielding tree of Heaven), which has given the title to Lakṣmīdhara's work', Having undertaken to edit the big work of Lakṣmīdhara, he was blind to the shortcomings of the work and looked on every other work with a jaundiced eye. Verse four refers only to three, the capital, the king and the work of Vijñāneśvara (the words are 'etattrayam') and the prayer is that all the three should (like the desire-yielding heavenly plant) last for ever, yielding the desires of those who might resort to them. Simply because the word 'Kalpalatikā-kalpam' occurs, he jumps to the conclusion that the Kalpataru is referred to. It is childish like Śakuntalā's young son in Kālidāsa's play (Act VII) who on being asked to mark the beauty of the figure of a bird (sakuntalāvāṇṇam) asks 'where is my mother' (Śakuntalā). Whether the Mitākṣarā is earlier or later than the Kalpataru cannot be determined by such ridiculous somersaults. It passes one's understanding how a matter (a work from the North) completely alien to all three (Kalyāṇa, king Vikramārka and the Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara) was all of a sudden thrust in a pious prayer in verse 4 by Vijñāneśvara himself, losing all sense of context, relevance and propriety and admitting (if Prof. Aiyangar's suggestion be accepted) that his own work was inferior to it (as 'Kalpalatikā-kalpam' would mean, if Kalpalatikā is taken as standing for the work Kalpataru).

The editor (Prof. R. Aiyangar) was hasty in his remarks in several places. One striking example may be briefly mentioned here. In the Introduction to Rājadharmā-kāṇḍa p. 19 he quotes Raghuvamśa IV. 12 'rājā prakṛtirañjanāt'. In this Kālidāsa follows what is stated in the Mahābhārata. Śāntiparva (in 59. 125) states 'rañjītāśca prajāḥ sarvāstena rājeti śabalyate' and in 57. 11, 'lokarañjanam-evātra rājñām dharmah sanātanaḥ'. In the footnote 2 on that page Prof. Aiyangar says that this etymology is found in Yāska. One does not know whence he got this. The Nirukta II. 3 (of Yāska) derives 'Rājan' from the root 'rāj'.

Further, Prof. Aiyangar himself shows (in Intro. to Dāna-kāṇḍa p. 37) 'that by 1118 A. D. Vikramāditya had conquered almost the whole of Veṅgi and his territory had then really extended from the Western to the Eastern Deccan as prayed for in the panegyric of Vijñāneśvara. This statement of the editor strongly supports the present author's view that the Mit. was completed before 1120 A. D. and the period during which it was begun and completed must be 1100-1120 A. D.

Two inscriptions have been relied upon by some writers in connection with Vijñāneśvara. The Mutgi Inscription cited in E. I. volume 15 pp. 26-32 is in two parts and contains two dates. The first date is Cālukya Vikrama year 4 (i. e. 1079 A. D.) in which a gift was made to the temple of Rāmeśvara, the trustee being Yogeśvara-panḍita, the Śiṣyaparamparā being as follows: Bhujangadattaśiṣya Trilocanadeva, Śiṣya Bālasūryārya, his pupil Kāśmīra paṇḍitadeva, his śiṣya Bhairavapaṇḍitadeva, śiṣya Yogeśvara-Paṇḍitadeva (to whom the gift was entrusted). The second date is Cālukya Vikrama year 35 (i. e. 1110 A. D.), where another gift to the same temple was made and the trustee was Acaleśvara-Paṇḍitadeva, who was the disciple of Yogeśvara Paṇḍitadeva. In this there is hardly anything positive to show that Yogeśvara-panḍita is the same as Vijñāneśvara, author of the Mitākṣarā. The Martur⁸²⁸ inscription of Cālukya Vikrama year 48 (i. e. 1124 A. D.) mentioned by Mr. P. B. Desai in the Karnataka Historical Review (Vol. II No. 1 p. 48) has not yet been published. I learn on inquiry that in this record it is stated that Rāma, Soma, Morsing and Birāja were the sons of Kamcha and Ketikabbe, that Kamcha himself was the son of Somarāja of Maseyamaḍu in Aṭṭali-nāḍu and his wife Bhāgyavanite and that he belonged to the Kauśikagotra. In the later part the record states that Bibirāja (who was said a few lines before to have been one of the sons of Kamcha) was the son (Maga) of Vijñāneśvara Bhaṭṭārakadeva; so it follows that Kamcha and Vijñāneśvara-bhaṭṭāraka were one and the same person. It may be mentioned that the Inscription states that Vijñāneśvara was the paramarādhyā (i. e. most revered one) of the ruling king Vikramāditya. It is quite likely that this Vijñāneśvara=Bhaṭṭāraka was the same as the Vijñāneśvara of the Mitākṣarā. But there is no convincing ground for the identity of the two. There is also one difficulty. The colophons of the Mit. describe the author to have been Vijñāneśvara Bhaṭṭāraka (an ascetic), son of Padmanābha-bhaṭṭa of the Bhāradvājagotra, while in the Martur Inscription Kamcha is said to be the son of Somarāja of the Kauśikagotra. So one cannot convince a doubter that the two are identical. It is possible that Somarāja might have borne another name (such as Padmanābha) and that there might have been an adoption (so that the gotra was changed). But these are guesses and there is no strong evidence.

Out of the numerous commentaries on the Mit. those of Viśveśvara, Nandapaṇḍita and Bālabhaṭṭa are the most famous. Vide sections 93, 105, 111. Considerations of space preclude any detailed statement of the doctrines peculiarly associated with the name of Vijñāneśvara. There are, however, some which must be mentioned. He laid down (on Yāj. I. 52) that wherever the word sapinda occurred, it denoted either directly or mediately connection with particles of one body (i. e. blood-relationship with an ancestor). He also strictly adheres to the principle that propinquity is the guiding principle in matters of inheritance and succession. He divides dāya into apratibandha and sapratibandha and affirmed that sons, grandsons and great-grandsons acquired by birth ownership in ancestral property. On all these matters he is diametrically opposed to Jimūtavāhana.

Aufrecht in his great catalogue makes conflicting statements about a work called Āśaucadaśaka. On I. p. 55 he notes that Āśaucadaśaka is a work of Harihara with a commentary by Vijñāneśvara and again on I. p. 571 he ascribes Āśaucadaśaka-ṭīkā to Vijñāneśvara. On I. p. 762 he ascribes the Āśaucadaśaka and Daśaślokīvarāṇa to Harihara and appears to distinguish him from that Harihara who composed a bhāṣya on Pāraskaragṛhyasūtra. On I. p. 795 he corrects himself by saying that Harihara wrote only the commentary on the Āśaucadaśaka and that the latter is identical with the Daśaślokīvarāṇa. On III. p. 121 he is doubtful whether the Āśaucadaśaka is a work of Vijñāneśvara. In the Govt. Mss. library at the B. O. R. I., Poona, there is an ancient Ms. (No. 196 of 1884-1887) of the Āśaucadaśaka.⁸²⁹ It was copied in samvat

1578 Mārgaśīrṣa (i. e. December 1522 A. D.). It distinctly says that Vijñāneśvarayogin composed in ten Śārdūlavikrīḍita stanzas a work on āśaucā and that Harihara composed a commentary on it. In the Bhadkamkar collection there is an old Ms. of the Āśaucadaśaka, the colophon of which ascribes the work to Vijñāneśvara. Vide I. O. cat. p. 565, No. 1749 for a ms. of Āśaucadaśaka with Harihara's commentary dated saṃvat 1589 (1532-33 A. D.). That the Āśaucadaśaka was a very popular work follows from the several commentaries thereon that are available even now. Raghunātha,⁸³⁰ son of Mādhava and nephew of the famous Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, composed a commentary on the Daśaślokī in Śaka 1500 (No. 82 of A. 1882-83 in the Govt. Mss. lib. at the B. O. R. I. Poona). There is another commentary on the same work by Bhaṭṭoji (No. 99 of 1882-83 at the B. O. R. I. Poona). Harihara quotes in his bhāṣya besides several well-known smṛtikāras, a work called Viśvādarśa (folio 4b).⁸³¹ Harihara, the commentator of the Pāraskarasgrhyaūtra, is described as the pupil of Vijñāneśvara in several mss. Harihara in his bhāṣya on Pāraskarasgrhya quotes Vijñāneśvara and Kalpataru. The Viśvādarśa praises Vijñāneśvara very highly.⁸³² Therefore, it appears that Vijñāneśvara composed the Āśaucadaśaka alias Daśaślokī and that Harihara, who was either Vijñāneśvara's pupil or not very far removed from him (as he is quoted by Hemādri) composed a commentary thereon. The first verse of the Daśaślokī is cited below as a specimen of the concise style attempted by the author.⁸³³ The text of the Daśaślokī is given on pp 832-833 of volume 4 of the H. of Dh.

Aufrecht (II. p. 50 and I. p. 236) credits Vijñāneśvara with a bhāṣya on Trīṃśat-ślokī, a work in thirty Sragdharā stanzas on āśauca. This work together with the commentary was printed in pothī size at Benares in saṃvat 1918 (1861-62 A. D.). The printed text contains⁸³⁴ the same colophon at the end and date as the D. C. ms. No. 217 of 1879-80, which was copied in saṃvat 1711 Caitra (i. e. April 1655 A. D.). It is extremely doubtful, however, whether Vijñāneśvara wrote a bhāṣya on the Trīṃśat-ślokī. In the bhāṣya Vijñāneśvara and the Mitākṣarā are cited by name.⁸³⁵ The manner of referring to them rather suggests that the commentary on the Trīṃśat-ślokī was composed by some person other than Vijñāneśvara, who, however, drew largely on the Mit. There is a ms. of the Trīṃśat-ślokī with a commentary in the Bhau Daji collection which is ascribed to Hemādri on the cover (vide BBRAS. cat. vol. II. p. 209, No. 667).

In the Madras Govt. mss. library there is a ms. of the Vyavahāraśiromaṇi of Nārāyaṇa, who says that he learnt dharmaśāstras under Vijñāneśvara (adhītya dharmaśāstrāṇi Vijñāneśvara-sadguroḥ). The work deals with the vyavahāra portion and was composed for the benefit of the un-initiated (bālabodhārtham). The ms. contains the portion dealing with the king's duty to look into the disputes of people, the

The work breaks off in the middle of the explanation of the verse 'patnī duhitaraścaiva.' He closely follows the Mitāksarā in all that he says; but in one place he expressly differs from his teacher, viz. whereas the Mitāksarā mentions four different times for partition, Nārāyaṇa says that there are really two times of partition, when the father desires partition and when the son or sons desire it.⁸³⁶ On sambhāyasaṃutthāna he quotes a passage from Kauṭalya (the ms. uses this form), which agrees closely with the printed text (vide Arthaśāstra III. 14, p. 186, ed. by Shama Sastri).⁸³⁷

72. Kāmadhenu

This was an early and large digest on various branches of Dharmaśāstra. Unfortunately no ms. of it has been recovered so far, but it has been profusely quoted by a large number of writers on the several topics of Dharmaśāstra. Unexpected light has been thrown on it by the publication of the Brahmacārikāṇḍa of the Kalpataru, composed by Lakṣmīdhara, the chief mantrin of the Gāhadvāla king Govindachandra of Kānyakubja (Kanoj) and Banaras. In verse 10 of the Introduction to Brahmacārikāṇḍa he says 'by him this Kalpa-vṛkṣa is spread (tanyate kalpavṛkṣah)'. In verse 11 he says that a friend of his called Gopāla composed a digest based on Smṛtis and added his own remarks in prose (Gopālastad-vayasyaḥ avakṛti-viracanam vākyarūpeṇa cakre) and that 'this digest will be composed and it will delight learned men'

('Vibudhajanamanohāri *kāriṣyatesyam...*prabandhaḥ' verse 11). In verses 12 and 13 he names three works viz. Mahār-nava, Kāmadhenu and Ratnamālā.

Some later writers appear to ascribe the Kāmadhenu to Gopāla e. g. the Vyavahāraratnākara⁸³⁸ quoted below does so. It may be stated that Lakṣmīdhara makes disparaging remarks about his friend's work (in Introductory verse II) and that in the Kalpataru which extends over hundreds of printed pages neither Kāmadhenu nor Gopāla is mentioned by name even once, though on his own showing the Kāmadhenu had been completed by the time Lakṣmīdhara became chief mantrin of Govindacandra, after sanguinary battles in which he boasts that he had killed one hundred thousand (or several hundred thousands) of his king's enemies and undertook the composition of his huge digest, which must surely have taken about twenty years for being completed. Lakṣmīdhara's patron, the Gāhaḍvāla king Govindacandra, ruled from 1114 A. D. up to about 1155 A. D. (as will be shown later under Kalpataru). Therefore, it is proper to hold that the Kāmadhenu must have been composed about 1100 A. D. some years before the Kalpataru was begun (probably some years after 1114 A. D. when Govindacandra became king).

Śrīdharācārya, author of Smṛtyarthasāra (verses 4 and 5), mentions Kāmadhenu among the authors and works on which he relies.⁸³⁹ The Hāralatā of Aniruddhabhaṭṭa, the Guru of king Ballālasena of Bengal, who composed his Dānasāgara in Śaka 1091 (1169 A. D.), mentions Kāmadhenu among the works he consulted and refers to its views several times.

mastic, one meaning referring to names of works ; 'Gopāla is here indicated as author of Kāmadhenu. The other sense of Gopāla is : Kṛṣṇa who takes delight in cows (as said in the Purāṇas and

The Vivādaratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara relies upon the Kāmadhenu several times.⁸⁴⁰ In the Rājanītiratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara (ed. by Jayaswal, 1924) Rājanīti-Kāmadhenu is quoted (on p. 2) for the definition of rājā) and on p. 5 the same work is quoted for describing the two kinds of 'adhīśvara' (overlord). Besides, the same work on p. 81 mentions the idea of Gopāla, Lakṣmīdhara and Śrīkara that in the king's wealth all beings, poor, helpless and others have a share and on p. 84 of the same work the view of early Gopāla is again mentioned as to the rites of coronation mentioned in works on Rājanīti being merely illustrative and that a king may be proclaimed to be so according to the special usages of countries and families by being merely seated on a throne.⁸⁴¹

Many Dharmaśāstra works do not expressly state that Kāmadhenu was composed by Gopāla. Therefore, the question about the authorship of the Kāmadhenu has to be dealt with.

The reply is that, bearing in mind the paronomastic verse of the Vyavahāraratnākara cited above, and the facts that the Brahmacārikāṇḍa of the Kalpataru expressly mentions Gopāla as a friend of Lakṣmīdhara and also mentions the Kāmadhenu in verses 10 and 11 and does not expressly name anyone else as the author of the Kāmadhenu and as no early work ascribes it to any other person the authorship of Kāmadhenu, it should be held that Gopāla is the author of the Kāmadhenu.

Aufrecht in his great Catalogue (I. 93) ascribed the authorship of the Kāmadhenu to Śambhu. Whence he derived this information is not clear. Śambhu is credited by the Smṛticandrikā with the authorship of a Smṛti digest (vide above under Śrīkara) and the Smṛtyarthasāra names him as one of its authorities. Therefore, Śambhu is certainly earlier

also ; vide विवादरत्नाकर pp. 78, 80, 135, 651 for other references to than 1150 A. D. The Smṛtyarthasāra mentions both Śambhu and Kāmadhenu as its authorities. If Śambhu were the author of the Kāmadhenu according to the Smṛtyarthasāra, he would not have been separately mentioned among its authorities by the Smṛtyarthasāra; so I am inclined to hold that Śambhu was not the author of Kāmadhenu, but it was Gopāla who was the author of that work.

It may be noted that the *Kṛtyaratnākara*⁸⁴² of Caṇḍeśvara regards the Kāmadhenu as holding the same position (or authority) as the King (i. e. Bhoja)

As the Kāmadhenu had been completed some years at least before the project of the Kalpataru was started and as it is several times quoted in the Hāratalā of Aniruddha it cannot be placed later than about 1100 A. D. It cannot be earlier than that date since it is not mentioned by Medhātithi, the Mitākṣarā or by Aparārka. It may, therefore, be assigned to the period 1100–1110 A. D.

In the edition of the 1st volume of this history, the present author had quoted from a ms. of the Kalpataru (Benares College transcript) that the Kalpataru referred to the views of Prakāśa, Halāyudha, Kāmadhenu and Pārijāta. In his edition of the Kalpataru on Vyavahāra, Prof. Aiyangar (pp. 394–398) tries to show that the mss of the Kalpataru (which were only a few) were in bad shape and he held the ms. of Kalpataru had been tampered with when it mentioned ‘Prakāśa, Halāyudha–Kāmadhenu–Pārijātaprabhṛtayaḥ’ (vide p. 395 of the edition of Kalpataru on Vyavahāra). About the Kāmadhenu and Prakāśa at least, merely saying that the passage about them was later interpolated would not help the editor at all, as both are expressly named in the Introductory verses of the Brahmacārikāṇḍa. The Prakāśa is referred to in several ways as Smṛti–Mahārṇava or simply Mahārṇava or as *Smṛti–Mahārṇava–prakāśa*⁸⁴³ or as simply Prakāśa. The Mahāṛṇava is expressly mentioned in Introductory verses 12-13 to the Brahmacārikāṇḍa. The Mahārṇava is also mentioned at p. 134 of the Brahmacārikāṇḍa. The Mahārṇava-prakāśakāra is expressly referred to in the Śrāddhakāṇḍa (on p. 262) of the Kalpataru. The editor cites no grounds for holding that Pārijāta is a late work.

843 Though the Vivādaratnākara and other *Ratnākara*s of Caṇḍeśvara generally refer to Prakāśa only, yet Caṇḍeśvara in his Kṛtyaratnākara (p. 329) speaks of Smṛtimahārṇavaprakāśa in the words ‘ जावाल-मत्स्यपुराणवाक्यपरामर्शान्निराग्निसकलपुत्रैः साग्निभिश्चेतरपुत्रैरेकोद्दिष्ट-

It is not necessary for me to establish that the passage is genuine and so I leave it out of account altogether. From the Brahmacārikāṇḍa it is clear that the Kāmadhenu itself had been composed some decades before the vast digest called Kalpataru was completed. It follows from what is stated above that at least three out of the four works and authors mentioned in the passage are certainly older than the Kalpataru and that the 4th viz. Halāyudha might have been a junior contemporary of Lakṣmīdhara. Evidence of comparatively early works is set out below that works composed about 1150-1170 A. D. frequently cite the Kāmadhenu but they do not cite the Kalpataru even once.

The bad state of the mss. of the Kalpataru will be briefly indicated under the section 'Kalpataru'. The Brahmacārikāṇḍa of the Kalpataru is based on a single defective ms. as mentioned in a footnote on p. 279 of the edition. The Kāmadhenu has been quoted or referred to very early after 1100 A. D. A few instances may be cited.

Aniruddhabhaṭṭa was a guru of king Ballālasena of Bengal (as stated in verses 6 and 7 of the Dānasāgara,⁸⁴⁴ which he composed in Śake 1091 (i. e. 1169 A. D.) with the assistance of his guru. Aniruddha is the author of two works viz. Hāralatā and Pitṛdayitā. Therefore, these works⁸⁴⁵ must be assigned to about 1150–1170 A. D. The Hāralatā on pp. 41, 117, 174 mentions Kāmadhenu expressly, as the quotations cited below will show and does not mention the Kalpataru at all.

The Chandogahnika⁸⁴⁶ of Śrīdatta (about 1270–1300 A. D.) mentions the Kāmadhenu several times (e. g. on pp. 12, 16, 17, 22, 24, 46, 58 &c) and the first verses of that work and of Pitr̥bhakti are interesting because they mention the doctrines of Gopāla and Bhūpāla ; Bhūpāla is Bhoja and Gopāla is the author of the Kāmadhenu. One or two striking references to the Kāmadhenu are cited below in the footnote.

The Ratnākaras of Caṇḍeśvara frequently quote the Kāmadhenu. The Kṛtyaratnākara mentions it on pp. 30 and 299. The Vivādaratnākara mentions Kāmadhenu very often as on pp. 80, 114, 135, 150, 409, 651. The Daṇḍaviveka of Vardhamāna quotes Kāmadhenu 25 times and whenever the Kāmadhenu and Kalpataru are mentioned together it puts Kāmadhenu first; vide pp. 28, 34, 71, 138, 176, 217.

But it seems to me that they are identical. Aufrecht in his great catalogue (I. 93) ascribes the authorship of the Kāmadhenu to Śambhu. Whence he derived this information is not clear. The authors and works cited by him do not, so far as I know, ascribe the Kāmadhenu to Śambhu. It is true that Śambhu is credited by the Smṛticandrikā with a digest on dharmasāstra (vide note 563 above) and the Smṛtyartha-sāra also names him as one of the authorities on which it relies. Hemādri⁸⁴⁷ also tells us that Śambhu was a nibandha-kāra and refuted the views of Medhātithi on Manu III. 125. The Smṛticandrikā frequently cites the views of Śambhu on vyavahāra and generally refutes them. For example, on the word 'pitarau' occurring in Yāj. II. 135, Śambhu remarked that no difference should be made between the parent's (father and mother) as heirs, since whoever out of them took the wealth of their son it would come to both.⁸⁴⁸ Vide also Smṛticandrikā II, pp. 205, 216. Therefore Śambhu also, being mentioned by the Smṛticandrikā and the Smṛtyarthasāra, is certainly earlier than 1150 A. D. In this state of the authorities I am doubtful whether Śambhu was the author of the Kāmadhenu. I am inclined to hold that he was not the author of that work and that Gopāla was the author. This conclusion is somewhat strengthened by the fact that the Smṛtyarthasāra mentions both Kāmadhenu and Śambhu as authorities on which it relies. If Śambhu had been, in the opinion of the Smṛtyarthasāra the author of the Kāmadhenu, the mention of both would have been superfluous. Mr. Jayasval (in JBORS for 1927, vol. XIII, parts 3-4, p. VII) ascribes the Kāmadhenu to Bhoja, but this is wrong (vide p. 277, note 576).

As the Kāmadhenu is named as an authority by the Kalpataru and the Hāratalā it is certainly not later than 1100 A.D. It cannot be very much earlier since it is not mentioned by Medhātithi and the Mitākṣarā. It may therefore be assigned to the period between 1000 and 1100 A. D.

73. Halāyudha

Several Halāyudhas flourished at different times. Chronology being rather uncertain those of them that have some bearing on Dharmaśāstra would be dealt with in one place, though an attempt will be made to assign to them approximately definite times as far as possible.

847 द्वौ दैवे...कमुभयत्र वा ॥ यदप्येकैकमुभयत्र वेत्ययं विधिरेव न भवतीति तेनैवोक्तं तत्तु शम्भुभृतिभिर्निबन्धकारैः पराकृतमिति अस्माभिर्नाद्रियते । चतुर्वर्ग० III. I. p. 1148; तदेवं तावद् दक्षिणाग्नौ होमस्तदभावे तूपासनाग्राविति शम्भुशङ्खधरप्रभृतयः । चतुर्वर्ग० III. I. p. 1331.

The Vivādaratnākara of Candēśvara mentions Halāyudha dozens of times. In the Smṛtisāra of Harinātha⁸⁴⁹ Halāyudha-nibandha on possession is quoted. The Smṛtisāra also says (folio 140 a) that Halāyudha favoured niyoga by the widow of a son-less deceased person and deprived the widow of succession to her deceased husband if she did not submit to niyoga. This was the view of Dhāreśvara also. According to Halāyudha⁸⁵⁰ parents succeeded before brothers to a deceased person if the property in the hands of the deceased was ancestral, but that if it was acquired without detriment to ancestral property then brothers succeeded even before parents. Halāyudha is cited in the Vivādacintāmaṇi also e. g. Halāyudha⁸⁵¹ held the view that the verse of Yāj. (II. 126) was intended to convey that where joint property was concealed by a member and was discovered after partition, he did not incur the guilt of theft. This same view was held by Jitendriya and others. Raghunandana quotes Halāyudha in his Divyatattva, Dāyatattva and Vyavahāratattva. The Vīramitrodaya⁸⁵² also quotes Halāyudha.

The name Halāyudha (an epithet of Balarāma, the brother of Kṛṣṇa) was a common one in India and therefore there are several eminent authors named Halāyudha. Great confusion is due to this and is increased by unscrupulous writers fawning upon patrons. This will be briefly illustrated here.

The first Halāyudha is the author of Kavirahasya, edited by Sourindramohan Tagore in 1879 (with an Introduction in English) and by Heller in 1900. This contains only 271 verses. It illustrates the several forms of Sanskrit roots in several conjugations and connects all verses with Kṛṣṇa, a Rāṣṭrakūṭa king of the Deccan (Dakṣiṇāpatha). This was most probably Rāṣṭrakūṭa emperor Kṛṣṇa whose dates range from 940 A. D. to 959 A. D. (vide JBBRAS, Vol. 18 p. 239, I. A. Vol. XI p. 109 and Dr. R. G. Bhandarkar's Report, 1883-4 pp. 8-9). In another work called Mṛtasañjīvanī attributed to him (which is a commentary on Piṅgala's Chandaḥsūtra) there is an illustrative verse praising Muñja alias Vākpatirāja. Muñja was killed between 994-997 A. D. by Tailapa. Therefore, this author flourished in the latter half of the 10th century A. D. Vide Cat. of mss. in the Bombay Asiatic Society's library by Prof. H. D. Velankar (1926) Vol. 1 part 2. It begins with the famous verse 'नमस्तुङ्गशिरश्चुम्बि°'. He has little to do with Dharmaśāstra.

But the Introduction (pp. I-VI) to the Kavirahasya has some interesting features. It repeats the story of king Ādiśūra of Gauḍa bringing five learned Brāhmaṇas of Kanoj for a Vedic sacrifice and of his grant of five villages to the five brāhmaṇas that enabled them to stay in Gauḍa. It is further narrated (in the Intro.) that the foremost among those five brāhmaṇas was Bhaṭṭa Nārāyaṇa of the Śāṇḍilya-gotra and the rich and famous Tagore's claim descent from that Nārāyaṇa. The Intro. states that his works were Prayogaratna, Gobhila-sūtrabhāṣya, Kāśīmarāṇamuktivicāra and the drama Veṇī-saṁhāra and that Halāyudha was 16th in descent from that Nārāyaṇa. In a note it is stated that Halāyudha was 12th in descent from Nārāyaṇa, according to another account. In this all chronology is thrown to the winds and entirely false claims to the authorship of famous works like the Prayogaratna, the drama Veṇīsaṁhāra and several other well-known works like the Bhāminivilāsa and Rasagaṅgādhara are advanced. Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, born in 1513 A.D. was the author of Prayogaratna, his father was a Mahārāṣṭra brāhmaṇa from Pratiṣṭhāna (modern Paithan on the Godāvarī) and migrated to Benares. That establishes that the work was composed in the 16th century. The author of the Veṇīsaṁhāra was a Nārāyaṇa, no doubt. He flourished about a thousand years before the author of the Prayogaratna, as passages from the Veṇīsaṁhāra are quoted in the Dhvanyāloka (latter half of 9th century) and in the Kāvya-lankārasūtravṛtti of Vāmana (about 8th century). Further, on p. 2 of the Introduction (to the Kavirahasya) the Halāyudha of that work is regarded as identical with the author of the Brāhmaṇasarvasva. But the gotra of that Halāyudha was Vātsya, while the gotra of the Tagores is Śāṇḍilya. These writings of the matchmakers of Bengal and of the unscrupulous sycophants and panegyrists of rich families are often worthless for chronological purposes. Vide the paper of Jogendracandra Ghosh (in I. C. Vol. I pp. 502-6) which tries to show that there were three or four Halāyudhas in the latter part of the 12th century A. D. and the first half the 13th century A. D.

Another Halāyudha, the author of the famous work called Brāhmaṇasarvasva, is an important one among the authors named Halāyudha. An excellent edition of that work edited by Dr. Durgamohan Bhattacarya was recently published (1960) in the Sanskrit Sahitya Parishad Series (Calcutta) with an exhaustive Introduction (pp. III-XLV), brief table of contents, the text (330 pages), an Index of the Vedic Mantras and other verses occurring in the work. The Brāhmaṇasarvasva is referred to several times by Raghunandana e. g. (vol. I.) in Āhnikatattva pp. 378, 389, 423, in Śrāddhatattva p. 242. Rarely Raghunandana finds fault with it as on Śrāddha (vol. I. p. 313). Raghunandana mentions the Brāhmaṇasarvasva also in (Vol. II) Śuddhi p. 315, Yajurvediśrāddha p. 492 and the Paṇḍitasarvasva in Vol. I. p. 531 (Prāyaścittatattva). A Śevasarvasva is mentioned in Maṭhapratīṣṭhā (vol. II. p. 618), but whether it is the same as the Śaiva-sarvasva mentioned by the Brāhmaṇasarvasva cannot be proved (though probably it is the same). He belonged to the Vātsya gotra and his father Dhanañjaya was Dharmādhyakṣa (verse 5 of Intro. to Brāhmaṇasarvasva).

On him the king bestowed, while he was young, the post of 'Mahāmahattaka' and later conferred on him 'Dharmādhi-kāra' (the office of deciding difficult matters of Dharma or the office of a judge). Vide for the office of 'Mahāmahattaka' the Bodh Gaya Inscription dated in Lakṣmaṇasena year 74 in E. I. vol. III. p. 27 at p. 30. It may be noted that Brhaspati prescribes that the king should build his palace in the middle of the fort and should have the sabhā (hall of justice) to the east of the palace and the hall should face the east; and, Kātyāyana states that the sabhā is called 'Dharmādhikaraṇa' where the decision of the truth of the root (of disputes) is carried on by considering the rules of sacred law. Halāyudha had two elder brothers.⁸⁵³ Paśupati and Īśāna, of whom the former composed Śrāddha-kṛtya-paddhati and Pākayajña-paddhati and the latter the Dvijāhnikā-paddhati. He tells us in the Brāhmaṇasarvasva that he composed Mīmāṃsāsarvasva, Vaiṣṇavasarvasva, Śaivasarvasva, Paṇḍitasarvasva.⁸⁵⁴ None of these four works has been printed so far and even Mss. of them are rare (vide Dr. Bhattacharya's Preface to Br. Sarvasva).

For the genealogy of Halāyudha, vide J.A.S.B. (New Series) Vol. XI. p. 332 where a long pedigree is given by M. M. Chakravarti, which is based on the chart drawn up by Bharatacandraśiromaṇi for his patron, Prasannakumara Tagore and printed at the beginning of his edition of the Dāya-bhāga (in 1863). It has been shown above how such genealogies are often unreliable. Halāyudha's father was Dhanāñjaya who had three sons.... Paśupati, Īśāna and Halāyudha. Halāyudha mentions Paśupati as 'agraja' (eldest or elder) in verse 24 of Br. SAR. and refers to his work called 'paddhati on śrāddha. Paśupati's paddhati is mentioned in (vol. I) Śrāddhatattva p. 213 and Paśupati is named in vol. II) in Udvāhatattva p. 147 and Yajurvediśrāddhatattva pp. 490-494. Paśupati also composed 'Pāka-yajña' paddhati (vide) Intro. verse 43 to Br. Sarvasva). Īśāna-nyāyācārya is mentioned in (Vol. I) Śrāddhas p. 313 and (vol. II) in Udvāha

On p. 7 and p. 10 of the Brāhmaṇasarvasva Halāyudha clearly sets forth his object (which is of a limited scope) in composing the work as follows :- दन्तधावनमारभ्य यावदन्त्येष्टिमीरिता । मन्त्राणां तावता-मस्मिन् व्याख्यानमुपदर्शितम् । (p. 7 verse 44) ; तदेवं व्यवस्थिते शास्त्रार्थे कृत्स्नवेदाध्ययनासमर्थानां राडीय-वारेन्द्रकद्विजातीनां काण्वशाबिवाजसनेयिनां कर्मानुष्ठानार्थं प्रातर्दन्तधावनादि शयनान्ताह्निक-गर्माग्नादि-विवाहान्त-संस्कार-अग्न्याधानाद्यन्त्येष्टिपर्यन्तगार्हक्यकर्मोपयुक्त-मन्त्रव्याख्या प्रस्तोतव्या । p. 10.

p. 135. He is probably the same as the brother of Halāyudha. In verse 24 of the Br. Sarvasva Halāyudha states that his brother Īśāna wrote Dvijāhnikapaddhati.

The chief object⁸⁵⁵ of the Brāhmanasarvasva is to explain the meaning of the mantras used by Brāhmanas in daily observances from the brushing of the teeth to going to sleep and in the samskāras on birth, marriage, death etc. He wrote for the Vājasaneyā Kāṇva Śākhā and acknowledges⁸⁵⁶ his debt to Uvāta who wrote a bhāṣya on the Vājasaneyā Saṁhitā in Avanti while Bhoja ruled the earth (mahīm Bhoje praśāsati). In some introductory verses and the several colophons of the sections of the Brāhmaṇa-sarvasva Halāyudha styles himself āvasathika, mahādharmādhyakṣa or simply dharmādhyakṣa, dharmādhikārin and his brother Paśupati also is styled āvasathika. It is very difficult to say what the exact meaning of this last word is. It probably means one who regularly performs all the grhya rites.⁸⁵⁷ 'Āvasatha' means 'a shed or hall' and a married man has to establish a fire called grhya, aupāsana, āvasathya, or vaivāhika (Manu III. 67), aupasada or vaivāhana. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. II p. 678 note 1615. Vide Tri. cat. of Madras Govt. Mss. for 1919-1922, pp. 5165 for a ms. of Paṇḍita-sarvasva which deals with the usages of varṇas and āśramas, tithi, śuddhi, the time for śrāddha, jyotiḥśāstra, marriage, gifts, prāyaścitta, pratiṣṭhā &c. But whether it is Halāyudha's work it is difficult to say from the extracts given.

The text of the Mīmāṃsāsarvasva (dealing with Mīmāṃsā matters upto the end of the third adhyāya of the Mīmāṃsā-sūtra of Jaimini) was published by M. M. Dr. Umesha Mishra in JBORS Vol. XVII pp. 227-308, 413-460 and Vol. XVIII pp. 129-200. Dr. Durgamohan Bhattacharya (in Introduction to Br. Sarvasva (p. XXXIX) questions Halāyudha's authorship of that work, but he sets out hardly any grounds for his view. The present author thinks that it is a work of Halāyudha. The work relies principally on the Tantravārtika and Śloka-vārtika of Kumārila and on the Śāstradīpikā and deals with the first three adhyāyas of Pūrvamīmāṃsāsūtra and is a good handbook for beginners. It mentions Upavarṣa (vol. 17 p. 233); Bhārata (vol. 17 p. 301); Maṇḍana (vol. 17 p. 289); and Nyāyaratnākara (in vol. 17 p. 231). For Paṇḍita-sarvasva, vide Triennial Cat. of Govt. Or. Mss. Library, Madras No. 3458 pp. 5165-66, which deals with several matters such as varṇas, āśramas, tithis, marriages, gifts, prāyaścitta, pra-tiṣṭhā &c.

The time when Halāyudha flourished depends to some extent on the time of Lakṣmaṇasena, king of Bengal. About king Lakṣmaṇasena and the era in his name great controversies have raged for many years and it cannot be said that the question has been settled beyond cavil. Some facts gathered from the Br. Sarvasva are clear viz. that Halāyudha was the son of Dhanañjaya of the Vātsyagotra who was Dharmādhyakṣa, was opulent and yet fond of performing solemn sacrifices (Intro. verses 5 and 6), that Lakṣmaṇasena bestowed on him patronage beyond his desire. Then the Br. Sarvasva states that Halāyudha was by Lakṣmaṇasena made 'rājapaṇḍita' when still in his teens, that king Lakṣmaṇasena conferred the distinction of 'Mahāmahattaka' on Halāyudha when he was a young man and that in his mature years he (Halāyudha) was given the post of 'Dharmādhikārin' ⁶⁵⁸ (i. e. of the Parīṣat or Dharmādhyakṣa, a high functionary, possibly a Judge (Intro. verse 12).

Verse 14 of the Intro. to Br. Sarvasva contains the clear words 'Dharmādhyakṣa-Halāyudhasya sadṛśo nāsyāḥ priyaḥ kopyabhūt'. On p. 132 of the Br. Sarvasva he describes himself as the officer entrusted with the moneys set apart by the Gauda king for religious and charitable purposes. The *Matsyapurāṇa*⁸⁵⁹ states the qualifications of a Dharmādhikārin. Halāyudha's career runs to some extent along that of Lakṣmaṇasena, though it is likely that Halāyudha might have been some years younger than king Lakṣmaṇasena.

From the data furnished in the *Brāhmaṇasarvasva*⁸⁶⁰ and from certain facts stated in the Adbhutasāgara and the Dānasāgara the time when Halāyudha flourished can be ascertained as falling within limits acceptable to most scholars. From the Br. Sarvasva we learn that Halāyudha was patronized by king Lakṣmaṇasena when H. was quite a young man. We have some evidence not depending on La. Sam. to establish the time when this should have happened.

King Ballālasena of Bengal began the composition of the Adbhutasāgara in the year 1090 of the Śaka era (i. e. 1168-9 A. D.), but before the work was finished Ballālasena died after requesting his son to complete it and king Lakṣmaṇasena made efforts to complete it. We do not know how much time had been spent on the proposed work, Adbhutasāgara, when Ballālasena passed away, nor how much time was taken by Lakṣmaṇasena to complete it. We may guess that it was completed before or about 1170-1 A. D. at the earliest. That these verses about the dates in the Adbhutasāgara are not later additions is testified by a reference in the Ṭoḍarānanda-saṁhitā-saukhyā about the position of the constellation of the Great Bear according to the Adbhutasāgara in the śaka year 1082 (1160-1 A. D.) when Ballālasena was ruling.

The passages quoted in the note establish that the Adbhutasāgara was begun in 1168 A. D. by Ballālasena, who passed away before it was completed and that it was completed by Lakṣmaṇasena, son of Ballālasena (i. e. some time later than 1168-9 A.D.).⁸⁶¹ This shows that Lakṣmaṇasena began to rule about 1169 A. D. The Saduktikarnāmṛta⁸⁶² of Śrīdhara-dāsa tells us that he completed the work in the Śaka year 1127 (1205-6 A. D.) in the 27th year of Lakṣmaṇasena's reign i. e. Lakṣmaṇasena began to reign about 1178-79 A. D. and ruled till 1205-6 (probably only in Bihar as he lost Bengal in 1200 A. D.). Thus there are two authenticated dates for the accession of Lakṣmaṇasena viz. 1168-69 A. D. and 1178-9 A. D. At the end of the Dānasāgara (edited by Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya and published B. I. Series in 1953) a verse says the Dānasāgara was composed at the end of Śaka year 1091 (1169-70 A. D.).⁸⁶³ Therefore, the literary activity of Halāyudha would have to be assigned to the period 1160-1200 A. D. The Br. Sarvasva and the Paṇḍita-sarvasva are quoted by Raghunandana in the Smṛtitattva as stated above.

From Moslem historians it is learnt that Lakṣmaṇasena was defeated by Bakhtiyar Khilji in 1200 A. D. and lost Bengal.

A few words may be said here about the La. Sam. A large volume of literature has gathered on this subject. I do not propose to enter into great details or to examine the several theories that have been advanced.

A few salient points alone would be mentioned. Some undisputed facts may be first stated.

The La. Sam. is still popular in north Bihar and its first year is now regarded as 1119–20 A. D. How and when the La. Sam. came to be used in Mithilā is still a matter of conjectures. It is also clear that Lakṣmaṇasena and his sons do not employ the La. Sam. in their Inscriptions.

Kielhorn concluded that the Sena era began in Śake 1041 i. e. 1119 A. D. (vide I. A. 19 p. 1–7). The era as employed to-day in Mithilā is usually associated with the birth of Lakṣmaṇasena. Kielhorn relied upon Abul Fazl's account that the era started in 1041 śake and on his own examination of six dates. Dr. Rajendralal Mitra (in J. A. S. B. vol. 47 pp. 398 ff) held that the era was started about 1106 A. D. Subhadra Jha (JBORS. Vol. XX pp. 20 ff) places the starting point of La. Sam. between 1108–1120 A. D. on the basis of different calculations. The spurious Bisapī grant of Śivasimhadeva to Vidyāpati mentions years in four eras prevalent in Mithila (vide I. A. vol. 14 pp. 190–91), but hardly any reliance can be placed on it. Great differences of opinion exist as to the origin of the La. Sam., particularly whether it starts from the year of Lakṣmaṇasena's birth or from his accession to the throne or whether, after the destruction of the last Hindu dynasty in Bengal, people started the era to preserve the memory of the Hindu rule. K. P. Jayaswal (in JBORS vol. XX pp. 20 ff) discussed this topic with some elaboration. He set out eighteen dates in La. Sam. occurring along with Śaka or Samvat dates or both and held that Kielhorn's date was correct. Dr. R. C. Majumdar (in 'History of Bengal' vol. I. pp. 233 ff) tried to refute Jayaswal's views and arrived at the conclusion that the initial year of the La. Sam. varied between 1108 and 1120 A. D. Some scholars have been influenced by the biography of Dharmasvāmin (a Tibetan pilgrim who visited Bodh Gaya in 1235 A. D.). Dr. Roerich published an English translation of the Tibetan monk's life with the Tibetan text and an Introduction (in 1959). Dr. Roerich states (p. XIV of Intro.) that among the kings the pilgrim visited is Buddhasena, described as king of Magadha residing at Vajrāsana or Bodh Gaya. He met the king in 1234 A. D. There are some inscriptions of the ruler of Bodh Gaya that use the La. Sam. There is an inscription of Jayasena, son of Buddhasena. The Janibigha inscription of Jayasena is dated in Lakṣmaṇasena's 'Atītarājye La. Sam. 83'. Vide JBORS vol. IV pp. 266-272 and JBORS vol. V pp. 273-280 (Panday). If we take 1118-9 A. D. as the initial year of La. Sam. then the meeting with Jayasena should have taken place about 1201-2 A. D. That is impossible on the evidence of the Tibetan hermit who met the father Buddhasena in 1234 A. D. So this makes 1118-9 A. D. as the initial date of La. Sam. untenable. Vide Dr. Roerich's Introduction pp. 13-18 for further details. Dr. D. C. Sircar (in I. H. Q. vol. 34 pp. 21-28) also refers to the Tibetan pilgrim's life and holds (on the whole evidence) that the La. Sam. was originally counted from the date of the accession of king Lakṣmaṇasena of Bengal and Bihar about 1179 A. D., although its starting point was later supposed to be some date between 1106-1119 A. D. through confusion. Dr. B. P. Sinha (in JBRS Vol. 42 pp. 76-81) points out that La. Sam. is found in Mithilā Mss. only one hundred years after Lakṣmaṇasena's death. Reference may be made to two recent papers submitted to the Indian History Congress at Poona in 1963 (vide Proceedings, pub. in Calcutta 1964) viz by Prof. Radhakrishna Choudhary pp. 93-99 and by Prof. Sukhamaya Upadhyaya pp. 196-202, which latter holds that the initial year of the La. Sam. varied between 1080 and 1129 A. D.

Sourindra Mohan Tagore (introduction to Kavirahasya p. I-II) says that Ādiśūra brought to Bengal five Brāhmaṇas from Kanoj of whom Bhaṭṭa Nārāyaṇa was the most famous and was the author of the Prayogaratna and also of the Venī-sambhāra and that Halāyudha was 16th in descent from that Nārāyaṇa. These traditions of the matchmakers of Bengal and panegyrists of big families are entirely worthless for literary and chronological purposes, particularly for events of comparatively early times. In their zeal to extol their patron's families to the skies they were most unscrupulous and threw to the winds all chronology. The Prayogarātna was composed at Benares by Bhaṭṭa Nārāyaṇa whose family migrated from Paithan in the 16th century, while the Venī-saṁhāra was composed about a thousand years earlier. Yet both works are fathered upon Nārāyaṇa, the ancestor of the rich and influential Tagore family.

Halāyudha, the author of the Brāhmaṇasarvasva, is, it appears, different from another Halāyudha who was a jurist. In the first place, Halāyudha, author of the Br. sarvasva, states that he composed four other works, all ending in the word 'sarvasva' but makes no mention of any work composed by him on substantive or adjective law or on both.

The Vivādaratnākara mentions Halāyudha 53 times and Halāyudha-nibandha three times. The Gr̥hastharatnākara quotes it eight times and the Kṛtyaratnākara quotes it on pp. 319, 327, 332.

From Raghunandana's Dāyatattva it appears that Halāyudha had composed a work on law. For example, Halāyudha appears to have held that, if some joint family property was not divided among the coparceners at a partition through ignorance and remained in the possession of one member of the family, it may be partitioned again, but the ignorant possessor should not be charged with theft (vide Vol. II Dāyatattva p. 182).⁸⁶⁴ Again, the Dāyatattva (vol. II p. 195) mentions the wrong reading of Yāj II. 139 in the Mitākṣarā, Pārijāta and Halāyudha due to the errors of scribes quoted above.

In this connection it is necessary to say a few words on the two words 'Vyavahāra' and 'Vivāda'.

In the Br. Up. V. 14. 4 we have the famous remark 'cakṣur-vai satyam' and it is added 'therefore when two persons come disputing about a matter, one saying 'I saw' it' and another saying 'I heard it', we believe him alone who says 'I saw it'.' Here the word 'vivāda' is used in the

meaning 'dispute' and it is also emphasised that seeing a matter is superior to hearing evidence about it. In the same Upaniṣad (VI. 1. 7) it is said that these prāṇas (speech and others) having a dispute as to who among them was superior approached-Brahman &c. Therefore the word 'vivāda' is ancient enough. The word 'vyavahāra' was certainly known before Pāṇini (II. 3. 57) in the sense of 'transactions of sale and purchase and the like'. Āp. Dh. S. II. 11. 28, Manu VIII. 8, Yāj. II. 12 and 81 employ the word Vivāda. Gaut. Dh. S. XI. 19. employs the word Vyavahāra in the sense of 'means of settling or deciding disputes'. Vas. Dh. S. 16. 1-3 (Atha vyavahārāḥ | Rājā Mantri vā sadāḥ-kāryāṇi kuryāt dvayor-vivadamānayoḥ pakṣāntaram na gacchet |). Manu VIII. I, Yāj. I. 327, 360 and II. I employ the word (in the plural) and the sense appears to be the complaints or suits brought by the subjects before the king or the court of justice and Manu VIII. 2, 8-9 indicate that the word 'kāryāṇi' is used by it in the same sense as Vyavahārāṇi. There are 18 titles (called vyavahārapadas or vivādapadas) under which all legal proceedings before the king or the court of justice are classified in Manu VIII. 4. 7 and Yāj. It appears to the present writer that the words 'vivāda' and 'vyavahāra' were often regarded even by early writers as synonymous. For example, in Yāj. II. 18 (sapaṇś-ced-vivādaḥ syāt) it is provided that, if a dispute is brought (before the king or court) with a bet, then the losing party should be made to pay a fine and also the amount of the bet to the king and the successful party should be awarded the property (or amount in dispute). The Mit. on Yāj. II. 18 (Sapaṇś-ced vivādaḥ syāt) paraphrases the word 'vivādaḥ' as 'vyavahāraḥ'. It should be noted that Yāj. II. 4 and 305, contain the same clause viz. 'vivādād-dviguṇam damam'. Yāj. II. 4 prescribes that where the members of the court (sabhyāḥ) render a decision opposed to the dicta of Smṛtis, each of them should be made to pay a fine double of what would have been payable by the party defeated in the litigation. Yāj. II. 305 refers to cases, where, after a matter is decided by a court, a review of judgment is sought and the decision is set aside on the ground of miscarriage of justice due to the sabhyas having given a decision opposed to the rules of the smṛtis or owing to their being influenced partiality or by bribery and the like. It should be noted that as early as the Amarakośa (not later than the 5th century A. D. as shown in H. of Dh. Vol. V. p. 840 n. 1367) Vivāda and Vyavahāra are said to be synonyms (vivādo vyavahārah syāt). It is further provided by Manu (8. 43) that the King or the man appointed by him as Judge should not himself start a court proceeding against a person. Medhātithi on Manu VIII. 3 expressly states that the latter half (aṣṭādaśasu mārgeṣu) has in view the vivādapadas. They are also spoken of as vyavahārapadas, because, in bringing a suit one has to specify the cause of action from among the eighteen. Manu also (in VIII. 8) employs the words 'sthāna' instead of 'pada' and 'kārya' in the sense of vyavahāra (suit or proceeding). Br. quoted by the Vivādaratnākara (p. 4) says 'vivādakāraṇānyatra padāni śrūṭādhunā' on which the Vivādaratnākara remarks 'padāni adhikāraṇāni ṛṇādini'. Aparārka (on Yāj. II.5) after quoting Manu 8. 43) remarks 'kāryam vyavahāro vivāda iti yāvat'. Early Smṛti works deal with both adjective law and substantive law. For example, the Manusmṛti (in chap. VIII. 57-130) deals at great length with the law relating to witnesses, oaths, oral evidence, punishments for false depositions and claims. In the same chapter it deals with ādhi, upanidhi, nikṣepa, possession and ownership, money-lending, and rates of interest, topics of Dattāpradānika and Vetanasyānaprakriyā, kṛtānuśaya, svāmipālavivāda, boundary disputes, abuse and defamation, partition, succession and inheritance, marriage and mixed unions, their children and their rights, the four varṇas and their duties and avocations, offences and punishments and so on. Yāj. also in the second section first deals with the four stages of a law-suit, viz. plaint, reply, proof of one's claim (by documents, witnesses &c.) and success or failure of the suit and then proceeds to lay down rules about recovery of debts, pledges and other matters in which disputes (vivādas) arise. Even in comparatively early times the Nārada-smṛti dealt only with the procedural law and the substantive law. The Vyavahāra-mayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha not only deals with the procedural law, but also with substantive law. On the other hand, the Vivādatāṇḍava of Kamalākara-bhaṭṭa (first cousin of Nīlakaṇṭha) not only deals with substantive law (of partition and the rest) but also with the four stages of a suit. There are authors, who wrote separate treatises on vyavahāra and vivāda; for example, Caṇḍeśvara composed Vivādaratnākara and also Vyavahāraratnākara and there are two works by Vācaspati called Vivādacintāmaṇi and Vyavahāracintāmaṇi. Vide Dr. Rocher's paper in J. O. I. (Baroda) vol. V, pages 249-265 for Vivādaratnākara and Vyavahāra-ratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara.

In this connection it would be proper to refer briefly to the careful and scholarly work done by Dr. Ludo Rocher, a Belgian scholar, on Halāyudha. In J. O. I. (Baroda, Vol. III, 1953-54 pp. 328-344) he brought together a collection of fragments of vivādapadas quoted as Halāyudha's or from Halāyudhanibandha (he dealt with 34 extracts only in Vol. III). Then in J. O. I. (Baroda) Vol. IV pp. 13-32 he added extracts Nos. 35-102. In J. O. I. (Baroda) Vol. V, pp. 325-329 he contributed a paper ' Halāyudhanibandha on Legal procedure i. e. on Vyavahāra ' (only seven fragments).

From the fragments it is possible to infer that Halāyudha wrote a nibandha comprising not only substantive law (debts and other topics) but also procedural law. Halāyudha is quoted dozens of times in the Daṇḍaviveka of Vardhamāna but his work is once mentioned as Halāyudha-nibandha on p. 150 of that work and twice as ' Halāyudha on pp. 119 and 152 '. This work deals with six kinds of offences and punishments for them. Thus ' it is a work on vyavahāra '.

Then Dr. Rocher published in 1956 at Ghent the text of the Vyavahāracintāmaṇi (of Vācaspati-miśra) with English translation and notes and several Appendices including an alphabetical index of quotations in V. C. from Dharmaśāstra works.

There is yet another Halāyudha. On the Śrāddhakalpa-sūtra of Kātyāyana a commentary called Prakāśa was composed by Halāyudha, son of Saṅkarsaṇa (vide BBRAS cat. No. 518, p. 170). In this commentary he refers to Karka, Kāmadhenu, Kalpataru, Govindarāja, Lakṣmaṇopādhyāya, Mitākṣarā, Śaṅkhaḍhara and Paśupati. He is therefore later than 1150 A. D. He cannot be identified with the author of the Kavirahasya, as the latter flourished much earlier under the Rāṣṭrakūṭas. The special merit of Halāyudha concerning the Br. Sarvasva is that he is much earlier than the great brothers Sāyaṇa-Mādhava who composed Bhāṣyas on the Vedas. He explains several hundred mantras which occur in the R̥gveda as well as in the Yajurveda. He mentions among his predecessors on the same task Uvāṭa (Br. Sarvasva pp. 233, 256) and Guṇaviṣṇu (p. 256 Br. Sarvasva). Halāyudha's task was, as compared with Sāyaṇa's, very limited, but he brings great learning to the task. There is ample material for comparison between the two. Numerous mantras have been explained by both e. g. the mantra at bathing one-self 'Imam me Gaṅge' (Br. S. pp. 22-23 and Ṛg. X. 75. 5). Mārjana-mantra 'Āpo hi ṣṭhā' (Ṛg. X. 9. 1, Vāj. S. XI. 50); the Gāyatrī-mantra (Ṛg. III. 62. 10, Vāj. S. III. 35, Br. Sar. pp. 37-38),⁸⁶⁵ Śan-no devīr Ṛg. X. 9. 4, Vāj. S. 36. 12, Br. Sar. pp. 92-93); the Aghamarṣaṇa mantras (Ṛg. X. 190. 1-3, Br. Sar. pp. 99).

There is another work called Saṁvatsarapradīpa profusely quoted by Raghunandana (as in Vol. I Tithitattva pp. 3, 34, 43, 46, 49, 106, Śrāddhatattva p. 254). In Ekādaśī-tattva (vol. II. p. 51) Raghunandana ascribes it to Halāyudha and in Śuddhitattva Vol. II. p. 327 also. Some scholars hold that this is Halāyudha's work (vide Dr. R. C. Hazra in I. H. Q. Vol. 21, p. 54), while Dr. Dinesh Chandra Bhattacharya (I. H. Q. Vol. 21 p. 147) holds that the author of this work is different from the author of the Brāhmaṇasarvasva. The editor of the Br. Sarvasva (Intro. pp. XL-XLI) holds that they are the same and I agree with him.

For reasons of space it is impossible to illustrate Halāyudha's principles and methods of the exposition of vedic Mantras in the Brāhmaṇasarvasva and the results arrived at by him. One principle he advocates viz. the meaning of single words in the mantras may have to be controlled by the sense of the sentence or sentences gathered as a whole. For example, the one Mantra 'Śan-no devīr-abhiṣṭaye' (Ṛg. X. 9. 4) is employed as 'snānamantra', as also in the worship of planets Saturn (e. g. vide Yāj. I. 301) and in the Brahma-yajña (Br. S. p. 110). In pp. 37 ff, he well explains the Gāyatrī-mantra and he gives a striking explanation of the Aghamarṣaṇa mantra⁸⁶⁶ of which there is no pada-pāṭha even.

865 He explains the Gāyatrīmantra on pp. 37-40 of the Br. sarvasva and it is a remarkable testimony to the Yogiyājñavalkyasmṛti published by the Kaivalyadhāma, Lonavala (in 1951), that 21 verses from it are cited by Halāyudha in explaining Gāyatrīmantra.

Ancient Vedic texts insist that one engaged in the performance of a sacrifice or the like must know in the case of a wary mantra the sage, metre, the deity and the purpose (viniyoga) for which it is employed and state what undesirable consequences employing mantras without knowing these details will follow.

- 866 Halāyudha's remarks on the Aghamarṣaṇa mantra are interesting :

The dharmādhyakṣa of Lakṣmaṇaśeṇa was a son of Dhanañjaya, while the author of the Prakāśa was a son of Saṅkarṣaṇa. The Śrāddhakāśikā of Kṛṣṇa (Gujarati Press ed. p. 430) on the Navakaṇḍikā or Śrāddhakalpasūtra of Kātyāyana says that first Karka⁸⁶⁷ explained the sūtra in pregnant words and then Halāyudha explained it and yet it remained as difficult as before. Kṛṣṇa is mentioned in the Nirṇayasindhu and the Śrāddhamayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha. Therefore Halāyudha, the author of the Prakāśa on Kātyāyana, must have flourished before 1509 A. D. and later than 1150 A. D.

There is a work called Karmopadeśinī (a manual on the daily religious rites) ascribed to Halāyudha; vide JASB vol. XI (new series) p. 335. This work has been mentioned several times by Raghunandana in his Tattvas e. g. (Vol. I) on tithi p. 149, Śrāddha p. 195, Prāyaścitta 492, Saṁskāra 863; (vol. II) Śuddhi pp. 323, 334, 358. But in all these places the name of the author is not mentioned by Raghunandana. M. M. Chakravarti points out that it quotes the Kalpataru and Śūlapāṇi on Śrāddha. In that case it cannot be placed earlier than the 15th century A. D. and its author would be entirely different from the author of the Brāhmaṇasarvasva.

Vide J. A. S. B. 1915 pp. 327–336 where M. M. Chakravarti brought together interesting information about Halāyudha.

74. Bhavadevabhāṭṭa

The Vyavahāratattva of Raghunandana and the Viramirodaya tell us that Bhavadevabhāṭṭa composed a work called Vyavahāratilaka on judicial procedure. The Vyavahāratattva⁸⁶⁸ tells us that Bhavadeva read 'astavyastapadavyāpi' instead of 'yadvyastapadamavyāpi' in Kātyāyana's verses enumerating the blemishes of uttara (defendant's reply). The *Vyavahāratattva*⁸⁶⁹ mentions Bhavaddevabhāṭṭa's discussion and illustration of a reply (uttara) with a weak plea (kāraṇa). The same work informs us that Bhavaddeva held the same views on adverse possession as Śrikara, Bālaka and others did (vide note 624 above). The Vivādacandra of Misarumiśra⁸⁷⁰ several times refers to the views of Bhavaddeva. The *Viramitrodaya*⁸⁷¹ gives in great detail the remarks of Bhavaddeva on the well-known text of Sumantu about killing an ātātāyin. The *Sarasvatīvilāsa*⁸⁷² and the Vaijayantī of Nandapāṇḍita quote the very same views of Bhavaddevabhāṭṭa on Sumantu's text.

867 कर्को व्याख्यदिदं गभीरवचनैः सूत्रं यतोस्मादभूद् दुर्बोधं च ततो हलायुध इति व्याख्यतथा यस्फुटम् ॥

The foregoing brief discussion shows that Bhavaddeva's Vyavahāratilaka must have been a valuable work on judicial procedure. Unfortunately that work has not yet come to light.

Bhavaddeva also wrote several other works.

He appears to have composed a work called Sambandhaviveka. In the Saṃskāratattva (Jivananda, Vol. I, p. 890) Raghunandana states that Bhavaddeva was the author of a work called Sambandhaviveka. The Udvāhatattva also says

B, for 1912 pp. 333-348 and New Indian Antiquary Vol. VI (1943-4) pp. 252-260 for text of the Sambandhaviveka (based on Manu III. 5 ' asapiṇḍā ca yā ' &) and English Translation, by Prof S. C. Banerji of Dacca.

In the Govt. Mss. library at the B. O. R. Institute Poona, there are two Mss. (No. 9 of 1895-98 and No. 263 of 1887-91) of a work of Bhavadeva variously named Karmānuṣṭhāna-paddhati or Daśakarma-paddhati or Daśakarmadīpikā. M. M. Chakravarti in his informing article on Bhavadeva (J. A. S. B. 1912, pp. 333-348) says that the work has often been printed. I was not able to secure a copy. That work⁸⁷³ deals with the ten principal rites and ceremonies to be performed by Brāhmaṇas who study the Sāmaveda. The principal subjects are:— The Homa to the nine planets (Navagraha-homa), mātrpūjā, pāṇigrahaṇa and other essential rites of marriage, homa on the fourth day after marriage, garbhādhāna, pūṃsavana, sīmantonayana, soṣyantihoma (homa when a woman is on the point of delivery), jātakarma, niṣkramaṇa, nāmakaraṇa, annaprāśana, cūḍākaraṇa, upanayana, samāvartana (the student's returning from the teacher's house after finishing his studies), Śālākarma (first entrance in a new house).

Another work of Bhavadevabhāṭṭa (who is called Bāla-valabhībhujaṅga therein) is styled Prāyaścitta-Prakarṇa (or Nirūpaṇa). That was published by the Varendra Research Society (Rajshahi, Bengal in 1927), edited by Nani Gopal Majumdar. In this work he deals with the five grave sins mentioned by Manu (XI. 54) viz. killing a brāhmaṇa, drinking surā, theft (of gold), adultery with the wife of a guru and contact with these (for a year or more) and also with lesser sins or misconduct such as killing a woman, killing a cow, breaking another's bones, killing beings other than human, eating food from the vessel of a śūdra, touching a washerman or one who deals in hides, taking food without wearing Yajñopavīta, penances for condemned marriages, purification of waters, foodgrains, cooked food &c. Another work composed by him appears to have been called 'Nirṇayāmṛta' (Āhnikatattva, vol. I p. 326, 'Bhavadeviya-, Nirṇayāmṛte Sumantuḥ'). This work was held in high esteem, as the Smṛtiratnākara of Vedācārya places Bhavadeva after Manu among the authorities on prāyaścitta that he follows.⁸⁷⁴ The Varṣa-kriyā-kaumudī of Govindānanda (B. I. series) quotes a text from Bhavadevabhāṭṭa on the prāyaścitta for eating in a solar or lunar eclipse (p. 106).

There is yet another work of Bhavadevabhāṭṭa called Tautātītamatatilaka, a ms. of which exists in the India Office (Cat. Part IV p. 190, No. 2166). That work is concerned with elucidating the doctrines of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā system from the standpoint of Kumārilabhāṭṭa (who is also called Tautātīta).

The Tautātītamatatilaka deals with the adhikaraṇas and not with every sūtra in the Mīmāṃsāsāstra in the first three adhyāyas of the Pūrvamīmāṃsāsūtra of Jaimini. It has been published in the Princess of Wales Sarasvatībhavana Series (Benares) in two volumes, the first in 1939 (pp. 482) ed. by Pandits A. Chinnaswami Sastri and Pattabhiram Sastri and the second volume (pp. 483-870 and Index of Quotations pp. 871-907 (1944) edited by the same scholars. The Sanskrit Introduction sets out all the verses of the prastāvi of Bhavadeva inscribed on the wall round the temple building.

Besides the Vedas, the Brāhmaṇas, and Jaimini's sūtras, the Śrautasūtra of Āpastamba (frequently) and those of Drāhyāyana and Satyāśāḍha (rarely), the bhāṣya of Śabara, Pāṇini, Manusmṛti, Gautama-dharmasūtra are cited.

Hundreds of verses are quoted from Kumārila's Tantravārtika and Ślokovārtika. Tautātita appears to have been given as a sobriquet to Kumārila. In the drama Prabodhacandrodaya (II. 3) we have a verse about the names of some of the works and authors on Pūrvamīmāṃsā put in the mouth of a character 'Ahaṅkāra', the first pāda of which is 'naivāśrāvi guror-matam na viditam Tautātitam darśanam'. Some editions read 'Kaumārila darśanam' for 'Tautātitam darśanam'. But the com. called 'Prakāśa' had the word 'Tautātitam'; being unfamiliar to most people it was probably changed to 'Kaumārila' by some later scribes.

It mentions the bhāṣyakāra (Śābara), Vārtika (folio 12 a), Gurumata (17b), Prabhākara (21b), Vārtikakārapāda (22 b, in the plural). It frequently quotes kārikās from the Tantravārtika with the words 'taduktam'. Hemādri⁸⁷⁶ quotes Bhavadeva's explanation of the words of Kumārila allowing an option between jāghanya and ājya and disapproves of it. Vide Tri. Cat. of Madrs Govt. Mss. for 1919-1922, p. 5527 for the same work.

Raghunandana in his vast Smṛtitattva mentions Bhavadevabhāṭṭa's views dozens of times, several times for criticizing him or discarding his views ('heyam' is the word often used) Vide, for example, '*Tithitattva*⁸⁷⁷' (vol. I pp. 95, 99, Saṃskāratattva p. 887, 889-90, Udvāhatattva, vol. II p. 130). But it should be noted that Raghunandana also accepts his views several times, e. g. in Vyavahāratattva, vol. II p. 213, 216, Śuddhitattva pp. 240, 312. In modern times also Sāṃavedins in Bengal follow Bhavadevabhāṭṭa as regards religious rites, while other Brāhmaṇas rely on Raghunandana's works.

Unexpected light is thrown on the personal history of Bhavadevabhaṭṭa by an inscription found in the temple of Ananta Vāsudeva at Bhuvaneśvara in the Puri District of Orissa edited by Kielhorn in E. I. vol. VI, p. 203, which eulogises Bhavadevabhaṭṭa, the identity of the author Bhavadeva with the person eulogised being established by the unique epithet, Bāvalabhībhujaṅga applied to the latter.⁸⁷⁸ The eulogy is composed by a person called Vācaspatikavi. Bhavadeva belonged to the Sāvarna gotra of the Kauthumī school of the Sāmaveda. The family belonged to Siddhalagrāma in Rādhā (west of the Hugli and south of the Ganges). The pedigree given in the inscription is : Bhavadeva (who received from the Gauda king in gift the agrahāra of Hastinibhiṭṭa)—son Rathāṅga—son Atyāṅga—son Budha—son Śrī Ādideva (wife Sarasvatī), who was Prime Minister of Vahaga king)—son Govardhana (wife Sāṅgokā, daughter of a Vandyaghaṭīya brāhmaṇa—) son Bhavadeva Bāvalabhībhujaṅga, Minister of Harivarmadeva and his son. In the Inscription he is declared to be a second Varāha (i. e. Varāhamihira). Vide pp. 478–480 (of H. of Dh. Vol. V) for the three branches of Jyotiṣa. The Brhatsamhitā of Varāhamihira states that Jyotiḥ-śāstra has three branches (skandhas) and a work dealing with all three branches is called ' Samhitā ' (Br. S. I. 9). The three branches are called Gaṇita or Tantra, (mathematical calculations of the motions of planets &c), Horā (or Jātaka) that dealt with horoscopes and astrology and the third was called Śākhā. The inscription further claims that Bhavadeva was an expert in the Pūrvamīmāṃsā as propounded by Kumārilabhāṭṭa, was also an expert in Āyurveda (medicine) and astravidyā (the science of arms). With the advice of Bhavadeva, king Harivarmadeva is said to have reigned long in prosperity. Bhavadeva is stated in the above-mentioned inscription to have composed works on horā (astrology), smṛti and mīmāṃsā. Bhavadeva is eulogised as a great builder. He constructed a reservoir of water in Rādhā, he set up a stone image of Nārāyaṇa and founded a temple in which he placed images of Nārāyaṇa, Ananta, and Nṛsiṃha. Vide M. M. Chakravarti's remarks on the temple in JASB for 1912 (vol. 87 at pp. 338-39 for a description of the temple which is in good condition even after eight centuries). He also gave to Harimedhas female attendants, dug a tank and laid out a garden. Neither Kielhorn nor Chakravarti has attempted any explanation of the epithet Bālavalabhībhujaṅga. I hazard an explanation. Bhavadeva probably made some innovation in the structure of the roofs or balconies of the temples he built and he was therefore styled a lover (a gallant or paramour) of little bāla-small-sized or girlish) valabhīs. From the nature of the character Kielhorn conjectured that the inscription belonged to the 12th century A. D.

The epithet 'Bālavalabhī-bhujaṅga' has mystified several writers. In 'Modern Review' for March 1931, at p. 288 Mr. Ray suggests that it means 'destroyer of the kingdom of Bālavalabhī in Rādhā'. In I. H. Q. vol. 27 p. 80 Dr. D. C. Sircar quotes verse 23 of the *Tautātita-matatilaka*⁸⁷⁹ (quoted below) and holds that the appellation was given to Bhavadeva in his student days. Another possible explanation is as

मामध्ययनदशायामुवाच वाचं दर्शि स्वप्ने (?) । बालवलभीभुजङ्गापरनामा
त्वमसि भवदेव । तेनायमुद्यमो मे विद्यादर्पज्ञ जातु सञ्जातः । तस्मादिहावधानं
विधातुमाधिकुर्वते सुधियः ॥

Vide I. H. Q. Vol. 27 pp. 80-82. Dr. Dasharatha Sharma gives a reply to this in the same volume on p. 339, which does not appear to me to be at all satisfactory. Vide also I. H. Q. vol. 29 p. 294 where Dr. Sircar repeats what he says in IHQ. Vol. 27. No reason is assigned why a student should be dubbed 'bhujaṅga' of Bāla. valabhī' by his teacher. The words in bold type are more or less inexplicable. It is not known who spoke ('uvāca'), unless we follows:— The word ‘bhujāṅga’ according to a kośa quoted by Kṣīrasvāmin on Amarasimha means ‘veśyāpati’ (one who visits prostitutes) and therefore in an extended sense ‘a gallant’ or a lewd person. We have a classical and comparatively early use of that word in the Harsacarita of Bāṇa (in 2nd Ucchvāsa in the paragraph just before the last). When Bāṇa was presented to the Emperor Harṣa, the latter turned to the Mālava prince sitting behind him (Harṣa) and remarked ‘this is a great bhujāṅga’ (mahān-ayam bhujāṅgaḥ). Bāṇa protests “what have I done to be dubbed a bhujāṅga” (Kā me bhujāṅgatā; it may also mean there is lewdness in Kāma i. e. Cupid and not in me). He further protests that he was a brāhmaṇa born in the family of Vātsyāyanas that performed Soma sacrifices, that he had by heart the Veda with the six subsidiary lores, that he studied the Śāstras, he admits that he was guilty of some trifling follies in his youth but they were not such as to be censured in this world and as would prevent his attaining heaven; he repents of those follies; common people spread strange rumours, but great men should see things as they really are. Harṣa probably did not mean more than this that he (Bāṇa) had sown his wild oats. Therefore, Bālavalabhībhujaṅga would mean ‘one who had sown wild oats in Bālavalabhī, a village or town in Rāḍhā (not identifiable now). Valabhī was a famous town in Kathiawad in the 5th and 6th centuries A. D. In ‘Indian Culture’ vol. for 1939 pp. 467 ff it is pointed out that over 85 Inscriptions of the Maitrakas of Valabhī had been published till then. The Bhaṭṭikāvya was composed in take ‘Sarasvatī’ (occurring in the first verse) as the subject. We may then understand that the author professes (or brags) that Sarasvatī spoke to him in a dream. But how is ‘darśi’ to be construed? Is it a verbal form or a noun? Another difficulty is: what is the metre of the verse? The first half has 17 letters, while the latter half has 19 letters. If it is a mātrā metre, what is the metre? If we could read दृशं गता स्वप्ने the metre would be right as an ‘Āryā’. Unless one can secure several mss. it is not possible to argue that somebody surprised by the peculiar appellation might have invented some story and inserted a verse or verses in the fragment. A ms. of the Tautātita-matatilaka was described in the Catalogue of the Sanskrit mss. in the India Office Library prepared by Dr. Windisch and Dr. Eggeling, part IV p. 690, No. 2166. It deals only with pāda 1 of chapter II of the Pūrvamīmāṃsāsūtra.

Valabhī ruled over by Dharasena. Dr. S. K. De in 'History of Sanskrit Literature' Vol. I (Calcutta University 1947) p. 717 shows that there was an ancient village called Vṛddha-Valabhī and Bhavadeva's residential village was called Bāla-valabhī to distinguish it from the other village'. And as the word Bālavallabhī-bhujaṅga occurs in an official document (in E. I. Vol. VI pp. 203-207) and is applied to Bhavadeva who had become a minister of king Harivarman of Bengal that flourished about the last quarter of the 11th or the first quarter of the 12th century A. D., we would have to take it in a secondary sense. It may be pointed out that Viśvanātha-kavirāja, author of the Sāhityadarpana on Sanskrit Poetics (14th century A. D.) quotes (in 2nd Pariccheda a verse 'Durgālaṅghitavigrahaḥ...rājatyumāvallabhaḥ' composed by his father, a great poet and a minister for peace and war and describes him as 'mama tātapaḍānām Mahāpātra-Caturdaśu-bhāṣā-vilāsinī-bhujaṅgama-mahākaviśvara-śrī-Candraśekhara-sāndhivigrahaḥkānām'.

Besides the ancient and well-known Dharmasūtras and smṛtis (such as those of Gautama, Baudhāyana, Āpastamba, Vasistha, Viṣṇu, Manu, Yājñavalkya, Devala, Nārada, Brhaspati, Kātyāyana and others, he quotes in the Prāyaścittaprakaraṇa the following authors, and works: Caturviṃśatimata p. 53; Jikana (or Jikana p. 102, Viśvarūpa, Dhāreśvara and Śrīkara (all three on p. 82), Bālaka (pp. 42, 44, 74, 81, 83, 109), Yogiyājñavalkya (p. 38 quotes Yogiyājñavalkya 8. 2.), Śrīkara (pp. 9, 82, 105 Ṣaṭ-trimālāśan 9 times).

Recently Bhavadevabhāṭṭa's 'Śava-sūtikāśauca-prakaraṇa' has been edited by Dr. R. C. Hazra and published in the Govt. Sanskrit College Research Series of Calcutta. Some information about it was given in I. H. Q. vol. 32 pp. 1-14 by Dr. Hazra himself, which has been embodied in the exhaustive Intro. to it. His edition is based on three mss. recently found in Assam written in old Assamese script. One of them is dated Śaka 1705 (1783 A. D.). The other two have the same appearance and present the same condition (Intro. V). The concluding verse speaks of the author as Bhāṭṭa Śrībhavadeva and the editor gives up the reading of the second half of the verse in the three mss. and substitutes what he thinks to be the proper reading. This reverses the usual procedure followed in scholarly editions based on mss. He should have kept the reading supported by all his mss. as the text and added a footnote stating what he thought should be the reading. On p. XXIII of the Intro. he himself admits “ we have given (the title) as ‘Śavasūtakāśauca-prakarāṇa’, although all the three mss. have it as ‘Śavasūtikā-viśuddhi-prakarāṇa’ in the concluding verse and as ‘Śavasūtikāśauca-prakarāṇa’ in the colophons. Further comment is unnecessary. He has given up here his role as editor. The reading presented by the mss. is quite good. It would mean literally ‘ a treatise on the purification in cases of an impurity of a dead body (i. e. on death) and of a sūtikā. Sūtikā means a woman that has had a recent delivery (may be prematurely or after the full period of gestation). The Amarakośa says : Ariṣṭam Sūtikā-grham. The word Sūtaka is used in three senses viz. (1) In Manu V. 58 and Yāj. III. 18-19 the word ‘ sūtaka ’ is used in the sense of ‘ impurity on birth ’; (2) impurity on both birth and death as in Gobhilasmṛti III. 60 and 63; (3) Impurity on death alone as in Dakṣasmṛti VI. 1 and Gobhilasmṛti III. 48. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. IV pp. 268-269 on Āśauca, Jananāśauca or sūtaka and śāvāśauca and the notes below. In Ait. B. 32.8 the word ‘ Sūtakāṇna ’ is probably used in both senses of sūtaka. Prof. Hazra unnecessarily and without any authority changes the name of the work and creates unnecessary confusion. In the note on p. XXIII of the Introduction he remarks. ‘ I have not been able to find out a single instance of the use of the word ‘ Sūtikā ’ in the sense of ‘ Sūtakā ’ (meaning birth). Nobody asks him to take ‘ sūtikā ’ in the sense of birth. He has on his own authority put down the name as ‘ śavasūtakāśauca-prakarāṇa ’ which may be split up in two parts viz. ‘ śava-āśauca-prakarāṇa ’ and ‘ sūtaka-āśaucaprakarāṇa ’. The dead body has to observe no āśauca; ‘ Śāvāśaucaprakarāṇa ’ therefore has to be taken to mean (by lakṣaṇā) ‘ impurity (for living persons) in relation to a dead body (in the house or family) i. e. āśauca arising on death. Similarly, ‘ sūtakāśauca-prakarāṇa ’ would have to be taken to mean ‘ treatise concerning the observance of impurity in relation to a sūtaka ’, which as shown above, has different meanings. Therefore, the reading ‘ Śava-sutikā-viśuddhi-prakarāṇa ’ must be accepted as the proper reading. It is a far better reading since it prominently and expressly mentions purification on two occasions, while, if we read 'āśauca' only, the impurity is emphasized, the purification being left to be understood. And further there is the support for this reading in all available mss.

Prof. Hazra, in his Intro. to the work 'śava-prakarṇa' on p. XVIII (last two lines) first construes 'Bālavalabhī-bhujāṅga' as meaning 'a serpent (i. e. a dangerous and invincible scholar) of Bālavalabhī (a place)'. This is overdrawn. We can accept 'dangerous scholar' as the suggested meaning' but 'invincible' is entirely different. A serpent is not at all invincible. Eagles and kites swoop down on it and kill it. In the wooded parts of the Konkan the present author has seen large serpents killed with the single stroke of a thick bamboo stick. Prof. Hazra (probably not being satisfied with his first explanation) suggests another fantastic explanation (on p. XX of the Introduction) of the epithet. He breaks it up into four component parts viz. bāla (young learners), bala (for 'vala') meaning 'hosts', 'bhī' (fear) and 'bhujāṅga' (serpent), all taken together as meaning 'who is a serpent to the fear of hosts of young learners 'as regards the works and subjects which are difficult to understand'. Those who like this may accept it. The present author holds that this is a far-fetched, unacceptable and worthless explanation from several points of view.

The contents of the work Śava-sūtikā-viśuddhi-prakarṇa,⁸⁸⁰ (as all the available mss. say) are briefly as follows. Discussion about impurity on premature delivery and special provisions about women of the Kṣatriya and other varṇas in such a predicament ; impurity for the husband in the case of his wife's premature delivery ; āśauca on death, periods of āśauca on the death of a child that has struck teeth or before that or death before or after cūḍākarāṇa for brāhmaṇas and others. No cremation of the body of a child less than two years of age ; āśauca (period of) when a child dies after Upa-nayana ; Āśauca for Kṣatriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras on the death of a Sapinda whose upanayana had been performed depends on his guṇas ; āśauca in the case of dāsas and dāsīs ; days of āśauca on the death of a brāhmaṇa who was an Agni-hotrin or not so ; discussion about the time for purification of a śūdra ; the proper time of collecting the ashes of a person cremated depending for its length on possessing good qualities or not so possessing ; āśauca on the death of daughters not agreed or agreed to be given in marriage or married or unmarried ; three days āśauca for married women on the death of their parents or for ten days before they are married ; āśauca on the death of a son born to a brāhmaṇa from a wife of a lower varṇa ; āśauca on the death of a samānodaka ; cases of āśauca for a pakṣiṇī (i. e. period of two days having a night between the two) ; āśauca (period of) on the death of one's ācārya (as defined by Manu II. 140) or of his sons or wife or of the king (being a kṣatriya) in whose realm one dwells ; cases of sadyahśauca (purification immediately after taking a bath) as laid down in Yājñavalkya III. 28-29, Gautama Dh. S. 14, 41-42, Parāśara 3. 202) ; purification on carrying the dead body of one who was not a sapinda or following the funeral procession of one dead, whether a relative or not (Manu V. 101, 103) ; dead body to be taken through the eastern, northern, western or southern gates of the city according to the varṇa of the deceased (Manu V. 92) ; rules about Sahagamana of a wife and anugamana ; rules about impurity on birth for sapindas follows the same principles as on death (Manu V. 61), the impurity on death affects all sapindas but the impurity on birth affects the parents alone and the impurity on birth affects seriously only the mother, while the father becomes pure after a bath (Manu V. 62). If, while one period of impurity (on death or birth) is running as regards a person, another āśauca of the same kind supervenes, he becomes pure after the end of the prior āśauca (Manu V. 79). If one kind of āśauca becomes mixed up with another kind of āśauca that sets in, the rules are rather complicated.

Many ancient sages are quoted. Manu, Yājñavalkya, Gautama and Parāśara are profusely quoted for such a small work. Another striking feature is that nine sages are quoted with the word brhat prefixed to their names (viz. Aṅgiras, Brhaspati, Manu, Yama, Yājñavalkya, Viṣṇu, Vyāsa, Śaṅkha and Hārīta). It may be noted that only two purāṇas are cited viz. Matsya (2 verses on p. 41) and Viṣṇu (one verse on p. 31).

The date of Bhavadeva can be approximately settled to be about 1100 A. D. as he is quoted by Hemādri, the Vivādacandra of Mīsarū and the Smṛtisāra of Harinātha. He is certainly earlier than 1200 A. D. A period of at least half a century must have elapsed before a Bengal writer like Bhavadeva came to be looked upon as an authority on mīmāṃsā by Hemādri who wrote in distant Berar. It appears that he was quoted in the Karmopadeśinī of Aniruddha (I. O. cat. No. 1853. p. 474). But that Ms. is bound up with another work by a later author and the reference in the cat. is not quite clear. If we rely on the Viramitrodaya, a work called Pradīpa criticised the views of Bhavadeva on the verse of Yāj. II. 24 (about adverse possession for 20 and 10 years). Bhavadeva held that twenty years' enjoyment of immovable property by a stranger implied that the real owner meant to abandon it for the benefit of the stranger enjoying it, that such abandonment for the enjoyment of another leads to the inference of the extinction of previous ownership and that the property being abandoned by the owner in favour of the stranger who takes hold of it, ownership also (of the stranger) arises. The Pradīpa⁸⁸¹ points out that it does not invariably follow that, because a stranger is allowed to enjoy land, the owner intends to abandon the land for the stranger, nor is it an invariable rule that what is abandoned for another becomes the property of that other. It will be shown later on that the Pradīpa must have been composed before 1150 A. D. Hence it follows that Bhavadeva flourished about 1100 A. D. He cannot be very much earlier than that, as he is not mentioned by any writer of the 11th century and as he not only mentions Kumā-rila and Prabhākara, but also Viśvarūpa and Dhāreśvara.

There were several other later persons named Bhavadeva who wrote on topics of Dharmaśāstra such as Bhavadeva author of Dānadharmaparakriyā (middle of 17th century), and Bhavadeva, the author of Smṛticandrikā, who flourished in the first half of the 18th century.

On Bhavadeva's Karmānuṣṭhāna-paddhati there is a commentary called Samsārapaddhatirahasya.

75. Prakāśa

The Vivādaratnākara of Candēśvara cites the views of Prakāśa scores of times (e. g. pp. 131, 145, 456, 460, 462, 474, 485, 504 etc.). Frequently Prakāśa is coupled with Pārijāta (vide Vivādaratnākara pp. 145, 241, 260, 286, 456). On p. 602 of the V. R. the two (Prakāśa and Pārijāta) are cited as differing from each other. On pp. 286 and 465 of the V. R., Prakāśa, Pārijāta and Halāyudha are cited together as holding the same view. It would be shown under 'Kalpataru' that a work called 'Mahārṇava' is mentioned in verses 12 and 13 of the Introduction to the Brahmācārikāṇḍa and that the same work is cited in different ways as Smṛtimahārṇava or Mahārṇava-prakāśa' or simply as 'Mahārṇava' or as 'Prakāśa' (e. g. p. 497). On page 518 of the Vivādaratnākara a remark of Prakāśa wherein both Asahāya and Medhātithi are named is cited.⁸⁸² The Dānaratnākara of Candēśvara⁸⁸³ quotes a passage of Samvarta with Prakāśa's explanation of it.⁸⁸⁴ In the Śrāddhasaukhyā of Tōḍarānanda Prakāśa's explanation of the word 'Yānevata' occurring in a passage of Śaṅkha about the fruits allowed in śrāddha is quoted.⁸⁸⁵

These quotations establish that Prakāśa was a work that not only dealt with vyavahāra, but also with such topics as dāna, śrāddha etc.

Whether the Prakāśa was an independent work or a commentary is somewhat doubtful. But from a passage of the Vivādaratnākara it seems to follow that it was a commentary on the Yājñavalkya-smṛti. There we are told that the Kalpataru⁸⁸⁶ read 'abhijānatā' for 'avijānatā' in Yāj. II. 258, but that since that reading is opposed to Yājñavalkya-prakāśa, Halāyudha and Pārijāta it must be regarded as a wrong reading. As it is a reading of Yāj. himself that was being discussed, it would be somewhat strange if it were said that it was opposed to Yāj. and Prakāśa and therefore it is necessary to suppose that Yājñavalkyaprakāśa is one work.

The Vivādacintāmaṇi in several places gives the explanation of Prakāśa.⁸⁸⁶ The Smṛtisāra⁸⁸⁷ gives at great length the explanation of Prakāśa on the controversial verses of Yāj. (II. 138-139). The Viramitrodaya⁸⁸⁸ quotes at length Prakāśa's explanation of Manu (9. 207) and disapproves of it on the ground (among others) that the verse can more clearly be explained so as to convey a meaning similar to that of Yāj. II. 116. The Prakāśa is mentioned in the Dayatattva (vol. II, p. 173) and in the Śuddhitattva (vol. II, p. 288) and p. 385 and the Mahārṇava-prakāśa is mentioned in the Kalpataru on Śrāddha p. 262.

As the Prakāśa is quoted in the Kalpataru it is certainly earlier than 1125. A. D. It mentions Medhātithi. Besides the Mit. does not refer to it. There is room for thinking that it follows the Mit. Yāj. II. 116 is, according to the Vivādaratnākāra,⁸⁸⁹ explained by the Prakāśa in almost the same words as the Mit. It is possible that both borrow from the same original. At all events the Prakāśa must have been composed between 1000 and 1100 A. D.

Hemādri frequently cites a work called Mahārṇava-prakāśa.⁸⁹⁰ According to the latter the sandal unguents, flowers, incense, lamp presented in śrāddha are to be offered to the Brāhmaṇas invited and not to the pitrs. In another place Hemādri quotes the explanation of the word 'nimantrana'⁸⁹¹ given by the Mahārṇavaprakāśa. In some places

Hemādri refers to a work called Smṛtimahārṇava or simply Mahārṇava.⁸⁹² It appears to me that all these are the names of the same work. The Madanapārijāta (p. 93) quotes a verse from the Smṛtimahārṇava about upākarma.

76. Pārijāta

Several works bear the appellation Pārijāta such as the Vidhānapārijāta (composed in 1625 A. D.), the Madanapārijāta (about 1375 A. D.) and the Prayogapārijāta (between 1400–1500). But there was an ancient work called Pārijāta quoted by even some of the earliest nibandhakāras. The Vivādaratnākara regarded the Kalpataru, Pārijāta Halāyudha and Prakāśa as its most eminent predecessors.⁸⁹³ The *Dānaratnākara*⁸⁹⁴ quotes several times the views of Pārijāta on gifts. The Smṛtisāra of Harinātha sets out at length the order of succession to a sonless man according to the Pārijāta (vide I. O. Ms. No. 301, folio 134 a). One of the striking opinions of the Pārijāta was that the widow of a sonless man should raise offspring by niyoga and give the wealth of the deceased to the son so born.

From the above it appears that the Pārijāta was an independent work on vyavahāra, dāna and other topics, as it held views similar to those of Bhojadeva and Halāyudha on the widow's rights and as it is not quoted by the Mit. or other earlier works it must be assigned to a date between 1000–1125 A. D. In I. L. R. 12 Cal. 348 at p. 356 the learned judges hold that the Pārijāta frequently cited as an authority by the Vivādaratnākara is the Madanapārijāta. But this is entirely wrong. The latter work, it will be shown (vide sec.

Madanapārijāta)* was composed about 1375, while the Vivādaratnākara was composed about 1320 A. D. The Kṛtyaratnākara mentions the Pārijāta nine times (on pp. 31, 54, 58, 59, 61, 66, 74, 92, 606) and Vivādaratnākara quotes it six times. The Pārijāta was liberal enough to state that the Pāñcarātra, Pāśupata and similar doctrines, where not opposed to the Veda, are authoritative as to those parts (Kṛtyaratnākara p. 31).

Raghuandana in Dāyatattva (vol. II. p. 177) lumps together 'Smṛti-mahārṇava, Kāmadhenu and Pārijāta' and again on p. 195 of the same puts together the Mitākṣarā, Pārijāta, Halāyudha and holds that a certain passage in the Kalpataru (that differs) is due to a mistake of the copyist (vide foot-note⁸⁹⁵ below).

77. Govindarāja

The commentary of Govindarāja on the Manusmṛti was published by Rao Saheb V. N. Mandlik and a portion of it was published by Dr. Jolly in the Manuṭīkāsaṅgraha. In his commentary⁸⁹⁶ on Manu III. 247 and 248 he tells us that he has treated at greater length the subject of those verses in his own work called Smṛtīmañjarī. Kullūka⁸⁹⁷ in his comment on Manu IV. 212 twits Govindarāja with having explained 'ugra' in one way in his commentary on Manu and in a different way in his Mañjarī. A Ms. of a portion of the Smṛtīmañjarī exists in the India Office (cat. p. 471). Haraprasada

897 गोविन्दराजो मञ्जर्यामुग्रं राजानमुक्तवान् । मनुवृत्तौ च शूद्रायां क्षत्रियोत्पन्नमभ्यधात् ॥

Sastri in the Cat. of Mss. of the Govt. in the custody of the Asiatic Society of Bengal (vol. III, pp. 51-54 No. 1924) gives a description of the Ms. of the Smṛtimañjarī on Ācāra and Prāyaścitta.

Manu IV. 212 requires a brāhmaṇa to desist from partaking of food of various categories, one of which is food offered by an ugra. Both Manu (X. 9) and Yāj. (I. 92) provide that the son of a Kṣatriya from a wife of the Śūdra class is called Ugra. The Kalpataru (on Niyata-kāla-kāṇḍa p. 261) quotes the author of the Mañjarī, paraphrasing 'ugra' as meaning 'rājan'. The Śrāddhakalpataru on p. 46 mentions 'Mañjarī-kāra' and on p. 259 'Smṛtimañjarīkāra'. The same work is meant in both places. The Śrāddhakāṇḍa (Kalpataru) pp. 46-47) quotes a long passage from the Vāyupurāṇa stating that some kind of edible grains, vegetables, and other articles should be offered in Śrāddha. One of these is Kāleya, which is explained by Govindarāja. On Manu III. 285, Govindarāja's gloss is not accepted by Kullūka, while on Manu III. 178 Kullūka agrees with both Medhātithi and Govindarāja.

Raghunandana in Dāyatattva (vol. II, p. 191) quotes a verse of Viṣṇu cited by Govindarāja.

The Dāyabhāga of Jīmūtavāhana (XI) quotes Govindarāja as holding on the strength of a verse of Viṣṇu^{897a} that a daughter's son succeeded to the estate of a deceased person even before the married daughter of the deceased. In the printed com. of Govindarāja, there is no comment of his after Manu IX. 72. But it appears that Jīmūtavāhana had before him the com. of Govindarāja on the verses after IX. 72 (at least on what are Manu IX. 131-136). Govindarāja is mentioned in the Kālaviveka (p. 304) and Vyavahāramātrkā (p. 342) also.

is a verse of बृहस्पति quoted by दायभाग as बृहस्पति's (in दायभाग
XI. 2. 8 p. 179 (ed. of Jivananda 1893) and by Smṛti-Candrikā (Vyavahāra p. 296, Gharpure's ed). The Smṛti-Candrikā reads
' अपुत्रपौत्रसन्ताने '.

Kullūka differs expressly from Govindarāja on Manu I. 5, I. 82 (Itareṣvāgamāt); II. 122, 125, 127 ; III. 50, 53, 127, 129, 191, 221, 284, 285; V. 16, 51, 72, 84, 104 (imām Govindarājasya rājājñām nādriyāmahe); VI. 14, 79, 84 &c. In dozens of cases (besides these) Govindarāja's views are mentioned but not criticized by Kullūka.

From these two works a brief account of the personal history of Govindarāja can be extracted. The colophons at the end of the Manuṭikā describe Govindarāja as the son of bhaṭṭa Mādhava. The first verse⁸⁹⁸ of the Smṛtimañjarī and one at the end (though somewhat corrupt) give the information that he was the son of Mādhava and grand-son of Nārāyaṇa and appears to have lived on the holy banks of the Ganges.⁸⁹⁹ Those who like Sarvadhikari identify Govindarāja with Govindacandra, prince of Benares, are therefore entirely wrong since he was a Brāhmaṇa and not a Kṣatriya. The first verse⁹⁰⁰ of his Manuṭikā contains an obeisance to god (or Śiva) and states that he had received the śāstra of Manu in an unbroken tradition of teacher and pupil and that he had examined previous commentaries of Manu.

The Smṛtis mentioned by him in the two works of his are given below.⁹⁰¹ Besides, he mentions the Vāyupurāṇa (on Manu III. 232) and Purāṇa in general (on Manu I. 74 and 80). He frequently quotes the Gṛhyasūtras, also the Bahvr-cagrhyapariśiṣṭa, the Yogasūtra. He says (on Manu 2. 23) that Mleccha countries like Āndhra and others were not fit for performing sacrifices. He appears to have held like Medhātithi the view that mokṣa was to be attained by a combination of jñāna and *karma*⁹⁰² As compared with the bhāṣya of Medhātithi his commentary is very concise. Kullūka largely drew upon Medhātithi and Govindarāja, mentions them hundreds of times, criticizes⁹⁰³ both of them and particularly holds up Govindarāja to ridicule often enough.^{903a} Kullūka notes that Govindarāja in opposition to Medhātithi and Bhojadeva arranged Manu 8. 181–184 differently (putting 8. 182 as the last of those four verses). In the printed edition there is no comment of Govindarāja on the verses of the 9th chapter from verse 72. But it appears that the Dāyabhāga had that part of the commentary, as it quotes the views of Govindarāja on the rights of the daughter's son which could have appeared only on Manu IX. 130–136.

A few words may now be said about the Smṛtimañjarī mss. which are rare. At the end of the India Office Ms. a summary of the contents of the whole work is given (for which see footnote below).⁹⁰⁴ It appears that the Smṛtimañ-

The ms. in the India office deals with the adhikāri for prāyaścitta, the parṣat (i. e. the assembly of learned men who are to determine what prāyaścitta is to be prescribed), the means of atoning for sins and violations of religious duties, the prāyaścittas for the mahāpātakas (viz. the murder of a Brāhmaṇa, drinking wine, theft of gold, incest) and for other lesser and similar sins, meaning of the word prāyaścitta, prāyaścittas for killing men of Kṣatriya, Vaiśya and Śūdra classes and for killing women, prāyaścittas for the killing of a cow and of various beasts and birds, prāyaścittas for eating forbidden or polluted food and for selling articles forbidden to be sold, secret prāyaścittas. The India Office Ms. which deals only with prāyaścittas contains 152 folios. This gives us an idea as to how extensive the whole work must have been embracing as it did the entire field of dharmaśāstra. In the body of the work contained in the Ms. frequent references occur to other parts of⁹⁰⁵ the Smṛtimañjarī such as saṁskāra-kāṇḍa, the abhakṣyakāṇḍa, the śrāddhakāṇḍa. One interesting fact about Govindarāja is that, though a northerner he permitted⁹⁰⁶ marriage with one's maternal uncle's daughter and said that the prohibition against marrying a girl of the maternal uncle's gotra applies only to the son of a putrikā. The Ms. in the India Office is an ancient one, being copied in saṁvat 1467 Āśvina dark half, Saturday (i. e. October 1411 A. D.) during the reign of Mahārāṇā Udayasimha at Vasurāvi (modern Vasravi in the territory of the Maharaja Gaikwad of Baroda).

Dr. Jolly (Manuṭikāsaṁgraha, preface page 1 and R. u. S. p. 31) and Dr. Buhler (S. B. E. vol. 25, p. cxxvii) assigned Govindarāja to the 12th or 13th century. But this date is not correct, as the following discussion will show. Kullūka (vide note 773 above) expressly says that Medhātithi is much earlier than Govindarāja. Though Medhātithi is nowhere expressly named in his commentary by Govindarāja⁹⁰⁷ the latter appears to have several times criticised Medhātithi. Another on मनु XI. 178 मेधातिथि says ' वृषत्यत्र चण्डात्यभिप्रेता ' and गोविन्दराज

important circumstance is that, though the Mit. mentions Medhātithi and Bhojadeva as great authorities it is silent about Govindarāja. Hence it follows that Govindarāja could not have flourished earlier than Bhojadeva, i. e. earlier than about 1050 A. D. In the Hāralatā of Aniruddha (which as we shall see later on (must have been composed about 1160 A. D.), Govindarāja is quoted several times and is looked upon as a great authority like Viśvarūpa, Bhojadeva and Kāmadhenu.⁹⁰⁸ This shows that Govindarāja could not have flourished later than 1125 A. D. The Dāyabhāga⁹⁰⁹ (in Duḥitrādhikāra) disapproves of the view of Govindarāja who placed the daughter's son before married daughter as an heir. In his Kālaviveka⁹¹⁰ also Jīmūtavāhana refers to Govindarāja in the same breath with Bhojarāja and Viśvarūpa. In his Vyavahāramātrkā⁹¹¹ he refers to Mañjarīkāra as having held the same view as Viśvarūpa. Mañjarī here must be taken to be the Smṛtimañjarī of Govindarāja, since Jīmūtavāhana in his other works refers to Govindarāja, since Kullūka also speaks of the Mañjarī of Govindarāja (vide note 706 above) and since there is no other known ancient work of that name on dharmaśāstra. This shows that the Mañjarī comprised a discussion on vyavahāra also. Hemādri⁹¹² tells that the author of the work called Paṇḍitaparitosa refuted the views of Govindarāja on the performance of śrāddha on the 13th tithi by a man having a son. This shows that Govindarāja must have preceded Hemādri (who wrote in the latter half of the 13th century or by at least a century more. The Smṛtyarthasāra⁹¹³ of Śrīdhara relies on the views of Govindarāja in its section on samnyāsa.

When the first edition of H. of Dh. (Vol. I) was published in 1930, no portion of the Kṛtyakalpataru of Laksmīdhara was available in print. Later, eleven kāṇḍas of the Kalpataru have been edited by Prof. K. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar and published and some part of the Prāyaścittakāṇḍa has been discovered by Dr. S. L. Katre and he has published a paper in 'Bhāratīya Vidyā' Vol. 17 (1957) pp. 72-75, in which he points out in all six passages referring to Govindarāja and Smṛtimañjarī, once in the Prāyaścittakāṇḍa, twice as Mañjarīkāra and Smṛtimañjarīkāra in the Niyatakālakāṇḍa p. 261 ('Ugro rājeti Mañjarīkāraḥ') on Manu IV. 212 (ugrānam) and on p. 280 of the same kāṇḍa he quotes from the Smṛti-Mañjarī three hemistichs cited on the word 'parārīka' (as a variety of palāṇḍu) from Āyurveda. Dr. Katre mentions three more passages from the Śrāddha-kāṇḍa (pp. 45-46, 46-47 about 'Bhārūṇḍa' 'Kāleya' from Mañjarīkāra and Govindarāja and from pp. 258-59, where Smṛtimañjarīkāra is quoted.

There is no doubt now that the Kalpataru quotes from the Smṛtimañjarī of Govindarāja and that the latter's literary activity cannot be placed later than about 1110 A. D. and that he should be assigned to the period 1000-1110 A. D. (since he mentions Dhāreśvara Bhojarāja and is mentioned in the Kalpataru and the Dāyabhāga).

78 The Kalpataru of Laksmīdhara

The Kṛtyakalpataru or Kalpataru of Laksmīdhara exercised great influence over the Dharmaśāstra writers of Mithilā, Bengal and Northern India in general. It was an extensive work divided into fourteen kāṇḍas. For the first volume of the H. of Dh. published in 1930 the author could secure mss. of only three kāṇḍas viz. Dāna, Rājadharmā and Vyavahāra. On reading the account of the Kalpataru in H. of Dh. Vol. I. Prof. K. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar saw the present author and asked him whether he (the present author) would undertake to edit the work. The present author stated that his hands were full owing to the work to be done on the other volumes of the H. of Dh. and that the Professor might undertake the bringing out of an edition of the Kalpataru if he liked. Prof. Rangaswami Aiyangar undertook the heavy task and edited in the Gaikwad's Oriental Series (Baroda) eleven Kāṇḍas (out of the fourteen kāṇḍas of the Kalpataru) and left three parts unedited when he passed away; but the present author learns that one part on Pratisthā may be published soon. Laksmīdhara himself refers to the work as Kalpavṛkṣa and Kalpadruma also (in verses 10 and 13 of the Introd. of the Br. K.) and later writers and works also sometimes employ the synonyms (e. g. the Vivādaratnākara at the end refers to Kalpavṛkṣa in a paronomastic verse). Prof. Aiyangar published the Dānakāṇḍa as the first instalment of the whole work in 1941 with a lengthy Introduction of 129 pages. On p. 18 of the Intro. to Dānakāṇḍa, Prof. Aiyangar set out what he then (in 1941) supposed to be the names of the fourteen kāṇḍas viz. I. Brahmācārī-kāṇḍa (published in 1948); II. Grhasthakāṇḍa (pub. in 1944); III. Naiyatakālika or Niyata-kāla or Āhnikā (pub. in 1950); the matters dealt with the third kāṇḍa are: brushing the teeth, morning bath, procedure on that bath, japa, tarpana, the five daily Yajñas (Vaiśvadeva and others), midday meal (in its various aspects and attendant actions), what should be done after midday meal, ratrikr̥tya, rajasvalā (rules about a woman in her monthly illness), actions to be done in parvan-tithis (amāvāsyā, full moon, 8th and 14th tithis and Saṅkrānti days), actions to be done on several tithis in months from Caitra, offering respect to Agastya, care of cows, letting loose a bull, rules about listening to Purāṇas; IV. Śrāddhakāṇḍa (pub. in 1950); V. Dānakāṇḍa (pub.⁹¹⁴ in 1941 with a general Intro. of 126 pages on the Kalpataru. In this vol., the Editor inserted on pp. 337-353 extracts from five works on Dāna, viz. Dānasāgara of Ballālasena, Hemādri's Dānakhaṇḍa, (part of Caturvargacintāmaṇi), Dānaratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara, Dānavivekodyota of Madanasimha, and Dānaprakāśa in Vīramitrodaya of Mitramiśra. It is difficult to understand why these extracts were included.

914 Vide a paper by Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacarya in 'Poona Orientalist' Vol. XIII-XIV pp. 7-18 on 'treatment of Dāna by Kane and Rangaswami.' On p. 18 of Intro. to Dānakāṇḍa, Prof. Aiyangar

VI. On Vrata (pub. in 1953). This kāṇḍa is principally based on Purāṇas, eleven in number, among which Bhaviṣya, Matsya and Varāha are the most prominent. On p. 2 it states that in the Kṛta, Tretā, Dvāpara and Kali Yugas respectively Sujaya, Rāma, Dhanañjaya, Vikrama attained the position of supreme rulers (sārvabhauma) by performing vratas and that Vasundharā, the virtuous daughter of Vikrama dwelling in the Daśārṇa country (Malva) secured mokṣa by performing vratas. On pp. 36-38 it quotes 16 verses from Sumantu, the last of which avers that the Haihayas, Talajaṅghas, Turuṣkas (Turks), Yavanas and Śakas (Scythians) observing fasts (in Vratas) reached the status of brāhmanas in this very world.

VII. It is difficult to say definitely what subject was dealt with in the 7th Kāṇḍa. It may have been either Pūjā (worship of images) or pratisthā (consecration of images and temples) or even both. The present author understands that some formes have been printed as Pratisthākāṇḍa (at Baroda) but there is no Introductory verse (as there is in most kāṇḍas expressly mentioning the number of the Kāṇḍa in the series of 14 kāṇḍas). Further, the present author understands that the late Prof. Aiyangar left a copy of the Pūjā part; but here also there is no Introductory verse about its place in the series. The ms. begins with an⁹¹⁵ incomplete verse and ends also abruptly as shown below.

VIII. Tīrthavivecanakāṇḍa (pub. in 1942)—visiting holy places, the greatness of Vārāṇasī, Prayāga, the Ganges, Gayā, Kuruksetra, Pṛthvīlaka, Puskara, Madhurā, Ujjayinī, Narmalā, Kubjāmraka, Śukara, Kokāmukha, Bādarī-āśrama, placed Pratisthākāṇḍa (consecration of divine images and temples) as the sixth, Pūjākāṇḍa as the 7th part of the Kalpataru and Vratākāṇḍa as the 9th, but he himself later on found that Vratākāṇḍa was the 6th Kāṇḍa and published it as such. As there are only 14 kāṇḍas in Lakṣmīdhara's digest, the 7th probably comprehended both Pratisthā and Pūjā. The 8th i.e. Tīrtha, 9th probably dealt with Prāyaścitta and the tenth deals with Śuddhi.

- 915 The ms. of Pūjā begins '... सर्वस्य तथैवेन्द्रियसङ्गमम् । ज्ञापयेत्तं स्वयं ... समाहितः । This is an a anuṣṭubh verse; the ms. ends abruptly as follows: शर्मिर्गर्माग्निः कार्यो दैर्घ्याद्वस्तप्रमाणतः । विनस्तिः परिणाहार्धं मध्यं वै षोडशाङ्गुलम् ॥ वृत्तं करद्वयोपेन दशाङ्गुल-पुविस्तृतम् ॥

Mandāra, Śālagrama, Stutasvāmin, Dvārakā, Lohārgala, Kedāra, Naimisa, and others. Besides, this kāṇḍa speaks of the starting on the Mahāpatha (the great journey) referred to in Manu VI. 31, the Mahābhārata in its Mahāprasthānikaparva (declaring that Yudhiṣṭhira with his four brothers queen Draupadī and a faithful dog started on the Great Journey towards Himālaya and that they fell down dead one after another, Draupadī being the first and Bhīma the last. Volume IV of H. of Dh. Section IV (pp. 552–727) contains descriptions of several famous holy places and several hundred tīrthas are mentioned together with references to the Epics, Purāṇas and other works (in pp. 730–825), where less known tīrthas like Lohārgala, Stutasvāmin are mentioned. The Tīrthakalpataru bases its treatment on the Mahābhārata (quoted 15 times), 12 Purāṇas Matsya and Varāha being quoted 11 times each). Vide Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya's paper in N. I. A. Poona Vol. IX. (1947) pp. 100–104 on "Vācaspati-misra's indebtedness to Lakṣmīdharabhaṭṭa".

IX. (probably dealt with Prāyaścittas). That Lakṣmīdhara desired to devote one kāṇḍa to Prāyaścittas is clear from his own statement in the Grhasthakāṇḍa p. 314 (nara-kāṇḍ-etc. Prāyaścittakāṇḍe vaksyāmaḥ). Besides, the Prāyaścittatattva of Raghunandana quotes several verses of Yama on the Gomatīvidyā from Prāyaścitta Kalpataru (p. 522–23). Vide H. of Dh. Vol. IV p. 108 where the whole passage from Yama on Gomatī-vidyā has been quoted. Dr. S. L. Katre contributed a paper on ' the Prāyaścittakāṇḍa, missing section of the Kalpataru ' to the J. O. I. (Baroda) Vol. VIII (part 3 pp. 286–290. On p. 289 he describes a moth-eaten ms. of Prāyaścittakāṇḍa from Benares, furnishes a summary of the contents from 72 available folios of the ms. containing more than 104 folios and he surmises that Pratīṣṭhā is a supplement of Pūjā. Dr. Katre sets out the different (32) topics dealt with in the ms. he describes (pp. 289–290) and names the authors and works relied on (p. 290). It is possible to argue that Pūjā (worship) follows after Pratīṣṭhā and that therefore the 7th Kāṇḍa might have been called Pratīṣṭhā and also included disquisitions on Pūjā.

X. Śuddhi-kāṇḍa (pub. in 1950). This is the smallest of the eleven kāṇḍas so far published.

The Mitākṣarā deals with āśauca on Yāj. III. 1-34. This subject also is dealt with in the Śuddhikāṇḍa of the Kalpataru. Many of Yājñavalkya's verses (III. 1-34) have been quoted in the Śuddhikāṇḍa but in many cases without any comment whatever. Verses of this last type are Yāj. III. 1-2 (q. on p. 72 of Ś.), 3-5 (q. on p. 85), 7-11 (q. on p. 91), 12-13 (q. on p. 98 and p. 58), 24 (q. on p. 53), 25 (q. on p. 54), 26 (q. on p. 70), 28-29 (q. on p. 64), 31-34 (q. on pp. 115-116). On 'Yamasūktam' mentioned in Yāj. III. 2; the Mit. points out that it is the hymn beginning with 'Pareyivāṁśam' (Rg. X. 14. 1-16), but the Śuddhikāṇḍa does not refer to it on p. 72. On some of the verses the comment of the Mit. extends to some pages e. g. on III. 1-2 it is two closely printed pages, on III. 24 over two pages, on III. 28-29 (two pages). On Yāj. III. 15 (śuddhi-kāṇḍa p. 90),⁹¹⁶ the only explanation offered is that the word 'kaṭānnam' means 'āśaucānnam' while the Mit. has five lines of explanation on the verse and explains the word 'sakaṭānnam' as kaṭaśabdenāśaucam lakṣyate tat sahaacaritam-annam sakaṭānnam (i. e. it takes 'sakaṭānnam' as one compound), while it seems that L. separated as 'sa kaṭānnam'. On III. 22 the Mit. has a comment of ¼th of a printed page, while L. explains only the words 'śūdrasya tadardham nyāyavartinah' as 'pākayajña-dvijaśuśrūṣādī-ratasya tadardham syāt'. These very words are used by the Mit. in its long comment. On Yāj. III. 30 quoted by L. (on Śuddhikāṇḍa p. 126) the Mit. has a lengthy discussion of more than two printed pages, while L. in Śuddhikāṇḍa (p. 126) sets out only two lines and a half of explanation almost in the same words (though not clear as the quotations below will show).⁹¹⁷ The present 916 The word कट occurs in Manu II. 204 where it is provided that a pupil may sit with his guru on the same 'sastara or kaṭa or vsesel'; मेघातिथि explains अस्तरः दर्भादितृणाकीर्णः आस्तरः (सस्तरः ?) कटस्तु शरवीरणादिकृत्तः प्रसिद्धः । Those in mourning were to sleep fourteen days on bare ground or on a bed of grass or on reeds. Manu V. 735 and Yāj. III. 16, बौधायनस्मृति (Ānand. ed.) I. 5. 129 (मरणे तु..... अक्षारलवणाशिनौ दशाहं कटमासीरन् ।).

917 The Mit. explains : उदक्या रजस्वला, अशुचयः शवचण्डालपतितसूति-काथाः शावाशोचिनश्च एतैः सम्पृष्टः स्नायात् । तैः पुनरुदक्याशुचिसंपृष्टाभिः author hopes that the comment in Śuddhikāṇḍa is copied from or suggested by the Mit. ; and that in the effort to summarise clarity has been lost.

The Śuddhi (purification) is of two kinds, external and internal; the first arises in three ways viz. from family, food, the body. The principal topics are: impurity on death and birth, the rules about these, rules when a period of āśauca follows one that has already occurred and has not ended; āśauca in cases where the person concerned is in a different country; periods of impurity in the case of a child's death or for a child, āśauca about women relatives (unmarried or married), periods of āśauca in cases of persons dying in battle or in crowds or dying by lightning, of persons sentenced by the king or dying for saving the life of brāhmaṇas or where the king changes the period for state purposes as provided in Gaut. Dh. S. XIV. 43-46 and Viṣṇu 22. 47-52); persons for whom there is no āśauca prescribed; āśauca for *sapinda*s and *asapinda*s; rules about the persons carrying the dead body to the cemetery; burial of infants (and not cremation) and cremation; description of the rites on the cremation of an agnihotrin and one not so; bath and offering water to the deceased; for whom there is no offering of water (such as those who commit suicide); comforting those bereaved (Yāj. III. 7-11); asthisāncayana (collecting the ashes); purification of the body (Manu V. 105-109, Yāj. III. 31-34), cases of purification by bath; purification of substances (such as precious stones, golden or silver articles), purification of things that are spoilt by contact with urine or excreta &c.; purification of the ground, of waters and of cooked food; exceptions to the rules about impurity.

XI. Rājadharmakāṇḍa (pub. in 1943). This is one of the smallest and the weakest sections of the Kalpataru and by its meagre and pedestrian contents offers an anti-climax to the great claims made by Lakṣmīdhara in the Introductory verse of this Kāṇḍa which says ' In this 11th kāṇḍa Lakṣmīdhara describes the collection of Rājadharmas, Lakṣmīdhara whose mind is (bent) on meritorious actions and to whose wonderful greatness in political wisdom are due, all such results as the placing of the world on the path of right, as the fact that elephants are found attached to the houses of those endowed with good qualities and the fact that king, Govindacandra planted his feet on the heads of kings. Even Prof. Rangacharya, the editor, who every now and then sings the praises of Lakṣmīdhara, was constrained to observe in his lengthy Introduction (95 pages) ' to a modern student of ancient Indian polity it will also appear somewhat barren and theoretical when compared with, for example, the Kauṭīliya (p. 9) and ' the great expectations raised by these features may not be met by a study of this book (p. 11). The text printed in very large type occupies only 176 pages (excluding the Devayātrā-vidhi and festivals) and if smaller type had been used (as in the Nir. edition of the Mitākṣarā) it would have probably occupied not more than 70 pages (of the Nir. edition type) and at least lesser space than 95 pages devoted to the Introduction. The topics discussed are: praise of the kingly office, king's coronation, the qualities requisite in a king, ministers, forts (including the capital), construction of palace (and other matters, flag &c), administration of the State, Royal treasury (and revenue), Daṇḍa i. e. royal forces (described in three verses and two lines), mītra (i. e. ally) in a little over two pages; Rājaputrarakṣā i. e. guarding and education of the prince (in nine verses from Matsyapurāṇa and two from Mahābhārata with two lines of explanation), mantra (consultation with ministers) for settling policies, Śāḍguṇya (six lines of policy, namely making peace, decision to go to war, Yāna, āsana, Dvaidhībhāva and Saṁśraya ; (only verses of Manu VII 160-180 and IX. 298-300 are quoted without a word of comment by himself or taken from predecessors; Yātrā (invasion against an enemy, pp. 115-143); many works quoted without hardly any explanation by Lakṣmīdhara and the edition addings mostly passages from Vīramitrodaya and a few from Haradatta and others ; abhiśikṭakṛtyāni (what the crowned king should do from day to day); in pp. 178–212 are described festivals to be undertaken and celebrated by the king (such as Devayātrā in all the days of Vaiśākha quoting a long passage from Brahma-purāṇa on pp. 178–181 with only one line of his own comment; Kaumudīmahotsava (pp. 182–3) and the festival of raising the flag in honour of Indra (pp. 184–190) from Devīpurāṇa.⁹¹⁸ Each page can contain only 11 or 12 verses, if there be no foot-notes (as on p. 74), but as almost every page has foot-notes about variant readings and also contains extracts from the Viramitrodaya, Kullūka, Maskaribhāṣya and other works ; in some cases as much as half a page is occupied by notes. Taking the above facts into consideration, the high claims made for his excellent policies and eliminating the extract on festivals, what remains of Rājadharmā in this kāṇḍa is meagre and does little credit to the learning and experience of a great administrator, minister and commander.

The festivals dealt with are :

Mahānavamīpūjā on Āśvina bright half, 9th tithi, (pp. 191–195 from Devīpurāṇa without a word of comment); Cīnha vidhi (in Kārtika) in honour of Devī from Devīpurāṇa in pp. 196–198; Gavotsarga (in pp. 199–200, from Devīpurāṇa); Vasor-dhārā (pp. 201–212 from Bhaviṣyapurāṇa).

This Kāṇḍa was published at Lahore in 1942 by Mr. Jagadish Lal also.

All the topics dealt with in this Kāṇḍa except Rājaprasasti, Abhiṣeka (pp. 9–17), Vāstukarmavidhi (pp. 55–78), Rājaputrābhiraṁśa (2 pages) are specified by Yāj. (in I. 309–78) and the Mit. It may be noted that the Mit. avoids quoting Purāṇa passages on Rājadharmā, while L. quotes Purāṇas profusely, viz. Matsya (about 285 verses), Devī (190 verses), Brahmapurāṇa (81 verses). He quotes only 918 Lakṣmīdhara quotes long passages (pp. 143–177) from Manu, Mahābhārata, Matsyapurāṇa and other works with hardly ten lines of his own, while the Editor quotes as footnotes long passages from Vir, M. (as on pp. 142, 165, 169), from Maskaribhāṣya as on pp. 151, 164–65.

In H. of Dh. Vol. II pp. 825–6, are given references to the Kauśika-sūtra, Ādiparva and the Bṛhatsamhitā describing the details of the festival in honour of Indra, while Lakṣmīdhara quotes only Devīpurāṇa. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. III p. 234 and Vol. V p. 274 for ancient and medieval references to the festival of raising Indra's banner.

about 84 verses from the Mahābhārata in this Kāṇḍa (when the Śāntiparva alone devotes over 100 adhyāyas to Rājadharmā), quotes about 76 verses from other Purāṇas (in all about 726 verses from the Purāṇas and Mahābhārata).

XII. Vyavahārakāṇḍa (pub. in 1953).⁹¹⁹ The first verse states “ Lakṣmīdhara dilates in the 12th Kāṇḍa on the subject of Vyavahāra (Law and Administration of justice), Lakṣmīdhara, on listening to whose various learned words clarifying the ways of vyavahāra in such matters as doing justice, established by the force of his intellect clever in considering the dicta of several śāstras, learned men are thrilled at each word ”. The editor includes no Introduction in this kāṇḍa. The book is unnecessarily inflated by adding numerous pages of extracts from earlier and later works. The pages being 834 (of the text), one is likely to run away with the idea that it is a very extensive work. It is nothing of that sort. Very large type is employed and only 12 verses can be printed on each page even when there are no footnotes. In the Mit. edition of 1926 (Nir. Press) the verse quotations in the com. are printed continuously and the footnotes also are printed continuously in very small type and occupy one or two lines and extracts from other works are very rarely cited. The type is much smaller than that in the G. O. S. Another remarkable feature of the editing of Kalpataru kāṇḍas is that variant readings in the text are printed, even if brief, not in continuous lines, but one below the other even if each variant reading contains only a few letters, e. g. pp. 15-20), Tīrthakāṇḍa and Gr. Kāṇḍa pp. 230-34 may be seen ; but in the Vyavahārakāṇḍa examples of unnecessary waste of space are found by the dozen, vide pp. 699 and 819 on each of which 13 references each occupying nearly half a page could have been compressed in five lines or less, if they had been printed continuously. But even this is a small matter in the Vyavahāra section. The learned editor quotes very large extracts from works earlier and later than the Kalpataru. Some glaring examples may be indicated. Viśvarūpa, whose priority to Lakṣmīdhara by a few centuries is an established matter, is quoted frequently and even long extracts are given (vide pp. 8, 13, 17, 45, 60, 72, 82, 158 &c.). Similarly, Asahāya 919 A separate part containing an Introduction (129 pages) and an Index of half verses (108 pages) was published in 1958 in G. O. S.

(com. of Nārada) is quoted dozens of times (extreme examples being on pp. 175 and 320, where more than half the page is occupied by a quotation from Asahāya); Medhātithi also is quoted dozens of times (e. g. on pp. 7-8, 20, 24, 27, 29, 37, 58, 80, 88 &c.). Authors and works later than Laksmīdhara's are also quoted in footnotes e. g. the Smṛticandrikā (on pp. 26, 56, 66, 438 &c.). The Vivādaratnākara is quoted on almost every page as the editor himself admits on p. 845. What is the object of these extensive and numerous quotations from authors later than Laksmīdhara? In the Introduction it could have been easily demonstrated how some works borrow extensively from the Kalpataru. The Viramitrodaya (which belongs to the first half of the 17th century) is cited about a hundred times. One does not know whether the editor had been commissioned to do all this or whether he did all this at his own sweet will. The text as printed is several times conjectural: for example, vide note 4 on p. 376 of Vy. I. 5. Certain other matters must also be pointed out here. Many verses of Yāj. are cited in the Yyavahāra-Kalpataru without a word of explanation or comment, while the Mitāksarā explains them at length. A few striking examples may be cited here. (1) On Yāj. I. 52-53 the Mit. has a long note on the meaning of ' sapinda ' and on limits of sapinda relationship. Kalpataru (Gr. kāṇḍa) has no discussion on this.⁹²⁰ (2) On Yāj. I. 81 (and 79) the Mit. holds a long discussion whether it is vidhi, viyama or parisankhyā. Kalpataru (on Gr.) has no such discussion; (3) On Yāj. II. 24 the Kalpataru (Vy. p. 186) has not a word of explanation or comment, while the Mit. devotes two printed pages to this verse; (4) On Yāj. II. 20 the Vy. p. 265 has four lines of explanation while Mit. devotes one page; (5) On Yāj. II. 52 the Mit. has one page of exegesis, while Kalpataru (Vy. p. 303) has not a word of comment of its own; (6) On Yāj. II. 152 (sāmanā vā &c.) the Vy. p. 442 has not a word of comment, while Mit. devotes more than one page of comment, (7) On Yāj. II. 265 (first half) the comment is almost the same in the Mit. and Kalpa⁹ Vy. p. 361). There are many passages of 920 In the Śuddhikāṇḍa (pp. 66 ff) sapinda relationship for āśauca is referred to by quotations from Manu (V. 6), Gautama Dh. S. (14,12) Vas. Dh. S. (IV), Matsya-purāṇa, Saṅkha-Likhita, Sumantu and Brāhmapurāṇa, but there is no discussion.

Yāj. on which the Mit. has elaborate note and Kalpa°. (Vy.) has not a word, though it cites the verse e.g. vide Yāj. II. 123 (Kalpa°, Vy. p. 664), Yāj. II. 140-142 (Mit. devotes one page to explanation, while Kalp. Vy. p. 667 quotes these verses but offers not a word of comment. Similarly, on Yāj. II. 119 Mitāksarā has a long note, but Kalpa° Vy. p. 674 simply quotes the verse.

Scores of Yāj. verses occur on which Kalpataru is silent and Mit. has long notes and so references to the pages of the Kalpataru (on Vy.) and the verses of Yāj. (not mentioned immediately above) are given below in one place : p. 8 (I. 1, Mit. half a page), 17 (II. 19, Mit. ten lines), 45 (II. 2, pages in Mit.), 60 (II. 6, Mit. two pages), p. 68 (II. 7 half verse), (Mit. has two pages); 92 (II. 22, one page in Mit.), 105 (II. 63-69, mit. one page), 142 (II. 81-82), Mit. one page and a half), 147 (II. 83, Mit. nearly one page), 162 (II. 91, one page in Mit.), 180 (II. 27 half verse, 1½ pages in Mit.), 185 (II. 27 half, verse Mit, more than half a page), 204 (II. 98, nearly one page in Mit.), 218⁹²¹ (II. 100-102 Kalpa° two lines, over three pages in Mit.), 308 (II. 56, Mit. more than half a page), 318 (II. 49, Mit. 11 lines of comment), 350 (II. 169, Mit. has nine lines), and criticizes Śrīkara) 374 (II. 175, Mit. more than half page), 376 (II. 176, Mit. has one page), 436 (II-258, Mit. has half a page), 442 (II. 152, more than a page in Mit.), 537 (II. 275, Mit. has more than a page), 586 (II. 288, about a page in Mit.), 587 (III. 232-3, two thirds of a page), 598 (II. 290 more than a page in Mit.), 619 (I. 86, Mit. 1½ pages), 654 (II. 114-5, Mit. one page), 671 (II. 124 Mit. one page), 676 (II. 118-119, Mit. two pages), 716 (II. 132, Mit. more than a page), 721 (II. 127, Mit. more than a page), 764 (II. 199-200, Mit. half a page), 825 (I. 96, Mit. one page).

समीकरणदशायां (!) यत्र पादौ स्थितौ शिष्यरज्जवश्च तत्र पाण्डुलेखेनाङ्कयित्वा.
Compare मिता° on Yāj. II. 100 (प्रतिमानसमीभूतो रेखां कृत्वावतारितः .
The Mit. says दिव्यकारी रेखां कृत्वा येन सन्निवेशेन प्रतिमानसमीकरणदशायां शिष्यतलेऽवस्थितस्तस्मिन् पाण्डुलेखेनाङ्कयित्वा etc. Either Lakṣmīdhara himself borrowed or some later scribe introduced these words.
The editor did not understand that प्रतीयमान should be प्रतिमान.

Many such examples about verses of Yāj. (commented upon at some length by the Mit. and only quoted without comment or with very brief comments by Lakṣmīdhara) can be cited from other Kāṇḍas, but for reasons of space the present author has to be content with stating some striking examples from the Śrāddha-kāṇḍa. Yāj. I. 256 refers to the times of Ekoddiṣṭaśrāddha. The Mit. has two closely printed pages of comment on this. Kalpataru (on Śrāddha) merely quotes the verse and has no word of comment. Similarly, on Yāj. I. 252 the Mit. devotes one page of comment, while Kalp°. (on Śrāddha) has no comment). Yāj. I. 253-254 (dealing with Sapiṇḍikaraṇa) have three printed pages of comment. (one page being devoted to evolving order out of varying views of the Sapiṇḍikaraṇa of one's mother (acc. to Paiṭhīnasi, Yama, and Uśanas, while the Kalpataru on Śrāddha quotes Yāj. I. 253-54 (on p. 257) and sets out only one view; (p. 258), but the Mit. has a vyavasthā on three different views similarly, on Yāj. I. I. 256 (on the proper times for Ekoddiṣṭa-srāddha the Mit. quotes the verses of about a dozen sages and of Dākṣiṇātyas, Urddhas and brings order out of the chaos, while Kalpataru on Śrāddha° (pp. 250 and 262) quotes Yāj. I. 256 (badly printing it on p. 250) and hardly refers to several sages and views. The Kalpa°. on Śrāddha p. 257 quotes the two verses but has only less than two lines of comment.

The present author finds that, compared with citations from Kātyāyana, Nārada, Bṛhaspati and Manu, the Kalpataru (on Vyavahāra) is sparing in its quotations from Yājñavalkya and further has no words of comment in many places at all even when it cites Yāj.

The present writer has a suspicion that Lakṣmīdhara wanted to avoid comparison of his performance with the learned explanations of the Mit.

That scholars should not be misled by the bulky nature of the volume on Vyavahāra, some further matters must be brought to their notice. On pp. 394, 395 the text consists of only three lines and on p. 397 of only five lines, the rest being taken up by extracts from other works and arguments. In the following cases half the page or more than half is taken up by quotations from other works or arguments (in a few cases) or readings (rarely) viz. pp. 320-1, 365, 387-90,

The present author has not shown the waste of space in in other kāṇḍas for reasons of space. The same thing is found in other kāṇḍas. For example, in the Gr. Kāṇḍa half a page or more has been taken up by the footnotes, viz pp. 4, 7, 9, 10, 14 18-20, 24, 35-6, 40, 48, 50, 62 (18 footnotes), 70, 73, 96, 181-2, 230, 232, 301, 415 etc. After carefully considering the matters to which attention has been drawn above, the present author asserts without fear of contradiction that the text of kāṇḍa XII. on Vyavahāra is smaller in mere extent than the Mitākṣarā on Yāj. II. (dealing with the same subject which has been printed in small type and in a compact manner and that, as regards quality, it is far inferior to the Mitākṣarā. It is unnecessary to cite instances where Mit. refers to the Pūrvamīmāṃsā and its commentators in the section on Vyavahāra alone (as in the Intro. to Yāj. II. 114, on II. 135-136, II. 137 &c.), while in the Kalpataru on Vyavahāra discussions on or references to Pūrvamīmāṃsā are generally conspicuous by their absence.

XIII. The thirteenth Kāṇḍa dealt with 'Śāntika' (propitiatory rites for averting a deity's wrath or effects of evil planetary influences or other misfortunes) and Paustika rites such as homa and the like performed for longevity &c. For detailed treatment of Śāntika rites, vide H. of Dh. Vol. V part 2 pp. 719-814 and for the meaning of Paustika, vide H. of Dh. Vol. V part I p. 349.

XIV. Mokṣakāṇḍa pub. in 1945 (The Introductory verse⁹²² to this kāṇḍa states 'Lakṣmīdhara, the best among brāhmaṇas, speaks in the 14th kāṇḍa about Mokṣa after which

The editor appears to have misunderstood the syntactical connection of the words in this verse and so erred in the translation. The first half of the verse ending in ' ātmane ' is in the dative and goes with ' yasmai ' in the third line, which refers to ' mokṣam ' in the (Mokṣa) hanker Sananda and others that secured supreme bliss, which (mokṣa) is (or consists in) non-difference from the Highest Brahma that is pure consciousness (cit.), that is inconceivable (to ordinary human minds) and that freely manifests itself when the darkness caused by Māyā that is difficult to remove but that drops away (vanishes) when there is perfect discrimination of the words of the Vedānta (the Upaniṣads). Vide the verse 'cinmayasyāprameyasya &c.' quoted on p. 118 n. 305 of H. of Dh. Vol. V part 1. On reading the Introductory verse which speaks of Māyā as tamas which is removed by correct knowledge (viveka) and which last line and not to 'dvijavaraḥ' as the editor seems to hold. Keeping in mind that the verse purports to be composed by Lakṣmīdhara himself, it would be the height of conceit on his part to suggest that Sanandana and others (to whom, according to the Mahābhārata and Purāṇas, God himself imparted the highest bliss were hankering to learn from Lakṣmīdhara (a puny mortal of the 12th century A. D.). The learned Editor sticks to his opinion (originally occurring in the Intro. to Dānakāṇḍa p. 56) in his Introduction (p. 18 n. 1) to the Mokṣakāṇḍa. The Purāṇas state that Sanaka, Sanandana, Sanātana and Sanatkumāra are the mind-born sons of Brahmā; vide Nāradya-purāṇa (pūrvabhāga 2. 3), Brahma-purāṇa I. 46-47 (about Sanat-kumāra), Kūrmapurāṇa (I. 7. 19-21, Vāmanapurāṇa 60,68 and Paramasamhitā 31. 16-19 (the last a Pāñcarātra work). Kārṣṇājini quotes (in Aparārka p. 138) verses that Sanaka, Sananda, Sanātana, Kapila, Āsuri, Voda and Pañcaśikha—these seven are sons of Brahmā. These are ancient names. The Chān. Up. (VII. 6. 1-2 and VII. 26.2) states that Nārada who had studied the four Vedas and all other lores then known approached Sanatkumāra for Ātmavidyā, learnt it from him and reached beyond the darkness of ignorance (tasmai.....tamasas-param darśayati bhagavān Sanatkumāraḥ). Śaṅkarācārya flourished at least three centuries before Lakṣmīdhara. Many scholars differed from him and did not spare him. If Lakṣmīdhara differed from him why does he not expressly say so? The present author thinks that Lakṣmīdhara, an active administrator of a large kingdom for many years and also a great commander had not thoroughly studied the Upaniṣads, the Vedāntasūtra and the bhāṣyas thereon and on the Gitā and was not sure of himself and purposely avoided making explicit statements on the differing views of the Bhāṣyakāras on the Upaniṣads, the Vedāntasūtra and Gitā. He does not employ the Viśiṣṭādvaita terminology such as the words Prapatti, cit and acit, vyūhas and does not in his own words dilate upon the Bhāgavata or Pāñcarātra system.

speaks of Mokṣa as identity (ekatānatā) with highest Brahman, the conclusion follows that it breathes the pure Advaita Vedānta. The present author has no desire to argue at length with the editor who did not apparently know his own mind as shown by the notes cited here. In the notes (to Mokṣa Kāṇḍa) on p. 327 he remarks 'his (Lakṣmīdhara's) view of Mokṣa does not agree with the Advaita or the Viśiṣṭādvaita and adds 'Mukti is said to consist in the absorption of the jīva in Brahman (aīkya, laya or tanmaya). This is the view of Bhāskara'. On p. 340 of the Notes on Viṣṇupurāṇa quoted at great length on pp. 102-108 of Mokṣa-kāṇḍa the editor remarks 'in fact the long quotation from the Viṣṇupurāṇa which is held up as the true view (and so the author's) contains many indications of a trend towards Viśiṣṭādvaita and of opposition to Advaita' and then specifies four indications. As stated above the Editor was in two minds and probably Lakṣmīdhara and his helpers might have been in the same predicament. On p. 343 the explanation of the word 'Yogayuktaḥ' in Gītā V. 6-7 by Lakṣmīdhara as 'advaitadarśane sthitaḥ' induces the editor to say that Lakṣmīdhara leans more to Bhāskara. In the notes on p. 341 referring to Viṣṇupurāṇa (3 verses quoted on p. 113) the editor remarks 'the leaning of Lakṣmīdhara to Viśiṣṭādvaita in this may be noted'. The present author does not want to say much here. One thing appears to be almost certain viz. that Lakṣmīdhara composed his digest according to the present author at the earliest from 1125 to 1145 A. D. It is difficult to hold that the bhāṣya of Rāmānuja who belonged to South India had penetrated to Kanoj and was studied there ten years before 1130 A. D. by Lakṣmīdhara and the pandits who helped him.

Besides, Lakṣmīdhara and his helpers do not appear to have been profound students of the Upaniṣads and the Vedāntasūtra and the bhāṣyas thereon. They appear to have been mere paurāṇikas or reciters of the Mahābhārata so far as Mokṣa is concerned. Lakṣmīdhara, after quoting Bhagavad-gītā II. 59 (on p. 98) explains (on p. 99) 'rasavarjam-ityatra raso rāga iti Gītābhāṣyam'. It should be noted that the word Gītābhāṣyam' is in the singular (nominative). The natural and proper inference is that he refers to a single bhāṣya on the Gītā. If he meant to refer to more than one bhāṣya on the Gītā, he would have said Gītābhāṣye (nominative dual) or Gītābhāṣyāṇi (plural). The editor jumps to the conclusion that L. was conversant with the bhāṣyas of both Śaṅkara and Rāmānuja. This is an unwarranted conclusion. L. meant to refer to a single bhāṣya that is clear. The learned editor could have said that L. refers to Rāmānuja's bhāṣya alone. He would have then been met by the reply that Śaṅkara's bhāṣya was about 300 years earlier than Lakṣmīdhara and than Rāmānuja's bhāṣya and Śaṅkara does explain the word 'rasa' as 'rāga' (as admitted by the editor) and that there is nothing to prove that Rāmānuja's bhāṣya on the Gītā was studied in north India as early as the first and second quarters, of the 12th century A. D.

Rāmānuja is said to have been persecuted by Kūlottunga Cola (1070-1120 A. D.). Prof. Nilakanta Sastri in his work on the 'Cōlas' (2nd. ed. 1955) appears to hold that the material is shifty, that to refrain from dogmatising is as necessary as it is difficult, but (on p. 644) he says the leading instance of religious intolerance in the period of Chola rule is that of the persecution of Rāmānuja and his followers by a Cōla monarch whose identity is not altogether free from doubt. The traditional dates of Rāmānuja's birth and death are 1017-1137 A. D. (i. e. he is supposed to have lived for 120 years). He composed many works. His bhāṣya on the Gītā presupposes his bhāṣya on the Vedāntasūtra and the bhāṣya on the latter (called Śrībhāṣya) presupposes his work Vedārthasaṅgraha (vide Śrībhāṣya, ed. by M. M. Abhyankar-sastri, on I. 1. 1 p. 58). He wrote also other works. If we believe that he was persecuted by Kūlottunga (Chola or some other Chola King) his works could not have spread to the North easily or before his death. Further, the Mokṣakāṇḍa is the last of the 14 Kāṇḍas and so must have been the last to be handled in the series of Kāṇḍas. It will be shown a little later on that the kāṇḍas were taken up in order one after another and not in pellmell order. The present author thinks that Lakṣmīdhara refers in the word Gītābhāṣyam on p. 99 of the Mokṣakāṇḍa to the bhāṣya of Śaṅkarācārya (in a colourless way), probably because he had no definite opinions of his own on the abstruse questions of the branches of Advaita philosophy. In E. I. Vol. XIV pp. 83-96 (on the Srirangam plates of Mummadi Nayaka of Śaka-saṁvat 1280, ed. by T. A.

Gopinatharao) at p. 86 reference is made to Rāmānuja's stay for not less than 20 years in Hoysala country and to his return to Śrīraṅgam after the death of the persecuting Cola king in A. D. 1118 and that the remaining third part of the Śrībhāṣya was finished then. This would lead to the conclusion that the Śrībhāṣya was completed at the earliest about 1120 A. D. or a little later. The Gītābhāṣya pre-supposes the Śrībhāṣya and therefore it might have been composed about 1125 or later. Some years must have elapsed before mss. of it reached Northern India and were studied there. If the 'Gītābhāṣyam' mentioned in the Mokṣakāṇḍa (p. 99) is to be understood as Rāmānuja's bhāṣya it would follow that the Mokṣa-kāṇḍa of the Kalpataru could not have been composed before at least 1140 or 1145 A. D.

The above views have been advanced on the basis more or less of the traditional dates of Rāmānujācārya's birth and death.

No epigraphic record directly mentioning Rāmānuja has been found so far.

The results of modern research differ a great deal from the traditional accounts and among themselves. An important contribution is that of Mr. T. A. Gopinatha Rao who delivered the Sir Subrahmanya Aiyar Lectures on 'the History of Śrī-Vaiṣṇavas' in 1917, which were published in 1923. He refers (pp. 14-15) to several Guruparamparās and monographs on individual ācāryas. The earliest extant work (according to him) is the Dīvyasūricarita of Garuḍavāhana Paṇḍita⁹²³ who claims to be a contemporary of Rāmānujācārya and it mentions no yugas and years but only the month, tithi and the nakṣatra at the time of the Ālvārs and ācāryas. It appears to the present author that most of these traditional

A. who states that Garuḍavāhana was like a title of the Superintendent of the temple and its hospital and that the author of the 'Dīvyasūricaritam' was the same as the Garuḍavāhana of this inscription and the idea of the author of the Dīvyasūricaritam being a contemporary of Śrī Rāmānuja must be given up. For extracts from Dīvyasūricaritam about Rāmānuja vide I. A. vol. 41 pp. 221 ff with translation in English.

accounts (particularly the later ones) are altogether unreliable. For example, the dates of the birth and death of Śrī Rāmānuja are given in them as 1017 and 1137 A. D. But in some accounts about Ālvandār, the grandson of Nāthamuni and the Guru of Rāmānuja, it is stated that he (i. e., Ālvandār) was born after 1024 A. D. i. e. the traditional accounts lead to this that the teacher was born after the disciple (vide p. 31 of Gopinatha Rao's Lectures). It is not necessary for the present author to go into the different dates and events. Two-thirds of the Śrībhāṣya had been finished, according to the traditional sources, when the Cola persecution began and it was completed, according to the Rāmānujārya-divyacaritam, in Śaka 1077 (1155 A. D.) Vide p 34 of Gopinath Rao's Lectures. The Gītābhāṣya of Rāmānuja was composed (as proved by internal evidence) after the Śrībhāṣya. If the word Gītābhāṣyam (on p. 99 of the Vy. Kāṇḍa) refers to Rāmānuja's bhāṣya as Prof. Aiyangar argues (vide above) then the Vy. Kāṇḍa must have been completed long after 1155 A. D. There is no doubt that the Mit. was completed before 1125-26 A. D. at the latest (as shown above). Therefore, it would follow that L. came several decades after it and borrowed from it. Mr. Gopinath Rao advances certain arguments and concludes (p. 34) ' it is extremely likely that the date of the completion of the work (Śrī-bhāṣya) was 1047 Śaka (1125 A. D.) and Śaka 1077 is a mistake for 1047 '. On pp. 37-38 Mr. Gopinath Rao holds that the persecutor of Rāmānuja was the Cola king Kūlottunga I. On the other hand, Mr. T. N. Subramaniam in the long Introduction to South Indian temple Inscriptions Vol. III part 2 (Madras Govt. Oriental Series No. CLVI adds a note on the date of Rāmānuja (pp. 147-160), and holds that the Divyasūri-caritam and Yatirājavaibhavam are later compositions, that Tamil verses quoted in the Rāmānujārya-divyacaritai are perhaps the earliest of the available materials and draws the following conclusions (p. 160) :

(1) Kūlottunga II was the Cola monarch who was the contemporary of Rāmānuja and who persecuted him and the followers of the Vaiṣṇava faith ; (2) the flight of Rāmānuja from the Chola dominion to the Hoysala country took place in 1138 A. D. (3) he returned to Srirangam after twelve years on hearing of the death of the Chola who persecuted him in 1150 A. D. and (4) the Śrībhāṣyam was completed only in Śaka 1977 or 1155-56 A. D. after his return from Mysore. If these conclusions were accepted, it would follow that the Gītābhāṣya was completed by Rāmānuja about or after 1160 A. D. and that, if 'Gītābhāṣyam' on p. 99 of Mokṣakāṇḍa refers to Rāmānuja's bhāṣya then that part was composed not earlier than 1165-70 A. D. i. e. about fifty years after the latest date for the Mitāksarā.

The references to the Upaniṣads and the Vedāntasūtra in the Mokṣakāṇḍa are very few. On p. 6 there is a reference to Chāndogya Up. (VIII. 3. 4). On p. 62 in explaining Manu VI. 83 'ādhyātmikam ca satatam Vedāntābhihitam ca yat', there is a reference to the Br. Up. but the Brahmasūtra passage is not expressly stated. On p. 143 the Chāndogya Up. VIII. 2.1 is mentioned and Vedāntasūtra IV. 4. 1 relating to it is quoted. On p. 262 a short passage from Br. Up. VI. 2.15 'arciṣo ahaḥ, ahna āpūryamāṇa-pakṣam' is quoted and very briefly explained. The Upaniṣads, the Vedāntasūtra and Gītā are held by all ācāryas to be the three primary and principal sources of Vedāntasāstra. The first two do not appear to have been much studied or relied on by Lakṣmīdhara and his helpers; they have hardly quoted even a dozen Upaniṣad passages nor even three sūtras out of the 555 of the Vedāntasūtra, but have quoted hundreds of verses from the Mahābhārata and Purāṇas. There is no reference to basic texts like 'tat-tvamasī' (Chāndogya VI. 8.7 repeated several times later) or 'aham brahmāsmi' (Br. Up. I. 4. 10), or 'Satyam jñānam-anantam Brahma' (Tai Up. II. 1). Here and there a verse is quoted (which occurs in an Upaniṣad as the verse 'eṣa sarvesu' which is Kathopanīṣad 3.12 but cited after Gītā passages (on p. 133 of 14th Kāṇḍa). On p. 143 one passage from Chān. Up. is quoted and a sūtra is quoted.

On p. 202 the editor cites a few words⁹⁸⁴ from Br. Up. III. 8.9 and II. 1.20 and from Chān. Up. I. 5.3, all in a mutilated state without specifying the work from which they are taken.

Lakṣmīdhara quotes about 105 verses from the Manu-smṛti in Mokṣakāṇḍa (principally from chapters VI and XII). From the Mahābhārata hundreds of verses are quoted among the Purāṇas, the Viṣṇupurāṇa, the Mārkaṇḍeya, Narasimha, Brahma, Brahmāṇḍa and Vāyu are largely quoted. Among smṛti writers, Yāj., Dakṣa, Devala, Śaṅkha, Śaṅkhalikhita, Hārīta are largely quoted. Many verses are quoted from the Yogiyājñavalkya, comparatively a late work. This shows that the chief primary sources of Vedānta viz. Upaniṣads and the Vedāntasūtra were almost totally neglected and secondary and even tertiary sources such as Purāṇas and Yogiyājñavalkya are very much in evidence. The topics discussed in the Mokṣakāṇḍa are: Introduction to Mokṣa (from Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa, chap. 38), Mokṣasvarūpa, Vānaprasthya (becoming a forest hermit), the dharmas of a forest hermit (Manu VI. 5-16 and 27-32 and others), the stage of a Yati (chiefly Manu VI. 33-37 and 41 etc.), the procedure of sannyāsa, Dharmas of a Yati, viz. Vairāgya (freedom from desires), giving up Kāma, anger, greed &c., control of senses; creation of the tattvas acc. to Sāṅkhya; thoughts on the bodies of gods, on human bodies (as dirty &c.) and of lower animals; Jīva and Brahma; about Jñāna and Karma; the matters that lead to ātmajñāna; Yoga with its ramifications; the nature of dhya (what is to be contemplated upon); signs when one is successfully pursuing Yoga; the ten Upasarga (hindrances)

Most of the original Upaniṣad passages appear mutilated in the Mokṣakāṇḍa and had not been identified by the editor when the text was printed but only in the notes (p. 346), without correction even in the 'corrections'. Those passages should read on p. 202 as follows :-- 'एतस्य वा अक्षरस्य प्रशासने गार्गि' lines 9-10. l. 16 should read 'एवमेवास्मादात्मनः सर्वे प्राणाः भूतानि व्युच्चरन्ति (बृह. II. 1.20); l. 18 should read 'य एवायं मुख्यः प्राणस्तमुद्गीथमुपासीत' छा. उप. I. 5. 3.

From certain references in the kāṇḍas themselves it clearly appears that the fourteen kāṇḍas were composed one after another in order and were not being dealt with simultaneously. For example, on p. 176 of Br. K. it is stated 'Japetikartavyatām Naiyatakālike vakṣyāmaḥ' (the Naiyata° being the 3rd Kāṇḍa) ; on p. 314 of the Gr̥hastha kāṇḍa we have 'narakāṁśca prāyaścitta-kāṇḍe vakṣyāmaḥ' (Prāyaścitta-kāṇḍa being the 9th). On p. 332 of Gr̥hasthakāṇḍa 'śuśrūṣāsvarūpanivṛttau Brahmacārikāṇḍebhihitau' ^{984a} (Br. K. is the first and Gr. K. is second).

A few remarks about the text of this large nibandha would not be out of place. The manuscript material was rather meagre and inferior. For example, on p. VIII in the Preface to the Br. Kāṇḍa it is stated that the edition is based on a single ms and on p. IX it is stated that the Udaipur ms (which belongs to the 16th century A. D. probably) was full of large elisions and omissions, that such omissions were filled up from citations of the same passages in later digests and that the missing parts so supplied are shown within rectangular brackets. On p. 279 in a note the Editor himself says that the ms. is very defective. The editor does not give even a specimen page of that ms. nor does he describe who the scribe was or how many folios it contained. In Vy. Kāṇḍa on p. 376 the editor remarks (in note 4) mss corrupt, passages restored conjecturally from the mss. and the following comment and citation in the Vivādaratnākara (then quotes three lines from V. R. p. 130). The most remarkable thing is that he does not put his conjectural reading in square brackets as he does in some other cases. On p. 377 he notes that there is a gap of more than two printed pages up to the top of p. 380 in Udaipur and Bikaner mss. In the case of the Vratākāṇḍa (6th in the series of kāṇḍas) the Editor states (on p. VI Preface) that the edition 'is based on the Nagpur and Ujjain Mss. Not a word more is said about the scribe, the number of folios, the date of the copying of the mss. or other details. That page also states that the Nagpur Ms. was so brittle that the curator would not allow a mechanical photographing and that somehow a transcript of such a dilapidated ms. was made on the spot and supplied to the Editor. One would naturally feel great diffidence before drawing chronological and other conclusions based on a text that is constituted from such materials. As regards the Śrāddhakāṇḍa, there is no description of the mss. anywhere. As regards some Kāṇḍas the mss. material seems to have been somewhat better. For example, as regards the Dāna-kāṇḍa, on pp. 124-126 of the Introduction he gives some information of the mss. relied upon for constituting the text. But the description of the mss. is not what is required in such cases but is vague. In this kāṇḍa the editor expends thirty pages (pp. 383-412) for setting out the readings of a ms from the Nagpur Bhosle Raja's Library. If only important readings had been given (and not also obvious scribal errors), a few pages only would have been enough. In the Gr̥hasthakāṇḍa also 25 pages (pp. 430-460) are expended on various readings of two mss. In the Vy. Kāṇḍa the preface (pp. VIII-IX) refers to some mss. and copies, but no detailed descriptions of mss. or copies are given in one place and the footnotes refer merely to mss. J. A. S. B. and S. B. and Ja (i.e. mss from Jammu) and 'da' (Darbhanga ms). The state of the mss and this way of dealing with them detracts greatly from the value of conclusions drawn on the basis of the text presented with the help of such mss.

The Personal History of Lakṣmīdhara: Our knowledge of the personal history of L. has to be derived from his own works, particularly from the Introductory verses to the Br. Kāṇḍa and the colophons at the end of the different Kāṇḍas. Most of the colophons (as indicated in the note below) state L. was the son of Bhaṭṭa Hṛdayadhara and was himself a Sāndhivigrahika or Mahāsāndhivigrahika (minister or great minister for peace and war), some adding that he was minister to king Govindacandra. If the father Hṛdayadhara had also been a minister for peace and war Lakṣmīdhara would certainly have mentioned that fact in the Introductory verses to the Brahmacārikāṇḍa. It is somewhat remarkable that the numerous Gāhādvala inscriptions do not disclose the name of any mantrin but mention the dignitaries called Purohita, Mahattaka, Pratihāra &c.

There are sixteen verses in the Introduction to Br. Kāṇḍa. In the first three verses obeisance is offered to Viṣṇu, Hara (Śiva) and Manu ; verses 4-7 contain highflown praise of victorious king Govindacandra (which will be dealt with later) ; verses 8 and 9 praise Lakṣmīdhara who is said to be the chief mantrin (minister) of the heroic king (Govindacandra), whose (Lakṣmīdhara's) greatness is inconceivable and who provided, for the sport of two Cakravāka-like feet of the king, a river in the form of the brilliant lustre of the jewelled crowns of many kings; how many wicked kings have not been sent to their doom by this best of seekers (after great powers) who is solely devoted to the vow of fighting and who also seeks Vidyās. who, in securing the earth girt by the ocean for the king of Kāśī, offered in the fire of valour one lakh of the lotus like heads of enemy kings', and then verse ten contains high praise of his own work called Kalpavṛkṣa that yields the fruits of Dharma, Artha, Kama and immortality (mokṣa) and verses 11 to 13 mention three works that preceded his; he speaks rather slightly about two of them and very disparagingly about the third. These verses may be translated as follows: 'Gopāla, his (i.e. Lakṣmīdhara's) friend composed his own work in the form of sentences (that is, in prose?) by embodying Purāṇa passages in some parts and often passages from the smṛtis. But this digest (of L.) which is not extensive will be caused to be composed, that will delight the minds of learned men by its containing the essence of the Vedas and Smṛtis and by the import which is set off by Mīmāṃsā (doctrines), in which defects cannot be found at all. Will not the delightful growth of Kalpataru (heavenly desire-yielding tree, the work so called) by him (i.e. written by L.) afford pleasure to learned dvijas (or to gods and brāhmaṇas). the Kalpataru on whose appearance Śrī (excellence, Lakṣmī) does not stay in Mahārṇava (a work so called, great ocean), Kalpataru under which Kāmadhenu (the work so called and the celestial cow) goes to sleep (remains unread)? Now that this Kalpadruma (desire-yielding tree, the work called Kalpataru), owing to the power of the ambrosial sprinkling of the opulent intellect of Lakṣmīdhara, will, while in this world, tend to the benefit of the three worlds, why think of following after Mahārṇava (a work so called, the great ocean), why hanker after Kāmadhenu (the celestial cow and the work so called), to whose mind will occur the worthless Ratnamālā (the work so called, a jewel necklace) and others?

From these three verses we learn that Gopāla, a friend of Lakṣmīdhara, had already composed a work embodying in his own words the gist of Purāṇas and Smṛtis (that work was called Kāmadhenu, vide section on Kāmadhenu above); that there was another work called Mahārṇava⁹⁸⁵ and a third called Ratnamālā and some other digests had already been composed. What fault L. finds with Kāmadhenu it is difficult to understand. From passages in the Vivādaratnākara (pp. 5-6, -135, 150) and works such as Hāratalā it is clear that the Kāma-

985 Mahārṇava is mentioned on p. 134 of the Br. Kāṇḍa and a Mahārṇavaprakāśa is mentioned on p. 262 of Śrāddhakāṇḍa. The present author holds that the two are identical. It may be noted that no passage from the Kāmadhenu is quoted or referred to in any of the Kāṇḍas. Though L. treats with scorn both Kāmadhenu and Mahārṇava, he quotes the Mahārṇava twice by name, but not so the Kāmadhenu.

dhenu contained verses (of Nārada, Kātyāyana and others) and explained them ; vide also Vyavahārakāṇḍa p. 379 note 1. The word Vayasya is important. Acc. to Pāṇ. IV. 4. 91 Vayasya means ' Vayasā tulyaḥ '. Gopāla as stated in V. 11 of Intro. to Br. Kāṇḍa had digested single-handed smṛtis and Purāṇas and then wrote the work called Kāmadhenu. That task must have taken several years. Therefore it would not be wrong to hold that he completed the work when he was about forty years old. After Gopāla had reached that stage Lakṣmīdhara started on the project of a big digest and must have been nearly of the same age at least. The word ' Kāri-syate ' in verse 11 above is in the future tense of the causal of the root kṛ (to do). That shows that long after Gopāla's work was completed, this digest was begun and was composed not by Lakṣmīdhara single-handed but with the help of other learned men. The Introductory verse to the Br. K. is : L. first begins to write on the first āśrama, L. who reduced the enemies of the king of Kāśī to the stage of brahmacarya, because the enemies harassed by him, had to turn away (like brahmācārins) from sensual pleasures, had to sleep on the earth as their bed, were reduced to the stage of begging alms, were clad only in loin cloth and were familiar with their skins (i.e. they did not cover their bodies with anything).

The victorious Govindacandra mentioned in verse 4 (in Intro. to Br. Kāṇḍa) is the Gāhadwāla king of that name who ruled at Kānyakubja (modern Kanoj) and Kāśī. In verse 4 it is said ' Kings were paralysed through fear by hearing the trumpetings of the elephants of the Gauda king, who was easily (lit. sportively) threatened by Govindacandra (vijayī Govindacandrosti yaḥ kṛdātarjita-Gauda-garjita-bhaya-stambhībhavat-pārthivaḥ). In verse 7 of the Intro. Govindacandra is said to have killed in battle the heroic Hammīra,⁹⁸⁶ the acme among valorous men (śauryabhājām-avadhir-avadhi yuddhe yena Hammīra-vīraḥ). From verse 8-9 of the Intro. it follows that L. rose to be chief minister of king Govindacandra⁹⁸⁷ and fought (as commander) many sanguinary battles on behalf of his king, in which thousands of soldiers and kings were killed (this statement appears certainly highly exaggerated). This task of an extensive work on Dharmaśāstra in fourteen parts was undertaken not only after the Kāndhenu of Gopāla, a friend of L., was composed but also (1) after Govindacandra fought with an (unnamed) Gauda king; (2) after G. killed in battle Hammira; (3) after numerous fights with other kings in which thousands were slain; (4) and after, as stated in Introductory verse of Rājadharmakāṇḍa, men of character had risen to high opulence and after many kings had meekly submitted to Govindacandra owing to the wonderful greatness of Laksmīdhara's policies.

There are numerous inscriptions (mostly copper-plates) issued by the Gāhād-wālas. The pedigree begins with Yaśovigraha (as in E. I. IV pp. 99-101). Candradeva is described as having conquered the kingdom of Kānyakubja (in E. I. vol. VII pp. 85-93 'Paramabhaṭṭāraka-mahārājādhirāja-parameśvara-nijabhujopārjitaśrī-Kānyakubjādhipatya-Śrī-candradevaḥ').

It is necessary for our purpose to refer to a few Inscriptions only. (1) The Basahi grant of Vikrama year 1161 (1104 A. D.) issued by Govindacandra, as with the consent of Purohita Jāgūka, Mahattaka Bālhaṇa and Pratīhāra Gautama (in I. A. Vol. 14 pp. 101-104); (2) the Kamauli grant of Vikrama year 1162 (1105 A. D.) issued by Govindacandra with the consent of persons mentioned in the preceding grant and queen Rālhadevī (E. I. Vol. II, pp. 358-61);

Yaśovigraha—son Mahicandra—son Candradeva (1089—1100 A. D.), son Madanapāla (1100—1114)—son Govinda—candra (1114-1154)—son Vijaya-candra (1155-1170 A. D.—son Jayacandra (1170-1193)—Son Hariścandra (1193-1200). For the Gāhād-wāla dynasty of Kanoj vide J. R. A. S. 1932 pp. 1-21, I. H. Q. Vol. V. pp. 86-102 and Vol. IX pp. 951 ff, R. S. Tripathi's 'History of Kanoj' (1937) particularly pp. 307-316, The History of Bengal vol. I P (1943) by Dr. R. C. Majumdar pp. 155 ff. the History of the Gahadwala dynasty by Dr. Rama Niyogi (published by Calcutta Oriental Agency, 1959). The last is a very useful piece of work and furnishes at the end (pp. 243-260) a list of 80 Gāhād-wāla Inscriptions with dates and other details.

(3) The grant of Madanapāladeva on Akṣayyatrīyā of Śaṃvat 1164 (i. e. 1107 A. D.) made after a bath in the Ganges (U. P. H. S. Vol. 14 pp. 69-77); (4) the Rahan grant of Vikrama year 1166 (1109 A. D.) issued by Govindacandra with the consent of Mahattaka Gāṅgeya (I. A. Vol. XVIII pp. 14-19). Here Madanapāla is described with all the high imperial titles and it is added 'asyavātmajo Mahārājaputro Govindacandradevaḥ' and p. 16 (lines 8-9) states that Govindacandra was terrible in splitting the temples of the array of elephants belonging to the Gauḍa king and made Hammīra give up his enmity by oft-repeated unparalleled work in battle and this grant was made with the consent of Mahattaka Gāṅgeya. What had happened to Madanapāla between 1107 (the date of his inscription cited above as No. 3) and 1109 A. D. is not clear. It is suggested by some scholars that he was captured in some battle and had to be ransomed later by Govindacandra. The Kalpataru says that Hammīra was killed in battle by Govindacandra while the above inscription says that Hammīra became friendly with Govindacandra. Among the numerous inscriptions of the Gāhaḍwalas none refers to the killing of Hammīra by Govindacandra. Probably these two are different Hammīras altogether or it is possible that L. is only reporting the legends he might have heard many years afterwards. In the undated Sārnāth inscription of queen Kumāradevī, in E. I. IX. (pp. 324, 327, verse 16) reference is made to Govindacandra as an incarnation of Hari (at the request of Hara) for guarding Varanasi against the wicked Turuṣka warrior. In the copper-plate of King Jayacandra in Śaṃvat 1243 (1187 A. D.) both Govindacandra and his son Vijayacandra are extolled 'veritable Brhaspati in reflecting over various lores' (vividhavidyā-vicāra-vācaspati).

The Gauḍa king with whom Govindacandra came in conflict was Rāmapāla of the Pāla dynasty of Bengal, who ruled for at least 42 years from about 1077 to 1120 A. D. (Dr. R. C. Majumdar's History of Bengal 1943, Vol. I. pp. 155 ff.). Rāmapāla kept in check the growing power of the Gāhaḍwālas and brought about a diplomatic marriage between Kumāradevī, whose mother was the daughter of King Mathana (better known as Mahāna), famous Rāṣṭrakūṭa king and maternal uncle of Rāmapāla. It would be noticed that the grants No. 1, 2 and 4 (referred to above) were issued by Govindacandra only as Rājaputra with the consent of some high dignitaries of the king; among them there is no Hṛdayadhara nor Laksmīdhara. The Sāndhivigrahika is a high functionary and occurs in Gupta Ins. No. 1 (the praśasti of Samudragupta) on pp. 10, 16 and Mahāsandhivigrahika in the Gupta Inscription No. 22 of Hastin in Gupta year 163 pp. 100, 104, in Viṣṇu-dharmottara-purāna II. 24. 24-25 and the mit. on Yāj. I. 320 provides that the lekḥaka of a royal grant should be the minister for peace and war, being ordered by the king himself to do so.

As regards Hammīra, with whom Govindacandra fought but became friendly in 1109 A. D. he is generally identified with Hājib Tughā-tigīn, who invaded India between 1099-1155 A. D. (vide Dr. Niyogi's work 23, 58-59). Any moslem chief or commander was, it appears, spoken of in Sanskrit Inscriptions as Hammīra e. g. another Hammīra (other than the one that clashed with Govindacandra) is mentioned as having come in conflict with Vijayacandra, son of Govindacandra (vide I. A. Vol. 15 pp. 7-9). Hammīra is mentioned as killed by Vijayacandra in another inscription of Samvat 1237 (22nd Feb. 1181 A. D.) in Lucknow Museum Plates of Jayacandra (E. I. vol. I. 24 pp. 291-95 at p. 294 verse 10).

One of the earliest dated Inscriptions of Govindacandra as king is the Kamauli Plate of Samvat 1171 (of 15-10-1114) in E. I. IV pp. 101-103, a slightly earlier one by a few months being the one in J. B. O. R. S. Vol. XIX pp. 233 ff. and he ruled till 1154 A. D. One of his latest inscriptions is dated 10-8-1154 (in E. I. IV pp. 116-17). Laksmīdhara nowhere refers to Govindacandra as Mahārājaputra (as done by the Rahan grant, I. A. Vol. XVIII pp. 14-19 set out above). He appears to have come in contact with Govindacandra after the latter became king in 1114 A. D. but the exact date when he came to the notice of king Govindacandra is stated nowhere. However learned and clever a man may be it is many years before he becomes chief minister (as Laksmīdhara became and says in verse 8 of the Intro. to Br. Kāṇḍa). On his own showing he fought many sanguinary battles with the foes of Govindacandra in which one hundred thousand warriors were killed. This may be an over-drawn picture, yet there may be a substratum of truth in it. Further, by his wonderful handling of political affairs, he forced many rulers to acknowledge Govindacandra as suzarāin (Intro. verse to Rājadharmakāṇḍa) and bow at his feet. As all these varied activities of L. and his becoming chief minister are mentioned in the Intro. to Br. K., it clearly follows that he started the plan of the great digest some time after he found peace and leisure. Supposing L. came to the notice of Govindacandra in 1115 (i. e. immediately after he became king), his rise to the position of a chief minister, sanguinary battles and conquests should have taken at least ten or fifteen years more i. e. it appears that he could not have started the plan of a large digest before 1125 or 1130 A. D. i. e. some years after the latest date that can be assigned to the Mit.

Lakṣmīdhara appears to have been self-centred and boastful. He mentions Gopāla as a friend and as one who composed a work in which he made use of Smṛtis and Purāṇa passages and names the Kāmadhenu (which was the work of Gopāla as shown above) and mentions both slightly (in verses 11-13 of Intro. to Br. K.). He had not the goodness even to acknowledge some merit in his friend's work and to advance the interest of his less fortunate friend by expressly quoting a few passages from that work. He studiously avoids quoting any passage expressly from the Kāmadhenu. He thus treated his friend most shabbily.

From what Caṇḍeśvara and others say about the Kāmadhenu the latter appears to have been a good work on several branches of Dharmaśāstra not inferior in performance to Bhoja's work and the Kalpataru. For example, the Kṛtyaratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara (on p. 30) speaks of the Kāmadhenu as equal in authority to the Rājā (i. e. Bhoja 'Rājatulyayogakṣema'). In the same work on p. 156 Bhūpāla, Kāmadhenu and Kalpataru are spoken of in the same breath. On p. 443 of the same work, we have the passage 'Gopāla-Bhūpāla-Kalpataru-Pārijāteṣu tu Śākaṭānyajāvikam iti pāṭhaḥ sa tu sugamaḥ'. The present author cannot help suspecting that L. feared comparison of his work with Gopāla's and so tried to ignore and disparage it and that he might have quietly made use of Gopāla's work without acknowledgement. L. studiously avoids reference to Dhāreśvara Bhoja, Śrīkara and Bhāruci, whom the Mit. frequently mentions, as shown in the present author's paper on 'the predecessors of Viṇṇāneśvara in J. B. B. R. A. S. for 1925 pp. 193-221). Bhoja's greatness and death are referred to in an early Gāhaḍvāla grant, viz. the Basahi grant of 1104 A. D. where we have the verse 'yāte śrī-Bhoja-bhūpe vibudhavaravadhū-netrasīmātithitvam' (verse 3 in I. A. vol. 14 at p. 103).

Lakṣmīdhara might have been a learned man in his own way and had experience as a councillor, administrator and probably as a judge also. But the editor makes certain claims for him which cannot be allowed at all. On p. 10 of the Intro. to Dānakāṇḍa, the editor says 'his digest which ... shows that he was a Mīmāṃsaka profoundly learned in the Veda. On p. 11 (of Intro. to Dānakāṇḍa) the editor asserts 'even without his explicit references to Kumārila (as Bhaṭṭapāda) and Śabarasvāmin), proficiency in Pūrvamīmāṃsā necessary for the study, understanding and exposition of Dharmaśāstra is evident throughout the work'.

In the eleven Kāṇḍas so far printed the present author has not been able to find a single discussion on any sūtra of Jaimini or Śabara's extensive bhāṣya. The present author would like to be corrected. What he is emphasizing is that Lakṣmīdhara's extensive work gives no evidence whatever of a deep study of the sūtras of Jaimini nor of Śabara's very large bhāṣya nor do his kāṇḍas mention even a few well-known nyāyas (vide pp. 1339, 1351 of Vol. V. of H. of Dh. for the mention of about 170 nyāyas, mostly mentioned from Mīmāṃsā works). Śabarasvāmī is once mentioned on p. 831 of the Vy. Kāṇḍa⁹⁸⁸ in connection with some words in Śaṅkha-

988 About the special professions of Māgadhas Śaṅkha-Likhita states; मागधानां नृदङ्गवेणुवीणावादन-नृत्यगीतपुष्पमाणवककर्मसिद्धिकोपस्थान-गाथा-श्लोक-प्रत्यूष प्रतिबोधनानि कर्माणि । q. in व्यवहारकाण्ड p. 830, which Śabarasvāmī see (p. 831) 'पुष्पमाणवकः स्थानं पुष्पमाणवकत्वेन ज्योतिः शास्त्रवित्त्वेन कर्मसिद्ध्युपदेशार्थं राजसमीपोपस्थानमिति शबरस्वामी'. The Mahābhāṣya mentions 'Puṣyamānavāḥ' in a half verse quoted on Pāṇ. VII. 2. 23 'महीपालवचः श्रुत्वा जुघुषुः पुष्यमाणवाः ।' This last word appears to mean 'bard' (māgadhas).

The Editor has not been able to locate the part of Śabara's bhāṣya where this occurs. The present author thinks that the above words are quoted from a commentary on Śaṅkha-likhita by Śabarasvāmin, who may be an entirely different person from the bhāṣyakāra of Jaimini's sūtras.

likhita. So far as I see Kumārila is only twice mentioned as Bhaṭṭa-pāda in Br. Kāṇḍa on p. 15 and p. 21 (a verse from Tantravārtika). It is most extravagant praise to say on this slender basis that Lakṣmīdhara's proficiency in Pūrva-mīmāṃsā is evident throughout the work.

Certain passages in the Kalpataru on Vy. are more or less identical with passages of the Mit. A few examples are noted below* :

- * (1) On Yāj. II. 100-102 the Mit. has more than three printed pages of comment and L. (vy. pp 218-219) has only two lines, which occur in the Mit. If any one borrows, it must be L. who has no further gloss of his own. (2) On Yāj. II. 59, (on गोप्याधिभोगे नो वृद्धिः सोपकारे च दीपिते), the Mit. explains in about half a page and begins : गोप्याधेस्ताम्रकटाहादेरुपभोगेन वृद्धिर्भवति । अल्पेप्युपभोगे महत्यपि वृद्धिर्हातव्या समयातिक्रमात् । तथा सोपकारे उपकारकारिणि बलीवर्दताम्रकटाहादौ भोग्याधौ सवृद्धिके दापिते हानि व्यवहाराक्षमत्वं गमिते नो वृद्धिरिति सम्बन्धः. On the first half कल्प० (Vy. p. 293) has only 'सोपकारे बलीवर्दादौ हापिते व्यवहाराक्षमत्वमनुप्रणीते'; (3) On Yāj. II. 64. कल्प० (व्यव. p. 296, has only this much 'एतदुत्पन्ने द्विगुणे धने प्रविष्टे त्वयाधिर्मोक्तव्या (?व्य) इत्युक्त्वायं चाधिर्दीयते तद्विषयमिदम् । एवंविध एव लोके क्षयाधिरुच्यते ।'; मिता० has closely printed lines and winds up 'तमेन क्षयाधिमाचक्षते लौकिकाः'; (4) मिता० on Yāj. II. 61 (first half) has 12 closely printed lines of comment and proposes two explanations of 'caritra-bandhakakṛtam, the 2nd of which is चरित्रशब्देन गङ्गास्नानाग्निहोत्रादिजनितमपूर्वमुच्यते । यत्र तदेवाधीकृत्य यद्द्रव्यमात्मसात्कृतं तत्र तदेव द्विगुणीभूतं दातव्यं नाधिनाश इति ।; कल्प० (व्यव.) p. 299 gives only the 2nd explanation 'चरित्रं अग्निहोत्र-गङ्गास्नानादि तदेव बन्धकीकृत्य यद्गृहीतं तद्वृद्धिसहितं दातव्यमित्यर्थः' it says nothing about आधि, while मिता. says नाधिनाशः. (5) On Yāj. II. p. 172 Mit. explains हृतं प्रनष्टं वा चौरादिहस्तस्थं द्रव्यं अनेन मदीयं द्रव्यमपहतमिति नृपस्यातिवैधैव दर्पादिना यो गृह्णाति असौ षडन्तरान्नवति पणान् दण्डनीयः । तस्करप्रच्छादकत्वेन दुष्टत्वात् ।; the कल्प० (व्यव. p. 357) has the same words, except the word दर्पादिना and words षडन्तरान्नवति पणात् are dropped by it; (6) On Yāj. II. 265 first half (जिह्वं त्यजेयुः &c.) the Mit. explains : जिह्वो वञ्चकः

Many cases of the same sort may be cited but that cannot be done for reasons of space. The above verses clearly show that the brief remarks in the Kalpataru (on Vy.) are borrowed from the Mitākṣarā. If as argued above, the Mit. was it is restored from the (मिता.) ' पिण्ड ' does not make any good sense.

The कल्प० has no further comment of any kind; it has nothing corresponding to तत्र त्रिंशत्तमो...वेदितव्यः, while मिता० explains the 2nd half and the word नेपालकम्बलादिः, either L. or scribes of North India would, it may be said that, easily think of Nepālakam-bala and added that word after romabaddhaḥ'; (8) On Yāj. II.

चोरस्य शीतस्यापनोदायर्थः । उदकं तृषितस्य । मन्त्रः चौर्यप्रकारोपदेशः ।
उपकरणं चौर्यसाधनम् । व्ययः अपहारार्थं देशान्तरं गच्छतः पाथेयम्

these very words and not a word more'; (9) On Yāj. II. 174 (' paṇān - ekaśaphe &c.), the Mit. explains the whole verse in over four lines ' एकशफे अश्वादौ प्रनष्टाधिगते तत्स्वामी राज्ञे रक्षणनिमित्तं चतुरः पणान् दद्यात् &c ; कल्प० (व्यव. p. 554 has only the words एकशफे...
पणान् दद्यात् and nothing more than that one line.

The words ' तत्र सांख्यानामेका मूलप्रकृति '.....up to त्रीण्यन्तःकरणानि ' are the same in Aparārka p. 987 lines 4-7 after eight lines from Devala while in Mokṣakāṇḍa p. 1,006 these four lines begin a new section with the words ' तत्र देवलः । तत्र सांख्यानामेका..... ' and end composed between 1100–1120 A. D. and the Kalpataru between 1125–1145 A. D. the latter must be presumed to be the borrower. The present author is not much interested in the question whether the Kalpataru borrowed or not. He is interested only in negating the astounding statement of Prof. Aiyangar that the Mit. knew the Kalpataru (as disclosed by verse 4 at the end of the Mit.). Unless it is proved that the Kalpataru was completed at least some years before 1100 A. D. it is impossible to hold that it was known or relied upon in the South by the Mit. in 1100–1120 A. D. The learned editor of the Kalpataru admits (on p. 4 of the introduction to Dānakāṇḍa) that the influence of L. did not penetrate to South India and that he is not referred to by Varadarāja (a. of Vyānahāranirṇaya) by Devaṇṇa bhaṭṭa (a. of Smṛticandrikā) and by Mādhavācārya. In view of the historical sequence of events and the large number of identical explanatory passages in the Kalpataru, the present author thinks that it is unnecessary for him to reply to the arguments of the editor of the Kalpataru in greater detail.

The late Prof. Aiyangar did not carefully consider the chronological sequence of events and the close agreement of the brief explanations of L. with the lengthy explanations in the Mitākṣarā. In the first edition of the H. of Dh. the present author relied upon a passage occurring in the Sarasvatibhavan ms. of the Kalpataru about a quotation from Brhaspati relied upon in the Vāḍibhayāṅkara (the author of which was according to the Vīramitrodaya, a follower of Vijñāneśvara. The Editor of Kalpataru on Vy. (on p. 248)

परं पदम् ॥ अपरार्क p. 988. The मोक्षकाण्ड makes a half verse of this by omitting some words and citing only पञ्चविंशतितत्त्वज्ञो याति विष्णोः परं पदम् ॥ मोक्षकाण्ड (p. 102). This might have been purposely done by Lakṣmīdhara to shorten the matter.

On p. 100 let us consider one example. The lines as printed in the portion of Mokṣakāṇḍa (cf. Kalpataru) are : गन्धतन्मात्रमिति । तन्मात्राणि द्विविधानि । इन्द्रियाणि मनो &c. This should have been printed as ‘इन्द्रियाणि मनो &c.’ and गन्धतन्मात्रमिति तन्मात्राणि । द्विवि-

refers to this view of the present author and rejects it. It is unnecessary for the present purpose to go into the question where what Vāḍibhayāṅkara quotes as a verse of Brhaspati is so or not. One ms of Kalpataru (Vy.) had that passage, two other mss. from Udaipur and Bikaner had not got it. Prof. Aiyangar does not hesitate to pass off as Lakṣmīdhara's the whole of the Br. Kāṇḍa based only on a single very defective ms, (vide above) and to draw conclusions from it. Besides, he himself shows (on p. 293, note 4) how his Udaipur ms. has a gap of two printed pages beginning on that page. He could and should have said that it is possible that the single ms may represent the correct text while the two others having gaps in some other parts might have omitted that portion. The present author also relied (in the first edition of the H. of Dh.) on a passage of the Benares College ms (on Vy.) where the view of Prakāśa, Halāyudha, Kāmadhenu and Pārijāta on a verse of Kātyāyana was cited (H. of Dh. p. 293, n. 649). With this the Editor deals on pp. 394-5 and 397, (in footnotes). The present author would have to write several pages against this view of the Editor. For the present author's own view about L. being later than the Mitākṣarā and the borrower, relies mostly on the historical data and incidents and on the large number of passages in one Kāṇḍa alone (cited above) which fair minded persons would hold to be borrowings from the Mitākṣarā by the Kalpataru.

In the Intro. to the Dānakāṇḍa (p. 17) Prof. Aiyangar states 'in two other respects also the Kalpataru is unique. Firstly, it is distinguished by having been written in accordance with well-conceived and logical plan. A cursory reading of even a comprehensive smṛti like that of Manu or Yājñavalkya will fail to disclose the background of Hindu life.' Compare this downright assertion with another statement in Intro. to Br. Kāṇḍa (p. 3) 'it is built on a careful plan, which largely follows the arrangement of topics in Manu's great work.' The present author does not like to say much against the learned Professor as regards his criticism of Manu that reading it would not disclose the background of Hindu life, because he contradicts himself by saying that L. largely follows Manu's plan and because he really follows Yāj. and the logic, if any, behind the order of the 11 Kāṇḍas is restricted to the first five and the Kāṇḍas eleven, twelve and fourteen.

It must be, however, pointed out that it is the Yājñavalkyasmṛti that lays down a careful and logical plan. The Yāj. Smṛti, after the first nine Introductory verses, treats in order of the following topics; Brahmācārin (I. 10-50), Gr̥has-thāśrama (I. 51-96), daily duties of Gr̥hastha (Āhnika I. 97-181), Dāna (I. 198-216), Śrāddha (I. 217-268), Rājadharmā (I. 309-368), Vyavahāra (II. 1-307), Āśauca (III. 1-34), Vānaprastha (III. 45-55), Yatidharma (III. 56-205), Prāyaścitta (III. 206-334). The order in Yāj. from Brahmācārin to Śrāddha is almost the same as Lakṣmīdhara's but is a little better than that of L. Similarly, Yāj. speaks of rājadharmā before vyavahāra (as L. does). But the logic in placing vrata as 6th and tīrtha as 8th, pratiṣṭhā (or pūjā or both) as 7th and placing Śāntika as 13th (and not after Pūjā) is not clear to the present author. The fact appears to be that the learned Editor having spent many years over the Kalpataru developed a faculty for over-statements about L.

The Kalpataru is extensive, but the Vīramitrodaya is unique in its size, range and quality. The Kalpataru has size (though it is not as extensive as the Vīramitrodaya), has great range, but in quality it is very much inferior not only to the Mitāksarā, but also to some other digests. Lengthy discussions in the Kalpataru are few and far between. It is more in the nature of a collection from all smṛtis. Hence one noteworthy feature of it is that it often states how the same verse occurs in several smṛtis. A few striking examples are noted here. In Śrāddha-kāṇḍa p. 187 he quotes Manu III 236-37 and remarks that they occur in Hārīta, Viṣṇu, Yama, Śātātapa in Uśanas (the 2nd only). In Br. kāṇḍa p. 40 he quotes Manu III. 114-15 and adds that these two occur also in Vasistha Yama, Parāśara and Baudhāyana and the 2nd in Paithīnasi also and they do occur in the printed Vas. (III. 5-6). In Br. K. p. 181 he quotes the verse 'savyāhṛtim... prāṇāyāmaḥ sa ucyate' as occurring in Śaṅkha, Vasistha, Aṅgiras, Bṛhaspati, Paithīnasi and Baudhāyana and it does occur in Vas. VII. 14 (Ānandāśrama collection). On p. 742 of Vyavahāra-kāṇḍa and p. 432 of Gr̥hastha K. he quotes the verse 'putreṇa lokān...viṣṭapam' as occurring in Manu, Śaṅkhalikhita, Viṣṇu, Vasistha and Hārīta and it does occur in Viṣṇu, Dh. S. 15. 45, Vas. 17. 5 and also in Manu IX. 137 and Baud. Dh. S. II. 9.6. On pp. 36-37 of Vyavahāra K. he quotes three verses, the first of which L. states occurs in Manu, Nārada, Hārīta and Baudhāyana. All three occur in Manu VIII. 18, 19 and 14 and all three in Nārada III. 8, 12, 13 p. 43 (Dr. Jolly's ed. in B. I. Series) and the first in Baud Dh. S. I. 10. 30. Such illustrations lead one to conclude that L. had collected a large number of the mss of Smṛtis and had directed his pandits to make an exhaustive concordance of smṛti verses.

On pp. 174-175 of his work Aparārka quotes a long extract from Devala in prose and verse on 'Doṣas', which exhibits striking skill in defining several words. On Yāj. III. 109 (pp. 986-988) Aparārka quotes a very long prose passage from Devala (a small portion of which also occurs in the Mokṣakāṇḍa of Kalpataru pp. 100-101. Aparārka sets out at length (in prose) the purport of about two dozen verses of the Sāṅkhyakārikā, while the Mokṣakāṇḍa (pp. 100-101) contains less than half of what Aparārka says (practically in the same words as those of Aparārka. It should be further noticed that in the Mokṣakāṇḍa there is another long prose passage beginning with the words 'Atha mūlaprakṛtir-avyaktam' (p. 100 last six lines and on p. 101 l. 14) ending with the words 'ityutpattikramah' which is part of the passage cited in Aparārka pp. 987-88 (which adds some words not found in the Mokṣa-kāṇḍa) 'yo yasmād-utpadyate..... sa tasmin liyata iti vāpyayakramah'. Another very significant circumstance is that the long passage from Devala extending to about two pages in Aparārka is followed by five verses of Yama on the Sāṅkhya system, which also occur in Mokṣakāṇḍa (pp. 101-102) with one slight change in the last verse.

From the close agreement between passages of Devala in both Aparārka and Mokṣakāṇḍa with some omissions in the latter, it appears to the present author that the author of the Mokṣakāṇḍa used a ms. of Aparārka's work (in which there was probably no demarcation of clauses and which was also slightly defective) and the editor of the Mokṣakāṇḍa committed mistakes in separating the clauses.

One remarkable circumstance bearing on the relative chronological positions of the Mitākṣarā and the Kalpataru may be noted here.

The Hāralatā of Aniruddhabhaṭṭa was composed about 1160 to 1170 A. D., as he was the guru and Dharmādhyakṣa of king Ballālasena of Bengal, who composed his Dānasāgara in Śaka 1091 (1169–70 A. D.). Two works viz. Kāmadhenu and Kalpataru were composed in the realm of the Gāhaḍwāla King Govindacandra. The Hāralatā mentions the Kāmadhenu several times as an authority of the same weight as Viśvarūpa, Bhojadeva, and Govindarāja (vide pp. 41, 117, 174 of the Hāralatā); while the vast digest of Kalpataru of Lakṣmīdhara is not mentioned even once anywhere by the Hāralatā. If the Kāmadhenu, disdainfully spoken of by Lakṣmīdhara, could penetrate to Bengal before 1160–70 A. D. and be treated there as a work of authority, it is very surprising that the Kalpataru backed by the glamorous career of the great Minister Lakṣmīdhara and dealing at length with the same topics as those treated of in the Hāralatā should not have been referred to even once in the Hāralatā.

This leads to the conclusion that portions of the Kalpataru were composed decades later than the time when the Kāmadhenu was composed and earlier than 1160 A. D. only by a decade or so.

79. Jīmūtavāhana

Jīmūtavāhana is the first of the triumvirate of Bengal writers on dharmasāstra, the other two being Śūlapāṇi and Raghunandana. Only three works of his are known and they have all been printed viz: the Kālaviveka (B. I. series, 1905), the Vyavahāramātrkā (published in the memoirs of the Bengal Asiatic Society, vol. III., No. 5, pp. 277–353, edited by the late Sir Asutosh Mukerji), the Dāyabhāga (published several times). It appears that these works were intended to form part of a vast treatise on dharmasāstra called Dharma-ratna, as stated in the Kālaviveka.⁹⁸⁹ In this work I have used the edition of the Dāyabhāga printed in 1829.

989 बहुविधविवादतिमिरग्रस्तं ग्रहणं रवेः शशाङ्कस्य । तद्धर्मरत्नदीपालोकात्सकलं विलोकयत ॥ इति पारिभाषीयमहामहोपाध्याय-जिमूतवाहनकृतौ धर्मरत्ने कालविवेकः समाप्तः । last verse and colophon of कालविवेक; similarly the colophon of the दायभाग is 'इति पारिभाषीय...धर्मरत्ने दायभागः समाप्तः'.

The Kālaviveka as its name implies contains discussions as to the appropriate seasons, months and times for the performance of religious rites and duties, the determination of intercalary months, the question whether the month for certain festivals and rites, was to be solar or lunar, the proper time for the cessation and starting of Vedic studies (Utsarjana and Upākarma), the rise of Agastya, the four months during which Viṣṇu was supposed to sleep on the ocean, the times for various festivals including the Kojāgara and the Durgotsava, the eclipses. The work is named Kālaviveka not only in the colophon, but also in the body itself.⁹⁹⁰ Some of the sections of the work also are styled viveka (e. g. Amāvāsyā-viveka pp. 354-365, dvirāśādhaviveka pp. 169-174). The object with which the work was composed is stated in the 2nd verse⁹⁹¹ as follows :— ‘ Kāla ’ (the topic of proper times for religious duties) has not been understood by some writers; it has been based upon ancient texts and compressed into narrow compass by others; therefore it is dealt with by me in such a way as to be easily understood even by dull-witted persons. M. M. Chakravarti (JASB 1915 p. 314) draws from this the conclusion that ‘ no previous treatise specially dealing with Kāla alone was known to the author ’. This is not a sound conclusion. All that Jīmūtavāhana claims is that he has made the subject of Kāla extremely easy. As a matter of fact in one verse he brings together seven predecessors⁹⁹² who expatiated on Kāla and whose works have become worth little on account of the appearance of the Kālaviveka. As long as the works of all these writers are not recovered it is impossible to assert that Jīmūtavāhana had before him no previous work dealing specially with Kāla. Besides the astronomical and astrological works of ancient writers such as those of Varāhamihira and Brahmagupta, the ancient smṛtis and purāṇas, the important works and authors mentioned are enumerated in the note below.⁹⁹³ Most of these nibandha-kāras are quoted by him in his two other works also. Yogīśvara⁹⁹⁴ seems to be an author different from Yājñavalkya who also is styled Yogīśvara, since the view ascribed to him is not found in Yāj. In some copies of the Mit. also an author⁹⁹⁵ Yogīśvara is named who explained the conflicting texts about a widow's right to succeed to her husband. But Yogīśvara in the Mit. is probably a misprint or copyist's error for Dhāreśvara as some Mss. read Dhāreśvara. In the Kālaviveka Jīmūtavāhana makes frequent and effective use of Pūrvamīmāṃsā maxims⁹⁹⁶ and shows that he had made a profound study of that system. In the Durgotsavaviveka⁹⁹⁷ of Śūlapāṇi the Kālaviveka is quoted. It is also quoted in the Śrāddhacintāmaṇi of Vācaspati, in the Śrāddha-kaumudī (p. 328) and Varṣakriyā-kaumudī of Govindānanda and in several Tattvas of Raghunandana, e. g. (Vol. I) Tithi 141, 144, Āhnika 341, Mala° 834, (Vol. II) Ekādaśī 41, 46, 87 (ed. of 1895).

It may be noted that both Svalpa-Yogloka and Bṛhad-Yogloka are mentioned in the Kālaviveka (pp. 490, 505) and Yogloka is criticized very often and is dubbed 'Tārkikam-manya' (who regards himself as a logician but was really not so); vide Vyavahāramātrkā, p. 291 for this.

The Vyavahāramātrkā as its very name implies deals with the elements of vyavahāra (i. e. judicial procedure). It speaks of the eighteen titles of law, the derivation of the word prādvivāka (judge), the persons fit to be appointed judges, different grades of courts, duties of sabhyas, four stages of vyavahāra, pūrvapakṣa (plaint), pratibhū (surety), blemishes in a plaint, uttara (reply of the defendent), four kinds of uttara, blemishes in uttara, kriyā (proof or burden of proof), divine (daivī) and human (mānuṣī) proof (viz. : ordeals, inference, witnesses, documents, possession), persons incompetent to be witnesses. Ordeals have not been dealt with by the author. The first verse of the work⁹⁹⁸ styles it Vyavahāramātrkā. The last verse⁹⁹⁹ but one suggests the name Nyāyamātrkā which practically is a synonym of Vyavahāra-mātrkā and the colophon at the end of a ms. in the Govt. Mss. library at the B.O.R. Institute calls it Nyāya-ratnamālikā.

About twenty smṛtikāras¹⁰⁰⁰ are mentioned in the Vyavahāramātrkā. Kātyāyana, Bṛhaspati and Nārada are the three smṛtikāras most frequently quoted, nearly two-thirds of the quotations in the entire work being derived from them. Among the nibandhakūras the following are named :— Jitendriya, Dikṣita, (p. 302), Bāla (p. 346, the same as

About Viśvarūpa he says¹⁰⁰¹ “I have put forward this conclusion of the ancient writers, I have refuted the objections of Viśvarūpa and others and dealt with them at length’. Yogloka and Śrīkara are generally quoted for being refuted and the former is frequently jeered at as ‘tārkikamānya’ or ‘nava-tārkikam-mānya’. In this work Jīmūtavāhana displays great familiarity with the ancient dialectics. In some cases what the printed text exhibits¹⁰⁰² as prose really constitutes verses. Sir Asutosh Mukerji is not accurate when he says in the preface that ‘Jīmūtavāhana refers to a number of jurists not mentioned by any other author, e.g. Jitendriya, Yogloka, Bālaka, Viśvarūpa, Śrīkara and Mañjarīkāra’. It has been shown above that both Viśvarūpa and Śrīkara have been mentioned by the Mit. which is certainly earlier than Jīmūtavāhana and by a host of other writers who were either earlier than or contemporaries of Jīmūtavāhana. The Vyavahāramātrkā is quoted in the Vyavahāratattva¹⁰⁰³ (pp. 199, 214, 225 vol. II.) and the Dāyatattva p. 179 and Divyatattva pp. 586, 583.

The Dāyabhāga is the most famous of Jīmūtavāhana’s works. In matters of Hindu law such as inheritance, partition strīdhana, re-union, it is of paramount authority in modern British Indian courts in Bengal, except in those cases where the Mitākṣarā is applicable. The names of more than a dozen commentators of it are known and Pandit Bharatacandra Siromani published it with seven commentaries (1863-1866). It was translated into English by Colebrooke. In many editions (such as that of Jivananda) it is divided into sections though there were no divisions in the original work. The contents of the Dāyabhāga are:— Definition of dāya; father's power over ancestral property; partition of father's and grand father's property; division among brothers after their father's death; definition, classification and devolution of strīdhana; persons excluded from inheritance and partition on the ground of disabilities; property which is impartible (in its very nature or because it is self-acquired); order of succession to one dying sonless; re-union, partition of coparcenary property concealed but discovered afterwards, indicia of partition.

Some of the peculiar doctrines of the Dāyabhāga which are of fundamental importance and which sharply distinguish it from the Mit. are: sons have no interest in ancestral property by birth, sons can claim partition only after extinction of their father's ownership (i. e. after his death or on his becoming patita or a saṁnyāsīn) or partition can take place between father and sons if the father so desires, a widow succeeds to her husband's interest on his death even if he be joint with his brother, the right to take a deceased person's estate is regulated by the spiritual benefit conferred by the person claiming as heir (by means of the offering of piṇḍas) and not by the principal of consanguinity (as in the Mit.).¹⁰⁰⁴

It should be noted by all Hindus that the Hindu Succession Act (Act No. 30 of 1956) passed by the parliament of India has made substantial changes in the law laid down both by Jīmūtavāhana and the Mitākṣarā as regards partition, succession and kindred matters. But this is not the place to dilate on this topic.

1004 Note the following 'तदेवं पितृस्वत्वापगम एकः कालोऽपरश्चानपगत एव पितुः स्वाम्ये पितुरिच्छयेति कालद्वयम् ।' दायभाग P. 38; अतोऽविशेषेणैव विभक्तवाचनपेक्षयैवापुत्रस्य भर्तुः कृत्स्नधने पत्न्यधिकारो जितेन्द्रियोक्त आदरणीयः । P. 256; उपकारकत्वेनैव धनसंबन्धो मन्वादीनामभिमत इति मन्यते इति निरवयवविद्योद्योतेन योतितोयमर्थो विद्वद्भिरादरणीयः । P. 336.

The foot-note on this paragraph avers¹ that one called 'niravadyavidyodyota' (lit. one who possesses the brilliance of spotless vidyās) put forward that the guiding principle in preference among heirs is the spiritual benefit that the heir will confer on the deceased. It is remarkable that in the Harṣacarita (first Ucchavāsa, last paragraph) we have a statement that Bāṇa resorted to gurukulas that were radiant with spotless learning (niravadya-vidyāvidyotanāni ca kulāni sevamānaḥ). The word also occurs in the Dāyabhāga before the passage quoted from Yājñavalkya II. 122 (bhūryā pitāmahopāttā.....cobhayoḥ) in chap. II section 9 of the Dāyabhāga, where the explanation of this verse by 'Niravadyavidyota' is cited (which is in direct conflict with that of the Mitākṣarā). That expression in the Dāyabhāga may be explained in several ways : (1) Udyota is the name of a person whose learning was blameless. Pāṇ. III. 1. 101 tells us that 'avadya' means 'garhya' (deserving to be censured). Śrīnātha (1470-1540) and Maheśvara take it in that sense. Other commentators take it as a title or distinction conferred on the man and hold that Udyota means refulgence.

Besides the smṛtikāras,¹⁰⁰⁵ the Mahābhārata and the Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa the following authors are referred to by name in Dāyabhāga :— Udgrāhamalla, Govindarāja (an author of Manuṭīkā), Jitendriya, Dikṣita, Bālaka, Bhojadeva or Dhāreśvara, Viśvarūpa and Śrīkara.

The word 'Udgrāhamalla' is taken by the commentators as not being a proper name, but as a common noun meaning 'a disputant that takes up the position opposed to the one advanced by the author'; e. g. most commentators say that 'Udgrāha' means simply 'vāda' and explain 'udgrāho vādaḥ sa eva mallah' and some like Śrīkrṣṇa Tarkālaṅkāra say 'udgrāho vādaḥ tatra mallasya samarthasya galahastavan-nivārakaḥ ityarthah.' They do not quote any kośa to support their meaning of 'udgrāha' as 'vāda'. Udgrāhamalla may be a proper noun just as we have Todaramalla among authors on Dharmaśāstra and as the word ends in 'malla' (a gymnast) the author naturally gives a reply in gymnastic terms that a verse of Devala would completely vanquish (lit. throttle) him. It may be noted that Maheśvara (a commentator) holds that Udgrāhamalla is the name of a Smṛti writer. The present author does not say that the meaning proposed by commentators is quite wrong or impossible, but holds that the meaning proposed by him appears to be the proper one. Pāṇini has a special sūtra 'udī grahaḥ' III. 3. 35 for the word उद्ग्राह.

In the Dāyabhāga Jīmūtavāhana quotes among Smṛti sages Manu (most frequently), Nārada, Yājñavalkya, Bṛhaspati, Kātyāyana, Viṣṇu, Gautama, Vasiṣṭha, Hārīta, Baudhāyana, Bṛhanmanu, Vyāsa, Śaṅkhalikhita, Devala, Yama, Uśanas, Vṛddha-kātyāyana, Āpastamba, Vṛddha-śātatapa, Paiṭhīnasi. Among the Purāṇas, the Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa (XI. 40) alone is quoted by name in the Dāyabhāga.

The Nibandhakāras mentioned by name in the Dāyabhāga are, besides Niravadyavidyoddyota, Jitendriya (thrice mentioned), Govindarāja, Dhāreśvara Bhojadeva, Dīkṣita (only a title), Bāla or Bālaka (m. five times), Viśvarūpa (m. thrice) and Śrīkara (m. five times, once as Śrīkaramiśra). Udgrāhamalla¹⁰⁰⁶ is referred to on the distribution of strīdhana and it is said that Udgrāhamalla (i. e. his view) is throttled by the text of Devala. It appears, therefore, that Udgrāhamalla was not a smṛti writer, but a nibandhakāra. Dīkṣita¹⁰⁰⁷ is credited with the view that, among daughters, those who have sons or are likely to have sons are preferred to those who are either barren, widowed or who give birth to daughters alone and the Dāyabhāga approves of this view. There is one more writer who is referred to twice with great respect as Niravadyavidyoddyota. Whether this is a mere description or title ('the refulgence of whose learning is spotless') or whether the author's name was Uddyota and niravadyavidya ('whose learning in spotless') is an epithet, it is difficult to say. For a correct knowledge of the origin and development of the theory of spiritual benefit propounded in the Dāyabhāga, it would be extremely desirable to know who this writer was, as Jīmūtavāhana tells us that that view was brilliantly set forth by Niravadyavidyoddyota. The same writer is also quoted on the well-known verse of Yājñavalkya 'bhūryā pitāmahopāttā &c.,' which is the sheet-anchor of Vijñāneśvara's theory about the son's rights by birth in ancestral family property.¹⁰⁰⁸

Jīmūtavāhana gives very little information about himself. In the colophons of his works he is described as Pāribhadriya Mahāmahopādhyāya and at the end of the Vyavahāramātrkā (vide note 999 above) he tells us that he was born of the Pāribhadra family (kula).¹⁰⁰⁹ It is said that this name of the family still survives in the Parihal or Pāri Gai, a section of Rādhīya Brāhmaṇas (Ghose's Hindu Law, 3rd edition, pp. xvi-xviii and JASB 1915 p. 320). It is also said that Edu-miśra in his Kulakārikā tells us that Jīmūtavāhana was chief judge in the reign of Viṣvak-sena of Bengal and that he was 9th in descent from Nārāyanabhaṭṭa, one of the five Brāhmaṇas brought by Ādiśra. The information supplied by the match-makers of Bengal is, as shown above (vide pp. 632-33 above under Halāyudha), not worth reliance, unless corroborated by independent evidence. It is also said that for fourteen generations the Brāhmaṇas of Pārigrāma have been degraded and so Jīmūtavāhana would not have paraded the fact that he was Pāribhadriya if at the time when he wrote his subcaste had been degraded (Intro. to Kālaviveka p. VIII). The fact that Jīmūtavāhana was a native of Rādhā is testified by his statement in the Kālaviveka that Agastya (Canopus) rose in Ujjayinī when four days of the month of Bhādrapada remained, but that in Rādhā Agastya rose when seven days of the month were yet to run.¹⁰¹⁰

Extremely divergent views have been held as to the date of Jīmūtavāhana. He has been assigned to various dates from the 11th to the 16th century. In L. R. 41 I. A. at p. 298 it is said by their Lordships of the Privy Council that the Mit. was earlier by five centuries than Jīmūtavāhana. Dr. Jolly (R. u. S. p. 37) assigns him to the 15th century. For a statement of the various dates and their examination the article of M. M. Chakravarti in JASB for 1915, pp. 321-327 and Mr. Panchanan Ghosh's learned article in 26 Calcutta Law Journal (journal portion p. 17. ff.) may be consulted. Since Jīmūtavāhana mentions Dhāreśvara Bhojadeva and Govindarāja, he cannot be placed earlier than the last quarter of the 11th century. Since he is quoted by Śulapāṇi, Vācaspati-miśra and Raghunandana, he cannot be later than the middle of the 15th century. The Kālaviveka furnishes important data. On a ms. of the Kālaviveka there is a note made about the birth-date of the son of a certain Ghatakasimha with the horoscope of the child. The year specified therein is śake 1417, i. e. 1495 A. D. It follows from this that the Ms. itself must have been copied sometime before this and the original work must be much earlier still. So the Kālaviveka cannot be placed at any rate later than about 1400 A. D.

In the Kālaviveka Jīmūtavāhana tells us that his predecessor Andhuka¹⁰¹¹ exhibited a certain astronomical matter in śake 952 (i. e. 1030 A. D.) and that he declared an intercalary month in śake 955.

Similarly Jīmūtavāhana expatiates upon several¹⁰¹² minute astronomical and astrological details which were observed in the śake years 1013 and 1014 (i. e. 1091 and 1092 A. D.). It is impossible to suppose that an author would enter into such minute details about a time which was anterior to his own by centuries. Generally astronomical works take for their calculations starting points or years which were within their own experience or very nearly so. Therefore it appears to be a sound conclusion to hold that the Kālaviveka was composed soon after śake 1013 or 1014 (i. e. 1091 and 1092 A. D.). Hence it follows that the literary activity of Jīmūtavāhana lay between 1090 and 1130 A. D. The Kālaviveka seems to be his first work. The Vyavahāramātṛkā would naturally come before the Dāyabhāga. He seems to have contemplated writing¹⁰¹³ on ṛṇādāna also, as he says in the Dāyabhāga that a certain matter would be expounded by him in ṛṇādāna.

The most cogent argument that can be advanced against the above early date assigned to Jīmūtavāhana is that neither Jīmūtavāhana nor any of his compositions is mentioned by Bengal writers and works on Dharmaśāstra belonging to the 12th, 13th and 14th centuries such as the Hāralatā, the commentary of Kullūka etc. No satisfactory explanation can be offered of this silence. But it is a very precarious thing to conclude from this silence that Jīmūtavāhana's works did not exist during those centuries. It is safer to base conclusions about his date on the positive evidence contained in his works rather than rely upon the negative argument from silence in later works. When some of his commentators say that he criticises the views of Caṇḍeśvara, Miśra and others we should not take them seriously. The commentators had no idea of the exact chronological position of writers long anterior to them. All they mean is that Jīmūtavāhana criticises views that were shared also by Caṇḍeśvara and others. Another important question is whether Jīmūtavāhana who is certainly a little later than the Mit. criticizes it. The Vivāda-tāṇḍava of¹⁰¹⁴ Kamalākara says that Jīmūtavāhana held that the view about the equal ownership of father and son in ancestral property was put forward for precluding the possibility of the uncle taking the whole estate of a man dying (in union) leaving a son or a predeceased son's son or for precluding the possibility of an unequal distribution of ancestral property by a father among his sons and that Jīmūtavāhana took up this position, being blinded by his hatred of the Mit. The Viramirodaya¹⁰¹⁵ also says that Jīmūtavāhana criticizes the Mitākṣarā definition of vibhāga and the view of the Mit. about the times for partition. The Vyavahāramātṛkā¹⁰¹⁶ also appears to criticize several times views which were held by the Mit. and the correspondence is very striking. On this point this much may be said that the points selected for attack by Jīmūtavāhana do occur almost in the same words in the Mit. but, since the Mit. is not expressly mentioned and since it is likely that other writers like Asahāya and Bhāruci whose works have not yet been discovered might have contained the very same words that are found in the Mit., it is somewhat hazardous to assert that Jīmūtavāhana criticizes the Mit. alone and no other work. All that one can advance is that it is quite within the bounds of possibility that Jīmūtavāhana criticizes the Mit.

Raghunandana in his Smṛtitattva differs rather rarely from Jīmūtavāhana; vide (Vol. I.) Tithitattva pp. 52-53, Malamāsa

p. 849 ; (Vol. II.) Ekādaśī p. 88. He quotes Kālāviveka frequently e. g. in Tithi pp. 106, 107, 141, 144, Mala° p. 834, Ekādaśī pp. 41, 87; he mentions the Vyavahāramātrakā in Vya. tattva pp. 199, 214, 225, the Dāyabhāga in Dāyatattva pp. 164, 174, 194. He names Jīmūtavāhana frequently as in Vol. I Tithi pp. 24, 144, Prāyaścitta p. 482, Mala° pp. 767, 781; (Vol. II.) Dāyatattva p. 194, Ekādaśī pp. 5, 36, 38, 40, 51, 53, 103.

Several commentaries on the Dāyabhāga have been published. The more important commentators are (1) Śrīnātha Ācāryacūḍāmaṇi, Guru of Raghunandana¹⁰¹⁷ (flourished about 1470–1540 A. D.); vide JASB (New Series) vol. XI. pp. 344–351 for his parentage, works and time of Śrīnātha ; (2) Rāmabhadra Nyāyālaṅkāra Bhaṭṭācārya, son of Śrīnātha–Ācāryacūḍāmaṇi (flourished about 1510–1570. Vide for his commentary ‘Our Heritage’ vol. VI. pt. I pp 43–53; I. H. Q. vol. 33; (3) Acyutānanda Cakraviartin (flourished about 1510–1570); (4) Maheśvarabhaṭṭācārya (about 1530–1600); (5) Śrīkṛṣṇa Tarkālaṅkāra (flourished about the middle of the 18th century).

There is a commentary on the Dāyabhāga professed by Raghunandana. Colebrooke suspected that it was not a work of Raghunandana. Rai Bahadur Manmohan Chakravarti holds that it is Raghunandana’s (J. A. S. B. vol. XI, N. S. for 1915, pp. 302, 352), on the ground that the final colophon gives the kula as Vandyaghaṭīya and the father’s name as Hariharabhaṭṭācārya. This is not a very strong ground. Any scholar desirous of passing off his own work as Raghunandana’s could very easily have put in these items. It was included among the commentaries on the 1017 Following the dictum in a well-known verse आत्मनाम गुरोर्नाम नामातिकृपणस्य च । श्रेयस्कामो न गृहीयाज्ज्येष्ठापत्यकलत्रयोः ॥ Raghunandana does not mention his guru’s name in the discussions. In the Smṛtitattva Raghunandana frequently mentions his teacher’s views with the words ‘iti Gurucaraṇāḥ’. Vide for example, (vol. I) Tithi pp. 31, 85, Mala° p. 769, Saṁskāra p. 873, (vol. II) Ekādaśī pp. 5, 103. In two places of the Yajurvedīśrāddhatattva (vol. II, pp. 493 and 500) he mentions the Śrāddha–Candrikā of his guru and in the Yajurvedi-vṛṣotsargatattva (vol. II, p. 640) he mentions ‘Ācārya-cūḍāmaṇi’ along with Hariśvara, Paśupati and Rāmadatta.

Dāyabhāga published by Pandit Bharatacandraśiromaṇi in his edition of the Dāyabhāga with commentaries. It is very likely that Raghunandana wrote a commentary on the Dāyabhāga. Unless strong grounds are shown to doubt the authorship of Raghunandana, we may concede that he wrote it.

On Jimūtavāhana, his work and times one may read with profit Rai Bahadur Manmohan Chakravarti's learned contributions to the 'History of Smṛti in Bengal and Mithilā' in J. A. S. B. (New Series) Vol. XI (pub. in 1916) pp. 311-327.

As to Jimūtavāhana's time there is a sharp divergence of views among scholars. Jimūtavāhana mentions Dhāreśvara Bhojadeva in his three works and Govindarāja in the Dāyabhāga (XI. 2. 22-23. Jiv. ed. 1893). Vide above under Govindarāja (p. 657 n. 897a.). Therefore he cannot be placed earlier than about 1125 A. D. The divergence of views among scholars concerns the latest date to which he is to be assigned. M. M. Chakravarti (J.A.S.B. vol. XI. pp. 322-324) points out that the Kālaviveka of Jimūtavāhana is quoted in the Durgotsavaviveka of Śūlapāṇi and therefore Jimūtavāhana cannot be placed later than the end of the 14th century A. D. Another argument for an early date is supplied by the astronomical references in the Kālaviveka. It may be noted that in the Kālaviveka (the earliest of his three works) he refers to the rising of the star Agastya (Canopus) in his own day in his homeland in Rādhā and in Ujjayinī. He says¹⁰¹⁸ 'the rising of Canopus takes place on different days according to the country (in which an observer resides); to illustrate, that star is first seen in Rādhā when seven days are yet to run of the month of Bhādrapada, while in Ujjayinī it rises when only four days of Bhādrapada are yet to run; again he notes that Agastya is seen rising in Ujjayinī when twenty-six days of Leo have passed away and in Rādhā, Canopus is first seen rising when twenty-three days of the sign of Leo are past. Here it is clear that he is referring to the appearance of heavenly bodies in his own day. In other passages of the Kālaviveka, where there are astronomical references to heavenly bodies we should presume that he refers to what he himself saw or knew personally (unless there are clear indications to the contrary in the passage itself or near it). For example, he refers to the eighth day after the Sun's entering in Tulā (Libra) in the Śaka year 1014 (i. e. 1092 A. D.) and the seventeenth day after the Sun entered the sign of Tulā in the year 1013 (i. e. 1091 A. D.). Probably these dates may refer to his boyhood or youth.^{1018a}

80. Aparārka

On the smṛti of Yājñavalkya Aparāditya wrote a voluminous commentary styled Aparārka-Yājñavalkīya-dharmaśāstranibandha (published in two volumes by the Ānandāśrama Press, Poona, 1903 and 1904). In a verse¹⁰¹⁹ at the end and in the colophons the author is called Aparāditya, a Śilāhāra king, born in the family of Jīmūtavāhana of the Vidyādhara race. In the introductory¹⁰²⁰ fifth verse also the author is styled 'an ornament of the family of Jīmūta' and is highly eulogised for his devotion to Śiva and his brilliant intellect.

The Śilāhāras had a long history for several centuries in India, roughly between the Tāpī river and parts of Goa and present Mysore. There were three main branches, but as they were feudatories and did not aspire to imperial title, they were generally referred to as 'Mahāmaṇḍaleśvara' and did not rule over extensive territories. The late Professor A. S. Altekar contributed an exhaustive paper on the Śilāhāras to the 'Indian Culture' (Vol. II for 1935-36, pp. 393-428) with a list of Śilāhāra Inscriptions on pp. 43-4330). Here only a brief account will be set out. One branch of Śilāhāras ruled over North Konkan from about 800 A. D. to about 1265 A. D. A number of copper plates and Inscriptions on stone of this branch had been published when Dr. Altekar wrote. The pedigree begins with Kapardin (800-825 A. D.) and ends with Someśvara (1240-1265 A. D.). This branch ruled over parts of what is now Surat district and over the present districts of Thana, Alibag and parts of the Ratnagiri District, their capitals being Thana and Purī. Vide I. C. vol. II. p. 402 for a complete genealogy of this line and their chronology. There were two kings in this branch called Aparārka (I in about 1110-1140 A. D.) and Aparārka or Aparāditya (II in 1170-1195 A. D.). The most important records of this branch (with which alone we are concerned when dealing with Aparārka as a commentator on Yāj.) are those in J. B. B. R. A. S. vol. XXI pp. 505-16, ed. by Prof. K. B. Pathak of the year Śake 1049 (1127 A. D.) and in A. B. O. R. I. vol. V. pp. 169-70 edited by Mr. Diskalkar.¹⁰²¹ About 29 plates and inscriptions of this branch are set out by Prof. Altekar (I. C. vol. II on pp. 430-32) and on p. 402 of the same the names of all the kings of this branch with dates are mentioned. The two other branches were (I) of the Śilāhāras of South Konkan as in E. I. Vol. III. pp. 292-302 (the Kharepatan plates of Raṭṭarāja of Śake 930, 1008 A. D.); (2) and the other ruling over territories of what are now parts of Satara and Belgaum Districts and the State of Kolhapur (vide E. I. vol. III pp. 207-216 of śake 1065 i. e. 1143 A. D.). There is no Aparāditya in both these branches. The Śilāhāras describe themselves as Tagarapuravarādhiśvara. Greek writers like Ptolemy located Tagara to the north-east of Paithan. Dr. Fleet (JRAS vol. IV p. 281) conjectures that it is Ter, a place about 95 miles South-East of Paithan.

1021 This inscription comes from Somuāth in Kathiawad and hence it is dated in Vikrama year 1176 (i. e. Caitra śuddha 14 Sunday 1119-20 A. D.) and the grant is of a Vāṭikā (modern Vāḍī in sthānakiya-pātana i. e. in Thana by a mahāmātya Lakṣmaṇanāyaka, son of Bhāskaranāyaka.

The most relevant documents for our purpose are those of Aparārka or Aparāditya (literally the Sun of the Western direction). The name of the family is variously spelt in the Inscriptions viz. as Śilāhāra, Śālār, Siyalār, Selar. There is a place called Śelārvādī near Poona. The first name is rather ancient. It occurs in the Sanskrit drama called Nāgānanda composed by the famous Emperor Harṣadeva (first half of 7th century A. D.). The name was taken to mean 'who offered himself as food on a stone-slab'. The drama is based on the legend that Jīmūtavāhana, son of Jīmūtakeṭu, offered himself as prey to Garuḍa who used to devour every day a nāga on a stone-slab. The drama describes Goddess Gaurī (consort of Śiva) to be the patroness of *Vidyādhara*s, from whom was descended Jīmūtavāhana. The colophons at the end of the three sections of the Yājñavalkyasmṛti mention this legendary matter. It is noteworthy that in the Akalkot Inscription of Śilāhāra Indrarasa (E. I. vol. 27, p. 63) it is pointed out by the editor of the record that there are no doubt three well-known branches of *Śilāhāra*s but there are seven other branches also.

As regards Aparārka there are the grants in ABORI vol. V p. 169, the Vadavali grant of Śake 1049 (1127-28 A. D.), and JBBRAS vol. XXI, pp. 506-517.

Aparārka's work, like the Mitākṣarā, though professedly a commentary on Yāj., is really in the nature of a digest. It is far more voluminous than the Mit. It quotes profusely from the Gṛhya and Dharmasūtras and the metrical smṛtis. Several features distinguish it from the Mit. The Mit. is generally very chary of quoting from the Purāṇas, while Aparārka contains long extracts sometimes extending over pages from several Purāṇas, viz. the Ādipurāṇa, the Ādityapurāṇa, the Kūrma, the Kālikāpurāṇa, Devī, Nandi, Nṛsimha, Padma, Brahma, Brahmaṇḍa, Bhaviṣyat, Bhaviṣyottara, Matsya, Mārkaṇḍeya, Līṅga, Varāha, Vāmana, Vāyu, Viṣṇu, Viṣṇudharmottara, Śivadharmottara, Skanda. From the Purāṇas hundreds of verses are cited. The Vāmana on pp. 364-365 on special gifts in the twelve months from Māgha and Śivadharmottra (p. 274) are quoted only once and the Kūrma and Līṅga are quoted only thrice each, but about four hundred verses are quoted from the Matsyapurāṇa alone, about 160 from the Brahmapurāṇa, about 100 from the Bha- viśyat and so on. The index at the end of the printed Aparārka gives the names of the various smṛtikāras quoted in the work. Another feature not found in the Mit. is that Aparārka quotes long passages of the Dharmasūtras and explains them at length, e. g. on Yāj. III. 294 (p. 1205) he quotes Gautama (Dh. S. 20. 2-9) and then offers a lengthy explanation; on Yāj. III. 294-295, he quotes long passages of Vasiṣṭha (Dh. S. 15. 11-14 and 17-21) and gives detailed explanations of them. It is probable he had not before him commentaries on these dharmasūtras. Several hundred verses are quoted from the Manusmṛti. The Dharmasūtras of Āpastamba, Gautama, Vasiṣṭha, Viṣṇu, Bodhāyana, Devala, Paiṭhīnasi, Śaṅkha, Śaṅkhalikhita and Hārīta are profusely quoted. Similarly, Nārada, Bṛhaspati and Kātyāyana, Parāśara, Yama (quoted over 100 times mostly on ācāra and prāyaścitta sections) are quoted profusely. It appears from the way that Śaṅkha and Śaṅkhalikhita are quoted that Aparārka had before him two separate works, one of Śaṅkha (in which sūtras and verses occur almost in equal numbers) and of Śaṅkhalikhita in which prose passages vastly predominate and verses occur rarely. In the 99 references to pages where Śaṅkha is mentioned he is quoted in prose on pp. 118, 119, 123, 150, 156, 249, 260, 262-63, 274, 694, 717, 718, 741, 842, 875, 882, 944, 1025, 1057, 1066, 1077, 1089, 1094, 1117, 1121, 1148, 1153, 1154, 1158, 1175, 1210, 1241. Śaṅkha-Likhitau are mentioned about 63 times, but verses are rare. On p. 224 there is a quotation from Śaṅkhalikhitau in which there is a verse first, followed by a prose passage. On p. 896 at first there is a verse passage (1½ verses) followed by a prose extract on the same topic. On p. 1149 there is a prose passage of Śaṅkhalikhita followed by a half verse attributed to Śaṅkha. On p. 1154.¹⁰²² there is a passage of Śaṅkha followed by another prose from Śaṅkhalikhita (the first word being the same in both). There are similar cases where Śaṅkhalikhitau are quoted and then Śaṅkha is quoted or vice versa on the same matter (vide note below).^{1022a} I collected about 40 years ago passages

It is remarkable that Aparārka names twelve Smṛtikāras with the prefix 'vṛddha' viz. Gārgya, Gautama, Parāśara, Pārāśara, Pracetas, Bṛhaspati, Manu (24 times), Yājñavalkya (ten times), Vasiṣṭha (16 times), Vyāsa, Śātātapa (19 times,) and Hārīta (twice). He also quotes Laghu-Yama, Laghu-Viṣṇu and Laghu-Hārīta (9 times); and also Bṛhat-Pracetas (thrice), Bṛhad-yama (once), Bṛhan-Manu (once) and Bṛhad-Viṣṇu (thrice). About eighty verses are expressly quoted from the Mahābhārata and only seven from the Rāmāyaṇa (one on p. 385, two on p. 875 and four on p. 881). On p. 11 he gives brief summaries in the style of the Śāṅkarabhāṣya of the tenets of the Śaiva, Pāśupata, Pāñcarātra, Sāṅkhya and Yoga systems. In one place he sets out the arguments of those who hold that correct knowledge alone leads to mokṣa and of those who hold that a combination of correct knowledge and works is essential for mokṣa and leaves his readers to choose for themselves whatever view they take.¹⁰²³ It is remarkable that, while even the Mit. names at least six nibandhakāras on dharmaśāstra viz. Asahāya, Viśvarūpa, Bhāruci, Śrīkara, Medhātithi and Dhāreśvara. Aparārka observes a studied silence in the matter of citing the names of his predecessors. He employs such vague expressions as kecit, anye, apare, though he cites views that were ascribed by the Mit. and others to Dhāreśvara and others, e. g. on pp. 741–42 he says¹⁰²⁴ that the text of Yāj. ‘patnī duhitarah’ according to some refers to the widow who submits to niyoga (this is the view of Dhāreśvara); on p. 744 he refers to the view of some that the word duhitṛ in Yāj. means only the appointed daughter (putrikā). This last was the view of Viśvarūpa and Śrīkara. On p. 761 he refers to the reading of some in Yāj. II. 150 as ‘sāmāntā sthavirā gaṇah’ which is found in Viśvarūpa (II. 154) and not in the Mit. Aparārka names (p. 926) a Vāgbhaṭa-smṛtisaṃgraha and a Smṛti-mīmāṃsā of Jaimini (p. 206) from which two verses are quoted, variant readings therein are noticed and detailed explanations thereof are offered. He refers to several works and authors on astronomy and astrology such as Garga, Kriyāśraya (p. 872), Sāravali. On pp. 570 and 572 of the printed text occur two references to a pustaka of Rājānaka Śitikanṭha.¹⁰²⁵ That was probably a marginal note in a ms., the copyist or owner of which found on comparison with another ms. belonging to Rājānaka Śitikanṭha additional matter. Aparārka quotes from Bhaṭṭa (i. e. Kumārila-bhaṭṭa).¹⁰²⁶ Aparārka does not appeal as frequently to the doctrines of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā as the Mit. does and he does not generally enter into acute discussions of Pūrvamīmāṃsā in its application to Dharmaśāstra as the Mit. does. Here and there he mentions a few terms that are often employed in Pūrvamīmāṃsā-discussions, e. g. on p. 470 on Yāj. I. 226–228 he employs the words ‘aupadeśika’ and ‘ātideśika.’ Similarly, on Yāj. I. 260 (on Trayodaśīśrāddha in the rainy season) he enters upon a discussion of the terms ‘prasajyapratishedha’ and ‘paryudāsa’. On Yāj. III. 243 he quotes the Nyāya ‘sarvaśākhā-

But such references to Mīmāṃsā and nyāyas are rare in Aparārka's work. For explanation of 'prasajyapratishedha' and 'paryudāsa', vide H. of Dh. vol. V. pp. 1247-49 and foot-notes 2027-2030 and for Ātidesika and 'Aupadesika' vide H. of Dh. vol. V. pp. 1321-23 and note 2173. It must be said that Aparārka is much inferior to the Mit. in lucid exposition, in dialectic skill, in subtlety of argument and in the ordered presentation of heterogenous material.

Some of the views that are usually associated with Jimūtavāhana were propounded by Aparārka also. Aparārka bases the right to take a deceased person's property on the superior spiritual benefit conferred by the claimant on the person deceased.¹⁰²⁷ In several other respects also Aparārka differs from the Mit., though in general the two closely agree. For example, Aparārka prefers the father over the mother as an heir (p. 745); Aparārka explains the word 'apratisthitā' in Gautama's text (18. 22) as 'one who is issueless or is indigent or a widow,' while the Mit. explains it to mean only 'indigent.'

Whether Aparārka knew the Mit. is a vexed question. Some scholars, while holding that Aparārka does criticize the Mit., explain away the non-mention of the Mit. by saying that the Indian etiquette required a royal author not to mention the name of the servant of another king, while the existence of the master himself was ignored (Dr. Jolly in Journal of Indian History, vol. III. p.17). It is doubtful whether any such etiquette ever existed and further Aparārka studiously avoids the express mention of every ancient commentator. Works of royal authors, such as the Madana-pārijāta or the Sarasvativilāsa, do not appear to have followed the etiquette if it ever existed. Besides, Vijñāneśvara was a Parivrājaka (sannyāsin) and not the servant of any king. In my opinion the Mit. was known to Aparārka. Aparārka reads Yāj. III. 17 as 'Vaitānopāsanāḥ kāryāḥ kriyāśca śrūticoditāḥ,' explains the first word as a karmadhāraya compound, gives the explanation of this verse offered by others, disapproves of it and then says that others read 'śrūticodanāt' for 'śrūticoditāḥ'.¹⁰²⁸ Viśvarūpa reads 'vaitānikāśrayāḥ...śrūtidarśanāt' and offers no comment on this verse beyond the word 'spāṣṭārthametad' (it is III. 15 in the Trivandrum ed.). The Mit. does contain the reading referred to by Aparārka and the śrūti passage 'yāvaj-jīvam' etc. Aparārka refers on Yāj. III. 254 to the reading 'samām'¹⁰²⁹ adopted by some, says that the latter explain the verse as prescribing the penance for three years and observes that the verse of Manu (IX. 92) does not apply, as the latter say, to him alone whose palate has merely come in contact with liquor (without his having actually swallowed it). Viśvarūpa (III. 248) does not explain the verse as prescribing a three years' penance nor does he refer to the contact of wine with the palate. The Mit., however, contains both these particulars. On p. 1084 also¹⁰³⁰ Aparārka seems to be referring to the view of the Mit.

If one compares the portion of the Mit. on the section on rājadharma (Yāj. I. 309–368) with the commentary of Aparārka on the same section (verses 307–366) and bears in mind the fact that a reigning king is credited with composing the latter, one would be struck by the poverty of explanations in Aparārka's work as compared with the Mitākṣarā.

The date of Aparārka can be settled within very narrow limits. The *Smṛticandrikā*¹⁰³¹ in several places quotes the views of Aparārka and sometimes contrasts them with those of the Mit. The Smṛticandrikā refutes the view of Aparārka that the words of Yāj. 'jyeṣṭham vā śreṣṭhabhāgena' are meant to comprehend all various modes of giving an additional share (uddhāravibhāga) to the eldest son on partition mentioned by Manu and others and it follows Aparārka's explanation of 'apraṭiṣṭhitā' in Gautama's text. It will be shown later on that the Smṛticandrikā must have been composed about 1200 A. D. If the above conclusion that Aparārka knew the Mit. and criticizes it be correct, Aparārka must have flourished after 1100 A. D. and before 1200 A. D. Here epigraphical research comes to our help. We know from the commentary that the author Aparāditya was a Śilāhāra prince of Jīmūtavāhana's family. Incriptions of the Śilāhāras show that there were three branches of that family, one ruling in the northern Konkan at Thana, the second in the southern Konkan and the third at Kolhapur.

Inscriptions of the northern Śilāhāras speak of two kings who are named Aparādityadeva. In JBBRAS vol. XXI, pp. 505–516 there is a grant dated śake 1049 (expired) of Aparādityadeva who donated a village named Vaḍavali in the Thana District to a brāhmaṇa studying the Mādhyandina recension of the Vājasaneyasaṁhitā. The king is there styled once as Aparājita and several times as Aparādityadeva. He was son of Anantadeva and grand-son of Nāgārjuna and traced his descent to Jīmūtavāhana, son of Jīmūtaketu, far famed in legend and literature as an exemplar of self-sacrifice,¹⁰³² e. g. in the drama Nāgānanda. In this inscription Aparādityadeva is styled Śilāhāranarendra and Jīmūtavāhanānvayaprasūta as in the colophon of the commentary on Yāj. (vide note 1020 above) and also Mahāmaṇḍaleśvara and Tagarapura-parameśvara. In the Annals of the Bhandarkar Institute, vol. V, part 2, p. 169 there is a grant made at Somnath-Paṭan in Kathiawar of Vikramsaṁvat 1176 (1119–20 A. D.) while Aparādityadeva of the Śilāhāra family was reigning, almost in the same words as in the grant in JBBRAS vol. XXI p. 505. Therefore it appears that the dates of Aparādityadeva I referred to in these grants fall between 1115 and 1130 A. D. It was most probably this king who composed the commentary on Yāj. We know from the Śrīkaṇṭhacarita of Maṅkha that king Aparāditya¹⁰³³ of Konkan sent Tejakaṇṭha on an embassy to an assembly of learned men in Kashmir during the reign of Jayasimha of Kashmir (1129 to 1150 A. D.). Aparārka's commentary continues to be the standard law-book used by the pandits of Kashmir (Jolly's Tagore Law Lectures p. 24). Aparārka's work betrays familiarity with Kashmir. I have already noticed the reference to Rājānaka Śitikaṇṭha above. On a passage from Brahmapurāṇa speaking of a śrāddha at Mārtaṇḍa-pādamūla, Aparārka notes (p. 903) that¹⁰³⁴ the latter is well known in Kashmir. It is, therefore, most probable that the work was composed about 1125 and was introduced into Kashmir when an embassy was sent from the Konkan king to Kashmir in the reign of Jayasimha. The dates of the second Aparāditya range from 1184 to 1187 A. D. (Vide Bombay Gazetteer vol. XIII, part 2, p. 427; JBBRAS vol. XII. pp. 333-335 for an inscription of Aparāditya dated 1109 śake i. e. 1187 A. D. (wherein he is styled Koṅkaṇa-cakravarti). It is difficult to hold that this was the author of the commentary on Yāj. The Smṛticandrikā is mentioned by Hemādri and hence could not be later than the first quarter of the thirteenth century. Therefore if Aparārka who is frequently cited by the Smṛticandrikā were to be regarded as having flourished about 1187 A. D., very little distance is left between Aparārka's commentary and the Smṛticandrikā in order that the former should come to be looked upon as an authority by the latter. Therefore it appears probable that Aparārka wrote the commentary on Yāj in the first half of the 12th century (about 1125 A. D.).

The commentary of Aparārka is in mere extent nearly double of the Mitākṣarā. It quotes very long extracts, particularly from Purāṇas, on several verses of Yāj. such as on I. 208 (on Godāna, gift of a cow) where he quotes lengthy extracts from Viṣṇudharmottara-purāṇa, Bhaviṣyottara-purāṇa on different dānas (called Dhenus), then he quotes on 16 kinds of Dānas (called Mahādānas) from whole chapters of Matsya, of Bhaviṣyottara, from Viṣṇudharmasūtra (almost the whole of chap. 90) and from some other Purāṇas. On Yāj. I. 226-228 he has an exposition on pp. 463-477; On Yāj. I. 252-253 (on Sapiṇḍikaraṇa-śrāddha) he expends 14 pages (pp. 528-542). On the Prāyaścitta section also his expositions in certain cases are very long e. g. on III. 267-268 he devotes pp. 1106-1127, on III. 289-290 he devotes pp. 1152-1184. His quotations from Devala and Hārīta (both in verse and prose) are very extensive. If some scholar undertook the work of collecting together even all the prose passages of Devala, Saṅkhalikhita and Hārīta drawn from the several commentaries and nibandhas it would be a large and valuable work. For example, if one collects only the prose passages of Devala cited in Aparārka they will cover about five closely printed pages of the same work. Similarly, Hārīta is profusely quoted in prose and verse by Aparārka e. g. pages 937, 1113, 1116, 1152 have long prose passages.

81. Pradīpa

The Smṛtyarthasāra of Śrīdhara enumerates the Pradīpa among its authorities after the Kāmadhenu.¹⁰³⁵ The Smṛticandrikā in a highly paronomastic verse appears to refer to a work called Pradīpa.¹⁰³⁶ The Sarasvatīvilāsa¹⁰³⁷ quotes the view of the Pradīpa that even the suretyship debt of a person must be paid by his grandson. The Jīvatpitrkā-nirṇaya¹⁰³⁸ of Rāmakṛṣṇa (about 1600 A. D.) quotes the Pradīpa on the question that when brothers are separated they should perform separately the annual śrāddha of their father and other ancestors. Nandapaṇḍita in his commentary on the¹⁰³⁹ Śaḍaśīti cites the view of the Pradīpa that the sūtra of Paiṭhīnasi (a woman delivered of a son bathing after twenty nights from delivery is entitled to perform all religious rites, while one who is delivered of a female child is so entitled after a month) applies to the wife of one who is not a dikṣita (one who has consecrated the Vedic fires). It has been shown above (note 881) how the Pradīpa criticizes Bhavadeva, according to the Vīramitrodaya, which, in several places, cites the views of the Pradīpa (vide pp. 78, 89, 215 etc.).

The foregoing discussion shows that the Pradīpa was probably an independent work on vyavahāra, śrāddha, śuddhi and other topics. Being mentioned by the Smṛtyarthasāra and Smṛticandrikā, it cannot be later than about 1150 A. D. As it criticizes Bhavadeva it cannot be earlier than 1100 A. D.

Hemādri¹⁰⁴⁰ refers to the explanation of the word kalā occurring in a text of Gārgya offered by a Smṛtipradīpa. It is not unlikely that he means the same work as is referred to by others as Pradīpa.

82. The Smṛtyarthasāra of Śrīdhara

This well-known work was published by the Ānandāśrama Press, Poona, in 1912 A. D. The principal topics discussed by it are : the acts allowed in former ages but forbidden in the kali age ; the number of saṁskāras, the detailed treatment of Upanayana, the duties of Brahmacārin, holidays, marriage, its various forms, prohibitions on the ground of sapiṇḍa relation, discussion about gotra and pravara, daily duties such as śauca, ācamana brushing the teeth, bathing, the five yajñas, daily saṁdhyā, daily worship ; detailed treatment of śrāddha, proper time, articles, and brāhmaṇas to be invited at it, various kinds of śrāddha, discussion about various tithis ; intercalary month ; forbidden and allowed food ; purification of various substances and of one's own body ; impurity on birth and death ; rites after death ; rules about saṁnyāsa ; prāyaścittas for various grades of sins and lapses.

From the colophon it appears that Śrīdhara was himself a performer of Vedic sacrifices and was the son of Nāgabhartṛ Viṣṇubhaṭṭa of the Viśvāmitra gotra. This colophon does not however occur in the ancient ms. of the work in the Deccan College collection (No. 44 of 1870-71) dated saṁvat 1495 (1438-39 A. D.). In the 2nd introductory verse (vide H. of Dh. vol. I. pt.1 note 749) the author tells us that Śrīkaṇṭha and Śrīkarācārya filled the gaps in the smṛtis that were scattered about (i. e. they composed digests thereof with their own remarks). He also says (vide note 839 above) that he relies on the Kāmadhenu, the Pradīpa, the Abdhi, the Kalpavṛkṣa (i. e. Kalpataru), Kalpalatā, Śambhu, Draviḍa, Kedāra and Lollaṭa and the various commentators of Manu and other smṛtikāras. In dealing with saṁnyāsa he says that he would treat of the proce-ture of sainnyāsa following the opinion of Govindarāja and of Baudhāyana.¹⁰⁴¹ At the beginning of some sections (p. 48 and p. 49 on śrāddha and prāyaścitta respectively) he again repeats the verse about Kāmadhenu and the other authorities. The Abdhi named therein seems to be the Smṛtimahārṇava quoted in Hemādri, in the Vivādaratnākara and other works. He refers to Mitākṣarā also (p. 56). For Lollaṭa see above (under Medhātithi). It appears that Śrīdhara also composed another and a larger work on dharmaśāstra. For example, Hemādri who¹⁰⁴² knew the Smṛtyarthasāra quotes certain views as Śrīdhara's which do not occur in the Smṛtyarthasāra. The Prayogapārijāta, the Nirṇayasindhu, and the Saṁskārakaustubha quote the views of a work called Śrīdhariya which are not found in the Smṛtyarthasāra. Śrīdhara seems to have been a writer from southern India.

The date of the Smṛtyarthasāra can be fixed within approximate limits. As it names the Mit., the Kāmadhenu, the Kalpataru and Govindarāja, it is later than 1150 A. D. The Smṛticandrikā and Hemādri¹⁰⁴³ both quote it as an authority. For example, the Smṛticandrikā says that the Smṛtyarthasāra holds that the Tulasī is among the things the use of which is to be avoided in śrāddha. Vide p. 435 of the Śrāddha section of the

Therefore the Smṛtyarthasāra must have been composed between 1150 and 1200 A. D.

Aniruddhabhaṭṭha is one of the early and eminent Bengal writers on Dharmaśāstra. His Hāralatā was published in the Bibliotheca Indica Series (1909) and his Pitṛdayitā alias Karmopadeśinīpaddhati was recently published by the Sanskrit Sahitya Parishad at Calcutta (No. 6).

The Hāralatā deals with impurity on birth and death, with the acts allowed to be done or forbidden during impurity, with periods of impurity on death in a distant land or on the deaths of infants and women, with rules when two periods of impurity overlap each other, with impurity on the death of sapiṇḍas, the meaning of sapiṇḍa, persons who have not to observe periods of impurity, cremation and burial, offering of water to the deceased, observances during mourning, persons entitled to perform rites after death, observances after the period of mourning, persons to whom no water should be offered.

The Pitṛdayitā is a work intended for the followers of the Sāmaveda. Its contents are :— the duties on rising from bed, brushing the teeth, bath, samdhya, tarpaṇa, vaiśvadeva pārvana śrāddha, eulogy of gifts, sapiṇḍikaraṇa and other śrāddhas, antyeṣṭi and rites during the days of mourning after death, the letting loose of a bull. The printed work appears to be the same that is described in the I. O. Cat. at p. 474 as Karmopadeśinī. But the India Office Ms. appears to have certain various readings e. g. a reference to Kāmadhenu and Kalpataru at the end of the section on antyeṣṭi does not occur in the printed text.¹⁰⁴⁴

The first verse of the Hāralatā states that the author consulted the commentaries on Manu and other Smṛtis.¹⁰⁴⁵ Besides the well-known smṛtikāras such as Manu, Yājñavalkya, Nārada etc. the authors and works named in the Hāralatā are :— Asahāya as the Bhāṣyakāra of Gautama, Kāmadhenu, Govindarāja, Bhojadeva, Viśvarūpa and Śaṅkhadhara. The *Pitṛdayitā*¹⁰⁴⁶ says that it was composed after consulting the Gobhilagrhyasūtra, the Chāndogyapariśiṣṭa, smṛtis, the śāstras of Gautama and Vasiṣṭha and various saṁgraha works. In the work itself, besides the above, Kātyāyana, Varāhapurāṇa and smaller (svalpa) Matsya-purāṇa are quoted.

From the last verse¹⁰⁴⁷ of the Hāralatā we know that Aniruddha was a resident of Vihārapāṭaka on the bank of the Ganges and was a student of the doctrines of Bhaṭṭa (Kumārila). From the colophons¹⁰⁴⁸ at the end of the Hāralatā and the Pitṛdayitā it appears that he was a Dharmādhyakṣa and a Cāmpāhaṭṭiya (a section among Varendras) Brāhmaṇa of Bengal. The ms. in the India Office has a colophon in which Aniruddha is styled Dharmādhikaraṇika (Judge). From the Dānasāgara of Ballālasena we learn (verses 6 and 7) that Aniruddha was a guru of the king of Bengal and rendered assistance in the composition of that work. The *Dānasāgara*¹⁰⁴⁹ was composed in śake 1091 (i. e. 1169 A. D.). From this it appears that Aniruddha was at the height of his fame in 1168, i. e. his literary activity may be placed in the third quarter of the 12th century A. D. This conclusion is corroborated by the fact that Hāralatā names Bhojadeva, Govindarāja, and the Kāmadhenu as authorities and is therefore later than 1100 A. D. The Hāralatā is named as an authority in the Śuddhiviveka of Rudradhara.¹⁰⁵⁰ The Śrāddha-kriyākaumudī of Govindānanda (about 1510–1545 A. D.) frequently quotes Aniruddha and includes him among ancient authors.¹⁰⁵¹ In the Śuddhitattva of Raghunandana, Aniruddha is referred to in the plural as a mark of respect and his view is explained. In several other places the Hāralatā^{1051a} is quoted and rarely criticized in the Smṛtitattva :— vide (vol. I) Śrāddha p. 321 (cri.); (Vol. II.) Udvāha p. 108, Śuddhi pp. 238, 250 (cri.), 259, 262, 275, 291, 314. The Pitṛdayitā is frequently quoted by him, (vol. I). On Tithi (p. 13 cri.), p. 176; Śrāddha pp. 200, 202, 231; Āhnika p. 358 (stating that the Pitṛdayitā quoted Yogiyājñavalkya VII. 162–165, VI. 27–28), 289, 393, p. 421 (cri.), 424; and (vol. II. Śuddhi p. 314, Yajurvedi-śrāddha p. 497). Aniruddhabhaṭṭa is frequently mentioned without naming any one of his works in (vol. I) Śrāddha-tattva pp. 209 (cri.), 220, 221, 222 (cri. as ' heyam '), 241 (cri. as ' pramāṇaśūnya '), 227 (cri.), Āhnika (p. 395), Mala° p. 801; Ekādaśī vol. II. p. 44. There is a commentary on the Hāralatā called Sandarbhasūcikā composed by Acyuta Cakravartin, son of Haridāsa Tarkācārya (vide I. O. Cat. p. 567, No. 1753). In JASB (New Series) vol. XI. p. 362 the com. of Acyuta is described as Sandarbhasūtikā which seems to be a misprint for ' sūcikā '.

Raghunandana in his Ekādaśītattva¹⁰⁵² (vol. II. p. 44) makes a casual but very striking remark. The question is about what day as Ekādaśī should be observed when the latter is mixed up with Daśamī (tithi) or 12th. Vācaspati-Miśra relying on a verse in Viṣṇurahasya held that Ekādaśī mixed up with tenth should be observed as fast by one who does so for securing some object, while Ekādaśī mixed with 12th should be observed as fast by one who is niṣkāma (who has no object in view). Raghunandana replies that Viṣṇurahasya has been declared as apocryphal by the Dānasāgara claimed to have been composed by Aniruddha Bhaṭṭa (as stated in the Dānasāgara itself). Raghunandana probably held and wants to suggest that the Dānasāgara was really composed by Aniruddha and allowed to be put forward in the name of his patron, king Ballālasena. This will be discussed under the heading 'Ballālasena and Lakṣmaṇasena'.

In the proceedings of the ASB (for 1869 p. 317) a Cāturmāsyapaddhati of Aniruddha is noted. Mitra notices a work called Bhagavattattvamñjarī on Vaiṣṇava philosophy written by Aniruddha (Mitra's Notices vol. III. p. 155, No. 2700).

84. Ballālasena and Lakṣmaṇasena

These two famous kings of Bengal (father and son) compiled five works on Dharmaśāstra viz. Ācārasāgara, Pratiṣṭhāsāgara, Vratasāgara, Dānasāgara, and Adbhutasāgara. Of these, all except Adbhutasāgara, were compiled by Ballālasena; the fifth, Adbhutasāgara, was begun by Ballālasena, but it was completed by Lakṣmaṇasena.

When the first edition of the H. of Dh. (first volume) was published in 1930, the only published work of Ballālasena was 'Adbhutasāgara' about which we are told (vide under Halāyudha above) that it was begun by Ballālasena in śake 1090 (i. e. 1168-69 A. D.) but that he passed away before the work was finished and that it was completed by king Lakṣmaṇasena, son of Ballālasena. The Dānasāgara is a huge digest on Dāna (gifts).

It has been edited and published in the B. I. Series (1956) by Mr. (now Doctor) Bhabatosh Bhattacharya, with a Preface, contents in Sanskrit, Introduction in English (pp. xv-LXVIII), Index of Vedic Mantras, and of non-Vedic quarter verses and prose quotations. The text alone covers 722 pages. There are 75 *Āvartas*¹⁰⁵³ (chapters) and 1375 kinds of gifts have been dealt with. The Editor gives a summary of 18 chapters that are the most important of the 75 chapters (on pp. XL-LXVIII of Intro.). The Vratasāgara is mentioned on pp. 52 and 59 of Dānasāgara and Dr. Bhattacharya pointed out in 'Indian Culture' vol. XI for 1945 pp. 141-144 that the Kṛtyaratnākara cites two quotations from the Vratasāgara. Verses 55 and 56 of the printed 'Dānasāgara' refer to the Pratiṣṭhāsāgara and Ācārasāgara as already composed. The first (verse 55) says that reservoirs of water and temples of gods are not dilated upon in Dānasāgara, because they have been well dealt with in Pratiṣṭhāsāgara and verse 56 says that certain dānas mentioned in the 'Ādipurāṇa' are not fully dealt with in the Dānasāgara as they have been mentioned in the Ācārasāgara.

The Dānasāgara deals with the sixteen great dānas and other lesser gifts. The subjects dealt with by the Dānasāgara are as follows : eulogy of brāhmaṇas, eulogy of the merit arising from gifts, proper recipients of gifts, persons not fit to receive gifts, the nature of gifts, the donor, faith as to the utility of gifts, proper times and places for gifts, things proper to be donated, what cannot be gifted away, bad donations, religious rites and procedure followed in making gifts and in accepting them, the technical terms of the subject of gifts, the sixteen mahādānas, lesser dānas of various kinds (the author himself says at the end that he has described 1375 kinds of gifts), the names of various Purāṇas and their extent. The Dānasāgara contains extremely valuable information about the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas. As it quotes extensively from the Purāṇas, it serves as an excellent check for the textual restoration of Purāṇas. For example it says that the Bhāgavata, Brahmāṇḍa and Nāradiya Purāṇas do not contain dānavidhis and hence they are not drawn upon in the work. In another verse he says that it is well-known that the Viṣṇurahasya and Śivarahasya are of the nature of mere compilations and so have not been relied on in the work. The Devīpurāṇa, he says, is approved of by the heterodox systems and is not included in various lists of Purāṇas and upapurāṇas and hence it is not included in the Dānasāgara. He says that the subject of the dedication of reservoirs of water and of temples has been dealt with at length in the Pratiṣṭhā-sāgara, so it is omitted in the Dānasāgara and that the gifts made in accordance with the divisions of the year (into ayana, season, month, pakṣa &c.) are not spoken of in their entirety in the Dānasāgara, as they are described in the Ācārasāgara. The work is mentioned in the Dānaratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara and in the Nirṇayasindhu. His Adbhutasāgara has been printed by Messrs. Prabhakari and Co. (1905). The Authorities on which he relies therein are noted below.¹⁰⁵⁴ The adbhutasāgara is mentioned in Toḍarānandasamhitā-saukhyā and Nirṇayasindhu. This was his last work which he left unfinished and which was completed by his son Lakṣmaṇasena. It deals with the rites and observances appropriate on certain celestial and terrestrial portents for removing the evil foreboded by them.

The word 'adbhuta' occurs many times in the R̥gveda and the Nirukta I. 6 tries to explain it. Vide H. of Dh. Vol. V. pp. 719-738 for the development of the subject of śāntis against unfavourable occurrences and portents and pp. 740-746 for the meanings and disquisition on the three cognate words 'adbhuta, utpāta and nimitta.' Raghunandana quotes and illustrates a passage of the Adbhutasāgara (quoted below).¹⁰⁵⁵ The idea was that an unusual happening like an earth-quake occurs as a divine indication or warning of an impending calamity. Such a view was entertained even by Western people and poets till the end of the 18th century. The Cowper in his Task gives powerful support to such an idea. The Adbhutasāgara is mentioned by Raghunandana in vol. I of Jyotistattva, p. 704 and Malamāsa, p. 765.

In the present state of our knowledge it is impossible to prove to the satisfaction of scholars when the La. Sam. was started. If it was started on Lakṣmaṇasena's birth, it could have been done only by Ballālasena or by Lakṣmaṇasena himself when he became a king. But both of them though concerned with the Adbhutasāgara, several times refer only to the Śaka era as the notes show. If it was started by Lakṣmaṇasena he also does not mention any era as having been started by him and counted from his birth. He was concerned with the compilation of at least a portion of the Adbhutasāgara. In the E. I. Vol. 14, p. 156 (the Naihati grant) the pedigree starts from Sāmantasena (said to be a scion of the Cāndravamśa) and that grant also names the following rulers viz. Hemantasena, Vijayasena, Ballālasena, Lakṣmaṇasena. The latter lost Bengal and ruled for some years in North Bihar. In the confusion about the starting point of the La. Sam. it appears to the present author that the only safe course is to hold that the era probably started about the time when he left Bengal or some years after it.

Another vexed question is whether the Dānasāgara was composed by Ballālasena or really composed by Aniruddhabhaṭṭa, but was allowed to be passed off as composed by his patron. The answer depends upon a proper construction of verses 6-9 of the Introduction to the Dānasāgara. Verse 6 bestows high praise on Aniruddha, who was the guru of Ballāla, who was like Bṛhaspati, the guru of Indra, who was highly honoured in the land of Varendrī (North Bengal), whose eye in the form of his ever active brilliant and flashing intellect was fixed on brahman in the form of Sarasvatī (Goddess of Learning). Verses 7-8 convey that he (Ballāla) having learnt with great faith from that guru the essence of all Purāṇas and Smṛtis was desirous of composing a work on Dāna (gifts), yet his ardour, being cooled by doubts about the difficult decisions in the matter of Dharma, he began to wait upon brāhmaṇas, who were pleased by his service, and with his incessant association with them his mind became clear and his doubts vanished. King Ballāla benefitting by faith in the instruction imparted by his guru composed, for the good of the

Ballālasena began the work in 1090 śake and the Dānasāgara was composed in 1091 śake. Therefore Ballālasena's literary activity must be placed in the third quarter of the 12th century (vide notes 861, 862 above). Vide also IHQ vol. V, p. 133 for the date of Ballālasena.

It appears that Raghunandana believed that the Dānasāgara was really the work of Aniruddhabhaṭṭa though published in the name of Ballālasena. In the Dānasāgara itself it is distinctly stated that Ballālasena composed it under the directions of his guru 1056 The verses 6-9 would occupy much space; so only half of the last verse (9) is quoted here : श्रीबल्लाल नरेश्वरो विरचयत्येतं गुरोः शिक्षया । स्वप्रज्ञावधि दानसागरमयं श्रद्धावतां श्रेयसे ॥ He suggests that the (sāgara) ocean is vast, while his prajñā (intellect) is limited and even this limited work he compiled with the help of the instruction imparted by his guru and he had also the benefit of constant meetings with learned brāhmaṇas. The present author feels that this is a very straightforward statement of the facts. He says that he owes everything to the vast learning of his guru, but his intellect is limited (and not vast) and therefore the work he composed is necessarily limited to what his intellect understood from the ocean-like intellect of his guru. If Raghunandana means that Dānasāgara was wholly written by Aniruddha and Ballālasena was only a dummy or a figurehead, the present author thinks that he is wrong. He may have been swayed by some tradition floating in his day about the authorship. On the facts available the work is Ballālasena's, though the latter derived his knowledge from the teachings of his guru and from the learned brāhmaṇas of his time whom he gathered together for the purpose of writing the work.

The Dānasāgara is a model of a systematic work. He mentions the works he consulted (mainly Purāṇas, Upapurāṇas, Smṛtis, the two epics and Gopātha-Brāhmaṇa) and sets out the works he did not draw upon and the reasons therefor. He briefly enumerates 1375 dānas and the 15 main sections of the work.

He names 13 Purāṇas, 8 Upapurāṇas and 28 Smṛtis and three specified works viz. the two epics and the Gopātha-(Aniruddha).¹⁰⁵⁷ In the colophon he is styled mahārājādhirāja and niḥśaṅka-śaṅkara.

85. Harihara

From quotations in the Vivādaratnākara it appears that Harihara wrote on vyavahāra. For example, the Vivādaratnākara first quotes (on p. 220) the definition of 'saṁsaraṇa' given by Bṛhaspati and then cites three verses of Kātyāyana defining a catuṣaptha and a rājamārga and prescribing punishments for causing obstruction and committing nuisance thereon. Then it notices that the verse 'yas-tatra' cited by it from Kātyāyana is cited by Harihara as from Prajāpati when the topic immediately preceding is 'saṁsaraṇa'.¹⁰⁵⁸ The Vivādaratnākara quotes a sūtra of Śaṅkha-Likhita prescribing the punishment for sexual intercourse with a virgin against her will and Harihara's explanation of the word Brāhmaṇa, in all 52 works. At the end of the work (on p. 72), he names 46 works the opinions of which he considered and composed the Dānasāgara. The learned editor points this discrepancy in the Intro. (p. xxii).

The learned editor has spared no pains to make up the edition useful to scholars. I entirely agree with what he says about the late Professor Rangaswami Aiyangar's entirely ridiculous remark about the Dānasāgara containing a reference to Kalpataru (the work of Lakṣmīdhara) in verse 3 of the introductory verses and his remarks about what the great historian Dr. R. C. Majumdar's reading 'sārasvata-brāhmaṇāḥ' in verse 6 of the Introductory verses of the Dānasāgara (English Intro. p. xx foot-note 2). He has identified most of the quotations, but some have eluded him. For example on p. 17 the text quotes Vasiṣṭha's verse 'ye kṣānta-dāntāḥ ...', but the editor does not note that it is Vasiṣṭha-Dharmasūtra VI. 25.

dvyaṅgulaccheda'.¹⁰⁵⁹ From these it is clear that Harihara wrote some work on vyavahāra, which has not yet been recovered. He must have flourished earlier than 1300 A. D.

There is a commentary on the Pāraskaragṛhyasūtra composed by Harihara who is styled agnihotrin in the colophons. In one ms. copied in śake 1707 (1785–86 A. D.) he is described as the pupil of Vijñāneśvara. In the introductory second verse he says he relies on Vāsudeva. In the body of the work he refers (Gujarati Press edition) to Karkopādhyāya (p. 200), Kalpatarukāra, Renudīkṣita, and Vijñāneśvarācārya (p. 370). Therefore he is later than 1150 A. D. Harihara's views are mentioned by Hemādri,¹⁰⁶⁰ the Samaya-pradīpa¹⁰⁶¹ and Acārādarsa of Śrīdatta and in the Smṛtisāra of Harinātha. Therefore this Harihara must be earlier than 1250 A. D. Whether he was really the pupil of Vijñāneśvara is doubtful. In his bhāṣya Harihara refers to words current in Kanoj.¹⁰⁶² Hemādri mentions Harihara's explanation of nepālakambala wherein the latter says that it is well known among the northerners.¹⁰⁶³ Hariharapaddhati is frequently mentioned in the Smṛtitattva of Raghunandana; vide (vol. I.) Śrāddha p. 261, Āhnika p. 424, Malamāsa p. 745 (a verse is quoted); (vol. II.) Divya p. 593, Udvāha p. 132, Vrata p. 158 (name Harihara only). We have seen above that Harihara commented upon the Āśaucadaśaka of Vijñāneśvara. This fact together with his being not far from Vijñāneśvara's time may have led to the belief that he was a pupil of Vijñāneśvara. It appears probable that the jurist Harihara who flourished before 1300 and Harihara the bhāṣyakāra of Pāraskara who flourished between 1150 and 1250 A. D. are identical. The views ascribed to Harihara by Hemādri in his section on śrāddha are not found in the bhāṣya on Pāraskara. Therefore Hemādri is referring to some other work of Harihara. From a passage of Hemādri it appears that Harihara wrote after the Mahārṇava¹⁰⁶⁴ (Prakāśa). Hemādri also tells us that Harihara refuted the views of Jayantasvāmī on a certain verse.¹⁰⁶⁵ The same Harihara who commented on Pāraskara also wrote a commentary on Kātyāyana's Snānavidhisūtra wherein he mentions the Kalpatarukāra (vide D. C. ms. No. 101 of 1891-95). Several Hariharas are known. There is Hariharabhaṭṭācārya, the father of the great Bengal writer Raghunandana. A Hariharācārya composed an astrological work Samayapradīpa in śaka 1481 (1559-1560 A. D.).

86. The Smṛticandrikā of Devaṇṇabhaṭṭa

This is a well-known digest on Dharmaśāstra. An English translation of the portion of it which is concerned with dāyabhāga was published in 1867 by T. Krisnasvami Iyer at Madras. The text has been published by Mr. J. R. Gharpure (up to śrāddha) in Bombay and also in the Mysore Government Oriental Series (up to āśauca). In the following Mr. Gharpure's edition has been used and the Mysore edition for āśauca section.

The Smṛticandrikā published by Mr. Gharpure is a huge work of large size covering about 736 pages on the topics of some samskāras (88 pages), Āhnikā (144 pages), Vyavahāra (332 pages), and Śrāddha (172 pages). According to the colophons at the end of the sections, it appears that the author was called Devaṇṇa-bhaṭṭopādhyāya, son of Keśavāditya-bhaṭṭopādhyāya. The fifth introductory verse asserts that all that he writes is based on authoritative texts and that he has stated nothing purely relying on his own ideas (or imagination).¹⁰⁶⁶

The Smṛticāndrikā is a very extensive digest. It is almost the earliest (except the Kalpataru) among digests on dharmaśāstra of which mss. have yet been discovered. The printed text deals with the topics (kāṇḍas) of Samśkāra, Āhnikā, Vyavahāra, Śrāddha, Āśauca. It appears that he wrote on prāyaścitta also. In the colophons of mss. of the work the name of the author is variously written as Devanna, Devana, Devananda or Devagana (vide I. O. Cat. pp. 405-406). He is also described therein as the son of Keśavādityabhāṭṭa and as a Somayājī.

The Smṛticāndrikā quotes most profusely from numerous smṛtikāras and affords valuable assistance in reconstructing some of the smṛtis and checking mss. and editions thereof. For example, it quotes about 600 verses from Kātyāyana on vyavahāra and about the same number from Bṛhaspati. From Manu and Nārada more verses are quoted than even from Kātyāyana and Bṛhaspati. Among works, commentators and authors of digests named by it the following may be noted : Aparārka, Karmapradīpa which is the same as Gobhilasmṛti (II. 126-127) with slight variations (Anand. ed.), Devarāta, Devasvāmī, Āpastambakalpabhāṣyārthakāra (Āśauca p. 84), Dhāreśvara, Dharmabhāṣya, Dhūrtasvāmī, Pradīpa, Bhavanātha, Bhāṣya on Āpastamba Dharmasūtra, Dharmadīpa or Pradīpa (Āśauca p. 63), Bhāṣyārthasamgrahakāra, Manuvṛtti, Medhātithi, Mitākṣara, Rāmāyaṇa (four verses), and Varāhamihira (one verse), Vaijayantī (a lexicon), Viśvarūpa, Viśvādarśa (Āśauca p. 164), Śambhu, Śrīkara, Śivasvāmī, Smṛtibhāskara, Smṛtyarthasāra. He mentions a Bhāṭṭācārya on Āśauca (p. 1, 2), probably Śrīnivāsa, the author of Śuddhidīpikā who wrote about 1159-60 A. D. (JASB 1915 p. 334). He quotes a passage from the work of an author, whom he styles Guru (probably his own teacher or father).¹⁰⁶⁷ The Smṛticāndrikā often criticizes these works and authors and advances its own views after considering the positions of others. Devannabhāṭṭa was a southern writer and his work is according to judicial decisions of great authority in southern India.¹⁰⁶⁸ But it has been held that in spite of its high authority it cannot override the Mitākṣarā even in the Madras Presidency.¹⁰⁶⁹

The Smṛticandrikā quotes from 23 Purāṇas and Upapurāṇas i. e. from more Purāṇas than even Aparārka. They are set out in the note below.¹⁰⁷⁰

For the Āśauca-kāṇḍa of the Smṛ. C. I had to use the Mysore University's edition of 1921 (203 pages). It starts with the verse of Śaṅkha that the following religious acts are stopped while the āśauca (impurity on account of death) exists, viz. religious gifts and their acceptance, homa (worship of Fire), study of the Veda and rites for one's deceased ancestor (except the offering of piṇḍas to the recently dead person for whose sake āśauca is observed). It quotes immediate performance of purificatory rite for one day, three days, four days, six days, ten days, twelve days, a fortnight, a month and until death. It deals with impurity on birth also and concludes with the putting into the Ganges or some holy place the ashes of the dead and with Śrāddha at Gayā.

The contents of the Smṛticandrikā are: various Dharmas, such as those of varṇas, āśramas; usages of countries; saṁskāras, garbhā-dhāna, pūṁsavana, jātakarma, nāmakaraṇa, cūḍākaraṇa, upanayana, marriage, etc., duties of student-hood and holidays; daily duties such as śauca, ācamana, brushing the teeth, bathing, saṁdhyā, śrauta and smārta rites; duties of householder; the five daily yajñas; rules about taking food, forbidden food; procedure of law-courts, means of proof, ordeals, the various titles of law such as deposit, partnership, dāyabhāga; detailed rules about śrāddha, its various kinds, persons entitled to perform śrāddhas, the brāhmaṇas proper to be invited at śrāddha etc.

1070 The names of the Purāṇas quoted by Smṛ. C. are अग्नि (once) आदि, आदित्य, कालिका (only two verses), कूर्म, गरुड, नारदीय, नृसिंह, पद्म, ब्रह्मपुराण, ब्रह्मवैवर्त, ब्रह्माण्ड, भविष्य, भविष्योत्तर (once), मत्स्य, मार्कण्डेय, वामन, वायु, वाराह, विष्णु, विष्णुधर्मोत्तर, लिङ्ग, स्कन्द.

The Smṛticandrikā refers to Vijñāneśvara with great respect.¹⁰⁷¹ Yet there are several interesting points on which the Smṛticandrikā differs from the Mitākṣarā. The Smṛticandrikā questions (vide note 825 above) the statement of the Mit. that unequal distribution by the father of ancestral property among his sons should not be resorted to, as it has come to be abhorred by the people. The Smṛticandrikā does not approve of the definition of dāya given by the *Mit.*¹⁰⁷² The Smṛticandrikā does not accept Vijñāneśvara's explanation of the word 'apratīṣṭhitā' occurring in the sūtra of Gautama, but upholds Aparārka's explanation of it (vide note 1031 above). The Smṛticandrikā favours the theory of spiritual benefit in matters of succession and therefore among daughters prefers one that has sons over another daughter who is sonless.¹⁰⁷³ It criticizes the reasons advanced by the Mit. for preferring the mother over the father as an heir to their deceased son and says that both parents succeed together.¹⁰⁷⁴ Though the Smṛticandrikā in this way in some cases criticizes the Mit., it generally follows its lead. It holds, just as the Mit. does, that sons acquire by birth ownership in ancestral property. The author asserts that he puts forward no imaginary views but only such views as are based on (authoritative) texts.¹⁰⁷⁵

As the Smṛticandrikā names the Mit., Aparārka and Smṛtyarthasāra, its upper limit cannot be placed earlier than 1150 A. D.

Their Lordships of the Privy Council say in *Buddhasingh vs Laltu-singh*¹⁰⁷⁶ that Devanandabhaṭṭa is supposed to have been a contemporary of Aparārka. But this supposition is not quite correct. Since Aparārka is quoted several times as an authority to be preferred even to the Mit., it looks more probable that there is some distance of time between Aparārka and Devaṇṇabhaṭṭa. Hemādri quotes the views of the Smṛticandrikā probably oftener than those of any other nibandhakāra. In one place¹⁰⁷⁷ he does not approve of the explanation given by the Smṛticandrikā of a verse occurring in the Mahābhārata about a man with male issue performing śrāddha on the thirteenth tithi. In another¹⁰⁷⁸ place Hemādri refers to the view of the Smṛticandrikā on the question whether the śrāddha on amāvāsyā is optional with śrāddha in dark half. Therefore it follows that the Smṛticandrikā must have been composed at least a generation earlier than Hemādri i. e. before 1225 A. D. The Smṛticandrikā is frequently quoted by the Sarasvatīvilāsa, the Vīramitrodaya and other digests.

Several authors composed works styled Smṛticandrikā, e. g. there is a Smṛticandrikā of Śukadeva-miśra (I. O. Cat. p. 471 No. 1549), another by Āpadeva (Mitra's Notices, vol. VI, p. 301), another by Vāmadevabhaṭṭācārya (Mitra's Notices, vol. IX. p. 137).

87. Haradatta

Haradatta's fame stands very high as a commentator. He wrote a commentary called Anākulā on the Āpastamba-gr̥hya-sūtra (D. C. Ms. No. 2 of 1866-68), a commentary on the Āpastambīya-mantra-pāṭha (vide Dr. Winternitz's ed. of 1897, p. xiii.), a commentary called Anāvilā on the Āśvalāyana-gr̥hya-sūtra (published in the Trivandrum Series), a commentary called Mitākṣarā on the Gautamadharmasūtra and a commentary named Ujjvalā on the dharmasūtra of Āpastamba. His commentaries are very good models of ideal commentaries. His commentary on the dharmasūtra of Gautama (printed by the Ānandāśrama Press, Poona) is more concise than that on the Dharmasūtra of Āpastamba (large extracts of which were published by Bühler in his edition in the B. S. Series, the whole being printed by Halasyanath Sastri at Kumbhakonam and in the Mysore Government Oriental Library Series). In his commentary on the Dharmasūtras he quotes verses from numerous smṛtis and from the purāṇas but hardly ever mentions by name any commentator or nibandhakāra. In his Anāvilā (page 9) he quotes the views of a Bhāṣyakāra who is probably Devasvāmin and mentions also a Caṇḍogagr̥hyabhāṣyakāra (on I. 2. 3). In his commentaries on both the Dharmasūtras he frequently quotes the opinions of previous commentators with the words ' anye, ' ' aparaḥ, ' ' kecit, ' vide G. Dh. S. II. 28, VII. 4 and 14, IX. 52, XI. 17, XII. 32 and 33, XXIV. 5, XXVI. 9, XXVIII. 7 and 44; Āp. Dh. S. I. 1. 4. 24, I. 2. 5. 2 and 18, I. 3. 10. 4, I. 3. 11. 20, I. 5. 15. 20 etc. From the fact that he mentions two interpretations on Āp. Dh. S. I. 2. 5. 2. with the words ' apara āha ' and ' ityanye ' and several interpretations on II. 7. 17. 22 it follows that he had before him two or three commentaries on Āp. Dh. S. In Bühler's edition Haradatta on Āp. Dh. S. I. 1. 2. 38 appears to refer to a gr̥hya-vṛtti, but in the Kumbhakonam edition the reading is different (viz. gr̥hye gatam). He is very careful to point out the un-Pāṇinean forms in the sūtras of *Gautama*¹⁰⁷⁹ and Āpastamba, explains at great length all grammatical matters and generally prefers readings that are in consonance with the rules of Pāṇini. He very often says that the 1079 e. g. on गौ. ध. सू. XXV. 8 he says ' वाङ्मनसोरिति पाठोऽसम्भ्यं न रोचते ।

text of the sūtras, particularly of Āpastamba, as handed down by oral tradition was either wrong or followed Vedic usage as regards grammar.¹⁰⁸⁰

From various references Haradatta seems to have been an inhabitant of Southern India or was at least very familiar with its usages. On Gautama XI. 20 he instances several usages of the Colas. On Gautama XV. 18 he gives a synonym in the Dravida language for¹⁰⁸¹ a skin disease called 'Kilāsa.' On Āp. Gr. S. VI. 6 (the sūtra 'nadīnirdeśaśca' etc.) he gives Kāverī and Vegavati as instances. On Āp. Dh. S. II. 11. 29. 15 (last sūtra) he refers to certain practices of the Dravidas observed when the Sun is in Aries or Virgo.¹⁰⁸² The Vīramitrodaya classes Haradatta and the Smṛticandrikākāra among southern nibandhakāras.¹⁰⁸³ From his remark on Āp. Dh. S. II. 7. 17. 25 (the sūtra ' anyatra rāhudarśanāt ') that the northerners do not recite that sūtra it appears that he affirms that he was a southerner.

Haradatta seems to have been a great devotee of Śiva. He begins his commentary on Gautama, on Āśvalāyana-gr̥hya and Āp. Gr. with an obeisance to Rudra and his commentaries on Āp. Dh. S. and on the Āpastambīya-mantra-pāṭha (otherwise called Ekāgnikāṇḍa, 25th and 26th praśnas of Āpastamba-kalpa) with an obeisance to Mahādeva. Burnell (Tanjore mss. cat. p. 170) tells us that according to tradition in Southern India, Rudradatta, the commentator of the Āp. Śrauta-sūtra, is the same as Haradatta. In his commentary on Āp. Gr. S. I. 13. 5 (ghoṣavad caturakṣaram vā) he gives as instances of the names of males Hara, Rudra, Deva, Haradatta and Bhavanāga. In the colophons the Anāvilā is described as the work of Haradattācārya-miśra.

Haradatta (on Āp. Dh. S. I. 8. 22. 1-2) has a disquisition on the correct knowledge and realization of the self (Ātman). He quotes Muṇḍakopaniṣad II. 9 (bhidyate &c.), Chān. Up. VI. 24. 3 and Yāj. Smṛti I. 8 (ayam tu paramo dharmo yad yogenātma-darśanam), puts the Advaitavedānta view in a nutshell, narrates the story of a prince brought up since boyhood among Śābara (bhil) children regarding himself as a śābara, but the truth dawns upon him when his mother tells him who he really was; and quotes four Śārdūlavikrīḍita verses on the same story and the moral.¹⁰⁸⁴

Ghose in his Hindu Law (3rd ed. Intro. p. xv) says that, like Medhātithi, Haradatta denies the heritable rights of widows and must have come before Vijñāneśvara and not after. But Ghose appears to be wrong. Haradatta first says that according to the ācārya (i. e. Āpastamba) the sapiṇḍas of the deceased who took the property were obliged to maintain the widow of the deceased, while the view of Gautama was that the widow took, on failure of male issue, an equal share along with the sapiṇḍas, and then Haradatta says that he himself liked the latter view.¹⁰⁸⁵ He often gives interesting information. On Gautama XVII. 33 he tells us that asafoetida is eaten by all, even though it is a matter for consideration whether being the exudation of a tree, it is to be regarded as due to cutting (and so forbidden).¹⁰⁸⁶ On Āp. Dh. S. II. 2. 5. 14 he cites as an example of reviling (ā-krośa) the 1084 'तदेवं स्वभावतः स्वच्छोप्यात्मा प्रकृत्यादावभेदमापन्नः तद्धर्मो भवति । एवं तद्विकारेण महता तद्विकारेणाहङ्कारेण । इत्यशरीराद् द्रष्टव्यम् । ...यथा शबरादिभिर्बाल्यात्प्रभृति स्वसुतैः सह संवर्धितो राजपुत्रस्तज्जातीयमात्मानमवलोकयन् मात्रा स्वरूपे कथिते लब्धस्वरूप इव भवति । तथा प्रकृत्या वैश्येयव स्वरूपान्तरं नीत आत्मा मातृस्थानीयया तत्त्वमसीति श्रुत्या स्वभावं नीयते । यदेवंविधं परिशुद्धं वस्तु तदेव त्वमसि, यथा मन्यसे 'मनुष्योह दुःख्यहम्' इत्यादि न तथेति । ...ननु 'तत्त्वमसि' इति ब्रह्मणा तादात्म्यमुच्यते । को ब्रूते नेति । ब्रह्मापि नान्यदात्मनः । किं पुनरयमात्मा एक आहोस्विन्नाना । किमनेन ज्ञानेन । त्वं तावदेवंविधश्चिदेकरसो नित्यनिर्मलः कलुषवस्तुसंसर्गात्कलुषतामिव गतः । तद्वियोगश्च ते मोक्षः । त्वयि मुक्ते यद्यन्ये सन्ति ते संसरिष्यन्ति । का ते क्षतिः । अथ न सन्ति तथापि कस्ते लाभ इत्यलमियता ।' Then follow four verses on the same.

1085 On आप. ध. सू. II. 6. 14. 2 'पुत्राभावे यः प्रत्यासन्नः सपिण्डः' he says 'भार्या तु रिक्थग्राहिणः सपिण्डाद्या रक्षेयुन तु दायग्रहणमित्याचार्यस्य पक्षः । ...गौतम पुत्राभावे पत्न्याः सपिण्डादिभिः समाशमाह । ...वयमप्येतमेव पक्षं रोचयामहे ।'

following : ‘ the Taittirīya is a Śākhā that is ucchiṣṭa (the leavings of food eaten), the Yājñavalkya and other Brāhmaṇa works are modern ’.¹⁰⁸⁷ On Gautama IV. 5 he says that what distinguishes the Prājāpatya form of marriage from the Brāhma and others is that there is in the former a stipulation that the husband is not to enter into another order of life (āśrama) nor is he to marry another woman.¹⁰⁸⁸ On Āp. Dh. S. I. 4. 12. 15 he says that whereas in the case of marriage with a paternal aunt’s or maternal uncle’s daughter, the act springs from the fact that one is pleased thereby, there is no necessity to infer a śāstra (a Vedic passage) once existing but now lost (in support of such usage).¹⁰⁸⁹

The date of Haradatta is a rather difficult problem. Bühler (S. B. E. vol. II. p. XLIII) at first thought that Haradatta probably wrote in the 16th century, but in his 2nd edition of the Āp. Dh. S. he says (p. VIII) that the Munich ms. of the Ujjvalā written in Poona about 1600 A. D. shows the interpolated text found in all Devanāgarī copies and that therefore Haradatta is older than at least 1450–1500 A. D. The *Vīramitrodaya*¹⁰⁹⁰ frequently cites the Mitākṣarā of Haradatta on Gautama. Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa (born in 1513 A. D.) in his Prayoga-ratna quotes Haradatta’s comment on Gautama VIII. 14–22 about saṁskāras and his son Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa names both the Mitākṣarā and the Ujjvalā of Haradatta in his Dvaitanirṇaya. The Prayogapārijāta of Nṛsiṁha, which is quoted in the Prayogaratna of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa and is therefore not later than the first quarter of the 16th century, cites Haradatta’s explanation of Āp. Gr. S. (on ‘ pravāsād-etya putrasya śiraḥ parigrhya japati ’ etc.) and contrasts it with Nārāyaṇa’s view. The Subodhini of Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa (about 1375 A. D.) on Mit. (Yāj. II. 132) quotes certain smṛti passages as found in the vṛtti of Āpastamba which are found in Haradatta’s gloss.¹⁰⁹¹

Hence it follows that Haradatta cannot be later than about 1300 A. D. The fact that Haradatta hardly ever names any commentator except perhaps Devasvāmin, the Bhāṣyakāra of Āpastamba-gr̥hya, and that he holds antiquated views about the widow's right to succeed to her deceased husband's estate are strong arguments in favour of the view that Haradatta is comparatively an early writer. Hardly any writer after Vijñāneśvara assigns the same position to the widow as Haradatta does. Hence it appears that Haradatta could not have flourished much later than 1100 A. D. So he must be placed between 1100–1300 A. D., very probably near the earlier limit than the later one.

One important question is as to the identity of Haradatta, the commentator of the Dharma and Gr̥hya sūtras and Haradatta, the author of the Padamañjarī, a commentary on the Kāśikā of Vāmana and Jayāditya. Bühler felt uncertain about the identity. Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa in his Dvaita-nirṇaya speaks of Haradatta as expounding¹⁰⁹² a kārikā of Hari (Vākyapadiya III. p. 260, Benares ed.) and also speaks of Haradatta as the author of the Ujjvalā and the Mitākṣarā without making any distinction between the two. This shows that he regarded the two as identical. Haradatta in his commentaries on the Dharmasūtras gives far more attention to grammar than almost any other commentator of Dharmaśāstra.¹⁰⁹³ His grammatical disquisition on Āp. Dh. S. I. 2. 5. 18 (' plāvanam ca nāmno ' etc.) is almost identical with the Padamañjarī on Pāṇini VIII. 2. 83 (' pratyabhivādeśūdre '). On Āp. Dh. S. II. 7. 17. 17 he quotes a verse as from the grammarians for defining the location of the udīcyas.¹⁰⁹⁴ The Mādhaviya Dhātuvr̥tti mentions the Padamañjarī. From this it follows that the Padamañjarī was composed before 1300 A. D. Dr. Belvalkar places Haradatta, the author of the Padamañjarī, about 1100 A. D.¹⁰⁹⁵ The learned editor of the Anāvilā in the Trivandrum Series points out that, as Haradatta is quoted in the Puruṣakāra which in its turn is mentioned in the Dhātu-vr̥tti of Mādhava and as Śaraṇadeva, the author of the Durghaṭa-vr̥tti, who wrote in śake 1095, cites the Jainendra and Kaiyaṭa but not Haradatta nor the Padamañjarī, Haradatta wrote about the close of the 12th century A. D. These circumstances render it highly probable (if not certain) that Haradatta, the commentator of the Dharma-sūtras, is the same as the author of the Padamañjarī and that he flourished between 1100 and 1300 A. D. and probably about 1200 A. D. The Smṛticandrikā twice refers to the bhāṣya of the Āpa-stamba-dharma-sūtra.¹⁰⁹⁶ Haradatta's commentary is styled vr̥tti and not bhāṣya and the citations do not occur in his work. Hence it appears that the Smṛticandrikā did not know Haradatta's works and the latter could not have flourished much earlier than the Smṛti-candrikā.

In the Padamañjarī Haradatta is said to have been the son of Padma (Rudra)-kumāra, younger brother of Agnikumāra and a pupil of Aparājita.¹⁰⁹⁷ In his Padamañjarī Haradatta employs the word 'kūcimañci' which is a Telugu word.¹⁰⁹⁸ The Bhaviṣyottarapurāṇa printed in Grantha characters contains 12 chapters (54th to 65th) and the Śivarahasya printed in the said characters has one chapter (17th) which set out the life (carita) of a Haradattācārya. It is stated there that Haradattācārya's original name was Sudarśana, that he was the son of Vāsudeva and that he died 3979 years after Kaliyuga began¹⁰⁹⁹ (i. e. 878 A. D.). This Haradattācārya, being the son of Vāsudeva, was not the same as the author of the Padamañjarī, who was the son of Padmakumāra. This earlier Haradatta may probably be the same as the Haradattācārya cited as an authority in the Sarvadarśana-saṁgraha on the Nakuliśa-pāsupatadarśana.¹¹⁰⁰ Dr. Jolly (R. u. S. p. 33) identifies without sufficient foundation the Haradattācārya of the Sarvadarśana-saṁgraha with Haradatta, the commentator of Āpastamba and Gautama.

A work called Hari-hara-tāratamya and another called Caturvedatātparya-saṁgraha are ascribed to a Haradatta. Of the latter there is a ms. in the Deccan College collection (No. 109 of 1871-72), which contains 154 verses of fine penmanship. The first and last are given below.¹¹⁰¹ Whether these two works were composed by Haradatta, the commentator of the Dharma-sūtras, it is difficult to say. In the latter work the author sings a hymn of praise to Śiva as the supreme deity, points out how the Vedic mantras refer to him, how the various rites are meant for him, refers to the mythological representations of Śiva as Kirāta, or as wearing skin etc. All the verses upto 143 are in the Vasantatilakā metre, while towards the end there are a few verses in other metres such as Śikharinī and Rathoddhatā. He was a staunch Śaivite,¹¹⁰² though the hymn breathes a spirit of tolerance and sympathy for different religious and philosophical

88. Hemādri

Hemādri and Mādhava are the Castor and Pollux in the galaxy of dākṣiṇātya writers on Dharmaśāstra. Hemādri is a very voluminous writer. He is the author of the Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi, an encyclopædia of ancient religious rites and observances. From ancient times in India the goals of human life (puruṣārthas) were said to be four viz. Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Mokṣa (and were spoken of as 'Caturvarga'). Mokṣa could be attained only by a few men but as to the other three (spoken of as Trivarga) all could secure them, according to their abilities and activities (vide Manu II. 224). This subject of Puruṣārthas has been dealt with at some length in H. of Dh. Vol. II. pp. 2-11, Vol. III. pp. 8-10 and 241-43 and Vol. V. pp. 1626-1632. According to the statements contained in the work itself the author intended to treat Dharmaśāstra in five sections, called vrata, dāna, tīrtha, mokṣa and pariśeṣa.¹¹⁰³ The Pariśeṣa-khaṇḍa was divided into four parts, viz., Devatā, Kālanirnaya, Karmavipāka, Lakṣaṇasamuccaya.¹¹⁰⁴ The Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi has been published in the Bibliotheca Indica Series. Four volumes containing 6 parts and covering about 6000 pages have been so far printed. The second and third volumes have two parts each. The fourth volume which deals with prāyaścitta does not appear to be the work of Hemādri.¹¹⁰⁵ The work so far published is concerned with vrata, dāna, śrāddha and kāla (latter two being parts of the Pariśeṣa-khaṇḍa). That portion of the Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi which was intended to treat of tīrtha and mokṣa has not yet come to light. It is extremely doubtful whether the author was able to carry out his gigantic scheme. Mss. of portions of the great work are described in the catalogues under various names, e. g. I. O. Cat. No. 1379, p. 407 on śāntikapauṣṭikāni is the same subject that is treated in vratakhaṇḍa pp. 1003ff., though there are considerable variations between the Ms. and the printed text.

Hemādri's is a standard work on the subjects with which he deals. He quotes most profusely from smṛtis and purāṇas and names a host of writers. He appears to have been a profound student of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā. The discussions in his work, particularly on śrāddha and kāla, cannot be well understood without thorough acquaintance with the numerous nyāyas of the mīmāṃsā which he employs at every step. To illustrate this a few instances may be cited at random. On pp. 137, 143, 156, 159 of his Kāla-nirṇaya (vol. III part 2) he makes use of four different nyāyas of the mīmāṃsā.¹¹⁰⁶ The eminent commentators and nibandhakāras on dharmaśāstra and other works named by him are given below.¹¹⁰⁷ It is somewhat remarkable that though he quotes Aparārka and the Smṛti-candrikā scores of times he hardly ever mentions by name the Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara. Though he does not promise a treatment of vyavahāra, here and there he makes sallies into the domain of vyavahāra. For example, he quotes the well-known sūtra of Gautama (10. 39) on the sources of ownership and holds a lengthy discussion thereon.¹¹⁰⁸ In another place he digresses into the question of the various kinds of strīdhana and their devolution (vol. III, part 1, pp. 530–531). He was of opinion that everyone, to whatever śākhā he may belong, should perform śrāddha in accordance with the directions thereon in all śākhās, kalpa and gṛhya sūtras, smṛtis, purāṇas and usages.¹¹⁰⁹ He makes the important statement¹¹¹⁰ that a person following any particular Vedic śākhā may enter into alliance by marriage with any other person of the same country following another Vedic śākhā.

Hemādri gives some account of himself in his work. The Mss. present great variations from the printed text. He belonged to the Vatsagotra.¹¹¹¹ He was the grandson of Vāsudeva and the son of Kāmadeva. The introductions to the khaṇḍas contain fulsome praise of Hemādri. One verse says that Hemādri scored out by showering wealth on poor people the lines that Brahmā had drawn on their forehead at the time of their birth (foredooming them to eternal poverty) and that Brahmā acquiesces in such conduct of Hemādri.¹¹¹² Another verse says that none existed, exists or will exist surpassing Hemādri.¹¹¹³ He describes himself as in charge of the imperial records of Māhādeva, the Yādava king of Devagiri (modern Daulatabad).¹¹¹⁴ In the colophons and the body of the work also he is described as the karaṇādhiśvara of Mahādeva, as highly honoured by the king and as a minister (mantrin) of the king.¹¹¹⁵ He gives in the introduction to the Vratakhanda a detailed pedigree of the Yādavas of Devagiri. In the section on kāla (vol. III, part 2) he starts with Saṅghaṇa (i. e. Siṅghaṇa of the inscriptions), then speaks of his son Jaitrapāla (i. e. Jaitugi), his son Kṛṣṇa (or Kanhara) and lastly of Mahādeva, son of the younger brother of Kṛṣṇa. This is not the place to go into the genealogy of the Yādavas. There are some discrepancies between the genealogy as presented by Hemādri and as gathered from the inscriptions and numerous copperplate grants of the Yādavas. Vide Bombay Gazetteer, vol. I, part 2, pp. 248–249 for Hemādri and pp. 268–275 for extracts from the Vratakhanda, pp. 252 and 519 for two pedigrees of the Devagiri Yādavas and pp. 511–534 for history. The following may be consulted for the principal grants of the Yādavas:—Ind. Ant. vol. 17, p. 117 (Kalasbudruk plate of Bhillama dated śake 948 or 1025 A. D.), E. I. vol. III p. 110 (Bahal inscription of Siṅghaṇa dated śake 1144), E. I. vol. III pp. 217–18 (Gadag inscription of Bhillama dated śake 1113 i. e. 1191 A. D.), Ind. Ant. vol. 14, p. 68 (grant of Kṛṣṇa or Kanhara dated 1249–50 A. D.), Ind. Ant. vol. 14, p. 314 (Paithan plate of Rāmacandra dated śake 1193), E. I. vol. XIII, p. 198 (Thana plate of Rāmacandra dated śake 1194 i. e. 1272 A. D.), E. I. vol. XIX, p. 20 (Mamdapur inscription of Kanhara dated śake 1172 i. e. 1250 A. D. wherein his younger brother Mahādeva is described as yuvarāja). Mahādeva reigned from 1260 to 1271 and Rāmacandra, the son of Kṛṣṇa, from 1271 to 1309 A. D. Since in the Caturvarga-cintāmani Hemādri is said to be the keeper of the state-records of Mahādeva, that work must have been composed at some time between 1260 and 1270 A. D. There are contemporary records available showing that Hemādri was in high favour not only with Mahādeva but also with his successor Rāmacandra. The Thana plate of Rāmacandra (dated śake 1194, i. e. 1272 A. D.) records the grant of a village called Vaul in Sāsaṭi (modern Sāṣṭi in the Thana District) to thirty-two brāhmaṇas by Acyuta Nāyaka of the Gautama gotra and descendant of Jalhaṇa, who was the governor of Konkan, and describes¹¹¹⁶ Hemādri as one who had attained a preeminent position in the government through the favour of Rāmacandra and as one who was in charge of all (state) records and was the foremost minister.

Hemādri is frequently cited by Raghunandana in his Smṛti-tattva and rarely criticized ; vide (vol. I). Tithi pp. 1, 11, 16, 18, 120 ; Śrāddha pp. 285, 286 ; Jyotistattva 678, Mala° 755, 836 ; Samskāra 891 ; (vol. II) Ekādaśī 37, 44, 90 (cr.), Udvāha 145, Suddhi 273, 339 (mentions Parīśeṣakhaṇḍa) 356.

Vide a paper in J. O. R. (Madras) vol. XII pp. 46–60 by Dr. P. Srinivasachar on the Yādavas of Devagiri, that shows that the last dated Inscription of Kṛṣṇa is dated 12th April 1259, that Mahādeva succeeded him and that some time elapsed between the death of Mahādeva and the accession of Rāmacandra, and that Hemādri was in great favour with both Mahādeva and Rāmacandra. The pedigree (relevant to this writer) is Bhillama-Jaitugi—Siṅghaṇa (and also Siṃha, Siṃhaṇa, Siṃhala)—Jaitugi II—Kṛṣṇa (also written in Inscriptions as Kanhāra, Kanharadeva, Kandharadeva, dates ranging from śake 1169 to 1175) and Mahādeva who succeeded Kṛṣṇa ; (Kṛṣṇa's son Rāmacandra or Rāmarāya, one date is śake 1199)—Śaṅkaradeva succeeded in śake 1232 (1310–11 A. D.) and was killed by Malik Kafar two years later. Vide JBBRAS vol. XII pp. 1–50 (by Dr. Fibet). It is probable that Mahādeva, brother of Kṛṣṇa, succeeded because Kṛṣṇa's son Rāmacandra was very young.

Hemādri is credited with a commentary on Śaunaka's Prāṇa-vakalpa.¹¹¹⁷ He appears to have written a śrāddha-kalpa according to the rules of Kātyāyana which is distinct from his Śrāddha-khaṇḍa (vide Calcutta Sanskrit College mss. cat., vol. II, p. 163, No. 217 and Stein's cat. p. 105). Hemādri also wrote a commentary¹¹¹⁸ called Kaivalyadīpikā on the Mukṭāphala of Vopadeva, the famous author of the Mugdhabodha grammar. The Mukṭāphala embodies the philosophy of the Bhāgavata purāṇa in 19 adhyāyas and 784 verses (and a few lines in prose in 5th and 6th chapters). Vopadeva was a friend and protege of Hemādri, who wrote several works at the encouragement of the latter. He says that he wrote the Harilīlā (published in the Calcutta Oriental Series No. 3), an index of the Bhāgavata for pleasing the minister Hemādri.¹¹¹⁹ Verse 54 in the Upasamhārādhyāya in the edition of the Mukṭāphala expressly states that Hemādri induced Vopadeva, son of the physician Keśava and pupil of the scholar Dhaneśa, to compose the Mukṭāphala. Verse 53 also is interesting:—द्वे एव चित्रे रामस्य सिन्धुर्वद्धः पुराधुना । हेमाद्रिः स्वमुपानीतः सूर्यावर्तप्रदक्षिणः ॥. Rāma means Dāśarathi Rāma and Rāmācandra (Yādava king). Hemādri means mountain Meru and also the author Hemādri.¹¹²⁰

There is a learned commentary on the Raghuvamśa by a Hemādri. Mr. P. K. Gode (in ABORI vol. XIV pp. 126-128) adduces arguments for establishing that the commentator is different from the author of the Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi. There is a commentary on this work called Viveka with which both

Hemādri and Madhusūdana-Sarasvatī had something to do.¹¹²¹ Hemādri also wrote a commentary called Āyurvedarasāyana on the Aṣṭāṅgahṛdaya of Vāgbhata.

Altogether Hemādri was a towering personality. His name is associated throughout the Maratha Country with the construction of numerous temples having a peculiar style of architecture. He is also credited with having invented the Moḍi script. Within a few decades his Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi, particularly its dāna and vrata sections, came to be looked upon as the standard work in the whole of the Deccan and southern India. Mādhava in his Kālanirṇaya (p. 67) expressly mentions the Vratakhanda of Hemādri as an authority. This work was composed about 1340 A. D. In an inscription of Bhāskara alias Bhavadūra, son of Bukka I, dated śake 1291 (i. e. 1369 A. D.) the king is described as making various gifts following the composition of Hemādri.¹¹²² This is obviously a reference to his dānakhaṇḍa and establishes that long before 1369 A. D. Hemādri had become a standard author in the Telugu country. The Vanapalli plate of Anna-Vema dated śake 1300 (about 1380 A. D.) describes Vema as giving the various gifts in Hemādri and his son as one who observed the vratas and *dānas*¹¹²³ described by Hemādri. Pedda-Komaṭi-Vema is described in a grant of śake 1344 as eager in bestowing gifts described in the rules of Hemādri.¹¹²⁴ Hemādri is quoted in the Madanapārijāta,¹¹²⁵ the Dvaitanirṇaya of Śaṅkarabhāṭṭa, the Nirṇayasindhu and other works.

89. Kullūkabhaṭṭa

Kullūka's commentary on the Manusmṛiti styled the Manvarthamuktāvali is the most famous of all commentaries on Manu. It has been printed several times. In the following the Nirṇayasāgara edition of 1909 has been relied upon. Kullūka's commentary is concise and lucid and his remarks are always to the point. He avoids all unnecessary discussions and is never prolix. He was not however original. He drew upon the commentaries of Medhātithi and Govindarāja and incorporated a great deal from them into his own work without acknowledgment. For example, on Manu XI. 95 he simply summarises the remarks¹¹²⁶ of Govindarāja and cites only one out of the several quotations that are found in Govindarāja's Manu-ṭīkā. He severely criticizes both Medhātithi and Govindarāja, particularly the latter. He frequently pours ridicule on the latter (vide note 903^a above). At the end of his commentary he says¹¹²⁷ that Medhātithi's skill lay in expounding what texts were authoritative and of substance and what were not so. Govindarāja in concise words explained the hidden meaning of the brief text (of Manu), while Dharaṇidhara had his own method of explanation which was independent of previous tradition; and therefore he undertook to write a commentary that would clearly set forth the real meaning of Manu. He was very proud of his achievement and says that neither Medhātithi nor Govindarāja nor other commentators explained in the way he did and that explanatory material like his would be difficult to find elsewhere.¹¹²⁸ He not only criticizes Govindarāja severely but also points out the mistakes of Medhātithi (as on Manu I. 71 and 103, II. 101).¹¹²⁹ He notices the explanations of Medhātithi and Govindarāja hundreds of times, discusses various readings and his commentary deserves to a considerable extent the eulogy pronounced by Sir William Jones¹¹³⁰ “At length appeared Cullūca Bhaṭṭa, who, after a painful course of study and the collation of numerous manuscripts, produced a work of which it may perhaps be said very truly that it is the shortest yet the most luminous, the least ostentatious yet the most learned, the deepest yet the most agreeable, commentary ever composed on any author, ancient or modern.”

Among the authors and works quoted by him (besides the usual smṛtis) are the following :—Garga (on II. 6), Govindarāja, Dharaṇīdhara, Bhāskara (bhāṣyakāra of the Vedāntasūtras, on I. 8 and 15), Bhojadeva (on VIII. 184), Medhātithi, Vāmana (author of the Kāśikā), Bhaṭṭavārtika-kṛt (on XII. 106), Viśvarūpa (the commentator of Yājñavalkya, on II. 189 and V. 68). The Viśvarūpa that he quotes on Manu V. 215 is the lexicographer and not the jurist as Aufrecht (in his great catalogue) appears to hold.

He gives us a little information about himself in the introductory verse.¹¹³¹ He came of a Varendra Brāhmaṇa family of Bengal (Gauḍa) residing in Nandana and was the son of Bhaṭṭa Divākara. He wrote his commentary in Kāśī in the company of Pandits. On Manu VI. 14 he mentions the names of certain vegetables that were current in Malwa and among the Vāhikas.¹¹³²

It appears that Kullūka also composed a digest called Smṛtisāgara. A Ms. of a portion of it called Śrāddhasāgara exists in the Calcutta Sanskrit College (Cat. vol. II. p. 405, No. 446). In this his Āśaucasāgara and Vivādasāgara are referred to.

I secured a transcript of the ms. of the Śrāddhasāgara in the Calcutta Sanskrit College through the kindness of the Principal. The Śrāddhasāgara deals with the following subjects:— definition of śrāddha; whether it is of the nature of yāga, dāna and homa; various kinds of śrāddhas such as nitya, naimittika &c.; the proper and improper places for śrāddha; the proper times for śrāddha; Aṣṭakā-śrāddha; sūdras can perform aṣṭakā and other śrāddhas; intercalary month; who are pañkti-pāvana brāhmaṇas; meaning of nimantraṇa and āmantraṇa; the number of brāhmaṇas to be invited; the darbhas; śrāddhadevatās; the sacred thread etc.

The Śrāddhasāgara is full of Pūrvamīmāṃsā discussions. The author says that he wrote it and the other two works (Vivādasāgara and Āśaucasāgara) at the order of his father. He quotes profusely from the Mahābhārata, the Mahāpurāṇas and Upapurāṇas and from the dharmaśūtras and metrical smṛtis. He names the Kalpataru oftener than any other nibandhakāra. The other authors and works named are : Bhojadeva, Halāyudha (probably the author of Prakāśa on the Śrāddhakalpasūtra of Kātyāyana), Jikana, Kāmadhenu, Medhātithi, Śaṅkhaadhara. In one place we have a reference to Prabhākara and Kamalākara-bhaṭṭa (on Kāla and Kāma being devatās) and in another place to Gauḍa-Maithila-Mayūkha-bhaṭṭāḥ (which are probably marginal notes creeping into the ms. or refer to authors other than the well-known ones). He refers to the opinion of his own guru in opposition to that of the Kalpataru.

The date of Kullūka cannot be settled with certainty. Bühler held that he lived probably in the 15th century (S. B. E. vol. XXV. p. cxxxī). Ghose (Hindu Law, 3rd edition p. xvi) and M. M. Chakravarti (JASB 1915, p. 345) are of the same opinion. In I. L. R. 48 Cal. 643 Sir Asutosh Mukerji places Kullūka in the 15th century (at p. 688). As Kullūka mentions Bhojadeva,

Govindarāja, Kalpataru and Halāyudha he is¹ certainly later than about 1200 A. D. Raghunandana¹¹³³ several times mentions Kullūkabhaṭṭa (and sometimes criticizes him also); vide (vol. I) Śrāddha 225 (Cri. on Manu III. 257), 226, Āhnika 353, 454; Prāyaścitta 472, 530; Saṁskāra 893, 894, 903; (vol. II) Udvāha p. 144. The Daṇḍa-viveka of Vardhamāna quotes Kullūka about fifty times and oftener than any other work or author except Ratnākara. Śrīnātha's com. on the Dāyabhāga refutes the view of Kullūka. The Śrāddha-kriyā-kaumudī of Govindānanda refers to Kullūka's explanation of the word 'ākāṅkṣan' as 'Vikṣamāṇaḥ' in Manu III. 258. The Rājanīti-ratnākara of Candēśvara quotes the explanation of Kullūka.¹¹³⁴ Therefore Kullūka must have flourished before 1300 A. D. Kullūka in his by no means small work nowhere refers to the Dāyabhāga, though he himself came of a Bengal family. This silence is explicable in two ways. As we have seen, Kullūka wrote in Kāśī and not in Bengal. Therefore if he flourished not long after Jīmūtavāhana, it is quite natural that writing in Benares he had not heard of the Dāyabhāga or read it. It has been shown above that Jīmūtavāhana probably wrote about 1100–1150 A. D. Therefore Kullūka flourished between 1150 and 1300 A. D. and probably wrote about 1250 A. D. M. M. Chakravarti is not sure as to how early Kullūka flourished but opines that he could not have flourished later than the first quarter of the 15th century (JASB 1915, p. 345 n. 1).

90. Śrīdatta Upādhyāya

Mithilā has made extremely valuable and substantial contributions to Dharmaśāstra Literature. From the days of the Yājñavalkya smṛti down to modern times the land of Mithilā has produced writers whose names are illustrious. Śrīdatta Upādhyāya is one of the earliest among the mediaeval Maithila nibandhakāras. He is the author of several works which will be briefly noticed.

The Ācārādarśa of Śrīdatta was printed in Benares at the Divakara Press and by the Venkatesvara Press in Bombay in saṁvat 1961. It is a manual of the daily religious duties of the followers of the white Yajurveda (Vājasaneyins),¹¹³⁵ such as ācamana, brushing the teeth, morning bath, sāṁdhyā, japa, brahma-yajña, tarpaṇa, daily worship of gods, vaiśvadeva, feeding guests etc. Among the works and writers named are the following¹¹³⁶:— Ācāra-cintāmaṇi, Kalpataru, Kāmadhenu, Kālikāpurāṇa, Gaṇeśa-miśra, Rājā (probably Bhojadeva), Smṛtimahārṇava, Harihara and Halāyudha-nibandha. There is a commentary on this work called Ācārādarśabodhini composed by Gaurīpati or Gaurīśa, son of Dāmodara Maithila, at Benares in 1640 A. D. (Dr. Bhandarkar's report, 1883-84, p. 347). In this work he uses several vernacular words; e. g. he says that 'Śāla' tree is known as Sagavana¹¹³⁷ (in the vernacular).

Śrīdatta's work called 'Chandogāhnika' was printed by the Nirṇayasāgara Press (Bombay, 1930). It summarizes at the end the principal topics viz. rinsing the mouth, bath, morning sāṁdhyā, five daily yajñas, bhojana (midday meal), resting thereafter, evening sāṁdhyā, evening meal, repeating the Veda, going to bed. In the Introductory verse he states: looking into the smṛtis, Purāṇas, Gṛhyasūtras and the nibandhas of Bhūpāla (i. e. king Bhoja) and Gopāla (the author of the Kāmadhenu) I shall set out the āhnika (daily rites prescribed) for Sāmavedins. At the end also he states that he studied all the nibandhas of Bhūpāla and others. It is a small work (63 printed pages), but it quotes, besides the well-known sūtras, smṛtis and the Mahābhārata the following works : Karma-pradīpa (frequently pp. 19, 47, 50, 53, 60), Kāmadhenu (pp. 5, 7, 8, 12, 46 &c.), Kalpataru (pp. 4, 5, 36, 58, 63 &c.), Chandogapaddhati (p. 53), several Purāṇas (such as Nārasiṃha, Devī, Nandi, Padma, Brahma, Bhaviṣya, Mārkaṇḍeya, Matsya, Liṅga, Vāmana, Varāha, Vāyu, Viṣṇu, Skanda), Mahārṇavaprakāśa (pp. 4, 15), Mitākṣarā (p. 31), Ratnakaraṇḍikā (p. 11), Yogiyājñavalkya (many verses quoted on pp. 9, 10, 13, 17, 19, 27, 41, 44), Haribhakti (p. 36), Haribhaktidīpikā (p. 37), Smṛtimañjūṣā (p. 2 said to be Dakṣiṇadeśīya). He refers to his own work ' Śrāddhakalpa ' (p. 53). For a small work like the Chandogāhnika the author quotes a very large number of authorities. It may be noted that this work specifies (on pp. 45-46) at some length the Aparūdhās that Bhāgavatas should not be guilty of and explains the word Bhāgavata in several ways.

The Pitṛbhakti is a manual on the Śrāddha rites for students of the Yajurveda. It was based¹¹³⁸ on the Kātyakalpa with Karka's bhāṣya thereon and on the works of Gopāla and Bhūpāla (i. e. Bhojadeva). It is frequently quoted in the Śrāddhahiveka of Rudradhara. Among the writers named are (besides those that occur in the Ācārādarśa also) : Pitṛhitākaraṇikāra, Nārāyaṇavṛtti (on Āśvalāyana Gr. S.), Mitākṣarā, Ratnakaraṇḍikā, Vidhipuṣpamālā (26 a), Śubhākara, Smṛtimañjarī, Smṛtimañjūṣā, Halāyudha's Śrāddhādhyāya. This work first treats of the details of the Pārvaṇaśrāddha, then of ekoddiṣṭa, of the monthly śrāddhas, the śrāddha on the 11th day after death, of Sapiṇḍīkaraṇa, of ābhyudayika śrāddha. It then proceeds to consider the definition of śrāddha.

The Śrāddhakalpa was composed by him for the Sāmavedins. It is referred to in his Samayapradīpa¹¹³⁹ and Pitṛbhakti (folio 33b).

1139 ' निर्णीतमस्माभिः श्राद्धकल्पे ' समयप्रदीप folio 49 a (D. C. Ms. No. 371 of 1875-76).

The Samayapradīpa treats of the proper times for various vratas.¹¹⁴⁰ It is divided into three chapters (paricchedas). The first is called Samayaparincheda and dilates upon the definition of vrata, on the procedure about fasts, nakta and the vratas of Gaṇeśa and other deities, the second is called Saṁvatsara-kṛtya-pariccheda and treats of vratās from the pratipadā to the amāvāsyā in the several months and the third is called prakīṛṇaka (miscellaneous) dealing with the vratas on saṅkrānti (the Sun's passage into another Zodiacal sign) etc. In this work Śrīdatta often refers to the views of the Gaudas and contrasts them with his own. He also refers to Gaudanibandha. No other writers or works except those that are already enumerated under Ācārādarsa and Piṭṛbhakti are named in this work. On folio 7a there is a name which is somewhat indistinct and appears to be 'Mitāmitrādibhiḥ'. The Samayapradīpa is mentioned in the Kṛtya-ratnākara (pp. 400, 479, 505) of Caṇḍeśvara and in Śūlapāṇi's Durgotsava-viveka¹¹⁴¹ Śrīdatta is more frequently quoted in the Śrāddhakriyā-kaumudī of Govindānanda than almost any other author or work.

As Śrīdatta names the Kalpataru, Harihara and Halāyudha's work on śrāddha he must have flourished later than 1200 A. D. As Caṇḍeśvara mentions his Samayapradīpa, Śrīdatta must have flourished before the first quarter of the 14th century. If Gaṇeśamiśra mentioned in the Ācārādarsa be the same as Gaṇeśvaramiśra, the author of Sugatisopāna and uncle of Caṇḍeśvara (which appears extremely probable), then Śrīdatta flourished a short time before Caṇḍeśvara and must have composed his works between 1275 and 1510 A. D.

Śrīdatta affords hardly any information about himself or his family. But as he refers to certain writers by the general word 'Gaudāḥ' (pakvatailam na duṣyatīti Gaudāḥ p. 12 of Chandogāhnikā) it may be assumed that he was not a Gauda but a Maithila.

1141 समांसरुधिरदानमाह श्रीदत्तोपाध्यायकृतसमयप्रदीपे भविष्यपुराणम् । दुर्गोत्सवविवेक p. 21 (Calcutta Sanskrit Sahitya Parishad ed.).

He was liberal enough to assert that a śūdra¹¹⁴² can perform Vaiśvadeva and the offering of bali, but he cannot adopt the procedure of Śākala as it includes Vedamantras; he can, however, perform those rites with 'namaḥ' as the Mantra and relies on Yāj. I. 12 and Viṣṇupurāṇa in support. The Samayapradīpa of Śrīdatta is quoted by Raghunandana in (vol. I), Mala° p. 839 and (vol. II) in Ekādaśī p. 44.

It appears that there was another Maithila writer called Śrīdattamiśra, son of Nāgeśvaramiśra, who composed the Ekāgnidānapaddhati and one or two other works (Hp. Nepal cat. p. 129). The Nepal Ms. of the Ekāgnidāna-paddhati was copied in La-Sam 299 (Lakṣmaṇasena era 299, i. e. 1418 A. D.). Vide Hp. Nepal cat. XII, 45 and 129. So this Śrīdatta flourished towards the end of the 14th century in the reign of Devasimha son of Bhavēśa. Vide JASB for 1915 pp. 379-381 and 388-390 for Śrīdatta.

91. Caṇḍeśvara

Caṇḍeśvara is the most prominent figure among Maithila nibandhakāras on Dharmaśāstra. He compiled an extensive digest called Smṛtiratnākara or simply Ratnākara. This digest was divided into seven sections viz. on kṛtya, dāna, vyavahāra, śuddhi, pūjā, vivāda and gr̥hastha.¹¹⁴³ Out of these the Vivādaratnākara dealing with dāyabhāga and the other titles of law (vyavahārapadas) has been printed in the B. I. Series and has been translated into English by Mr. G. C. Sarkar and by Mr. Justice Digambara Chatterjee. The Vivādaratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara and the Vivādacintāmaṇi of Vācaspati are of paramount authority in matters of Hindu Law in Mithilā (modern Tirhut) so far as British Indian Courts are concerned.¹¹⁴⁴

The Kṛtya-ratnākara deals in 22 tarāṅgas with the discussion of Dharma (its real nature, its rewards, means of knowing it and the occasions for it), the various vratas and observances in the several months from Caitra, the observances in the intercalary month, various vratas on the several days of the week, the Sun's passage into a new sign, eclipse on the new-moon day etc. This work is referred to in his Dānaratnākara, which in its turn is quoted in the Gṛhastha-ratnākara.¹¹⁴⁵ The work was printed in the Bibliotheca Indica Series in 1926. He belittles Kalpataru, Kāmadhenu and Pārijāta. This was probably the first of the seven Ratnākaras, since it is mentioned first in the verse quoted below¹¹⁴⁶ and since it has a very large number of Introductory verses.

The Gṛhastha-ratnākara is a very extensive work in 68 tarāṅgas on the duties of householders. The work was printed in the Bibliotheca Indica Series in 1928, while the first vol. of H. of Dh. was in the Press. It is a large work in 591 pages. It has only two Introductory verses, the last quarter of the 2nd saying that this Ratnākara is full of Mīmāṃsā. Verses (3–20) enumerate briefly the topics of the 68 tarāṅgas (waves i. e. chapters) of this (Ratnākara which word also means 'sea'), which are : what girls may be chosen or not chosen for marriage; examining the guṇas (qualities) of the proposed bridegroom, proper order of choosing a girl from the several varṇas; the proper ages of girls and bridegrooms; order of persons entitled to give away a girl in marriage; when a girl can choose her own husband; different forms of marriage and their merits and demerits; passing over a wife by marrying another girl; condemnation of a younger brother marrying before an elder one; setting up grhya fire and performing the worship of fire; worship of gods and officiating as a priest; āhnikā (daily observances from morning onwards such as ācamana, brushing the teeth, morning bath, sandhyā observance, the five daily yajñas, honouring guests, rules about food to be taken or not to be taken; observances for women; the proper observances and actions for brāhmaṇas and for men of the three other varṇas; maintaining oneself in calamities; the observances of snātaka; about Yama and Niyama; impurity on birth and death; what tends to the ruin of families; proper abode or house for a married man; what a house-holder should speak or not utter or what he should not look at; abstaining from adultery; avoiding mixture of castes, paying off debts, listening to Mahābhārata &c., actions proper for Kṣatriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras; the observances of a snātaka; yama and niyama; śauca; the observances of brahmacarya; what ruins families; proper abode for a gṛhastha; what a gṛhastha should or should not speak, or should or should not see; things not to be given to śūdras; the avoidance of anger, adultery and intermixture of castes (saṁkara); requiting of debts etc.

1146 The verses in the Kṛtyaratnākara 24 and 25 are विभ्राणः कल्पवृक्षं कंचन परिसरे कामधेनुं दधानः काप्यन्तः पारिजातं क्वचिदपि च दधदोषयादोविमुक्तः । श्रीमच्छण्डेश्वरेण श्रुतिनिगमविदा तन्यते तेन तद्वद् विष्णुव्यासादिवाक्यस्फुरदमृतमयः कृत्यरत्नाकरोऽयम् ॥ यस्मिन्न किञ्चिदपि शंसति कामधेनुर्यत्रेष्टमल्पमपि कल्पतरुं दत्ते । धत्ते न गन्धमपि कंचन पारिजातस्तत्सर्वमेव विविनक्ति नयप्रवीणः ॥. The words कल्पतरु, कामधेनु and पारिजात are paronomastic i. e. they are names of specific literary works and have also other meanings. A similar verse occurs at the end of the Vivādaratnākara p. 670 (vide note 893 above).

The Dānaratnākara contains 29 tarāṅgas and deals with the following subjects:—meaning of dāna; what may or may not be gifted; fit objects of charity: the gifts called mahādānas; gifts of a thousand cows and heaps of corn; various gifts, such as those of food, books; gifts appropriate to certain months, nakṣatras and tithis; miscellaneous gifts; dedication of wells and tanks for public use; planting of trees.

The Vivādaratnākara is an extensive work (671 pages in print) in 100 tarāṅgas on civil and criminal law and deals with the 18 titles of law such as dāyabhāga (on partition and inheritance), ṛṇādāna (recovery of debts) and others. It formed the basis of the Vivādacandra of Misarumiśra, the Vivāda-cintāmaṇi of Vācaspati and the Daṇḍaviveka of Vardhamāna. It is mentioned in his own Gṛhastharatnākara.¹¹⁴⁷

The Vyavahāraratnākara deals with judicial procedure, such as the plaint, the reply, the burden of proof, means of proof, judgment etc. Vide Mitra's Notices, vol. VI. p. 66, No. 2036.

The Śuddhiratnākara is in 34 tarāṅgas and deals with impurity on birth and death, persons who have to observe no āśauca, meaning of sapinda, rites on death up to the end of the period of mourning, purifications of food and various substances. Vide Mitra's Notices, vol. VII. p. 149, No. 2384 and I. O. Cat. p. 412, No. 1389.

For the Pūjāratnākara, vide Mitra's Notices, vol. III, p. 162, No. 2398.

It is desirable to mention in one place the references to the several Ratnākaras in Raghunandana's Smṛtitattva.

Besides this digest Caṇḍeśvara compiled several other works.

Kṛtyacintāmaṇi is one of such works. It is a question when it was composed. In his Gṛhastharatnākara he says that certain architectural and decorative constructions called Śrīvṛkṣa, Vardhamāna and Nandyāvarta have been spoken of by him in the Kṛtyacintāmaṇi.¹¹⁴⁸ But the Kṛtyacintāmaṇi says that he has already composed the seven ratnākaras¹¹⁴⁹.

It should be noted that in the printed Gṛhastha-ratnākara the words quoted are श्रीवृक्ष ... निर्मिताः कृत्यरत्नाकरादावस्माभिरुक्ता ज्योतिःशास्त्र-प्रसिद्धाः । pp. 550-1; so it is likely that some scribe wrote 'कृत्य-चिन्तामणावुक्ताः.'

The Kṛtyacintāmaṇi is divided into sections called prakāśas. It deals with astronomical matters in relation to the performance of several religious ceremonies and saṃskāras, such as tārāśuddhi, the intercalary month, garbhādhāna, śīmantonayana, birth of a child on the Mūla nakṣatra, the rites on the 6th day after birth, nāmakarṇa, the movements of Saturn, Sun's passage from one sign into another, the results of eclipses etc. The Kṛtyacintāmaṇi expressly states that it was composed after all the seven *Ratnākara*s. The Kṛtyacintāmaṇi is frequently quoted by Raghunandana; vide (vol. I) Tithi pp. 21, 36, 44; Śrāddhah 282, Jyotistattva pp. 583, 594, 606, Saṃskāra 920; (vol. II) Kṛtya pp. 426, 473, Mala p. 616.

Another work of Caṇḍeśvara, the Rājanītiratnākara, was published at Patna (1924) by Mr. K. P. Jayasval with a learned introduction dealing with the personal history of Caṇḍeśvara, his relations with the Maithila kings and the mediaeval Indian literature on politics. It appears that Caṇḍeśvara did not contemplate the writing of a work on politics when he compiled his great digest. He wrote the work at the command of the king Bhaveśa or (Bhaveśvara) of Mithilā.¹¹⁵⁰ The work contains 16 tarāṅgas (waves, i. e. chapters) on the following subjects:—definition of a king, different grades of kings, the eighteen vices or calamities for kings, duties of kings; the characteristics and duties of amātyas (councillors); the characteristics of purohita; the characteristics and duties of a prādvivāka (Judge); the members of the hall of justice (sabhyas), their number and qualifications; concerning forts; the time and place and accessories of the settlement of royal policy; concerning the state treasury; the army; the commander-in-chief and the discipline of the army; ambassadors, allies, and spies; the general obligations of kings, conflict of Dharmaśāstra and Arthaśāstra, the six guṇas—saṃdhi etc., the maṇḍala of kings; the king's power of punishment; abdication by king, the heir-apparent, impartibility of the kingdom; the eldest son's right to succeed, the seven constituent elements of the state; obligation towards the poor, the helpless etc.; the coronation of the heir-apparent or his investiture.

There are two more works composed by Caṇḍeśvara viz., the Dānavākyaṅgāvali and the Śivavākyaṅgāvali. Vide I. O. Cat. p. 1409, No. 3724 for the latter and Haraprasad Shastri's Cat. (1925) vol. III No. 2393 pp. 465-66 for the Dānavākyaṅgāvali. Raghunandana quotes Dānavākyaṅgāvali in (vol. II) Udvāha p. 138 (which is most probably this work of Caṇḍeśvara).

Caṇḍeśvara names in his works, particularly in the Kṛtyaratnākara and the Vivādaratnākara, a host of writers and works. In his great digest he drew largely upon five predecessors and incorporated often without acknowledgment much or almost all that was valuable in them. These five predecessors were the Kāmadhenu, the Kalpataru, the Pārijāta, the Prakāśa (i. e. Smṛti-mahārṇava) and Halāyudha, all of which he quotes scores of of times. At the end of the Vivādaratnākara he boasts that whatever is of the essence in the above five works and even more is comprehended in his single work the Ratnākara.¹¹⁵¹ Dr. Jayasval rightly points out (in Intro. to Rājanītiratnākara p. p.) 'From Lakṣmīdhara's Kalpataru on Vyavahāra Caṇḍeśvara borrows into his Vivādaratnākara practically the whole book'. The boastful references to himself and highly slighting remarks about Kāmadhenu, Kalpataru and other works which occur in his works are felt by modern readers as very objectionable and offensive, since he appropriates without express acknowledgement the valuable parts of such works as the Kāmadhenu, Kalpataru and others.

In several papers Mr. (now Dr.) Bhabatosh Bhattacharya attempts to show Caṇḍeśvara's indebtedness to others (vide the following) and also offers some other matters about Caṇḍeśvara and others : (1) Caṇḍeśvara's indebtedness to Ballālasena' in I. C. vol. XI pp. 141-44; (2) Caṇḍeśvara's indebtedness to Śrīdatta in N. I. A. (Poona Vol. V No. 2 pp. 36-38); (3) The Dānasāgara and Dānaratnākara' in the Proceedings of the 15th All-India Oriental Conference (Bombay) pp. 281-83; (4) Supplementary portion of Gṛhastharatnākara in I. C. vol. XIII pp. 79-84; (5) Caṇḍeśvara's own account of himself and his patron Harisimhadeva in the Proceedings of All-India Oriental Conference at Tirupati (1940) pp. 171-175. I have to protest against a careless remark of the writer on p. 171 'Though the Gṛhastharatnākara of Caṇḍeśvara was published in 1928 he has not utilized the printed edition, but consulted the incomplete Deccan College Ms. of the same, which has only folios 30, 72-113 and has thus failed to supply the additional information contained in its Introductory verses'.

Here the writer has done an injustice to me. The first volume of the 'History of Dharmaśāstra' was published at Poona by the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute in August 1930. It contains 760 pages, the first 466 pages being more important than the rest; the remaining pages contain long lists of the works and authors on Dharmaśāstra. In the first part of 1926 was published by the same Institute the Vyavahāramayūkha edited by me (text and exhaustive notes). That is, the work of writing and seeing through the press the first volume of the H. of Dh. was at the most spread over about four years and a half from 1926. Caṇḍeśvara's career and works are dealt with in pp. 366-372. The pages must have been written in the last months of 1927 or the first part of 1928. The press was in Poona and I, who examined three proofs of each form, was in Bombay and this took time. There are several fallacies in Mr. Bhattacharya's remarks. A work in Sanskrit published in Calcutta in 1928 may not be known at all elsewhere for years, unless the publisher sends of his own accord copies or advertisements to different parts of India or unless writers or libraries and learned societies in other provinces place general orders with publishers in Calcutta to send books published by them. The only Library in Bombay in those days that contained a large number of Sanskrit Mss. or printed Sanskrit works was that of the Asiatic Society; but even that Society had and has limited resources, as it was and is a general library and hardly ever placed general orders for Sanskrit works with publishers in other and distant parts of India. There are thousands of authors and works in Sanskrit on Dharmaśāstra (as pp. 507-760 of the first volume will indicate). I selected only 113 out of them for treatment in 466 pages and relied on printed works and Mss. available chiefly in Bombay and Poona. I nowhere promised that I would scour all Sanskrit Mss. or printed works in the whole of India and elsewhere. In this particular instance there is nothing to show that the work was even printed when I wrote the pages on Caṇḍeśvara or sent them to the Press in Poona.

Among the authors and works mentioned in his seven ratnākaras, those mentioned below deserve to be noted.¹¹⁵² In I. L. R. 12 Cal. 348 (at p. 356) the learned judges appear to hold that the Pārijāta mentioned in the Vivādacintāmaṇi is the Madanapārijāta. But this is obviously a mistake (vide pp. 655-56 above on Pārijāta). Besides these in his Rājanītiratnākara he names Kāmandaka, Kullūkabhaṭṭa, Pallava and Pallavakāra, Śrīkara. What is printed as Naṭasūtra in the Vivādaratnākara (p. 477) is really Lāṭa (i. e. Lāṭyāyana Śrautasūtra). Caṇḍeśvara mentions many vernacular words (e. g. Krityaratnākara pp. 109, 111, 306, 338, 443).

We learn a great deal about the family and personal history of Caṇḍeśvara from his works. The Vivādaratnākara in the introduction and in the colophon tells us that Caṇḍeśvara was a mantrin (a minister), was entrusted with the office of minister for peace and war, that he conquered Nepal and weighed himself against gold on the banks of the Vāgvatī in śake 1236 (1314 A. D.).¹¹⁵³ There are more or less similar colophons at the end of the Rājanīratnākara and the other ratnākara. The grand-father of Caṇḍeśvara was Devāditya,¹¹⁵⁴ who was minister of Harasimhadeva of Tirhut and who belonged to the Kārṇāṭa family. Two families ruled over Mithilā viz. the Kārṇāṭa dynasty from 1097 A. D. to 1324 A. D. followed by the Kāmeśvara dynasty. The first started with Nānyadeva and ended with Harisimhadeva (vide JBORS vol. IX p. 300 ff. and vol. X. p. 37 and JBRS vol. 43 for 1957 pp. 1-6 by Dr. R. C. Majumdar and 'Kārṇāṭa rulers of Mithilā' in the same volume pp. 61-63 by Mr. Kamal Narain Jha). Harisimhadeva had to retire before the Delhi Sultan Ghiasuddin Tughlak and established himself in Nepal which happened in December 1324 A. D. as the note from the Pañji historian of Mithilā (vide note 1161 below) shows and ruled there for several years.

The कृत्यसमुच्चय, भूपालपद्धति and भूपालकृत्यसमुच्चय seem to be the same work. The work called Pallava (on Rājanīti) is frequently mentioned in the Rājanītiratnākara on pp. 35, 41, 52, 53, 72, 84 and Pallavakāra is mentioned on pp. 18, 79.

The correct name of the king was Harisimhadeva, though the printed Kṛtyaratnākara exhibits the name as Harasimhadeva (Intro. verse 4). It would be seen from the genealogy that Vidyāpati, famous for his padas in Maithilī, was the son's son of Jayadatta, a first paternal cousin of Caṇḍeśvara. Vidyāpati in his Puruṣaparīkṣā, 2nd tale (Subuddhakathā) narrates the story of Harisimhadeva. There is great confusion about the birth-date of Vidyāpati, some saying, that he was born in 1340, while others hold that his birth was in 1380 A. D. or 1390 A. D. Most hold that he died in 1448 A. D. It is unnecessary to give more details about him here. Vide I. A. vol. 14 pp. 182-196 by Dr. Grierson, vol. 28 pp. 57-58; 'Poems of Vidyāpati' in Devanāgarī by Khagendranath Mitra with a valuable Introduction of 132 pages, reviewed in J. G. J. R. I. Vol. X pp. 175-196. Dr. Jayakant Mishra's 'History of Maithilī Literature' vol. I describes on pp. 130-196 the period 1350-1450 A. D. as the age of Vidyāpati Thakur. Besides his famous lyrical poems in Maithilī some Sanskrit works are ascribed to him viz. Varṣakṛtya (which Raghu in Mala in vol. I p. 823 mentions as Vidyāpati's), Gaṅgā-vākyāvalī (Raghu vol. I. pp. 39, 79 and 259 mentions a work of this name but its author is not named), Dānavākyāvalī (vol. II Udvāha 138, author not named), Durgābhaktitarāṅgiṇī (mentioned in vol. I Tithitattva pp. 81, 83, 96, no author named), Saivasarvasvasāra, Vibhāgasāra, Gayāvākyaṅgāvalī and four more (which have hardly any bearing on Dharmaśāstra). Of these Gaṅgāvākyaṅgāvalī, and Śaivasarvasvasāra are attributed to queen Viśvāsadevī and Dānavākyaṅgāvalī to queen Dhīramati. Vide new I. A. vol. VII pp. 49–57 by G. C. Basu and Mr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya's paper in the Proceedings of All-India Oriental Conference at Benares (in 1943–44) vol. II. pp. 288–297. The grant of the village Bisapī to Vidyāpati (now held by scholars as spurious) is set out by Grierson on p. 191 of his paper in I. A. vol. 14 pp. 182–196 on 'Vidyāpati and his Contemporaries' and Grierson in I. A. vol. 28 pp. 57–58 states that the grant is dated in La. Sam. 292 i. e. 1400–1 A. D. i. e. he holds that La. Sam. started in 1109 A. D. (vide above p. 733 for La. Sam.) and he sets out the Kāmeśvara dynasty as follows. Pañjikāras mention four rulers after Viśvāsadevī, but as Vidyāpati does not mention them they are omitted here.

There is no unanimity about the chronology of the rulers of the Kārṇāṭa dynasty.

The last three of the Kārṇāṭa Dynasty are stated to have been Rāmasimha, Śaktisimha and Harisimha. But even here there is a difficult problem. In the Inscription of Pratāpamalla (I. A. vol. IX pp. 184, 188, 189) a king named Bhūpālasimha is shown as having ruled between Śaktisimha and Harisimha. The present author need not deal with that question here. We know from the Kṛtyaratnākara (2nd Intro. verse quoted in note 1154) that Devāditya, the grand-father of Caṇḍeśvara, was the chief minister of the king. After Devāditya his son Vīreśvara became chief minister and Caṇḍeśvara, the eldest son of Vīreśvara, held several offices such as chief justice, also minister for peace and war and chief minister (vide note from Mitra's Notices vol. VI p. 67). As Caṇḍeśvara weighed himself against precious metals in śake 1236 (1314 A. D.), it follows that he must have been for at least several years a favourite minister of the king Harisimhadeva, to whom the Pañjī historians of Mithilā assign a reign of 20 years i. e. Harisimhadeva began to rule about 1304 A. D. Harisimhadeva, being defeated, went to Nepal and the Delhi emperor put in his place Kāmeśvara Rājapaṇḍita.¹¹⁵⁵ One of the sons of Devāditya was Vīreśvara who was also a minister for peace and war of the same king and is said to have made grants to learned Brāhmaṇas in Rāmapura (i. e. Simraon in Champaran District) and other cities (verse 10 of Kṛtyaratnākara). Mr. Jayasval points out in his introduction to the Rājanīti-ratnākara (j) that the correct name of the king was Harisimhadeva. Another son of Devāditya was Gaṇeśvara who was younger than Vīreśvara and who was also a great minister and author of Sugatisopāna. A copy of this work bears the date La-sam (Lakṣmaṇasena era) 224 (i. e. 1343–44 A. D.).¹¹⁵⁶ In the colophon of this work Devāditya is called 'mahāmatta' (mahāmātra) and Gaṇeśvara is styled mahārājādhirāja. In the Śrāddhaviveka of Rudradhara the Sugatisopāna is said to be the work of one who was pratihastaka (deputy) of Bhavaśarma¹¹⁵⁷ Caṇḍeśvara was the son of Vīreśvara and like his father and grandfather became minister of Harisimhadeva. This must have happened about 1310 A. D., as he weighed himself in 1314 A. D. The Kṛtyaratnākara (verse 15) says that he touched the very idol of Paśupati in Nepal and worshipped it after conquering the country.

From the Vyavahāratnākara it appears that Caṇḍeśvara was Chief Judge as well as Minister for peace and war.¹¹⁵⁸ Caṇḍeśvara and his ancestors are highly praised for their liberality¹¹⁵⁹ In the Dānaratnākara (verse 2 at the end) he is said to have rescued the earth submerged in the flood of Mlecchas.¹¹⁶⁰ This probably refers to the defeat of some Mahomedan generals. Harisimhadeva was routed by Ghiasuddin Tughlak in 1324 and retired from Tirhut into¹¹⁶¹ Nepal. Hence it follows that the seven

Ratnākara, some of which (like vivāda and dāna) refer to his weighing himself against gold in 1314 A. D. and his high position at the court of Harisimhadeva, were composed between 1314 and 1324 A. D. His Rājanītiratnākara was composed at the command of Bhavēśa. This last belonged to the line of the Kāmeśvara dynasty which began to rule Tirhut in the third quarter of the 13th century, in 1370 A. D. according to Mr. Jayasval (introduction to Rājanītiratnākara, r). Therefore the literary activities of Caṇḍeśvara extended over about 50 years from 1314 and the Rājanīti-ratnākara was probably his last work composed at a very advanced age. For the somewhat controversial and confused chronology of the Tirhut kings of the Kārṇāṭa and Kāmeśvara dynasties, vide Hp. cat. (Introduction p. 31); Grierson in Ind. Ant. vol. 14, pp. 182-196 and Ind. Ant. vol. 28, p. 57; JASB 1915 pp. 407-433 (M. M. Chakravarti); JBORS vol. IX, p. 300 and X, p. 37 (Jayasval).

Caṇḍeśvara exercised very great influence over Maithila and Bengal writers. Misarumiśra, Vardhamāna, Vācaspati-miśra and Raghunandana¹¹⁶² very frequently quote him. The Vīramitrodaya (p. 181) calls the Ratnākara 'Paurastya-nibandha' (eastern digest).

92. Harinātha

Harinātha is the author of a digest called Smṛtisāra on several topics of dharmaśāstra. No part of this work has been yet printed. In the India Office there are two mss. of the Smṛtisāra (I. O. Cat. p. 448, No. 1488 and p. 449, No. 1489). The first cites 67 authorities (pramāpakāḥ) on Dharmaśāstra, out of which the Karmapradīpa, the Kalpataru, the Kāmadhenu, Kumāra, Gaṇeśvaramiśra, Vijñāneśvara, Vilamba (?), Smṛtimañjūṣā and Harihara deserve special mention. This ms. contains the portion of the Smṛtisāra on the saṁskāras, rites on death, śrāddha and prāyaścitta. The other ms. deals with the principal topics of vivāda (various titles of law) and vyavahāra (judicial procedure), viz. partition, father's share on partition, larger share to the eldest son, persons excluded from partition and inheritance, impartible property; strīdhana; the several kinds of sons; succession to the property of the sonless; re-union; gambling and prize-fighting and other titles of law; various methods of daṇḍa (punishment); the various units of measure etc.; judicial procedure i. e. the plaint, the reply, the means of proof, viz. documents, witnesses, possession, reasoning, oaths and ordeals; review of judgment; minority and dependence; rules about succession according to various authors. This last portion appears to be a sort of supplement, wherein the views of Bālarūpa, Pārijāta, Halāyudha, Kalpataru and of the Smṛtisāra itself on the order of succession to a man dying sonless are set forth. Viśvarūpa and Śrīkara are named in the summary of Bālarūpa's views and the Prakāśa at a later stage (folio 148 b). Bhavadeva-nibandha is also expressly named on possession.

No information is given in the mss. about Harinātha himself. He is styled in the colophons 'mahāmahopādhyāya.' In several places he refers to the views of the Gaudas on ācāra; e. g. he cites the view of the Gaudas that on a fasting day or śrāddha day one should not employ the twig used in dantadhāvana and that when there is Ekādaśī on two days a house-holder should observe a fast on the first and a yati on the second. It appears that he was not a Gauḍa but rather a Maithilī.

The India Office ms. of the vivāda portion of the Smṛtisāra is dated saṃvat 1614 (i. e. 1558 A. D.). Another ms. of the same portion (vide Mitra's Notices, vol. V, p. 232, No. 1913) was copied in Lakṣmaṇa saṃvat 363 i. e. 1469-1470 A. D. Śūlapāṇi quotes the Smṛtisāra in his Durgotsavaviveka. Misarumiśra in his Vivādacandra several times refers to the opinions of the Smṛtisāra.¹¹⁶³ Hence it follows that the Smṛtisāra was composed before the last quarter of the 14th century. Candēśvara in his voluminous work nowhere refers to Harinātha nor does the latter refer to him. Hence they were probably contemporaries or not separated by any appreciable interval of time. As Harinātha mentions the Kalpataru and Harihara, he must be later than about 1250 A. D. If Ganeśvaramiśra¹¹⁶⁴ mentioned by Harinātha be the author of the Sugatisopāna (which is extremely probable) who was an uncle of Candēśvara, then Harinātha cannot be earlier than about 1300 A. D. Harinātha is mentioned in the Daṇḍaviveka p. 251 and on p. 326 and the latter refers to the author of Smṛtisāra on pp. 141, 197, 282, 284. Raghunandana in Smṛtitattva, (vol. I) Tithi p. 85, criticizes the meaning of Vāruṇa given by Harinātha; Prāyaścitta p. 536 (mentioned as Harināthopādhyāya); Vol. II. Ekādaśī pp. 7, 105, Udvāha p. 108, Śuddhitattva 240 (as against Bhavadevabhāṭṭa). The Smṛtisāra is several times mentioned as an authority in the Śrāddhaviveka of Rudradhara (Benares S. Series on pp. 14, 48, 50), who is frequently mentioned by Raghunandana in the Smṛtitattva (vol. I.) Tithi pp. 136, 137, 186, Śrāddha p. 226, Prāyaścitta p. 542. The Smṛtisāra is mentioned by the Vivādacintāmaṇi¹¹⁶⁵ by Vācaspati-miśra (on p. 36 of the edition of 1837). Therefore Harinātha flourished sometime between 1300–1400 A. D.

There are several works styled Smṛtisāra e. g. of Keśavaśarmā (Mitra's Notices, vol. II. p. 76), of Yādavabhūṣaṇa-bhāṭṭācārya (Mitra's Notices, vol. IV p. 213 No. 1642), of Devayājñika (D. C. Ms. No. 266 of 1884–87 and 344 of 1886–92, the latter being called Smṛtisārasaṅgraha). Hence it often becomes difficult to say in the case of later works, what particular Smṛtisāra is being quoted.

In Srimati Sabitri v. Mrs. F. A. Savi. (I. L. R. 12 Patna, p. 359 at p. 513) this view of the Smṛtisāra is referred to and discussed.

93. Mādhavācārya

A vast mass of literature has accumulated on the history of Sāyana, Mādhava, Vidyāranya, the foundation of Vijayanagara, the relations of these three with the founding of the city of Vijayanagara and their relations with the kings of Vijayanagara, the identity of Mādhava and Vidyāranya and so on. It is not possible to discuss the whole mass of evidence. Attention will have to be fixed in this work mainly on the contributions of Mādhavācārya to Dharmaśāstra.

It must be stated that sectarian zeal, local patriotisms, personal inclinations and prejudices appear to have played havoc with the Mss, of the works of Sāyana and Mādhava and inscriptions and copperplates relating to them. An instance may be cited to illustrate this. There are only six introductory verses in the bhāṣya on the R̥gveda. Attempts appear to have been made to tamper with verses 3 and 4 (as shown in the note).¹¹⁶⁶ As to serious disputes between persons belonging to different religions persuasions, reference may be made to the petition made by Jains that the bhaktas (Vaiṣṇavas) were killing them (Vide Prof. B. R. Salatore's Vol. I. p. 103).

1166 Vide the review of 'Vijayanagara-Origin of the City and the Empire' by Dr. N. Venkataramanayya in J. A. H. R. S. Vol. IX. pp. 49-54 (by K. Iswara Dutt), in which it is pointed out that there are three main theories viz. (1) Hoysala origin propounded by messrs Krishna Swami Ayyangar and Krishna Shastri; (2) the Canarese sources advocated by Father Heras and Mr. Hayavadana Rao and (3) the Āndhra origin sponsored by Vincent Smith and Dr. Venkataramaniah. यत्कटाक्षेण तद्रूपं दधद् बुक्कमहीपतिः। आदिशन्माधवाचार्यं वेदार्थस्य प्रकाशने ॥ ये पूर्वोत्तर-मीमांसे ते व्याख्यायति सङ्ग्रहात्। कृपालुर्माधवाचार्यो वेदार्थं वक्तुमुद्यतः ॥ verses 3 and 4 of the Intro. to the bhāṣya of R̥ V. Saṁhitā. It will be seen that some Mss. used by the editors of the Poona Vaidika Saṁśodhana Maṇḍala read in verse 3 सायणाचार्यं for माधवाचार्यं and in verse four सायणाचार्यो for माधवाचार्यो and four mss. read two more verses after verse 3 as follows — स प्राह नृपतिं राजन् सायणार्यो ममानुजः। सर्वं वेत्त्येष वेदानां व्याख्यातृत्वेन मुज्यताम् ॥ इत्युक्तो माधवाचार्येण वीरबुक्कमहीपतिः (अन्वगात्। v. I. अन्वशात्) सायणाचार्यं वेदार्थस्य प्रकाशने ॥

Mādhavācārya is the brightest star in the galaxy of dākṣiṇātya authors on dharmaśāstra. His fame stands only second to that of the great Śaṅkarācārya. He had a most versatile genius and either himself wrote or inspired his brother Sāyaṇa and others to write voluminous works on almost all branches of Sanskrit literature. As an erudite scholar, as a far-sighted statesman, as the bulwark of the Vijayanagara kingdom in the first days of its foundation, as a saṁnyāsin given to peaceful contemplation and renunciation in old age, he led such a varied and useful life that even to this day his is a name to conjure with. Among his numerous works two deserve special mention here, viz., the Parāśara-mādhaviya his commentary on the Parāśarasmr̥ti and the Kālanirṇaya.

The Parāśara-mādhaviya has been published several times, the edition in the B. I. Series and in the Bombay Sanskrit Series being the best known. In the following the Bombay edition has been used. This work is very extensive and occupies about 2300 printed pages in the Bombay edition. It is not a mere commentary on Parāśara's text, but is in the nature of a digest of civil and religious law. The original smṛti of Parāśara contains no verses on vyavahāra but Mādhavācārya hangs on the slender peg of a single verse of Parāśara¹¹⁶⁷ calling upon the king to rule his subjects with righteousness, has treatise on vyavahāra that covers a little over a fourth part of the whole commentary (vide note 491 above on Parāśara). The Parāśara-mādhaviya is a work of authority on modern Hindu Law in southern India.¹¹⁶⁸ His style is lucid and he generally avoids lengthy and abstruse discussions. Besides numerous smṛtikāras and purāṇas he names the following authors and works—Aparārka, Devasvāmin, Purāṇasāra, Prapañcasāra, Medhātithi, Vivaraṇakāra (on the Vedāntasūtra), Viśvarūpācārya, Śambhu, Śivasvāmin, Smṛticandrikā. The Parāśara-mādhaviya was amongst his earliest works. He tells us that there was no commentary on Parāśara before him.¹¹⁶⁹ Raghunandana in Āhnikatattva (vol. I. p. 382) expressly says 'iti Parāśarabhāṣye Mādhavācāryaḥ'. The Parāśarabhāṣya is mentioned by Raghunandana in (vol. I.) Tithi pp. 24, 63, Āhnika pp. 343, 359 also.

The Kālanirṇaya of Mādhavācārya has been published several times. In the following the B. I. edition has been used. He states that he wrote this work after he composed his commentary on the Parāśarasmṛti.¹¹⁷⁰ The work is divided into five prakaraṇas. The first (Upodghāta) deals with a scholastic disquisition on kāla (time) and its real nature ; the 2nd (called vatsara) speaks of the year, its various lengths according as it is cāndra, sāvana or saura, of the two ayanas, of the seasons and their number, of the months (cāndra, saura, sāvana and nākṣatra) of the intercalary months, and the religious acts allowed and forbidden in intercalary months, of the two pakṣas (fortnights); the third prakaraṇa (pratipat-prakarana) deals with the meaning of the word tithi, duration of a tithi, the fifteen tithis of a pakṣa, two kinds of tithis, viz. śuddhā (i. e. not intermixed with another tithi on the same day) and viddhā (intermixed with another tithi on the same day), rules about the preference of the first tithi for particular religious rites and observances (for Gods and Manes) when intermixed with the preceding and following tithis, the fifteen muhūrtas of the day and of the night ; the fourth (dvitīyādi-tithi-prakarana) extends the application of the rules about pratipad to the tithis from the second to the fifteenth and decides on what tithi (whether inermixed with the preceding or the following) certain vratas, such as Gaurīvrata on the third, Janmāṣṭamī on the 8th, were to be performed ; the fifth (prakīrṇaka i. e. miscellaneous) deals with rules about the determination of nakṣatras for various acts, the yogas and karaṇas and rules about saṁkrānti and eclipses and the actions proper for them.

The Kālanirṇaya besides the names of numesous sages, purāṇas, astronomical and astrological writers mentions the following works and authors :—Kālādarśa (p. 83), Bhoja (as having composed in Āryā metre a work on the Śaiva āgama), Muhūtra-vidhāna-sāra (p. 341). Vateśvarasiddhānta, Vāsiṣṭha

Rāmāyaṇa, the Siddhānta-śiromani (of Bhāskarācārya), Hemādri (p. 67 his vratakhaṇḍa and Dānakhaṇḍa).

The vesres (Kārikās) in the Kālanirṇaya are collected together and sometimes treated as a separate work. Vide Prof. Velankar's Cat. of the Sanskrit Mss. in the B. B. R. A. S. (pub. in 1925) No. 676 and also his Cat. of the Desai collection of Sanskrit Mss. Nos. 197-199 (pub. in 1953).

The Kālanirṇaya was published by the A. S. B. (Calcutta) in 1889, also in the Kashi Sanskrit Series of Benares in 1936 and was also published with the commentary of Lakṣmīdevi Pāyagunḍe.

It should not be supposed that Sāyaṇa single-handed composed the Vedabhāṣyas. He was probably the chairman of the committee of scholars gathered for carrying out the work of the several bhāṣyas. From the enlophons of his several works it appears that he was minister under four kings, viz Bukka I, Kampana, San̄gama II and Harihara II. The Mysore Archaeological Report for 1908 para 54 states (under date 1386 A. D.) that Harihara II gave in the presence of Vidyāraṇya a copperplate grant to three scholars who were the promoters (pravartaka) in the matter of the commentaries on the four Vedas, their names being Nārāyaṇa Vajapeyayājīn, Narahari Somayājīn and Pandari Dīkṣita. Father Heras admits that he himself referred to Vidyāraṇya as the great helper of Harihara in the foundation of Vijayanagara, but later he grew wiser and says that it was his mistake (vide 'Beginnings' &c. p. 14).

Even Father Heras concedes that the stone inscription in E. C. VI Sgi of 1346 A. D. is genuine. It records a grant, after obeisance to Vidyātīrtha, by Harihara of nine villages to Bhāratīrtha Śrīpāda, his disciples and others and 40 brāhmaṇas residing in that tīrtha of Śringerī. Father Heras (on pp. 19-28 of his work) gives a catalogue of 196 inscriptions from 1336 A. D. to 1669 A. D. Father Heras summarises on p. 18 of his work the principal, historical events in the life of Vidyāraṇya connected with Vijayanagara. In 1347 Vidyāraṇya was a minister of Mārpa in the kingdom of Banavāsi-twelve thousand; in 1356 he was at Benares, but had to return to Vijayanagara as he was ordered to do so by his guru Vidyātīrtha; in 1363 he was a great minister (Mahāpradhāna) of Bukka I; in 1380 he is mentioned as Jāgadguru; his teachings benefitted Harihara II in 1384; in 1386 he died at Hampi and an inscription of Harihara II contains a funeral eulogy of the learned Guru. Heras insists that he was not Jagad-guru in 1346 or 1356. He further holds that Vijayanagara was purposely corrupted into Vidyānagara; only 54 out of 196 Inscriptions exhibit this form of Vidyānagara; while 111 all give the name Vijayanagara and only 31 refer to the ancient name of the city. Father Heras rounds off the examination of the several inscriptions and grants with the following conclusion (p. 34 of 'Beginning &c.'): 'Hence it may be concluded that the ascetics of the Sringerimath fabricated the story of Vidyāranya as the founder of the city and Empire of Vijayanagara in the beginning of the 16th century. And it seems most probable that the fabrication of the whole story and the falsification of a great number, if not of all the spurious grants above referred to, was perpetrated during the rule of Ramchandra Bhārati who directed the Śringerī Maṭha from 1508 to 1560'. This is not the place to enter upon an examination of Father Heras' reasons for this conclusion. But I cannot avoid the temptation of quoting one of the reasons set forth by Heras as it is well worth quoting. It is: 'Finally such religious ascetics and recluses psychologically are persons often inclined to fabricate such fables'. Then he winds up with the remark 'Hence that fabrication of a story which one may derive a profit from – provided no harm should result from the concoction to a third person – is always attractive to such religious recluses'. This is a grand generalisation of Father Heras. He adduces no evidence except his ipse dixit; comment is superfluous. I hope that Heras would have agreed to apply that dictum to the priests of all religions, as an English poet says 'the priests of all religions are the same'.

In this History of Dharmaśāstra the discussion of the vexed question of the connection of Mādhava-Vidyāranya with the founding of Vijayanagara is not necessary or relevant. The only important question for the History is the identity of Mādhava and Vidyāranya. That Vidyāranya presided over the Śringerī Maṭha is admitted even by Father Heras. That Mādhava became a Sannyāsin and became known as Vidyāranya is a tradition of long standing. There is some literary evidence also to substantiate this.

Vidyāranya is the author of several works such as the Jīvanmukti-viveka and the Pañcadaśī. The former of these two has several Introductory verses, one of which (verse 9) ¹¹⁷¹ says that some sannyāsins are called 'Kuṭīcaka' or 'Bahūdaka'; they are 'tridandins', but the 'paramahansa' is different and that the first two have been dealt with by us (me) in the commentary on Parāśara-smṛti, while the Paramahansa would be expatiated upon in this work (i. e. Jīvanmukti-viveka).

Other questions are : (1) Who founded Vijayanagara and (2) whether Mādhava is identical with Vidyāranya. From the days of Sewell, who wrote the book 'Forgotten Empire' on Vijayanagara Empire, many works and papers on the subject of the founder or founders of Vijayanagara have appeared. Vide, the example, 'The origin of the city of Vijayanagara and Empire' by Dr. N. Venkata Ramanayya (University of Madras 1933), Dr. B. R. Salatore on 'Rajguru of the founders of Vijayanagara and the Pontiffs of Śringerī Māṭha' in J. A. H. R. vol. IX part 4 pp. 33-42 and his two volumes on 'Social and Political Life in the Vijayanagara Empire' (1934, in about 1000 pages); Journal of Mythic Society, vol. 27 pp. 54-107 (foundation of Vijayanagara); 'Founders of Vijayanagara' by S. Srikantayya (1938); Mr. Gopinath Rao in E. I. vol. XV pp. 10-15. Mr. Srikantayya observes on p. 43 'Who founded Vijayanagara? The question still remains unanswered'.

On the question of the identity of Mādhava and Vidyāranya a few references are given here. In I. H. Q. vol. VI pp. 701-717 and vol. VII p. 78 ff. Mr. R. Ramrao tries to negative the identity. In I. H. Q. vol. VIII pp. 611-644 K. Markandeya Sastri replies at length to R. Ramrao. R. Ramrao returns to the charge in I. H. Q. vol. X pp. 801-810; Journal of Indian History vol. XII pp. 241-250 (Doraiswamy Iyengar rejects the identity of Mādhava and Vidyāranya). The present author holds that Mādhava and Vidyāranya are identical.

There are, apart from traditions and chronicles several inscriptions that bear on the connection of Mādhavācārya or Vidyāranya with the several kings of Vijayanagara. Father Heras in his work called 'Beginnings of Vijayanagar History' goes so far as to say that practically all inscriptions relating to the Vidyāranya tradition or to the connection of Vidyāranya with Harihara and Bukka in political and imperial undertakings are spurious or must be certainly looked upon with suspicion. His remarks are very sweeping and cannot be accepted as embodying the truth. At least about 200 inscriptions and grants relating to Vijayanagara are known. The scholars must try to separate the spurious ones from the others. There is no reason to damn all grants and Inscriptions referring to Vidyāranya. He was a Sannyāsin and had renounced the world. It is too much to suppose that he forged grants. If one holds that he did so, then the question arises, for what benefit or for whose benefit? Besides copperplate grants can be easily fabricated and passed off; but Inscriptions on stone are generally in public places such as roads, temples, tops of hills, where all members of the public can observe them everyday. A scholar must think long before damning an inscription on stone as a forgery.

There is no doubt that in the 13th century A. D. and afterwards Hindu society in South India was ridden with the wrangles and quarrels of the followers of Śaṅkarācārya, Mādhavācārya, Rāmānujācārya and of Lingayats and Jains and that individuals of some persuasions tampered with mss. to bolster up their individual preferences, leanings and beliefs. This may be illustrated by citing the Introduction of Sāyaṇācārya's bhāṣya as done above.

Sāyaṇācārya's bhāṣya¹¹⁷² on the Yajurveda-saṁhitā is once mentioned by Raghunandana (vol. I, Śrāddha p. 277 as quoted below). But Mādhavācārya is frequently quoted by him. For example, the Kālamādhaviya is quoted very often as on (vol. I) Tithi pp. 1, 6, 8, 16, 33, 48, 60 as Kālamādhaviya or Mādhavācārya, Śrāddha p. 283; the Parāśarabhāṣya of Mādhavācārya is mentioned in (vol. I) Āhnika on pp. 336, 382 and simply as

yajurveda (Mādhyandina I. 12 and Kāṇva-saṁhitā I. 16)

Mādhavācārya also in many places e. g. (vol. I), ' Mala pp. 771, 781, 794 (definition of the word Mantra).

A good deal about the family and personal history of Mādhavācārya can be gleaned from the above mentioned two works and other treatises of Mādhavācārya. From the Parāśara-mādhaviya we¹¹⁷³ learn that he was the son of Māyaṇa and Śrīmatī, that Sāyaṇa and *Bhoganātha*¹¹⁷⁴ were his younger brothers, that he was a student of the black Yajurveda and of the Baudhāyana-sūtra-carana and belonged to the Bhāradvāja-gotra. The introductory verses and the colophon of the *Prāyaścitta-sudhānidhi*¹¹⁷⁵ of Sāyaṇa corroborate most of these particulars. A verse at the beginning of the Kālanirṇaya tells us that Vidyātīrtha, Bhāratīrtha and Śrīkaṇṭha were his 1174 Bhoganātha was a learned man in his own way. Vide I. A. vol. 45 pp. 22-24 in R. B. R. Narasimhachar's paper. He wrote six works viz ramoḥṣaṣṭha, tripuravijay, udāharaṇamālā, mahāgaṇapati-stotra, śuṅḡara-majjari, gaurīnāthaṣṭak. He was the composer of the Bitragunta grant of śake 1278 (1356 A. D.), published in E. I. vol. III. pp. 21-34. In the Alaṅkāra-sudhānidhi (vide 'Indian Culture' vol. VI. pp. 439-447 by Mr. P. L. Sastry) composed by Sāyaṇa the Udāharaṇamālā of Bhoganātha is cited. He composed the Bitragunta grant and describes himself as the 'narmasaciva' of king Saṅgama (II). To translate the word 'Narmasaciva' as simply 'jester' is not quite accurate (as the editor of the Inscription does) The idea is : the very learned brothers Sāyaṇa and Mādhava (both ministers) were far above playfulness or the cracking of jokes with the king, but Bhoganātha, a poet, being young and less learned than the other two, could, be intimate with the king. The verse quoted in I. A. vol. 45 p. 24 from the Alaṅkāra-sudhānidhi indicates this : अन्योन्य-

teachers.¹¹⁷⁶ * The Parāśara-Mādhaviya highly eulogises¹¹⁷⁷ Mādhava, compares him to divine and semi-divine councillors like Āṅgīrasa of Indra and says that he was the hereditary teacher (kulaguru) and mantrin of king Bukka, (or Bukka). The colophons to the several works of Śāyana, the younger brother of Mādhavācārya, show that these brothers were closely connected with four rulers of the Vijayanagar dynasty, viz. Bukka and his son Harihara, Kampa and his son Saṅgama. In the Yājñatantra-sudhānidhi¹¹⁷⁸ (ms. in the Bhau Daji collection) Śāyana, the author of the bhāṣyas on the Vedas, is said to be the kulaguru of Harihara, son of Saṅgama. In the Guruvamśa-kāvya (Vāṇivilāsa Press ed.) it is said that Vidyāraṇya was the pupil of Vidyātīrtha, that he composed Veda-bhāṣyas and published them in the names of Śāyana and Mādhava, that Harihara and Bukka were the most valiant of the five sons of Saṅgama (v. 48), that Vīra Rudra was the sovereign of Harihara and Bukka and was defeated by the sura-trāṇa i. e. sultan. The same work says that Vidyāraṇya founded Vijayanagara in śake 1258, Vaiśākha śuddha 7 Sunday (i. e. 30th April 1335 A. D.) and crowned Harihara king.^{1178a}

Burnell in his introduction to the Vamśabrāhmaṇa started the theory that Śāyana and Mādhava were identical and put forward an esoteric meaning on the verse that states that Śāyana and Bhoganātha were the younger brothers of Mādhava. But the facts as culled from the works of these two great men and the inscriptions of contemporary Vijayanagara kings are too strong for the hypothesis of Burnell and make it look absurd. The whole subject about the relationship of Mādhava, Sāyana and Bhoganātha has been carefully examined by Rao Bahadur R. Narasimhachar in Ind. Ant. vol. 45 pp. 1-6 and 17ff. and the theory of Burnell has been thoroughly refuted. Sāyana and Bhoganātha were as real personages as Mādhavācārya himself. Mādhavācārya in his later years became a saṁnyāsin and was named Vidyāranya. To the items of evidence adduced by R. B. R. Narasimhachar for establishing the identity of Mādhava and Vidyāranya (Ind. Ant. vol. 45 p. 18) I may add one more. The Vīramitrodaya ascribes the commentary on Parāśara composed by Mādhava to Vidyāranya.¹¹⁷⁹ It has however to be noted that the Guruvamśakāvya (Vāṇivilās Press ed.) says (V. 41-44) that Vidyāranya was different from both Sāyana and Mādhava.

Sāyana¹¹⁸⁰ was not only a very learned man and author of several works (besides the Vedabhāṣyas) but he also fought several battles. He composed several works enumerated in the note below.¹¹⁸¹

In the bhāṣya on Parāśara he names three gurus, Vidyātīrtha, Bhāratīrtha and Śrīkantha. He, however, says in his Anubhūtiprakāśa that Vidyātīrtha was his principal guru.¹¹⁸²

Vidyāranya was originally Mādhava. He is the author of the Jīvanmuktiviveka and of Pañcadaśī. The introductory verses 9-11 of the Jīvanmuktiviveka have been cited above. The commentary on Parāśarasmṛti (called Parāśaramādhaviya) is claimed to be his by Mādhavācārya (vide note 1170). Therefore Vidyāranya's words lead to the conclusion that he is identical with Mādhavācārya in a former stage of life (āśrama). Vide Rao Bahadur R. Narasimhachar's learned paper on ' Mādhavācārya and his younger brothers ' in I. A. vol. 45 pp. 1-6 and 17-24.

Among the works of Mādhavācārya are the following : Parāśarasmṛtibhāṣya, Kālamādhava, Jīvanmuktiviveka, Pañcadaśī, Jaiminiya-nyāyamālāvistara, Vaiyāsika-nyāyamālāvistara. The Pañcadaśī has a commentary of Rāmakṛṣṇa (Nir. Press ed. of 1918). It is a famous work on the Advaita Vedānta. It is so called because it has 15 Prakaraṇas. It may also be noted that in the Nir. edition the work has 1501 verses. The longest Prakaraṇas are Tṛptidīpa with 298 verses and Citradīpa with 290. The shortest Prakaraṇa is ' Mahāvākya-viveka ' with only eight verses. The Jīvanmuktiviveka has extensive quotations from the Upaniṣads and the Bhagavadgītā. It also quotes the following works and authors viz. Ānandabodhācārya (p. 8), Āryāpañcāśīti (p. 48), Upadeśasāhasrī (p. 6), Gauḍapādācārya (pp. 78, 108), Dakṣa p. 106 (two verses of which one is Dakṣasmṛti VII. 30), Patañjali (p. 39), Bhāgavata (p. 87), Manusmṛti (pp. 106 and 108 quote respectively VII. 10-11 and VI. 53-54), Medhātithi (9 verses on p. 109 about Yati, probably from his Smṛtiviveka not yet discovered), Yama (p. 108), Yogabhāṣya (pp. 64, 74), Yogasūtra (pp. 46, 67), Vākyavṛtti (p. 30 two verses), Vedāntasūtra (p. 30, IV. 1. 19).

It appears that Mādhavācārya regarded Vidyātīrtha, his principal guru, as an incarnation of God Maheśvara. Vide the verse quoted in the note below.¹¹⁸³

Besides being a mantrin of the Vijayanagara kings, it appears that Mādhavācārya performed some great vedic sacrifices, and made donations called ' Mahādānas '. In the

The जैमिनीय-न्यायमाला has several Introductory verses of which the last is the same as above (except this that the 2nd pāda begins with ' जैमिनीयन्यायमाला ').

Yajñatantrasudhānidhi¹¹⁸⁴ he is described by Sāyana as 'Mahā-kratūnām-āhartā' and to have weighed himself against precious metals (tulāpuruṣadāna).

The chronology of the kings of Vijayanagara has been a fruitful source of controversy. It is not necessary to go into that chronology in great detail here. It may be studied in such works as Sewell's 'Forgotten Empire' and in E. I. vol. III. p. 36, E. I. vol. XIV p. 68, E. I. vol. XV p. 8. The following pedigree¹¹⁸⁵ will be sufficient for the purpose of connecting Mādhava and his brothers with the kings of Vijayanagara. The earliest inscription is that of Harihara I dated śake 1261 (1339-40 A. D.) wherein Harihara is said to be a Mahā-maṇḍaleśvara and is spoken of as 'Śrī-Vīra-Hariyappa-Vodeya'.¹¹⁸⁶ The colophon of the Mādaviyā Dhātuvṛtti describes Mādhava as the great minister of Saṅgamarāja, the son of Kamparāja.¹¹⁸⁷ The Biṭraguṇṭa grant in śake 1278 (1356 A. D.) by Saṅgama II at the request of his teacher Śrīkaṇṭhanātha shows that Bhoganātha¹¹⁸⁸ who composed the contents of the grant was a narmasacīva (gay or humorous companion) of Saṅgama II. We saw above that Śrīkaṇṭha was a teacher of Mādhavācārya and that Bhoganātha was the youngest brother of Mādhavācārya. Bhoganātha in order to be a poet and a narama- saciva of a reigning sovereign must have been a grown-up man in 1356 A. D. and so Mādhavācārya must have been quite an elderly person about that time. The Kālanirṇaya tells us that in the cyclic year Īśvara following immediately after śake 1258 śrāvaṇa was an intercalary month and that in the cyclic year Bhāva that preceded śake 1258 (i. e. śake 1256) Phālguna was an intercalary month and then examines the intercalary months that occurred in the cyclic years up to Vikārī thereafter (i. e. up to śake 1281).^{1188a} As the Kālanirṇaya examines the intercalary months from śake 1256 (i. e. 1334 A. D.) to śake 1281 (i. e. 1359 A. D.), it follows that it was either composed during these years or immediately after this period. The Parāśara-mādhaviya was composed before the Kālanirṇaya. Rao Bahadur Narsimhachar states that in a copperplate grant dated 1386 A. D. it is said that Harihara (II) gave in the presence of Vidyāranya-śrīpāda certain donations to three scholars who were the promoters (pravartaka) of the commentaries on the four Vedas (Ind. Ant. vol. 45 p. 19). Another inscription speaks of Vidyāranya in 1378 A. D.¹¹⁸⁹ This shows that Mādhavācārya had become a sannyāsin at least in 1377 A. D. Tradition says that Vidyāranya died in 1386 A. D. at the ripe old age of 90. Therefore we shall not be far wrong if we place the literary activity of Mādhava-Vidyāranya between 1330-1385 A. D. From the remarks about intercalary months it appears that the Parāśara-mādhaviya and Kālanirṇaya were composed between 1335-1360 A. D. There was a tradition among pandits that it was Mādhavācārya who composed bhāṣyas on the Vedas and ascribed them to his brother Sāyana. Kāśinātha, in his Viṭṭhala-ṛṇmantra-sāra-bhāṣya says so.¹¹⁹⁰

Great confusion has been caused by identifying Mādhava-Vidyāranya with another scholar named Mādhava who was also a mantrin of Bukka, who was a great warrior and was governor of Banavase and the country round Goa on the western coast. In a grant¹¹⁹¹ of the village Kucara, also called Mādhavapura, dated śake 1313 (1391 A. D.), it is said that he routed the armies of the Turuṣkas, wrested Goa the capital of Koṅkaṇa from them and re-established the temple of Saptanātha (i. e. Sapta-koṭīśvara). There is another inscription dated śake 1290 (i. e. 1368 A. D.) where the great minister (Mahāpradhāna) Mādhavāṅka is stated to have ruled over Banavase 12000 under king Bukkarāya (Ind. Ant. vol. IV, p. 206). Fleet is wrong in identifying the minister Mādhavāṅka with Mādhavācārya-Vidyāranya. Another grant from Goa (found by Dr. Bhau Daji) says that Mādhava-mantrin, son of Caṇḍibhaṭṭa, established the ṭīṅga of Saptanātha (JBBRAS Vol. 9, p. 228). Vide E. C. vol. VIII, Sorab No. 375 dated śake 1268 (Sunday Mādhava 30, i. e. 11th Feb. 1347), where we are told that Mādhavamantrin was governor of Candragutti, capital of Banavase 12000, that he was minister of Mārāpa, younger brother of Harihara I and that he was a disciple of Kriyāśakti, a Śaiva teacher. In E. C. vol. VII, Shikarpur 281 dated śake 1290 Kārtika bahula 8 (i. e. 15th November 1368) Mādhava is said to have been a son of the Caṇḍa of the Āṅgirasa gotra and a minister of Bukka I and his guru is said to have been Kāśīvilāsa Kriyāśakti.

From this it follows that the Mādhava mantrin who was a governor of Banavase and Goa and was living in 1391 A. D. was the son of Caṇḍibhaṭṭa and cannot be identified with Mādhavācārya who was the son of Māyaṇa.

There is a ms. in the Bombay University Library of a work called Kālanirṇayakārikā in 130 verses, which contains the introductory verses of the Kālanirṇaya dealing with the contents, though in a somewhat different order. There are several commentaries on the Kālanirṇaya, viz. Kālanirṇayadīpikā by Rāmacandrācārya composed about 1450 A. D., a commentary called Lakṣmī

94 Madanapāla and Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa

The Madanapārijāta compiled under the patronage of king Madanapāla by Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa is a famous work. Like Bhoja, Madanapāla seems to have been a great patron of learning and several works are attributed to him. At least four works on dharmaśāstra are ascribed to him (i. e. were written under his patronage) viz. the Madanapārijāta, Smṛtimahārṇava or Madana-mahārṇava, Tithinirṇayasāra and Smṛtikaumudī. Four more works are ascribed to Madanapāla that deal with subjects other than those of Dharmaśāstra viz. Madanavinodanighaṇṭu, Sūrya-siddhāntaviveka, Siddhāntagarbha and Yantraprakāśa.

The Madanapārijāta is an extensive work in 995 pages published in the B. I. Series (in 1893). There are 23 introductory verses, the first 13 of which give the genealogy of Madanapāla. In the printed edition these 13 verses are stated to have been added by Purohita Śrī-Rāmadeva. The last of the introductory verses states that the work was composed after a careful study of Hemādri, Kalpavṛkṣa (i. e. Kalpataru), Aparārka, Smṛticandrikā, Smṛtyarthasāra and Mitākṣarā.¹¹⁹² That Madanapāla was only the patron and not the real author of the work is made clear in several places. In the introductory verse 20 it is stated that the work was compiled through (lit. by the mouth of) learned men.¹¹⁹³ In several places in the body of the work¹¹⁹⁴ it is said that the author has explained the matter under discussion in his work called Subodhinī, a commentary on the Mitākṣarā. Therefore the Madanapārijāta was really composed by Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa, the author of the Subodhinī. The Madanapārijāta contains nine stabakas (bunches i. e. chapters) on brahmacarya, the

The longest section is the 9th on 'Prāyaścittas and Karmaphala' (pp. 304), then comes the 7th section on 'śrāddha' (pp. 172), the 3rd section on 'Āhnika' covers pp. 142 and first on 'brahmacarya' is dealt with in 128 pages. The shortest is the 5th on 'āśauca' (in 28 pages); the 4th on saṃskāras also is a short one (only 33 pages). In the portion on the Dāyabhāga it very closely follows the Mitākṣarā.

The Madanapārijāta (after quoting a verse of Viṣṇu) on p. 654 propounds the somewhat startling proposition that even the Kānina and other secondary sons (mentioned by Yāj. II. 128-132) succeed as heirs to a man's property (vide note below)¹¹⁹⁵ and relies on Yāj. (II. 128-132), who enumerates twelve kinds of sons from aurasa to apavidā and remarks that each of these succeeds to the father's property in the absence of any of the sons enumerated before him in the text. Kānina is a son born to a man from an unmarried girl. Hence a Kānina son would have succeeded before the paunarbhava and other sons named by Yāj. after him. The Manusmṛti (IX. 172) also refers to the kānina son. Vijñāneśvara (in Mit. on Yāj. II. 132) contains the very words quoted in the passage as his opinion.

Vide also pp. 385, 603, 774 of the Madanapārijāta for references to Subodhini. It may, however, be noted that the Subodhini on the Vyavahāra section (p. 61 of Gharpure's ed.) states that all this about Kānina and similar sons refers to other ages (yugas) and that in the Kali age only two kinds of sons (viz. aurasa and dattaka) are recognised. The style of the Madanapārijāta is simple. Its style is simple and lucid. Besides the authors and works mentioned above, it cites those noted below.¹¹⁹⁶

There is a work called Mahārṇava ascribed to Māndhātā, a son of Madanapāla. In several mss. of this work deposited in the Deccan¹¹⁹⁷ College there are introductory verses giving the genealogy of Madanapāla that agree almost word for word with the introductory verses of the Madanapārijāta. Moreover two verses that speak of Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa occur here also as well as in the Madanapārijāta and Subodhinī. The Madanamahārṇava was edited by Pandit Embara Krishnamacarya and Mr. M. R. Nambiyar and was published in 1953 in the Gaekwad Oriental Series. It is a large work in 468 printed pages with an introduction (pp. 11-26) and a Sanskrit Index (pp. 27-40) of the 1196 Hundreds of verses from Manu and Yāj. are quoted by the Madanapārijāta. Besides, several smṛtikāras, smṛtis and other authors are named and quoted; viz. Aparārka (p. 528), Ācārasāgara (58), Kalpataru (553, 595, 697), Gāṅgeya (96, twice), Guru (i. e. Prabhākara 89), Govindarāja (553-4), Caturviṃśatimata (638, 754, 834, 882); Camatkārahṇaḍa (310 a verse), Cintāmaṇi (607 on Śrāddha), Dharmavṛtti (or-vivṛti, 753, 772), Nārāyaṇa (69, 71, 72, 565, all verses), Bādarāyaṇa (3 verses on pp. 186-187 on the Dvirāgamana-muhūrta of a newly married girl, two of which are in Śārdūla-vikrīḍita metre), Bhavadeva (89 on Vākyabheda), Maṇḍana-miśra (183, 185, two verses on gaṇakāla and gaṇamukhya-kāla), Yajñapārśva (161, two verses on bride having menses at or about the time of marriage ceremony), Ratnāvalī (607), Vijñāneśvara (536), Śivasvāmin (619), Viṣṇusamuccaya (291) Ṣaṭ-triṃśanmata (421 and on nine other pages), Sureśvara (186, two verses on dvirāgamana), Smṛticandrikā (528, 536), Smṛtimañjarī (of Govindarāja 534), Smṛtimahārṇava (93), Hemādri (536). The Cintāmaṇi here is the Caturvargacintāmaṇi of Hemādri.

1197 For the महार्णव vide D. C. ms. No. 131 of 1882-83 and Nos. 259 and 260 of 1886-1892. No. 260 does not contain the verses about the genealogy, but the two verses माता पुण्य० and मतिर्येषां (which are 21 and 22 in the मदनपारिजात) occur in all the three; in No. 131 and No. 259 the verse माता पुण्य० occurs in the introductory verses and the verse मतिर्येषां occurs at the end of the work and in No. 260 the two verses are the 2nd and 3rd of the introductory verses.

contents of the 40 chapters. One Ms. directly claims the work as Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa's while the others say that the work was compiled by Māndhātā, a son of king Madanapāla, through learned men. It begins by quoting in the second chapter thirty verses of the first chapter of the śātātapiya-Karmavipāka contained in Jivananda's Dharmaśāstra-saṅgraha (latter part pp. 435-455, in all about 187 verses in six chapters). The Ānandaśrama collection of Smṛtis has a Śātātapa-smṛti in six chapters but it contains about one hundred verses more than in Jivananda's text, as it adds in each chapter several verses. Karmavipāka means (literally) the fruition of one's evil actions. The central theory of Śātātapa is that those guilty of greater or lesser sins who do not undergo the appropriate prāyaścittas (penances) fall into hell for a time, are born again with certain signs (or defects) on their bodies, and that if they repent and undergo the prescribed penances, then those tell-tale signs disappear and that sins of former lives affect men by diseases, which disappear by japa (repetition of sacred text inaudibly) or by worship of deities or homas (offerings in fire) and by appropriate gifts. Thirteen diseases and physical affections such as leprosy, consumption, loss of sight are caused by what are called mahāpātakas; dropsy and other diseases are the outcome of upapātakas. Appropriate penances (prāyaścittas) remove the effects; so also do gifts of a cow (with calf) or a bull or gifts of ten nivartanas of land, dinners to brāhmanas, japa of mantras to Rudra &c. Śātātapa explains the well-known terms Rudra, Mahārudra and Atirudra and his words are followed by the Madanamahārṇava (vide note below).¹¹⁹⁸

In several other places also the Mahārṇava quotes passages from Śātātapa-Samhitā. For example, on p. 436 it quotes two verses of Śātātāpasamhitā¹¹⁹⁹ (II. 43-44) for a penance in the case of one who kills an elephant.

The word Karmavipāka occurs in Yāj. III. 133 and in Anuśāsana-parva (144. 43 Ch. ed.) and Yogasūtra II. 17 (sati mūle tadvipāko jātyāyurbhogāḥ) i. e. sinners are born as different animals or worms etc. (Manu XII. 55-60 and Yāj. III. 207-216), they have a long or short life and fierce sufferings in hells (Manu IV. 88-90 and XII. 75, Yāj. III. 206). Vide for this doctrine H. of Dh. vol. IV. pp. 172-176. Vas. 20. 44 and Śaṅkha quoted in Mit. on Yāj. III. 216 hold that the murderer of a brāhmaṇa is afflicted with leprosy (brahmahā-kuṣṭhī). Long before the Mahārṇava several extensive works on Karmavipāka must have been composed, since the Mahārṇava cites the work Karmavipākasaṅgraha 51 times, the Karmavipākasamuccaya 48 times, and the Karmavipākasāra 21 times. Vide Smṛtitattva, vol. I, Malamāsa p. 835 for a long quotation from Śātātāpiya-karmavipāka.

Dharma¹²⁰⁰ had a fivefold aspect viz. varṇa-dharma, āsrama-dharma, varṇāśrama-dharma (e. g. a brāhmaṇa-brahmacārin has to observe the rules peculiar to his varṇa as well as rules applicable to the stage of studenthood), guṇadharmā (a king has certain duties peculiar to his position, viz. protection of subjects, dispensing justice &c.) and Naimittikadharmā (prāyaścittas i. e. penances). This work also is said to have been compiled by 1199 Śātātapa is one of the sages enumerated in Yāj. I. 4-5 as Dharmaprayojaka. A half verse of Śātātapa is quoted by Viśvarūpa on p. 11 (Yāj. II. 4-5), but the five other quotations of Śātātapa by Viśvarūpa are in prose as on III. 237 p. 94, on III. 262 p. 148. The Mit. has many verse quotations from Śātātapa. A verse of Aṅgiras quoted by Mit. on Yāj. III. 22 mentions the view of Śātātapa. The Mit. quotes many verses of Śātātapa and some prose passages on Yāj. III. 243, 254, 263-4. Aparārka also quotes a few prose passages of Śātātapa on Prāyaścittas (as on pp. 1053, 1074, 1120, 1128, 1147, 1149, 1152, 1158, 1161, 1169).

1200 मेधातिथि on मनु II. 25 says इह पञ्चप्रकारो धर्म इति विवरणकाराः प्रपञ्चयन्ति । वर्णधर्म आश्रमधर्मो वर्णाश्रमधर्मो नैमित्तिको गुणधर्मश्चेति । and then elucidates this observation. हरदत्त on तै. ध. सू. 19. 1 mentions these five and exemplifies them.

Māndhātā through the learned.¹²⁰¹ It is said to have been based on a study of the śruti, the smṛtis and the purāṇas. The work is divided into 40 tarāṅgas (waves). The principal subject¹²⁰² of the work is to describe how the various diseases which human bodies are heir to the result of evil deeds done in past lives (this subject being called Karmavipāka in dharmaśāstra works) and to prescribe various rites and penances for the eradication of the evil results of evil deeds. Among the various rites and penances that are set forth in great detail may be mentioned the Kūṣmāṇḍa-homa, Rudraikādaśinī, Mahārudrābhiṣeka, Vināyakaśānti, the Navagrahayajña &c. The Mahārṇava mentions the Karmavipāka of Śātātapa, the Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi (folio 234 a of D. C. Ms.No. 259 of 1886-1892), the Mitākṣarā, the Karmavipākasamuccaya &c. It is worthy of note that in the Smṛti-kaumudī the authorship of the Mahārṇava is claimed by the author himself and is not ascribed to Madanapāla's son.¹²⁰³

The Tithinirṇayasāra is another work compiled under Madanapāla. Stein in his cat. of mss. at Jammu (p. 306) gives extracts from this work. The first fourteen verses are the same as those in the Madanapārijāta. It appears to have been composed by Viśvanātha, which is most probably a paraphrase of the name Viśveśvara.¹²⁰⁴

1202 The work begins 'तत्र तावद्वध्यमाणसकलकर्मोपयोगित्वेन कर्मविपाकरूप-योगादिनिवृत्त्यर्थं प्रायश्चित्तादेरवश्यकर्तव्यता प्रतिपाद्यते ।'. तद्यथा—'ब्रह्महा क्षयरोगी स्यात्' (या. ३. २०९) इत्यादि रोगनिदानकथनात्, निदानोच्छेदेन च व्याधिनिवृत्तेरवगतत्वात्, तत्र निदानोच्छेदाय क्षयित्वादिलक्षणरोगयुक्तैर्द्रविश-वार्षिकादिप्रायश्चित्तव्याधिप्रतिकृतिदानादि कर्तव्यम् । मदनमहार्णव p. 4. The same work quotes the Karmavipāka of Śātātapa which provides in (II. 5-7) that persons guilty of Mahāpātakas after enduring torments in hell are affected by diseases like leprosy, consumption; blindness and ten other serious ones. The five Mahāpātakas are declared in Manu XI. 54 as the murder of a brāhmaṇa, drinking liquor prepared from rice-flour, theft of gold, adultery with the wife of one's guru and close contact with a sinner (of these types), as declared in Manu XI. 180- 81 and Yāj. III. 227 and 261.

The *Smṛtikaumudī*¹²⁰⁵ contains an introduction of 17 verses, 13 of which set forth the genealogy of Madanapāla. The fourteenth verse tells us that Madanapāla composed works called Yantraprakāśa, Mahārṇava, Pārijāta, Siddhāntagarbha and Tithi-nirṇayasāra.¹²⁰⁶ The 15th verse says that he composes the Smṛtikaumudī through the learned.¹²⁰⁷ The 17th verse says that his predecessors have generally dilated upon the dharmas of the three higher varṇas and the dharmas of the śūdra have not been dealt with by them as a principal topic, therefore he would clearly expound the dharmas of the last varṇa. At the end of the ms. in the I. O. Cat. it is described as the younger sister of the Madanapārijāta and of the Mahārṇava.¹²⁰⁸ This is not found in the D. C. ms. which was copied in saṃvat 1615. This work is divided into four kalollāsas, each kalollāsa being subdivided into kiraṇas (rays). The first kalollāsa has two kiraṇas, the second has four, the third and fourth five kiraṇas each. The subjects dealt with are : I. two kinds of śūdras, viz. : the kevalaśūdra (simple śūdra) and one who is of mixed descent, being born of a śūdra woman from a man of the higher castes ; the mixed castes ; II. general discourses on the śūdra's adhikāra for engaging in various acts and performing various rites, such as the study of the vedas and smṛtis, the performance of garbhādhāna and other saṃskāras and the consecration of sacred fires ; saṃdhyāvandana ; the śūdra's capacity for attaining the knowledge of brahman ; III. marriage ; different forms of marriage, prohibited degrees of blood relationship (sāpiṇḍya), the various rites of marriage such as kanyā-dāna ; such saṃskāras as nāma-karaṇa (naming the child), the duties of śūdras in ordinary and difficult times ; āśauca for śūdras ; the various śrāddhas for them ; the letting loose of a bull in honour of the dead ; IV. śūdra's daily duties such as śauca, brushing the teeth, baths in the morning and at other times, brahmayajña, tarpaṇa, vaiśvadeva, daily śrāddha, dinner, &c.

The Smṛtikaumudī mentions among others Aparārka, Kṛtya-kalpataru, Mitākṣarā, Medhātithi, Yajñapārśva and Smṛtimañjarī. It also quotes from the *Vedānta-kalpataru*¹²⁰⁹ and the author claims the Madanapārijāta as his own work.

It has been seen how all the four works set out above were composed under the patronage of Madanapāla and how they were probably from the pen of Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa. There is one more work on Dharmaśāstra which Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa composed in his own name without the shelter of a patron's name. It is the Subodhinī, a commentary on the Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara. The vyavahāra portion of it has been published in Bombay by Mr. S. S. Setlur and also by Mr. J. R. Gharpure. Mr. Govind Das had seen portions of the Subodhinī on the prāyaścitta section also. The Subodhinī does not comment on each word of the Mitākṣarā but explains only important passages. It is a learned work. This was the earliest composition of Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa, since it is mentioned even in the Madanapārijāta. The first verse of the Subodhinī is also the opening verse of the Mahārṇava and of the Smṛtikaumudī.¹²¹⁰

From the verses¹²¹¹ 21 and 22 in the introduction to the Madanapārijāta it appears that Viśveśvara was the son of Pedi-bhaṭṭa and Ambikā, that he was of the Kauśikagotra and was the pupil of Vyāsāranya-muni. In the Subodhinī also the verse 'mātā &c.' occurs at the end with slight suitable variations and the verse 'matiryeṣām' in the beginning. The second introductory verse in Mr. Gharpure's edition makes Viśveśvara the son of Appabhaṭṭa,¹²¹² while Mr. Setlur reads 'Peṭṭibhaṭṭa' which is probably a misreading for Pedibhaṭṭa. From his father's name it appears that Viśveśvara was a native of the Draviḍa country¹²¹³ and migrated to Northern India in search of patronage after he wrote the Subodhinī. Viśveśvara is regarded as one of the leading authorities of the Benares School of modern Hindu Law.¹²¹⁴ Madanapāla belonged to the family of Ṭāka kings that ruled in Kāṣṭhā (modern Kath) on the Jumna to the north of Delhi.¹²¹⁵ The printed Madanapārijāta makes the family name to be 'Kāṣṭhā,' but this is most probably a wrong reading, as in the Mahārṇava and the other works of Madanapāla the family name is distinctly stated to be Ṭāka. The pedigree of the family as gathered from the Madanapārijāta and the other works is given below. Some works such as the Mahārṇava omit mention of Sahajapāla. About Sādhārṇa it is said that he brought about the remission of all taxes at the three tīrthas (Prayāga, Kāśī and Gayā).¹²¹⁶ Vide N. I. A. vol. VII pp. 176–180 where Dr. P. K. Gode produces evidence from the Rasaratnapradīpa of Rāmārāja on the Tāka kings of Kāsthā (1200–1500 A. D.) and suggests the probable dates of the several kings that are set out in the note 1215, with reference to verses in the Madanapārijāta and other works.

In the Sūryasiddhāntaviveka of Madanapāla the father of Madanapāla is said to be Sahārāṇa¹²¹⁷ which is a Prakrit equivalent of Sādhārāṇa. Madanapāla appears to have been a very great patron of learned men and is said to have emulated the fame of Bhoja.¹²¹⁸ Besides the four works described above he compiled several other works, the most famous of which is his dictionary of drugs called Madanavinodanighaṇṭu. That work is very extensive, contains about 2250 verses and is divided into fourteen vargas, the last of which contains a praśasti of his family.¹²¹⁹ This work contains the names of medical drugs, the qualities of drugs and of dishes and of the flesh of various animals. Some of the words given as synonyms for Sanskrit words occur in the modern Marathi.¹²²⁰ We saw above that his Smṛtikaumudī refers to Yantra-prakāśa and Siddhāntagarbha as two of his works. These two were works on astronomy.

Another work of his is the Sūrya-siddhāntaviveka or Vāsanārṇava, which is a commentary on the Sūryasiddhānta.

There is a ms. of this work in the Bhau Daji Collection of the Bombay Asiatic Society.¹²²¹ Therein after giving his pedigree he says that by his works on Smṛtiśāstra, on astronomy and mathematics and on medicine he came to be known as abhinava Bhoja.¹²²² In this treatise he refers to his own works already composed called *Siddhāntagarbha*¹²²³ and Yantraprakāśa. He also refers to a Rājamṛgāṅka of Bhoja and to Bhāskara's works. The ms. was copied in saṃvat 1459, i. e. 1402-3 A. D. In the colophon of this work his birudas (titles) are Paṇḍitapārijāta and Abhinava-Bhoja, and he is also styled Mahārājādhirāja.¹²²⁴ In the Madanapārijāta and the Mahārṇava the birudas are Paṇḍitapārijāta and Kaṭṭāramalla or Kaṭṭāramalla. A work called Ānandasāñjivana on singing, dancing, musical instruments and rāgas is ascribed to Madanapāla.¹²²⁵ The king Madana, son of Sahāraṇa, who is connected with the restoration of Medhātithi's bhāṣya, must be this Madana.

A great deal has been written concerning the date of Madanapāla. The introductory verses giving the genealogy of Madanapāla must be held to be genuine, as they occur in the ancient ms. (D. C. Ms. No. 131 of A 1882-83) of Mahārṇava copied in saṃvat 1645 (1588-89 A. D.) and in the still older ms. (dated saṃvat 1459) of the Sūrya-siddhānta-viveka. As the Madanapārijāta mentions the Smṛticandrikā and Hemādri's Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi not only in the introductory verses of the Madanapārijāta but in the body of the Madanapārijāta and the Mahārṇava, Madanapāla must be certainly later than 1300 A. D. As the Smṛtikaumudī mentions the Vedāntakalpataru that was composed in the time of the Yādava princes Kṛṣṇa and Mahādeva,

it follows that the work was composed after the third quarter of the 13th century. The Madanapārijāta is quoted in the Nṛsimhaprasāda, the Antyeṣṭipaddhati of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, the Āhnikatattva vol. I. Tithi 17, Āhnika Tattva pp. 326, 336, 384, 419, Jyotistattva 656, Malamāsa 804, (Madanapārijāte-Mādhavācāryadhṛta-Śātātapavacanāt), 814; vol. II. Udvāha 140, Dāya 175, Suddhi 235. It may be noted that in the Madras Law Journal, vol. IX for 1899 in pp. 7-15, 54-70, 91-114 there are English translations of certain parts of the 8th stabaka of the Madanapārijāta of Raghunandana, the Śrāddhakriyākaumudī (pp. 327, 489) of Govindānanda. Therefore it is certainly earlier than 1500 A. D. And if we rely on the date when the ms. of the Sūryasiddhāntaviveka was copied (viz. 1402-3 A. D.), it follows that Madanapāla flourished before 1400 A. D. The *Madanavinodanighaṇṭu*¹²²⁶ gives the date of its composition as 'Brahmajagad-yugendu' of the Vikrama era, māgha 6 of the bright half and Monday (i. e. 8-1-1375 A. D.). This was interpreted by Sarvadhikari (Tagore Law Lectures pp. 297-298, ed. of 1922) as equal to 1231 of the Vikrama era (i. e. 1175 A. D.). He held that 'yuga' meant two. But herein he was entirely wrong. Besides, the date proposed by him is impossible, since it would lead us to hold that Madanapāla wrote in 1175 A. D. and since, as we saw above, he could not have flourished before 1300 A. D. It has been already shown (pp. 309, 369) that the view of Sarvadhikari and others that the Pārijāta mentioned by Caṇdeśvara is the same as Madanapārijāta is quite wrong. Astronomical usage as found in Bhāskara and other writers always interprets *yuga*¹²²⁷ as meaning four (and not two) and hence the date of the composition of the Madanavinodanighaṇṭu is 1431 of the Vikrama era (i. e. 1375 A. D.). Vide Jolly's Tagore Law Lectures pp. 14-15, Dr. Bhandarkar's 1226 अब्दे ब्रह्मजगद्युगेन्दुगणिते श्रीविक्रमार्कप्रभोर्माघे मासि वलक्षपक्षललिते षष्ठ्यां सुधांशोर्दिने। verse 14 of the last वर्ग in D. C. ms. No. 129 of 1884-87 and No. 1066 of 1886-92. The last has a corrupt reading षष्ठ्यां गुरैसर्दिने. Vide Bhandarkar's Report for 1883-84 p. 47 for the date.

1227 e. g. भास्कराचार्य in his गणिताध्याय (कालमानाध्याय verse 24) says 'खखाभ्रदन्तसागरैर्युगाग्निं युग्मभूगुणैः। क्रमेण सूर्यवत्सरैः कृतादयो युगाद्भ्यः॥' where युग must mean 'four' and युग्म is employed for two.

Report for 1883-84 pp. 47 and 347 and S. B. E. vol. 25, p. cxxv n. 2. A ms. of the Sūryasiddhāntaviveka, which is one of the last (if not the last) works of Madanapāla is dated in 1402-3 A. D. Hence the literary activity of Madanapāla and of his protege, Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa, must be placed between 1360-1390 A. D.

95. Madanaratna

The Madanaratna is an extensive digest on Dharmaśāstra but only one part of it has been edited by the present author for the Anup Sanskrit Library of Bikaner and published in 1948. The Introduction to that edition (pp. VIII-IX) may be consulted for more information. In the colophons of mss. it is also called Madanaratnapradīpa or simply Madanapradīpa. The work was divided into seven¹²²⁸ sections called uddiyotas on samaya (or kāla), ācāra, vyavahāra, prāyaścitta, dāna, śuddhi, śānti. The order of the various sections was the one indicated, the samayoddya being the first part. I have not been able to examine the mss. of all the uddiyotas.

The Samayoddya deals with the subjects usually treated of in works on kāla, viz. discussions about the year, the seasons, the months, the intercalary months, the rules about tithis, the rules about the proper times for various religious observances, gifts, homa, the rules about kalivarjya.

There is a ms. of the Dānoddya in the Ānandāśrama collection at Poona (No. 2378). Recently (i. e. in 1964) the Sanskrit Academy of the Osmania University (Hyderabad, Deccan) published a part of the Dāna-vivekoddya in the Sanskrit Academy Series (the General editor being Dr. Aryendra Sharma, M. A., D. Phil., Head of the Department of Sanskrit at the Osmania University and the Editors being Shri Khanderao Deshpande, M. A., and Shri D. G. Padhye, B. A. (Kāvya-tīrtha-Sāhityālaṅkāra). The first printed part extends to 272 pages and it is stated that the whole work on Dāna to be published will occupy about 1100 pages in three parts (in all). The first part so far published has been well printed. There are seven parts of the Madanaratnapradīpa which is a huge work, divided into seven parts, of which the first part on Vyavahāra was edited by me and published in 1948 for the Anup Sanskrit Library of Bikaner. The following are the subjects treated of :—eulogy of dāna; the nature of dāna, various kinds of dānas; the constituent elements (aṅgāni) of dāna; the donor, proper persons for gifts, persons underserving of gifts, what things cannot be given away, proper and improper times and places for dāna, measures of corn and other substances and weights and units of length &c., finding out the east and other directions, characteristics of a torana, patākā and maṇḍapa, tulā-puruṣa (weighing oneself against gold or silver), gift of a thousand cows and other magnificent gifts, dedication of a tank or well and planting of a garden &c. In this work the author refers to Kalpataru and to Hemādri as a dākṣiṇātya-nibandhakāra.

No. 146 and verses 26 and 27 in the I. O. Cat. ms. (p. 537 b) and Peterson's Cat. of Ulwar mss. No. 1410 and extract No. 336 at p. 131.

Deccan College ms. No. 392 of 1891-95 deals with the śānti section. It treats of rites for propitiating gods and planets and averting the evil consequences of great or small portentous phenomena, such as Vināyaka-snāna, sūrya-śānti, navagraha-śānti, *śānti*s for birth on certain evil nakṣatras like mūla, āśleṣā and evil astrological conjunctions like vyatīpāta, vaidhṛti, saṁkrānti; rites for the safety of the foetus and of the newly born infant; ayutahoma, lakṣahoma, koṭihoma &c. In this section sages like Uttara-Garga, Kātyāyana, Nārada, Baijavāpa (on gṛhya), Mānava-saṁhitā, Yājñavalkya, Śaunaka and purāṇas like the Skanda, Bhaviṣyottara, Viṣṇudharmottara are very frequently cited. Besides the following are among the authors and works referred to :—Apekṣitārthadyotinī, a commentary of Nārāyaṇa, Karmavipākasaṁgraha, Karmavipākasaṁuccaya, Kumāratantra promulgated by the son of Rāvaṇa, Prayogasāra, Vijñāneśvarā-cārya (in the plural).

A ms. of the Ācāroddyota is noticed by Burnell in his Tanjore Cat. (p. 137 b). Stein (in his Cat. of Jammu mss.) notices an incomplete ms. of the Vyavahāroddyota (p. 98

No. 2437). M. M. Haraprasad Sastri notices a ms. of the Prāyaścittoddyota (Nepal Palm-leaf and Paper Mss. Cat. XVIII and p. 223).

From the colophons at the end of the several mss. of the Madanaratna it appears that the work was composed under the patronage of king Madanasimha-deva, son of Śaktisimha.¹²²⁹ The king is styled mahārājādhirāja and one of his titles is Koṇḍa-parāśurāma (meaning 'who was a veritable Parāśurāma in wielding the bow'). The introductory verses¹²³⁰ to the Samayoddyota in the Viśrāmbāga collection and the Ulwar ms. refer to Delhi-deśa and its king named Mahāpāladeva. Then verse 9 speaks of Dāmodara whose exact relationship with Mahāpāladeva is not clear. Dāmodara is said to have made the yavanas of Mūlasthāna (modern Multan in the Punjab) give up the slaughtering of cows. The whole pedigree is given below.¹²³¹ Śaktisimha is said to have eclipsed even Bhoja. It is further said that Madanasimha called¹²³² together four learned men viz., Ratnākara, Gopināth, Viśvanātha and Gaṅgādhara and entrusted the composition of the digest to them. The colophon¹²³³ at the end of the Śāntyuddyota in the Deccan College says that it was composed by Viśvanātha, a resident of Benares and son of Bhaṭṭapūjya, a Śrīmālī Gurjara (Brāhmaṇa). There is a similar colophon at the end of the Prāyaścittoddyota noticed by M. M. Haraprasad Sastri.

The Vyavahāra section of the Madanaratna is a large work in 348 printed pages. It deals with both judicial procedure and the eighteen titles of law (Vyavahārapadas). A brief analysis of its contents is set out here :—The meaning of Vyavahāra, names of the titles of law; Sabhā (court of justice) and its adjuncts; the king himself should preside over the court, or a judge (prādvivāka) should preside and may be helped by sabhyas (persons expert in law, as stated by Yāj. II. 2); requisite qualifications of judge and members of court; when the parties may appear through agents; modes of proof viz. documents, witnesses, possession; requisites of plaint and of the reply; requisites of royal edicts; contents of the decision in a legal dispute; Paścātkāra and Jayapatra; inference of three kinds; characteristics of possession as means of proof; when ordeals are to be resorted to; nine kinds of ordeals; special oaths; details of the several ordeals; punishments may be of the body or in money (property); punishment for brāhmaṇa is banishment (and not of the body) or shaving the head or making a mark on the forehead or banishing after seating him on an ass; when a judgement of a court may be reviewed; when a person is held to be major; recovery of debts is the first vyavahārapada (cause of legal dispute) among the 18; when interest is allowed and the rates of interest; rule of dāmaduppata; mortgage and pledge and various kinds of them; surety of various kinds; rules about suretyship, debts and about the liability of the heirs of the surety; modes of covering debts when the debtor fails to pay; liability of son or other heirs to pay the debts of their father or ancestor; deposits and the like; sale of or use of property by one not the owner of it; rules about property lost and found by one who is not the owner; rules about partnership and partners; non-remission or resumption of gifts; disputes between master and servant or herdsman; violation of compacts and the meaning of naigama and vrata, pūga, gaṇa, saṅgha, gulma; repentance after purchase or sale or non-delivery after sale; breach of contract of service; boundary disputes; abuse and defamation; assault and battery; theft; adultery; duties of husband and wife; partition of heritage; property not liable to partition; fresh partition as to concealed ancestral estate; definition of strīdhana and kinds thereof; heirs to strīdhana; heirs of sonless person; gambling and prize-fighting; miscellaneous.

Since the Madanaratna mentions the Mit., the Kalpataru and Hemādri, Ratnākara and Mādhaviya, it must be certainly later than about 1360 A. D. It is quoted as a great authority by the writers of the 16th and 17th centuries, such as Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, Kamalākarabhaṭṭa, Nīlakaṇṭha and Mitramiśra. In the Vyavahāra-mayūkha Nīlakaṇṭha relies upon the Madanaratna as often as (if not oftener than) the Mitākṣarā. The Vyavahāra-mayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha published in BORI in 1926 mentions the Madanaratna or simply Madana about two dozen times; out of these on some pages such as pp. 98, 136, 145 of the text it shows that the Madanaratna differs from Vijñāneśvara, though on p. 139 it doubts the correctness of the explanation given by the Madanaratna. In other cases it cites the Madanaratna generally as supporting his own views. The Mayūkha quotes Smārtabhāṭṭācārya (i. e. Raghunandana) on pp. 63 and 88 (text). On p. 88 (text) it mentions Vācaspati. The Madanaratnapradīpa on Vyavahāra mentions 'Mādhaviye-vidyāranyaśrīcaraṇāḥ' on pp. 86 and 360, while on pp. 18 and 20 it simply says 'Mādhaviye'. The Vīramitrodaya¹²³⁴ says that the author of the Madanaratna refers to the views of the Mitākṣarā, Kalpataru and Halāyudha.

It may be noted that it states on p. 335 that the Samayanirṇayodyota and the Ācāravivekodyota had already been composed by the author. It profusely quotes in Vyavahārodyota Manu, Yājñavalkya, Nārada, Kātyāyana and Bṛhaspati. The Parāśaramādhaviya references on pp. 18, 20, 86, 360 show that he held that Mādhava was identical with Vidyāranya. This fact that an author who flourished in northern India about 1400 A. D. held this view strongly militates against father Heras' sweeping assertions against the identity of the two. A remarkable matter is that he speaks of Dhāreśvara i. e. Bhoja 'as bhaṭṭa' on p. 324 (etat Saṅgrahakāramatam Dhāreśvarabhāṭṭenāpyāśritam). Madanasimha and his ancestors are spoken of as ruling the country about Delhi. Though Madanasimha bears the high-sounding title of mahārājādhirāja it is highly probable that he was some feudatory chief under the Mahomedan rules of Delhi. It is difficult to conceive of a period between 1300 and 1500 A. D. when a Hindu ruler was king of Delhi. It may be that during the troublous times of Muhammad Tughlak (1325-1351 A. D.), when the capital was transferred from Delhi to Daulatabad, or during the weak rule of the last kings of the Tughlak dynasty (1388-1413 A. D.). Madanasimha's predecessors might have usurped some territory about Delhi and ruled over it. At all events it would not be far from correct if the Madanaratna be placed about 1400-1450 A. D. M. M. Haraprasad Sastri (Report on palm-leaf and paper mss. from Nepal, Intro. pp. 31-32) tells us that the dynasty to which Madanasimhadeva belonged ruled over Gorakhpur-Champaran (Western Tirhut), that Madanasimhadeva was preceded by Śaktisimhadeva, whose predecessor was Pṛthvisimhadeva. The learned Sastri further says that a ms. of the Madanaratnapradīpa-prāyaścittodyota applies the title 'koṇḍāparaśurāma' to Madana (p. 223), that a ms. of the Amarakośa was copied in saṁvat 1511 (1454-55 A. D.) when Madanasimha ruled over Campakāraṇyanagara (p. 51 of the body of the Report) and that a ms. of the Narasimhapurāṇa was copied in La-saṁ 339 (1457-58 A. D.) when Mahārājādhirāja Madanasimhadeva ruled over Gorakṣapura i. e. modern Gorakhpur (p. 29 of the Report). It is likely that some confusion arose among the scribes of the work owing to the fact that two chieftains bearing the name Madanasimha flourished at the same period near Delhi and Gorakhpur. The great similarity of the names Madanapāla and Madanasimha misled J. C. Ghose (Hindu Law, vol. II, p. xiv. ed. of 1917) into holding that the Madanapārijāta and the Madanaratna were written under Madanapāla. But it is clear from the ancestry of the two kings, Madanapāla and Madanasimha, and the names of the real authors of the digests (Madanapārijāta and Madanaratna) that they have no connection with each other.

96. Vidyāpati

In the first edition of the History of Dharmaśāstra, Vidyāpati was not dealt with in the body of the text, but some information about him and his works was given in the list of authors on pp. 739-40. It is thought advisable that a separate section be devoted to Vidyāpati in this revised edition, Dr. Umesh Mishra published in Hindi¹²³⁵ a life of Vidyāpati; he gives the pedigree which shows that he was fourth in descent from Dhīreśvara, uncle of Caṇḍeśvara. That work deals at some length with the lineage of Vidyāpati, gives a brief account of the kings of Mithilā, the times of Vidyāpati, his works his padas, (songs) his learning and similar matters. There is difference of opinion about the date of his birth among scholars but there appears to be agreement about the date of his death viz. 1448 A. D. His birth place was Biśapī, a village in Madhubani (lit. forest of honey) on the eastern side of north Bihar. The 'Love Songs of Vidyāpati', translated into English from Maithilī by Mr. Deben Bhattacharya and edited with an Introduction, Notes and comments by W. G. Archer, were published in London in 1963 by George Allen and Unwin (Ltd.). It was preceded by the publication of the Songs of Vidyāpati rendered into English by Shri Subhadra Jha in 1954, published by Messrs Motilal Banarsidas (of Benares).

This edition of 1954 contains an introduction of 193 pages, Maithilī text of 212 songs with an English rendering on the opposite page of the song and mentions the rāgas in which they are to be recited. Vidyāpati is famous for his songs; he is also credited with the authorship of twelve works in Sanskrit (vide note below).¹²³⁶

1235 Dr. Mishra sets out the contents of the grant on pp. 2-3. The grant is dated in La. Sam. 293. Dr. Mishra refers to Introductory verses 7-12.

1236 The names of his twelve works are:—शैवसर्वस्वसार (or शम्भु-वाक्यावली), दानवाक्यावली, वर्षकृत्य (or वर्षक्रिया), विभागसार, भूपरिक्रमण (or परिक्रमा), पुरुषपरीक्षा, लिखनावली, कर्तिलता, कर्तिपताका, गयावाक्यावली, दुर्गाभक्तितरङ्गिणी, व्याडीभक्तितरङ्गिणी. रघुनन्दन, in his मलमासतत्त्व (vol I. p. 823), refers to वर्षकृत्य as विद्यापतिकृते वर्षकृत्ये नारदीयम्. The Nirṇayasindhu (Nir. ed. of 1915) with Marathi trans-

In the edition by Shri Subhadra Jha the Introduction on p. 18 sets out a pedigree of the poet Vidyāpati viz. his father was Gaṇapati, whose father was Jayadatta, son of Dhīreśvara. Most of the dates referring to Vidyāpati are in the Lakṣmaṇasena era. No one knows for certain when this era was started. Dr. Rajendralal Mitra held that the La-saṁ. (i. e. Lakṣmaṇasena era) starts from 1106 A. D. Kielhorn held that the La-Saṁ. started in 1119-20 of the Christian era. Several scholars regard the Biśapī plate as spurious. Further, several scholars say that the La-Saṁ. started from the date of the birth of Lakṣmaṇasena. The Sena kings are called Brahma-khatriyas. For the Inscriptions of Sena Kings, vide E. I. Vol. 20 Appendix Nos. 1682-1693 and ' Indian Culture ' vol. IV pp. 22 ff. Shri. G. C. Basu (of Dacca University) in ' New Indian Antiquary ' (Vol. VII pp. 49-57) mentions a hitherto unknown work of Vidyāpati viz. Vyāḍībhaktitarāṅgiṇī (lit. a river of devotion to the serpent goddess Manasā). It is a Tāntrika work. The Ms. refers to the Durgābhaktitarāṅgiṇī as his own work.

He was a voluminous and versatile writer. A few words may be said here about some of the other works.

Vidyāpati's name is as great in Bengal as in Mithilā and it is curious that in Bengal Vidyāpati is believed to have been a great Vaiṣṇava, while in Mithilā he was held to be a Śaiva.¹²³⁷ The poems of Vidyāpati were edited and published by Khagendranath Mitra. Dr. Bimanbihari Majumdar has completely over-hauled lation, p. 172 relies upon Vidyāpati as “ अत्र सर्वत्र तिथिनक्षत्रयोगादरो मुख्यः कल्पः, तदभावे तु तिथिरेव ग्राह्या । तिथिः शरीरं देवस्य तिथौ नक्षत्रमाश्रितम् । तस्मात्तिथिं प्रशंसन्ति नक्षत्रं न तिथिं विना ” इति विद्यापतिलिखितवचनात् । The Nirṇayasindhu several times cites Durgābhaktitarāṅgiṇī e. g. on pp. 167, 170, 172, 183.

- 1237 Dr. Jayakanta in his ' History of Maithilī Literature ' devoted pp. 130-196 of volume I to the age of Vidyāpati and pp. 196-224 of the same vol. to his contemporaries and on p. 140 it is stated that king Śivasimha and his queen Lakhimādevī liked him very much. Mahāmahopādhyāya Dr. Umeśa Miśra published in 1937 a work on Vidyāpati Thākura, of which the third edition published by him in 1959 has been relied upon in this Section for information on some points.

and re-arranged the work and has published it in Devanāgarī characters along with a very elaborate and informative introduction of 132 pages (in 1953). There is great difference of opinion about what padas were the genuine works of Vidyāpati. In this latest edition the editor had to reject 203 padas, which had been wrongly ascribed to Vidyāpati by the editor Babu Nagendranatha Gupta (vide J. of G. J. R. Institute Vol. X. pp. 175–196 Review).

For Vidyāpati's Puruṣaparīkṣā, vide No. 1922 in Mitra's Notices (vol. V pp. 244–46). The work was written under the orders of King Śivasimha, son of King Devasimha, of Mithilā. It has four paricchedas and contains over forty stories about heroism, benevolence, dayā (kindness), theft, cowardice, a lazy man, a clever man &c. The Puruṣaparīkṣā was rendered into English by Sir George A. Grierson and was published in 1935 by the Royal Asiatic Society, London. The translation contains 44 tales in all, most of them being arranged in groups e. g. there are at first four tales of heroic men and four tales about men of the opposite type. Grierson published a paper on 'Vidyāpati and his contemporaries' in I. A. Vol. XIV (1885) pp. 182–196. On pp. 190–191 of that volume the original Sanskrit of the Bisapī plate and its translation into English are set out. It is dated in several eras, san 807, saṃvat 1455 and śake 1321 (and L. Saṃ. 283, Śrāvaṇa suidī 7). The Ms. of the Bhāgavata Purāṇa copied by Vidyāpati bears the date ' La. Saṃ. 349 ' says Dr. Jayakānta, while others read that date as La. Saṃ. 349 or 389 (vide History of Maithilī Literature, vol. I. p. 185.

He may be held to have flourished between 1360–1448 A. D. and should be placed just about the times of Sūlapāṇi. Vide Journal of Department of Letters for 1929, vol. 16, for an informing paper on him.

The Gaṅgāvākyāvalī of Queen Viśvāsadevī was published at Calcutta in 1940 in a sumptuous edition by Dr. J. B. Chaudhuri Ph.D. (London) with an Introduction of 64 pages, text (in Sanskrit pp. 107–314), with numerous appendices such as No. I of pp. 1–96 on references, various readings and notes, No. II remarks on the quotations in the Gaṅgāvākyāvalī (pp. 97–101), No. III (Description of the Mss. of the Gaṅgāvākyāvalī pp. 102–4),

No. IV (Remarks on the authorship of the Gaṅgāvākyaṅvalī, pp. 105-108), No. V pp. 109-110, on the royal family of Mithilā No. VI some well-known smārtas that have quoted the Gaṅgāvākyaṅvalī (pp. 131-136), Index of verses and prose passages quoted in the work (pp. 1-26) and names of the sources from which they are quoted. Index No. 5 on the maxims quoted (p. 54) No. VI list of works quoted by the authoress that are not extant or rare or fragmentary (p. 55); abbreviations (pp. 1-37), Bibliography (pp. 1-21), General Index (pp. 22-40), additions and corrections (pp. 41-43).

The two verses at the end of the work are quoted below.¹²³⁸ They are clear on the point that the work was composed by the Queen and that all that Vidyāpati did was that he studied certain works and made her work look faultless by providing it with authorities from several nibandhas that he studied. It is clear that the work was that of the Queen and Vidyāpati only supplied some textual authorities in support of her propositions.

An excellent edition of the Gaṅgāvākyaṅvalī of Queen Viśvāsadevī, Queen of Padmasiṃha (along with the Dvārakāpaṭṭala by Binabai) was published as volumes III and IV (as part of the Contribution of Women to Sanskrit Literature) by Dr. J. B. Chaudhuri in 1940 at Calcutta, with a Foreword by Dr. C. Otto Blagden and with five Appendices one of which contained some remarks on the authorship of the work (pp. 105-108) and on members of the royal family of Mithilā (15 in all) and some well-known Smārta writers who quoted the Gaṅgāvākyaṅvalī. Viśvāsadevī was the wife of Padmasiṃha, son of Śivasīṃha, king of Mithilā.¹²³⁹ Padmasiṃha became the king of Mithilā on 1239 Some writers say that Padmasiṃha was the brother of Śivasīṃha; but that is not correct. They were probably missed by the imperfect text of the extract in Mitra's Notices vol. VI p. 3, where a verse refers to Śivasīṃha and then there is a mutilated passage. As printed there is a lacuna in the Śivasimha's death and on the death of Padmasimha Viśvāsadevi ascended the throne. The work has 29 chapters dealing with such matters as remembering the Ganges, uttering its name, pilgrimage to it, hearing the eulogy of the Ganges, seeing it, bowing down to it, śrāddha to be performed on it, bathing in it, offering libations (tarpaṇa), counting beads (japa), gifts on it and offering piṇḍas and residing on it; prāyaścittas, voluntary or natural death (mṛtyu), putting the bones of the dead in the waters, baths at the confluence of the Ganges and the Sea &c.

For the 'Vibhāgasāra' of Vidyāpati, vide Mitra's Notices Vol. VI pp. 67-8. It deals with the meaning of 'Dāya', nature of partition, what is not liable to partition, disquisition on Strīdhana (woman's property) and its partition among heirs, division of wealth concealed, but later found partition among those who are born of persons that had partitioned; description of the twelve kinds of sons and partition among them; heirs to person dying without male issue; partition of wealth among persons who had reunited after partition.

The Dānavākyaṇī is described (on p. 352 of Dr. R. G. Bhandarkar's Report on the search for Sanskrit Mss. for the year 1883-84) as composed by Dhīramatī, queen of king Darpanārāyaṇa of Mithilā, who was herself learned and who permitted the very clever Vidyāpati to render it faultless with authoritative texts.¹²⁴⁰

One of Vidyāpati's works is Bhūparikramaṇa of which a complete copy exists in the Mss. Library of the Sanskrit College of Calcutta. Some account of this work is given by Śrī Dinesh Chandra Bhattacharya in J. G. J. R. I. Vol. VI at pp. 241-247. That work shows that Vidyāpati had śākta leanings. His work seems to have been called Dvaitanirṇaya (or Āgamadvaitanirṇaya).

97. Vyavahāranirṇaya of Varadarāja

Twelve years after the first volume of the History of Dharmaśāstra was published (in 1930), Prof. K. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar and his pupil Mr. A. N. Krishna Aiyangar published in the Adyar Library Series (Madras) an edition of the Vyavahāranirṇaya of Varadarāja based on nine mss.

One remarkable feature of the work is that it has no Maṅgala śloka at the beginning. Prof. Aiyangar suggests that this is so because it is only a part of a large work. I am not satisfied with the suggestion. The work could have been begun by saying 'after completing the part on the subject already finished I (or Varadarāja) begin' &c.

There are four well-known South Indian works on several branches of Dharmaśāstra including Vyavahāra viz. the Smṛticandrikā, the Parāśaramādhaviya, the Vyavahāra-nirṇaya of Varadarāja and the Smṛtimuktāphala of Vaidyanātha Dīkṣita (composed sometime about or after 1700 A. D.), the Vya. N. dealing only with Vyavahāra. The Mitākṣarā also may be regarded as South Indian, since Vijñāneśvara composed it in the domains of the Cālukya emperor Vikramārka. All except the last two were published early.

In this edition there is a preface (pp. ix-xx), an Introduction (pp. xxiii-lxii), synopsis of its contents, comparative statement of the authorities on Vyavahāra cited in the Mitākṣarā, Smṛti-candrikā, Vyavahāranirṇaya, Parāśara-mādhaviya, table of contents in Sanskrit (pp. 1-28) the text (pp. 1-534), names of authors and works quoted with references to pages where they occur (pp. 538-547). In spite of the large bulk of this publication the main work will not cover more than half of the Mitākṣarā on the Vyavahāra section of Yājñavalkya. Each page of it has various readings placed one below another and the result is that 1/3 or 1/4 portion of most of the pages contain only the various readings (rarely one half of the page e. g. pp. 114, 183, 234, 236-37, 476). The Editor quotes frequently in the footnotes Nārada-Manusamhitā and Bhavasvāmin's bhāṣya (e. g. on pp. 304-5, 323-24, 336-37, 379, 382-83). Varadarāja's explanations are often the same as in the Mit. (e. g. on pp. 67, 239, 241, 251, 321, 413-14, 420-21, 480) and therefore one may hold that he borrows from that work (particularly as he mentions Vijñāneśvara on p. 78 and appears to refer to him as the most eminent among those who have realized brahman on pp. 253, 270). He does not enter into discussion on knotty points like those in Yāj. II. 21, II. 24 or whether ownership arises on partition (vibhāgāt-sva-tvam-uta svasya sato vibhāgaḥ). On p. 521 he quotes the two verses of Yāj. II. 305, 306 on review of judgment but has not a word in explanation while the Mit. comments on them at length. On Yāj. II. 100-102 the Mit. has three closely printed pages of explanation, while the Vya. N. quotes the verses on p. 154 but has not a word of explanation. Similarly on Yāj. II. 118-119 the Mit. explains in two closely printed pages, while the Vya. N., which quotes both on pp. 442-443, has hardly any explanation.

On the whole the Vyavahāranirnaya is a pedestrian performance. In spite of the labour bestowed by the editors on this work, one is surprised at the mistakes committed by them in some places. A few are cited here. On pp. 120-121 the Vy. N. quotes as Yājñavalkya's the verses 'uktepi sāksibhiḥ' &c. (Yāj. II. 80 and 83) but in the alphabetical Sanskrit index of verses it is noted (on pp. 580 and 712) that the two verses are anāmaka (without name). Similarly, on p. 386 the Vy. N. quotes Yāj. I. 65 (dattam api haret &c.) and Yāj. II. 146 (dattvā kanyām &c.) but there is a footnote (4) on the same page that those passages of Yāj. are not found in the printed Yājñavalkya.

The Vy. N. quotes many Smṛtis and some works and authors of which the following deserve to be noted. Akhaṇḍadārśa (p. 434), Agnimitra (p. 130), Asahāya (pp. 135, 230, 455), Udyo-

tana (pp. 78, 455), Kavaṣa (p. 471), Kṛṣṇa (pp. 78, 278), Kauṭilya (pp. 284–85), Dharmadrōṇa (p. 353 either a work or author), Dhāreśvara (pp. 78, 135), Bhaṭṭakumāra (pp. 78, 135), Pañcādhyāyī (pp. 132, 357), Vijñāneśvara (p. 78), Śrīkara (p. 135), Svāyambhuvāgama (p. 14), Ācārya Viśvarūpa (pp. 78, 135, 474).

The Vy. N. nowhere refers to Bhāruci who was comparatively an early author on Dharmaśāstra.

It is interesting to note that the Vy. N. (on pp. 284–85) quotes a passage from Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra about the payment of Dakṣiṇā when one of the several priests required in Agniṣṭoma and other Vedic sacrifices falls ill before the whole sacrifice is finished.

The date of Varadarāja has now to be discussed. As he mentions Vijñāneśvara, designates him 'brahmavitpravara' and appears to have copied the very words of the Mitākṣarā (as indicated above and as admitted by Prof. Aiyangar on p. xxviii of the Introduction), he must be held to be at least one generation later than the Mitākṣarā. It has been shown above that the Mit. cannot be placed later than 1100–1120 A. D. I regret to say that I cannot accept the encomiums that the late Professor showers on Varadarāja on p. xxix (as being independent, original as to interpretation and endowed with command over Mīmāṃsā and Nyāya). To me he appears to be a puny figure in the matter of Mīmāṃsā applied to Dharmaśāstra as compared with the vast erudition shown by the Mitākṣarā. Here I cannot deal with the arguments of Prof. Aiyangar. Varadarāja is earlier than 1515 A. D. That is certain. So one has to find out how much earlier he can be placed.

Prof. Aiyangar (on p. lxvi of the Introduction) refers to p. 459 of the Vy. N. where the Vedic text ' tasmāt striyo nirindriyā adāyādīr ' is cited and explained. On p. lxvi of the Introduction he remarks that the interpretation of ' nirindriyāḥ ' as applied to women in Manusmṛiti (in IX. 18) by Varadarāja is original and was not anticipated by any previous writer. This is a bold and sweeping statement. Much of the medieval literature is still unpublished and buried in Mss. and chronology is uncertain and a large part has perished beyond recovery. The most important point of construction of the Vedic text is that it is not to be taken literally and as prohibiting women as inheritors of family property. It may be shown to be restricted in import in various ways. To be brief, Aparārka whose commentary on Yaj. cannot be placed later than 1140 A. D. has a similar explanation. The Manusmṛti (IX. 18) refers to the Vedic passage and says 'nirindriyā hyamantrāśca striyosnṛtam-iti sthitiḥ'. Aparārka held it was a mere arthavāda, not to be taken literally, and that that passage refers to cases where a son exists. The Smṛticandrikā also holds that the Śruti is an arthavāda and refers to women other than those that are expressly named as heirs. The Parāśara-Mādhaviya also explains it as indicating that the wife of the sacrificer has no right to partake of the Soma drink. Mādhavācārya is the most learned writer among Dākṣiṇātyas. His greatness and fame stand only second to the great Saṅkarācārya.

The Parāśaramādhaviya is one of his earliest works. The Kālanirṇaya expressly says that it was composed after the commentary on the Parāśarasmṛti. Therefore the Parāśara-Mādhaviya cannot be dated later than about 1340 A. D. Great controversies have raged round Mādhava and Vidyāraṇya. There are some scholars who deny their identity (vide J. of Indian History Vol. XII pp. 241-250 by Doraiswami Iyengar). Unfortunately sectarian zeal of Vaiṣṇavas and non-Vaiṣṇavas in South India also appears to play a part in these discussions. Prof. Aiyangar's discussion about Varadarāja and Mādhava smacks of these tendencies. Some undisputed facts must be first stated. Varadarāja is a very common name in the Tamil country as the presiding deity at Kāncīpura is named Varadarāja (admitted on p. XLVII). Varadarāja is not referred to anywhere by Mādhava (admitted by Prof. Aiyangar on p. XLVIII of Intro. to Vy. N.). But he musters courage to say 'In spite of the absence of some reference to Varadarāja's work, it is incredible that it should not have been known to Mādhava'. The belief of a person however learned he may be is worth little. It is the reasons for that belief that matter. Prof. Aiyangar may believe anything but it is his reasons that have to be examined. If one scholar says that Varadarāja borrows from Mādhava, he cannot be silenced by another simply saying he does not believe that at all. What are the grounds of this sweeping assertion? On p. 414 the Vyavahāranirṇaya quotes a verse (quoted in note below)¹²⁴¹ as from Prajāpati about some matters forbidden in Kaliyuga. The same passage occurs in the Mit. on Yāj. II. 117. The Mit. composed in about 1100 A. D. could not have borrowed it from Vy. N. The same passage is quoted in the Smṛticandrikā as from Saṅgrahakāra (Vyavahāra p. 266 Gharpure). In the Sac-carita-rakṣā (p. 47 Venk. Press ed.) of Vedāntadeśika there is a verse of Yama quoted from Skandapurāṇa, the reading of which was changed in a work called Varadarāja-Smṛti-Saṅgraha. On p. XLVI (Intro.) Prof. Aiyangar refers to certain remarks of Vedāntadeśika in his Saccaritarakṣā viz. that the topic of sanctified food for Vaiṣṇavas had been treated by Yāmunācārya and elucidated by the learned Varadarāja-paṇḍita in his Sanmārgadīpikā and that he (Vedāntadeśika) follows in their footsteps. Prof. Aiyangar at once jumps to the conclusion that the Smṛtisaṅgraha of Varadarāja referred to by Vedāntadeśika must be the work of Varadarāja, who is the author of Vy. Nirṇaya. Prof. Aiyangar complacently observes (p. XLVI of Intro.) 'As the topic comes within the scope of Dharmaśāstra, there is no reasonable ground for ascribing the Sanmārgadīpikā to a Varadarāja different from the author of the Smṛtisaṅgraha'. There are very reasonable and strong grounds for scouting all the remarks of Prof. Aiyangar. In the first place, the Varadarāja of Vy. N. gives no information about himself. He nowhere states that it is a part of a larger work nor does he mention any work called Smṛtisaṅgraha. Besides, Varadarāja is a very common name in the Tamil country as he admits (p. XLVII of Introduction). The Smṛticandrikā on Vyavahāra (p. 36) quotes five verses from Saṅgrahakāra about the characteristics of a proper plaintiff in a suit. The same five verses, are quoted by the Mit. on Yāj. II. 9 with the words 'Yathoktam'. These five verses are not found in Vy. N. Therefore, the Saṅgraha or Smṛti-Saṅgraha known to the Mit. and Smṛticandrikā is entirely different from the Smṛtisaṅgraha of Varadarāja. Prof. Aiyangar unnecessarily parades (on p. xxxvii of Intro.) the colophons of the Mss. used by him for editing the Vy. N. The words 'Śrīmad-Varadarājaīye vyavahāra-nirṇaye' or 'Śrīmad-Varadarājaīye Dharmaśāstre vyavahāranirṇaye' mean nothing more than 'Varadarājena prokta' (expounded by Varadarāja) according to Pāṇini IV. 3. 101 'tena proktam'. If one looks into the various catalogues of Sanskrit mss. (such as Aufrecht's) one would find that there are more than two dozen authors called Varadarāja. There is at present absolutely no evidence (except the sameness of name) that the Smṛtisaṅgraha of Varadarāja mentioned in note 3 on p. XLVII is the work of the same Varadarāja who is the author of the Vy. N. Granting for a moment that Vedāntadeśika's Saccaritaraksā was composed about 1297 A. D. (as asserted on p. XLV of Introduction to Vy. N.) there is no substantial evidence to connect that Smṛtisaṅgraha with the author of the Vy. N. beyond the mere name. It has been shown above (under Kalpataru of Lakṣmīdhara) that scholars have had grave doubts about the dates of the successors of Śrī Rāmānujācārya and the dates assigned to them by their own Vaiṣṇava writers and the traditions of the Vadagalai and the Tengalai scholars. That being the case, I take exception to the statement on p. XLVI (of Intro.) that Varadarājapaṇḍita (author of Sanmārgadīpikā) is identical with the Varadarāja, author of Vy. N. Again I take strong objection to the remark on p. XLVIII that a comparison of the two works (Parāśaramādhaviya and Vy. N.) establishes the superior learning and acuteness of the Varadarājīya and its greater originality. I have shown above how mediocre is the work called Vy. N. as compared with the Mitākṣarā and I hold on the evidence available so far that the author of Vy. N. is later than the Mādhaviya and borrows from the Mādhaviya.

For reasons of space it is impossible to criticize at length the many debatable points in Prof. Aiyangar's Introduction, particularly about the chronological relation between the Smṛticandrikā and Parāśara-mādhaviya on the one hand and the Vy. N. on the other. On pp. LIV-LV (Intro.) he refers to Prajāpati quoting the verse about Niyoga, unequal partition and the immolation of a cow. That verse is quoted from Saṅgraha by the Smṛticandrikā (vide note 1241 above). Prajāpati is not cited even once by Viśvarūpa on Yāj. The Mit. quotes Prajāpati as Smṛti only in three places viz. on Yāj. III. 20 (on āśauca and the birth of a son), III. 25 (again on āśauca) and III. 260 (penance for a person guilty of adultery with even the low caste wife of his brāhmaṇa guru). The Mit. does not quote Prajāpati on ācāra and Vyavahāra. Aparārka quotes only four verses of Prajāpati on ācāra, two on Vyavahāra, and one on āśauca and one prose passage on the four kinds of Sannyāsins. The Kṛtyakalpataru (on Vyavahāra) quotes only three verses of Prajāpati. That establishes that Prajāpati's work was either non-existent or negligible in the 9th century A. D., was very sparingly relied upon even upto the 12th century A. D. and was a very minor authority as compared with Bṛhaspati, Kātyāyana and many others. The Smṛticandrikā quotes from Prajāpati about eleven verses on Āhnika, about 21 on Vyavahāra and about three on Śrāddha. The Smṛticandrikā would have to be placed at the latest about 1220-1250 A. D. (as Hemādri quotes it very frequently). Turning to the Vyavahāra-nirṇaya which is a much smaller work (being confined only to Vyavahāra) it quotes about 86 verses of Prajāpati, of which about 46 relate to ordeals alone. Another remarkable circumstance is that Vy. N. was composed at a time when weekdays and Sankrānti had come very much to the fore even in judicial matters such as trial by ordeals.

Besides, the Smṛticandrikā even on the section on Vyavahāra covers (in Gharpure's ed.) 322 closely printed pages of a very large size (with hardly a line for various readings), with about 32 lines on each page each line containing from 24 to 38 letters. The Vy. N. has only 534 pages of a smaller size with about 12 to 23 lines (of texts) on each page and a much smaller number of letters from 16 to 28 in each line. The Smṛticandrikā text on Vyavahāra contains far more matter than the text in the whole of the Vyavahāranirṇaya. From these facts it may be concluded that the Smṛticandrikā, though more extensive on Vyavahāra than the Vy. N., quotes Prajāpati less than half as many times as the Vy. N. does. That is Vy. N. had a much more inflated text of Prajāpati than what even the Smṛticandrikā had before it and so it probably is a great deal later than the Smṛticandrikā. Similarly, the Mādhaviya on Vyavahāra quotes from Prajāpati only 35 verses on Vyavahāra of which eleven refer to ordeals.

Prof. Aiyangar attaches undue importance to the quotations from Prajāpati in Vy. N. Prajāpati is not one among the many authors on Dharmaśāstra named in Yāj. I. 4-5 nor among the thirtysix expounders of Dharma named by Paiṭhīnasi quoted by the Smṛticandrikā on its first page. The Parāśaramādhaviya on Vyavahāra quotes only 31 verses from Prajāpati of which only eleven are concerned with ordeals, while Vy. N. quotes 86 verses from Prajāpati on Vyavahāra, of which 46 are concerned with ordeals. The above facts should be held to lead to the conclusion that Vy. N. had before it a far more inflated text of Prajāpati than what the Mādhaviya had before it. Critical scholars should not be impressed or influenced by the mention of an ancient name tacked to verses by Medieval writers. The Manusmṛti (in I. 34–35) says that the first human being created by Virāj was Manu who created ten Prajāpatis viz. Marīci, Atri, Aṅgiras, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu, Pracetas, Vasiṣṭha, Bhṛgu and Nārada, from all of whom verses on Dharma topics are quoted by the Mit., Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā. That shows that works were palmed off on people as composed by primeval sages, though composed by scholars in medieval historic times in order to make them appear very authoritative.

The sources of Dharma were chiefly three, viz. Śruti (or Veda), Smṛtis and customs (vide Gaut. Dh. S. I. 1–2, Āp. Dh. S. I. 1. 1. 2, Vas. Dh. S. I. 4–6, Manu II. 6) and the theory was that each succeeding one was inferior in authority to each preceding one. In the march of ages certain practices that prevailed in the Vedic times (such as Niyoga) and even in the times of the Smṛtis (such as marriage of a brāhmaṇa with a woman of the the Kṣatriya or Vaiśya varṇa) went out of vogue and new ones came to be observed. In some cases, therefore, changes were introduced or recommended by learned men interpreting vedic texts as merely arthavādas (not to be taken literally) and by even changing the words of the texts. For example, the Kalpataru (on Vyavahāra p. 691) and Dāyatattva¹²⁴² (Jivananda ed. p. 185) provide by quoting Devala that the Strīdhana of a woman dying childless is taken (on her death) by her husband or by her mother or by her brother or by her father. But writers from Kāmarūpa (Assam) read the same verse as (aprajāyām hared bhartā bhrātā mātā pitāpi vā). Vide Pandit Manoranjan Sastri's paper in 'Prāgjyotiṣa Souvenir' (published at the time of the 22nd Session of the All India Oriental Conference in Jan. 1965). Bṛhaspati prescribes that the strīdhana of a woman on her death passes to her sons and to daughters that are unmarried, but the married daughter (in such a case) receives a small part as a token of honour to her. The Dāyabhāga by a slight change (samūdhā to na labhen-mātrkam dhanam') denies to the married daughter the right to receive even a token part of her mother's strīdhana.

In the above cases the original text must have been only of one tenor, but by a slight change the same verse is made to yield a different sense.

As this Varadarāja is quoted in several places in the Vyavahārakāṇḍa of the Sarasvatīvilāsa of Pratāparudra (on pp. 135, 179, 268-269, 276, 319), his work must be earlier than about 1500 A. D. as Pratāparudra ruled from 1497 to 1538 A. D. and refers to him as one among ādhunika writers (p. 325). It should be noted that the Sarasvatīvilāsa, which quotes Aparārka many times (as on pp. 230, 262, 264, 308, 344-45, 354, 367 &c.) and the Candrikākāra (i. e. author of Smṛticandrikā) dozens of times (as on pp. 212, 230, 235, 242, 264, 267, 275, 308, 350) never speaks of Aparārka or the Candrikā or Smṛticandrikā as ādhunika. The Smṛticandrikā would have to be placed between 1200-1240 A. D. as it quotes Aparārka and is quoted very largely by Hemādri. Therefore Varadarāja must be later than 1300 A. D. and would have to be assigned to a period between 1450-1495 A. D. (in order that he may be styled Ādhunika in a work composed in the first quarter of the 16th century).

98. Śūlapāṇi

Jīmūtavāhana, Śūlapāṇi and Raghunandana are the three leading and very eminent writers on Dharmaśāstra from Bengal. Rai Bahadur Manomohan Chakravarti in his learned and long paper 'Contributions to the History of Smṛti in Bengal and Mithila' in J. A. S. B. (New Series) Vol. XI (1915) deals with Bengal authors on Smṛti in pp. 311-406 and deals with Śūlapāṇi in pp. 336-343 giving a very interesting account of his works and time.

The earliest work of Śūlapāṇi appears to have been his Dīpālikā, a commentary on the smṛti of Yājñavalkya. It is a very brief commentary. Rai Bahadur M. M. Chakravarti had no printed edition of the Dīpakalikā and relied upon a ms. from the Sanskrit College. The *Dīpakalikā*¹²⁴³ was published by Mr. Gharpure in 1939 in his series of Hindu Law texts. Raghunandana quotes or refers to it very often in spite of its small size (vide vol. I, Śrāddha, pp. 201, 208, 225, 247; Āhnika 454; Prāyaścitta 543, 546; vol. II Udvāha 138, Vyavahāra 224, 225; Divya 577. The portion on the dāyabhāga section (Yājñavalkya II, verses 114–149) is contained in five printed pages (vide Ghose's Hindu Law, edition of 1917, vol. II. pp. 550–554). In this commentary, besides the sages he names only a few writers and works on dharma, e. g. the Kalpataru, Govindarāja, the Mitākṣarā, Medhātithi and Viśvarūpa. He entertained somewhat archaic views on matters of inheritance. For example, he holds that the text speaking of the right of the parents to succeed before the brothers of the deceased has reference to property acquired by the deceased from his father or grand-father. He explained the word 'apratīṣṭhitā' in the sūtra of Gautama 'strīdhanam duhitṛṇāmaprattānām-apratīṣṭhitānām ca' in the same way as Aparārka, Jīmūtavāhana and the Smṛticandrikā.¹²⁴⁴ He says that a full brother though not re-united succeeded before a half-brother

1243 The दीपकलिका (ed. by Gharpure) covers only 110 pages but mentions a large number of smṛti works, and authors : गौतम-धर्मसूत्र, बोधायन, बृहस्पति, बृहद्बृहस्पति, भरद्वाज, मनु, बृहन्मनु (verse अन्यायोपात्ता.), बृहमनु (verse अपुत्रा शयनं), मरीचि, यम, वसिष्ठ, विश्वरूप (p. 81), विश्वामित्र, विष्णु, व्यास, शङ्ख (prose once), शङ्खलिखित (prose 12 times), शातातप, बृहद्शातातप, शौनक (once), संवर्त, सनन्द (once), सुमन्तु, हारीत (both prose and verse), कल्पतरु, छन्दोगपरिशिष्ट, महाभारत (4 times), रामायण (once आकारश्छद्यमानोपि०), आयुर्वेद (once), सुश्रुत (twice). It quotes several पुराण (some of them often)-आदि, कूर्म, नृसिंह, पद्म, ब्रह्म (10 times), भविष्य (13 times), मार्कण्डेय, विष्णु, स्कन्द. In प्राय. वि. pp. 390–91 he states—' विवाह्याविवाह्यस्त्री-विशेषश्च याज्ञवल्क्यटीकायामस्माभिरभिहितः । सगोत्रादिकन्यानां चाज्ञानतो विवाह इदं यथा बोधायनः सगोत्रां चैदमत्योपगच्छेत् मातृवेदनां बिभृयात् । प्रजाता चेत् कृच्छ्राब्दपादं चरित्वा जन्मन आत्मनो वेदाग्निभूतः पुनरग्निश्चक्षुरादित्येताभ्यां जुहुयात् । ज्ञाने तु द्वैगुण्यम् ।

though re-united.¹²⁴⁵ This explanation of the much canvassed verse of Yāj. offered by Śūlapāṇi is referred to by the Vīramitrodaya.¹²⁴⁶ The Vyavahāratattva of Raghunandana several times refers to Śūlapāṇi's explanations of Yāj.¹²⁴⁷

In the Prāyaścittaviveka (p. 390 of Jivananda's ed.) Śūlapāṇi states that he has already composed a commentary on Yāj. The Śuddhitattva (vol. II p. 380) mentions that Śūlapāṇi also composed ' Parisiṣṭa-dīpakalikā '.

Śūlapāṇi wrote several small treatises on topics of dharma-śāstra. It is doubtful whether he contemplated or proposed to make them parts of a huge digest on Smṛti. At least twelve tractates of his ending in the word ' Viveka ' are known. Chakravarti on p. 337 of his paper opines that the several ' small treatises formed parts of general treatise by name the Smṛtiviveka. ' With great respect I demur to this conclusion. He nowhere drops even a hint that he meant these large and small treatises to be parts of a Smṛtiviveka viz. Ekādaśī-viveka, Tithi-viveka, Dattaka-viveka, Durgotsavaprayoga-viveka, Durgotsava-viveka, Dolayātrā-viveka, Pratiṣṭhā-viveka, Prāyaścitta-viveka, Rāsayātrā-viveka, Vratākāla-viveka, Śuddhi-viveka, Śrāddha-viveka, Saṁkrānti-viveka, Saṁbandha-viveka (on marriage). Of these the Durgotsavaviveka seems to have been amongst his latest works, since he names therein five of his vivekas on durgotsava-prayoga, pratiṣṭhā, prāyaścitta, śuddhi and śrāddha. The Śrāddha-viveka is the most famous of his works and has been printed. His Prāyaścittaviveka and Durgotsava-viveka have also been published, the former by Jivananda (1893) and the latter by the Sanskrit Sāhitya Parishad at Calcutta in Bengali characters. In the Durgotsava-viveka he deals with the worship of Durgā in Āśvina and also in spring (hence the deity is called Vāsantī). In the Durgotsava viveka, besides such purāṇas as the Kalikā, Bhaviṣyottara, Bhāgavata, Devī, he names a host of writers and works as noted below.¹²⁴⁸ In spite of Aufrecht's view the Saṁvatsara-pradīpa is not his own work. The Saṁvatsarapradīpa mentioned by Śūlapāṇi in Durgotsavaviveka appears to have been a work of Halāyudha, as Raghunandana states in Ekādaśitattva (vol. II. p. 51, 'Saṁvatsara-pradīpe Halāyudhopi etanmatānusāri') and in Śuddhi (Vol. II p. 327 'ata eva saṁvatsara-pradīpe Halāyudhenoktam). The Saṁvatsarapradīpa without the author's name is quoted by Raghunandana many times, as in (vol. I) Tithi (pp. 34, 43, 49, 106); Śrāddha, p. 250, Prāyaścitta p. 508, Malamāsa pp. 754, 848; in vol. II Ekādaśi pp. 8, 40, 61-62, 65, 83, and Śuddhi 382. A Sārasamuccaya is also mentioned in Hemādri (Dānakhaṇḍa page 135). The Smṛtisāgara is probably the same as the Govindārṇava of Śeṣa Nṛsiṃha. Śrīkaramiśra is probably the ancient author referred to even by the Mitākṣarā.

Śūlapāṇi is mentioned by name by Raghunandana in some places without any title (as in vol. I Malamāsa pp. 748, 854-55; Vol. II. p. 577 Divya), sometimes as upādhyāya (vol. I. Dāya 175) and very often as Mahāmahopādhyāya (as in vol. I Prāyaścitta pp. 528, 553; vol. II. Vyavahāra p. 197, Śuddhi p. 296). Brief notes may be added on a few of his works.

The Sambandhaviveka¹²⁴⁹ was edited by Dr. J. B. Chaudhuri (Calcutta) in 1942 with an Introduction of 23 pages dealing with the origin and development of the forms of marriage (8 forms in the Gaut. Dh. S. and in Āśv. Gr. I. 6) and containing a few remarks on the work of Śūlapāṇi. A work of the same name by Bhavadevabhāṭṭa who flourished at least three centuries before Śūlapāṇi has also been edited by Dr. S. C. Banerjee in N. I. A. Vol. VI. pp. 97-102. A comparison of the works of the same name by Bhavadeva and Śūlapāṇi would be interesting but reasons of space prevent any such attempt. It is a misnomer to speak of the small treatises of Śūlapāṇi as granthas or nibandhas. It is cumbersome and unnecessary to mention and describe all the writings of Śūlapāṇi (in a work like the present general History of Dharmaśāstra) said to be 23 by Dr. S. C. Banerjee in N. I. A. vol. V. pp. 169-176.

1248 They are: कालकौमुदी, कालमाधवीय, कालविवेक, कालादर्श, चक्रनारायणी, जिकन, जीमूतवाहन, ज्योतिषार्णव, बालक, महाकपिलपञ्चरात्र, वर्षकृत्य, वसन्तराज, शारदातिलक, श्रीकरमिश्र, श्रीदत्तोपाध्याय, संवत्सरप्रदीप (of श्रीदत्त), सारसमुच्चय, स्मृतिसागर.

1249 The text in the edition by Dr. Chaudhuri of the Sambandhaviveka contains only 15 pages. But about one-third or more of each page is covered by various readings. So the text by itself would occupy only about six or seven printed pages of a small size book in modern times. As there were hardly any printing presses for Sanskrit works before the advent of the British and as the different parts of India were separated by the barriers of language and usages and were governed by different dynasties, each region produced its own compilations in Sanskrit, particularly on matters of Dharmaśāstra.

For the Dolayātrāviveka one has to turn to the volume of studies presented to the present author on his completing 60 years on the 7th May 1941, to which Dr. S. C. Banerji contributed a paper containing the text of Dolayātrāviveka of Śūlapāṇi (pp. 56-62) based on seven mss. belonging to the Dacca University mss. library. It is a small tract of about five printed pages (if the footnotes about different readings of the mss. be excluded). Dolayātrā means the festival of swinging (of the image of Kṛṣṇa). Half of the work is taken from Skandapurāṇa, some verses are also quoted from the Brahmapurāṇa and Devīpurāṇa and the work called Bhujabalabhīma is also cited. The festival may be celebrated for three days or five days. Ordinarily it is celebrated on the full moon day of Phālguna (but questions arise when Purnimā is mixed with Caturdaśī) or with Uttarāphālgunī nakṣatra. The conclusions are stated in the note below¹²⁵⁰ when one or two of the three required particulars are wanting.

A few words are required to be said on the two extensive and important works of Śūlapāṇi, viz. Prāyaścittaviveka and Śrāddhāviveka. But the Śrāddhāviveka not being available to me in Devanāgarī script, I have had to give up the idea of saying something about it. The first was printed over seventy years ago by Jivananda with the commentary of Govindānanda called Tattvārthakaumudī and contains 544 printed pages. Hundreds of Prāyaścittas on serious and insignificant transgressions are mentioned in this work. It is difficult to believe that all these (or even large portions) were actually practised by the people in the author's days or even centuries before him. A brief statement of its contents is given here.— Etymology¹²⁵¹ of the word Prāyaścitta according to Aṅgiras and Hārīta; how sins are incurred (acc. to Manu XI. 43, Yāj. III. 219-220); the effect of sins are experienced in the present life itself or in another life (Yāj. III. 32-33); sinners fall into hell or are born with bodily defects (Manu XI. 49, 52); narakas (hells) are many acc. to Manu IV. 88-90; two views – one is that the results of every act must be endured and there is no escape from them; the other is that results of sins may be avoided or mitigated by appropriate acts and penances declared in the śāstras (Manu XI. 45, 46, 53); distinction between sins committed through ignorance and sins committed of set purpose (Yāj. III. 226); sinner should approach a pariṣad (assembly of learned men) or the king; constitution of pariṣad for prescribing appropriate penances (pp. 27-29); various methods for reducing or removing effects of sins (Manu XI. 227, 230); enumeration of penances like kṛcchra, cāndrāyana, prājāpatya, sāntapana, parāka; secret penances like japa of mantras and homas; nine kinds of sins, such as atipātaka, mahāpātaka, anupātaka, upapātaka, jātibhramśakara &c.; enumeration and definitions of these; acc. to Viṣṇu (34. 1) there are three atipātakas viz. incest with mother, daughter or daughter-in-law; Manu does not mention atipātakas as a distinct class; for Atipātakas, penance for these is entering into fire; Prāyaścittas for the five Mahāpātakas (in Manu XI. 54); upapātakas are 38 in Manu (XI. 59-66); Jātibhramśakara are sins mentioned in Manu XI. 67-70; penances for Mahāpātakas; no sin incurred when a brāhmaṇa who is being treated medically dies (Yāj. III. 284); Manu (VIII. 350-52) and many ancient sages very clearly accept the right of private defence by stating that even if one's guru or a boy or an old man or a learned brāhmaṇa approaches with a weapon to harm a person, the latter should kill him without further thought¹²⁵²; penances for killing a brāhmaṇa (13 indicated by Manu XI. 72-82 as stated in the Pr. Viveka p. 65); but this applies only when killing is not of set purpose; P. (stands for Prāyaścitta or Prāyaścittas in this summary) for those who abet killing or who encourage or merely approve; P. are more severe according as the culprit in the case of killing a brāhmaṇa is a Kṣatriya or of another varṇa or even in other offences (than killing a brāhmaṇa); Dakṣiṇā in penances depends upon the means of the guilty person; penances for drinking surā; ¹²⁵³ meaning of surā (Manu XI. 93), since all intoxicants are not regarded as surā (pp. 89 ff.); P. for theft of gold (pp. 107-127);

1252 Similar provisions occur in Matsya-purāṇa, chap. 227. 115-117 Prāyaścitta V. of Śūlapāṇi (pp. 59-60) quotes Manu VIII. 351. and remarks that the words 'Hanyād-eva' show that there is no alternative and the only action is to kill that brāhmaṇa offender (evakāro nīya vīrthaḥ) and the Daṇḍaviveka (p. 240) of Vardhamāna repeats these words of Śūlapāṇi. Vide an elaborate paper on 'Ātatāyivādha' by Prof. Rangaswami Aiyangar in C. K. Raja Felicitation volume pp. 197-232. The Chāndogyaopaniṣad (V. 10. 9) enumerates the five Mahā-pātakas in the verse 'steno hiraṇyasya . . . pañcamaś-cācaca raistar-iti'. Manu IV. 162 and VIII. 350 (= Matsyapurāṇa 227. 115) appear to be inconsistent with each other. Therefore The Sar. V. p. 155 holds that the latter deals only with the punishment for) Ātatāyi brāhmaṇas. Even in the R̥gveda (VII. 86. 6) Vasiṣṭha appears to plead with God Varuṇa that man commits sin under the influence of surā, wrath, gambling, thoughtlessness and in VIII. 2. 12 refers to brawls (or fights) arising among people intoxicated by surā.

1253 The Prāyaścitta V. (p. 89) quotes a Śruti 'Surā vai malam-annānām' and adds 'yadyapi annaśabdaḥ . . . odane prasi-ddhastathāpi . . . piṣṭa-yavāgvādivikāramapi lakṣayati tenānnavikāraviśeṣo madahetuḥ suretyucyate' and cites Manu XI. 93 'Surā vai malamannānām &c.' and then quotes two verses of Pulastya, in which eleven kinds of intoxicating drinks are specified as varieties of madya, are distinguished from surā and it is expressly provided that all kinds of madya are not

Technical meaning of Suvarṇa; punishments for theft of gold of different quantities and discussion of the meaning of steaya; punishments for theft of gold (including fines); P. for adultery with a wife of one's guru (pp. 128-140); different meanings of guru (Yāj. I. 34, Manu II. 142 and 149); Gautama II. 56, Devala who describes eleven kinds of gurvaṅganā; P. for contact with sinners (pp. 140-176); nine kinds of contact (samsarga) acc. to Bṛhaspati; P. for anupātakas (those that are equal to mahāpātakas acc. to Manu XI. 55-58, pp. 176-192); P. for Upapātakas (192 ff.) mentioned in Manu (XI. 59-66; 59 Upapātakas (Govadha is the first and Nāstikya is the last of them); P. for killing a cow (Manu XI. 108-116); they varied according as the cow belonged to a brāhmaṇa or to men of other varṇas; P. for killing a Kṣatriya (Manu XI. 126-130) or one who is born of a pratiloma and others (pp. 221-22); P. for killing women of the several varṇas (pp. 223-28); P. for killing a foetus (pp. 228-29); P. for killing an elephant, horse, donkey and other animals, birds, fishes (pp. 229-43) and for cutting trees, creepers &c. double¹²⁵⁴ fines for cutting trees growing in cemeteries, on boundaries, holy places, temples (Yāj. II. 227-229); no fault if trees are cut for making ploughs or utensils to be used in sacrifices (p. 245); P. for eating food and things forbidden (pp. 248-53); P. for taking food from washermen, Kāpālikas, cāṇḍālas &c. (pp. 256-59); no P. in certain cases for partaking of flesh even by brāhmaṇas (pp. 277-78); P. for eating food or flesh that is not allowed by śāstra (pp. 281-82); fast as a P. for not performing one's daily duties as laid down by the Veda (p. 286 quoting Manu XI. 203); P. for eating onions, garlic &c. (pp. 293-95); P. for drinking surā, urine &c. through ignorance for men of the three varṇas (pp. 303 ff.), P. for eating food, some part of which was eaten by a cat, crow, dog or having hair in it (pp. 320-21); P. for dining in a row with men

Several medieval writers including Śūlapāṇi are in the habit of saying that certain verses or passages are anākara i. e. not supported by authoritative sources since they have not been mentioned by Rājan (Bhojadeva) and others; e. g. in the Prāyaścitta-Viveka itself he says — (एकत्रान्) शय्यादिपाठोऽनाकरः राज्ञाऽलिखितत्वात् । प्राय. वि. p. 150; पततीति पाठस्य राज्ञा अलिखितत्वात्पतन्त्येते इति तेन लिखितत्वात् कथं पततीति पदावृत्तिः । ibid. p. 152; यानि तु वचनानि चान्द्रायणं त्रिभिः कृच्छ्रैः ० तथा 'चान्द्रायणमकुर्वाणाः ०' तथा चान्द्रायणपराकाभ्यां ० इत्यादीनि तान्यनाकराण्येव भोजदेवादिभिरलिखितत्वात् । ibid. p. 539; वाचस्पति in द्वैतनिर्णय (p. 57) says — 'तदुक्तम्-अर्धेऽक्षय्योदके चैव.....एव चेति । तत्र । एतद्वचनस्य राजाद्यलिखितत्वेन निर्मूलत्वादिति'; रघुनन्दन in Ekādaśitattva (vol. II. p. 45) administers a sharp rebuke to those who put forward such an argument — “न द्वादश्युपवासः प्रमाणाभावात् । 'एकादशीमुपवसेद् द्वादशीमथवा पुनः' इत्यादि भोजराजाद्यलिखितत्वेनामूलकत्वादिति वर्धमानोपाध्याय-वाचस्पतिमिश्रमतं तत्र । तदुपजीव्यहरिनाथोपाध्यायेन महाजनपरिगृहीतत्वेन तद्वचनस्याभिधानात् । न हि भोजराजाद्यलिखितमेवा प्रमाणं रामायणादेस्तथात्वात्पत्तेः । नहि दशमीविद्वेति वचनं भोजराजलिखितम् तस्मान्नानादेशीयसंग्रहकारलिखितवचनसंवादादेव प्रामाण्यपरिग्रहः ।”

- 1256 A few of the original basic texts (not many in number), that were full of differences of opinion among the sages and had to be reconciled or explained away somehow, may be cited here in the original. Many of the medieval writers cite them and seek to bring order out of them. तस्मात्समानादेव पुरुषदत्ता चाद्यश्च जायेते इदं हि चतुर्थे पुरुषे तृतीये संगच्छामहे इति वि देवं दीव्यमाना जाल्या आसने एतस्मादु तत् । शतपथ ब्रा. In spite of these verses of Manu marriage of a male with his maternal uncle's daughter is highly thought of by certain subdivisions even among brāhmaṇas in Mahārāṣṭra and South India. Vide for a discussion on this question History of Dharmaśāstra, vol. II. pp. 458-466.

1258 Vide H. of Dh. Vol. II. pp. 92, 383–85, 389, 392 and Vol. IV. pp. 117–118 about the meaning of the word Mleccha and for the return to the Hindu fold of persons carried away by Mlecchas or robbers and made to eat forbidden things and to do dirty jobs as slaves. The Prāyaścittaviveka of Śūlapāṇi (pp. 455–456) quotes verses (17–22) of Devala (that occur in the collection of Smṛtis of the Anan. Press). Devala was liberal enough to prescribe that by proper prāyaścittas a person carried away by mlecchas and made to eat even condemned flesh and to live like one of them may be taken back in the Hindu fold within four years and that after four years he becomes assimilated to the Mlecchas, has to die as a mleccha and thus death frees him from the taint. It is very creditable to Śūlapāṇi that he quotes these verses of Devala, that he accepts them in toto and does not try to treat them as not applicable in his days or explain them away in some other way.

silver māṣaka (p. 522); Prājāpatyavrata held equal to the gift of a cow yielding milk (pp. 525, 528–29) or its price ; Gautama-dharmasūtra (19. 11–18) prescribed various optional prāyaścittas (for purification) viz. Japa (of sacred texts), tapas, homa, fast and gifts and among gifts of cows also there were certain options (Pr. Viveka pp. 530–534 quoting Manu XI. 127–130, Yāj. III. 266–67); P. for twelve years may be held equal to donating 180 cows yielding milk (p. 538); on p. 538 Parāka is held equal to gift of five milk-yielding cows¹²⁵⁹ and these equations are mainly based on the dicta of authoritative texts (pp. 539–40) and Śūlapāṇi discusses here and there the reasonableness of these equations (on pp. 538–544).

The Prāyaścittaviveka is very often referred to by Raghunandana in his Smṛtitattva. Vide (vol. I.) Tithi pp. 28, 90 (Prāyaścittavivekakṛtām mate tu); Āhnika pp. 341, 350; Prāyaścitta 467, 470, 472, 477, 481 (criticised), 485, 513, 517 tac-cintyam); Vol. II–Ekādaśī p. 8, 15, (Prāyaścittavivekakṛdbhiḥ); Udvāha p. 112, Dāyatattva p. 182; Śuddhi p. 283. The Śrāddhaviveka is also frequently mentioned, e. g. (vol. I) Tithi pp. 12, 18, 154; Śrāddha pp. 190, 194, 206, 223, 271, 290; Prāyaścitta p. 471, Mala° pp. 769, 801, 850 (plural kṛdbhiḥ' used); vol. II. Ekādaśī pp. 85, 179; Śuddhi p. 377. It appears, from the fact that the honorific plural is used by Raghunandana when referring to the author, that Śūlapāṇi was alive or recently dead when Raghunandana began to collect material for his work.

Among the authors and works (omitting Dharmasūtras, Smṛtis and their authors) the following may be cited as mentioned by Śūlapāṇi in Prāyaścittaviveka : Kapardibhāṣya (p. 536); Kalpataru (several times as on pp. 104, 144, 149, 155, 178, 180, 359, 364); Govindarāja (p. 91); Jikana (about 18 times as on pp. 19, 50, 86, 94, 97 &c.), Dharmapradīpa (about a dozen times pp. 209, 257, 281, 335, 347, 366, 379, 401, 442, 446, 477, 526 (those underlined dissented from); Dhāreśvara (p. 61, same as Bhojadeva); Bālaka (pp. 43, 55, 93, 125, 131 on gurvaṅganā), pp. 149, 146, 364

1259 It may be noted that from p. 522 to p. 544 Śūlapāṇi deals with establishing equivalences among certain vratas (or Prāyaścittas) inter se and also equivalence of some vratas with gifts of milk-yielding cows in certain numbers.

(dissented from); Bharṭṛyajña (p. 254), Rājan (Bhojadeva) 150, 152, 157; Lakṣmīdhara 319, Viśvarūpa 91, 119; Śrīkara 66 (dissented from); M. M. Chakravarti (JASB. 1911, p. 339) does not mention Kapardibhāṣya and Bharṭṛyajña. On pp. 98, 139, 536-37 Śūlapāṇi refers to Mahādevapāda and on p. 118 Śrīmaheśvara, all referring to God Śiva as the interlocutor in the Bhaviṣya Purāṇa.

The chronological relation between Śūlapāṇi and Vācaspati-miśra appears to be this that Śūlapāṇi was the older of the two, though they appear to refer to each other. For example, the Dvaitanirnaya of Vācaspati (p. 102 in the Śāstramālā Series of Benares) mentions Śrāddhavivekamata. On the other hand, in the Rāsayātrāvivēka (which appears to be his last work) Śūlapāṇi mentions the Tīrtha-cintāmaṇi of Vācaspatimiśra.¹²⁶⁰

At least thirteen Vivekas are known viz. Ekidaśī, Tithi, Dattaka, Durgotsava, Dolayātrā, Pratiṣṭhā, Prāyaścitta, Rāsayātrā, Vratākāla, Śuddhi, Śrāddha, Saṅkrānti, Sambandha. The Vratākālaviveka is published by Prof. S. C. Banerji in I. H. Q. Vol. 17 for 1941 (appendix pp. 1-24, based on seven mss.). It mentions the Tithiviveka as already composed (p. 11) and also Pratiṣṭhāvivēka (p. 24). He makes remarks on Vratas in general and then deals with individual vratas. It differs from the Vratatattva of Raghunandana (vol. II. pp. 151-161) in that Raghunandana deals with the characteristics and rites of Vratas in general. For a short work (as the Vratākālaviveka is) Śūlapāṇi mentions a large number of authorities; many Purāṇas are relied upon as much as Smṛti works and writers.

The Tithiviveka¹²⁶¹ of Śūlapāṇi was edited by Prof. of S. C. Banerji in P. O. Vol. VI. pp. 230-38, Vol. VII. pp. 8, 95-103. It is very brief, the text based on two mss. covering about 12 pages. It mentions that the Śrāddhaviveka had been written before it. The object is to resolve the doubts caused by different views in the authoritative works. Relying on two verses 1260 Vide Rāsayātrāvivēka p. 115 of Dr. S. C. Banerji's edition in the Sanskrit Sāhitya-pariṣad-patrikā, Calcutta, for October 1941 which has the following statement : तीर्थचिन्तामणौ वाचस्पतिमिश्रेणाभिहितं तद्वेद्यमेव । p. 161 of B. I. Edition of तीर्थचिन्तामणि.

1261 The first verse of Tithivrataviveka is : वचनद्वैधसञ्जातसंशयच्छिदुरः सताम् । तनोतु मुदमत्युच्चैर्द्विखण्डतिथिनिर्णयः ॥

of Devala (quoted below)¹²⁶² he appears to lay down the propositions that in a rite to be performed for worship of gods, find out whether the tithi required exists at sunrise (and it does not matter if it does not exist later) and in rites in honour of pitṛs (manes) find out the tithi that exists at sunset and perform the rite on it. Dr. J. B. Chaudhuri edited the Tithi-viveka (Calcutta 1964) with the commentary called Tātparyā-dīpikā by Śrīnātha-ācārya-cūdāmaṇi, son of mahāmahopādhyāya Śrīkara and guru of Raghunandana Bhaṭṭācārya.

A work called ' Caturāṅgadīpikā ' (manual of fourhanded chess) composed by Śūlapāṇi was edited by Mr. Mano Mohan Ghosh in 1936 with an Introduction, Sanskrit text (pp. 1-24), English tr. (32 pages), Index of important words, proper names and general index (pp. 33-36). It is mentioned by Raghunandana in (vol. I.) Tithitattva pp. 137-139. Vide Prof. S. K. Chatterji felicitation volume pp. 267-275 for Lexicographical notes on this work by Prof. E. D. Kulkarni.

Four works of Śūlapāṇi are very famous viz. the Dīpakalikā, Prāyaścittaviveka, Durgotsavaviveka and the Śrāddhaviveka. Unfortunately the last two works are not yet printed in Devanāgarī script. The Durgotsavaviveka has been published by the Sanskrit Sahitya Pariṣad of Calcutta in Bengali script and the Śrāddhaviveka has similarly been published in the Bengali script by M. M. Candicarana Smṛtibhūṣaṇa of Calcutta.

Śūlapāṇi is mentioned with great respect by Raghunandana not only by the addition of titles like Mahāmahopādhyāya but by referring to him in the plural as in (vol. I. Tithi p. 90, Prāyaścittavivekakṛtām mate tu) and in Vol. II. Ekādaśī p. 15 (Prāyaścittavivekakṛdbhir-uktam).

Śūlapāṇi gives hardly any information about himself.¹²⁶³ In the colophons of his works he is styled Mahāmahopādhyāya and also Sāhuḍiyān or Sāhuḍiyāla or Sāhuḍiyā (in a ms. of the Dīpakalikā). What this last means is not clear. It is possible that he came from some place called Sāhuḍi. There is hardly any reliable evidence to establish that the Sāhuḍiyā was a degraded section of the Rādhīya brāhmaṇas in Bengal from the time of Ballālasena. I understand from Bengali friends that in these days also the surname Sāhuḍiyān is extant among the śrotriya brāhmaṇas of the Rādhīya group in Bengal. Raghunandana (a great Bengali writer) often refers to him as Mahāmahopādhyāya (vide pp. 827-28 above).

1263 Vide J. A. S. B. for 1915 Vol. XI. pp. 311 and 336-43 for information about Śūlapāṇi by Rai Bahadur M. M. Chkravarti.

There are several commentaries on the Śrāddhaviveka such as those of (1) Śrīnātha-Ācāryacūḍamaṇi, son of Śrīkara and Guru of Raghunandana; (2) Acyuta Cakravartin; (3) Govindānanda; (4) Śrīkṛṣṇa (printed in Bengali type); (5) Nīlakaṇṭha; (6) Jagadīśa; (7) Rāmākṛṣṇa. Some commentaries on the Prāyaścittaviveka also exist. Besides, the Tattavārthakaumudī of Govindānanda (already referred to on p. 828) there is a commentary called Kaumudī or tippaṇi by Rāmākṛṣṇa and another com. called Nigūḍhārthaprakāśikā.

As Śūlapāṇi names the Ratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara and Kālamādhaviya, he must be later than about 1365 A. D., since some time must have elapsed before a work from Vijayanagara came to be regarded as an authority in Bengal. As Śūlapāṇi's works

Śrīnātha-Ācāryacūḍamaṇi appears to be mentioned as Ācāryacūḍamaṇi along with other authors by Raghunandana in Vol. II. Yajurvedaṣṭotsargatattva p. 640. Raghunandana refers to his guru's views under the caption 'guru-caraṇāḥ' in a few places e. g. vol. I. (Tithi pp. 31, 85, Mala p. 719, 815, Saṁskāra p. 873); vol. II, Ekādaśī p. 103. Śrīnātha composed several works and commentaries ending in the words अर्णव, चन्द्रिका, दीपिका, विवेक. For information about Śrīnātha, vide I. H. Q. Vol. 26 pp. 277-292 (by Dr. S. C. Banerji), A. B. O. R. I. Vol. 32 (1952) pp. 34-52, by Prof. Hazra. Rai Bahadur Chakravarti furnishes a good account about his commentaries and works in J. A. S. B. (new series) Vol. XI. pp. 344-349. Śrīnātha wrote two works on Śrāddha viz. Śrāddhacandrikā (Smṛtitattva, Vol. II. pp. 493 and 500) and Śrāddhadīpikā (Smṛtitattva, Vol. II. p. 488).

are mentioned by Rudradhara, Govindānanda and Vācaspati, the former must be earlier than about 1460. In this connection it has to be noted that Govindānanda not only comments upon Śūlapāṇi's works but probably looks upon Śūlapāṇi as an old writer along with Aniruddha.¹²⁶³

A ms. of the Prāyaścittaviveka was copied at Benares in śake 1410 (i. e. 1481 A. D.).¹²⁶⁴ Ms. No. 10849 of the Prāyaścittaviveka in the Baroda Oriental Institute's Library was copied in Vikrama year 1501 Māgha (i. e. about February 1445 A. D.). The post-colophon entry in that ms. is set out below.¹²⁶⁵ From all these data it follows that Śūlapāṇi flourished between 1365 and 1445 A. D.

Dr. Hazra in A. B. O. R. I. Vol. 32 (for 1951) in note on p. 46 says that Śūlapāṇi's Tithiviveka and Śrāddhaviveka are mentioned by Rāyamukūṭa in the Smṛtiratnahāra which was composed before Rāyamukūṭa's commentary on the Amarakośa and that commentary was begun in 1431–32 A. D. But in I. H. Q. vol. 17 (pp. 456–471) it is pointed out by Prof. Dineshchandra Bhattacharya at p. 468 that the Ṭikā on the Amarakośa was composed in Śake 1396 i. e. 1447–75 A. D. and not in śake 1353 (which was mentioned incidentally in the ms. and was taken by Colebrooke and later scholars as the date of composition). Further contributions on the same subject appear in I. H. Q. vol. 18. pp. 215–224 against Prof. Bhattacharya, to which the latter replies in I. H. Q. vol. 19 pp. 182–190, to which Ahmed Hasan (the writer of the paper in I. H. Q. vol. 18) gives a rejoinder in I. H. Q. vol. 30 pp. 261–270. I cannot go here in these controversies. It has to be remembered that the fragment of Smṛtiratnākara refers to the Śrāddhaviveka about three dozen of times. I agree with Prof. Bhattacharya's view. So even the dates proposed in the first edition (1375–1460

A. D.) for Śūlapāṇi were not altogether wide of the real date. In this edition an attempt has been made to advance somewhat more definite dates for Śūlapāṇi, that is all.

It appears that Śūlapāṇi, Rudradhara and Vācaspati were more or less contemporaries of one another. Rudradhara mentions on p. 50 (of his Śrāddhaviveka) ‘ Gaudīya-Śrāddhaviveka ’.

99. Rudradhara

This is a well-known Maithila writer on Dharmaśāstra, who composed several works. His Śuddhi-viveka has been published several times (at Benares in 1866, in 1878, and by the Veṅkaṭeśvara Press in Bombay, saṁvat 1978). That work is divided into three paricchedas and deals with purification from impurity on birth and death, the persons liable to undergo purifications, the meaning of the word putra, purification of the body and of various substances when polluted, purification of cooked food and water and women in their menses. He tells us that after¹²⁶⁶ having examined seven works (nibandhas) on śuddhi and being encouraged by his father and brother he composed the Śuddhiviveka. He further says that he made the effort for the benefit of those who were not disposed to go through such works as the Ratnākara, Pārijāta, Mitākṣarā and the Hāralatā.¹²⁶⁷ Besides these he mentions the Ācārādarśa, Śuddhipradīpa, Śuddhi-bimba, Śrīdattopādhyāya, Smṛtisāra and Harihara.

The Śrāddhaviveka of Rudradhara is the most famous of his works. (It was printed in the Kashi Sanskrit Series in saṁvat 1993 (i. e. 1936-7 A. D.) and the page references are made to that edition). The work is divided into four paricchedas. He first defines śrāddha, and then treats of several topics, viz. the varieties of śrāddha, the procedure at śrāddhas, the mantras that are recited, the proper time and place for śrāddhas, the Brāhmaṇas worthy to be invited at śrāddha and the proper food etc. Among the numerous works and authors referred to in the work the undermentioned ones deserve notice.¹²⁶⁸ He refers to his own Śuddhiviveka as already written (p. 48). Several Purāṇas are mentioned such as the Devīpurāṇa (pp. 14-15, 32), Brahma-purāṇa (several times and 7 verses from it are quoted on p. 33), Matsyapurāṇa (p. 37 five verses quoted), Vāyu (p. 37).

In several places he tells us that he follows a different tradition on certain matters from that of the Pitr̥bhakti or of the Sugatisopāna. He points out that the prasātikā is a kind of grain known in Madhyadeśa as Śāṭhīlā.¹²⁶⁹

For his Vratapaddhati, vide Mitra's Notices, vol. VI, p. 15, No. 1995. He says that he was urged by his brother's advice to write the work and that he follows the Samayapradīpa.¹²⁷⁰ From the colophon to the Śuddhiviveka it appears that Rudradhara's father's name was Lakṣmīdhara and his elder brother's name was Haladhara.

Another work of his is the Varṣakṛtya which deals with festivals and fasts.

He was the son of Mahāmahopādhyāya Lakṣmīdhara and youngest brother of Haladhara. His works are quoted by 1268 In Śrāddhahiveka he quotes the following works :

कल्पतरु, गोभिलगृह्यभाष्य (p. 29), छन्दोगपरिशिष्टभाष्य, पारिजात (pp. 13, 50), पितृभक्ति (styled प्राचीन on p. 13 and quoted several times on pp. 3, 13, 14, 15, 24), भोजराज (6 verses from Jyotiṣa on p. 37), पारस्करगृह्यसूत्रपद्धति (p. 19), मुजबलभीम (p. 16), महार्णव, रत्नाकर (p. 30), श्राद्धकल्प (pp. 13, 24, 29), श्राद्धपञ्जी (p. 29), श्राद्धप्रदीप (p. 45), श्राद्धपल्लव (pp. 14, 16, 45), श्राद्धविवेक (गौडीय p. 50), श्रीदत्तोपाध्याय (p. 24 as author of पितृभक्ति and श्राद्धकल्प), सुगतिसोपान (pp. 20, 78), स्मृतिसार (pp. 48, 50), हलायुधनिबन्ध (pp. 12, 13).

Vācaspati in his Dvaitayanirṇaya, by Govindānanda in the Śrāddha-kriyākaumudī, by Raghunandana (as in vol. I, Tithitattva pp. 136, 137, 186, Śrāddhatattva p. 226, Prāyaścitta p. 542 ; vol. II. Śuddhitattva pp. 265, 272), in several of his tattvas, by Kamalākara and Nīlakaṇṭha.

As Rudradhara mentions the Ratnākara, the Smṛtisāra, Śrīdattopādhyāya and the Śrāddhaviveka of Śūlapāṇi, he is certainly later than 1425 A. D. A ms. of his Vratapaddhati is dated in Lakṣmaṇa saṃvat 344 i. e. 1463 A. D.¹²⁷¹ Besides he is quoted by Vācaspati and Govindānanda. Therefore he must have flourished between 1425 and 1460 A. D.

Raghunandana several times mentions Rudradhara in his Smṛtitattva viz. (in vol. I), Tithi pp. 136–137 (on Kojāgara Paurṇimā), p. 186 (Kuberapūjā), Śrāddha p. 226, Prāyas. p. 542 ; (in vol. II) Śuddhi pp. 265 (criticized), 272, 471. Vide M. M. Chakravarti in JASB vol. XI (1915) pp. 404–405 for some information on Rudradhara.

The Rudradhara who was a pupil of Caṇḍeśvara and author of the Kṛtyacandrikā, the Vivādacandrikā and the Śrāddha-candrikā appears to be a different author.

100. Misarumiśra

Misarumiśra is famous for his works called Vivādacandra and Padārtha-candrikā (on the Nyāya-Vaiśeṣika system). There is a ms. of the Vivādacandra in the Deccan College (No. 57 of 1883–84). That work deals with the titles of Law (vyavahāra-padas) such as ṛṇādāna (recovery of debt), nyāsa (deposit), asvāmivikraya, sambhūya-samutthāna (partnership), dāyavibhāga, strīdhana ; and then with procedure, viz. the plaint, reply, pramāṇas, witnesses, possession etc. It frequently quotes the Ratnākara (on vivāda and vyavahāra) of Caṇḍeśvara and several times criticizes him. Besides numerous smṛti writers the other authors and works named are : Pārijāta, Prakāśa, Bālarūpa (often), Bhavadeva and Smṛtisāra (frequently).

1271 Vide M. M. Haraprasad Sastri's Cat. of palm-leaf and paper Nepal mss. XIII and p. 73.

In the mss. and colophons the name of the author seems to be Misarūmiśra.¹²⁷² He tells us that he wrote the work under the orders of princess Lachimādevī, wife of prince Candrasimha who appears to have been the younger brother of Bhairavasimhadeva of the Kāmeśvara dynasty of Mithilā. The work was probably called Vivādacandra to connect it with the prince Candrasimha. The Vivādacandra first¹²⁷³ speaks of king Bhaveśa of the Kāmeśvara dynasty, then of his son Harisimhadeva, then of his son Darpanārāyaṇa and the latter's queen Hīrā or Dhīra and then of Candrasimha and his queen Lakhimā or Lachimā. We saw above that Caṇḍeśvara who had weighed himself against gold in 1314 A. D. wrote in his old age under Bhaveśa his work on Rājanīti. Lachimādevī was queen of the great-grandson of this Bhaveśa, who became king of Tirhut in the third quarter of the 14th century. Therefore Candrasimha must have flourished about the middle of the 15th century and Misarumiśra's work must be assigned to that period. M. M. Chakravarti points out (JASB for 1915, p. 425) that for Dhīrasimha, a son of Darpanārāyaṇa, there is an authentic date, viz. 321 of the Lakṣmaṇasena era in Tirhut (i. e. 1438 A. D.), when a ms. of Śrīnivāsa's Setudarpanī (com. on Setubandha) was copied during Dhīrasimha's reign. It appears that Misarumiśra was closely related to Lakhimādevī, who was the daughter of Misarumiśra's sister.

That the Vivādacandra is a work of authority on Hindu Law in Mithilā has been recognised from very early days in the British courts.¹²⁷⁴ The Vivādacandra held that the word strīdhana was to be applied to such woman's property as was technically

101. Vācaspatimiśra

Vācaspatimiśra is the foremost nibandha writer on Smṛti in Mithilā. His Vivādacintāmaṇi had been recognised by the High Courts in India and by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council as a work of paramount authority on matters of Hindu Law in Mithilā.¹²⁷⁶ His literary activity was closely connected with the reigns of two kings of Mithilā, viz. Bhairavendra or Bhairavasimha (also styled Harinārāyana) and his son Rāma-bhadra (called also Rūpanārāyana), both of the Kāmeśvara dynasty. Vācaspati was an extremely voluminous writer and appears to have composed dozens of works. In the Śrāddhakapla alias Piṭṛbhakti-taraṅgiṇī, almost his latest work, he says that he wrote in his youth ten works on śāstra and thirty nibandhas on smṛti and composed the work in question in his declining years.¹²⁷⁷ At least eleven works of his bearing the title 'cintāmaṇi' are known. They are briefly noticed below.

The Ācāracintāmaṇi deals with the daily rites of Vājasaneyins.¹²⁷⁸ The Ācāracintāmaṇi is mentioned by Raghu.* (in vol. I)

Dr. Rocher (in Preface to Vyavahāracintāmaṇi (pp. 8-11) brings together all works ascribed to Vācaspatimiśra and points out how doubts have been entertained about authorship of some of them. It is not necessary nor possible (for reasons of space) to go into the question of the authorship of some of the works brought together by him. One instance may suffice to show the difficulties of the task. M. M. Chakravarti held in JASB (vol. XI N. S. for 1915 p. 398) that the work called Candana-dhenu-pramāṇa was a work of Vācaspati-miśra, but Prof. D. C. Bhattacharya holds in vol. IV. of J. G. J. R. I. (pp. 295-312) that it is a work of another Vācaspati (i. e. of Candrasekhara Smṛti-Vācaspati).

Tithi p. 24, Āhnika p. 407 (for the 16 upacāras); (in vol. II), Maṭhapraṭiṣṭhā 616; and Āhnikacintāmaṇi is mentioned in vol. I p. 357 and vol. II p. 58 Ekādaśī (for 36 upacāras in Devapūjā). The Āhnikacintāmaṇi is quoted in his Śuddhicintāmaṇi. The Kṛtyacintāmaṇi was published in Bengali characters at Benares in śake 1814 (vide JASB. for 1915, p. 395) and deals with the festivals that are celebrated on different days in the year. The Tīrthacintāmaṇi has been published in the B. I. Series. It is divided into five prakāśas, viz. Prayāga, Puruṣottama (Purī), Gaṅgā, Gayā and Vārāṇasī and deals with such topics as the purpose of pilgrimages, the preliminaries of pilgrimage, the various rites to be performed at the several tīrthas, the subsidiary sacred places at the principal tīrthas etc. He mentions the Kalpataru, Gaṇeśvaramiśra, Jayaśarmā, the Mitākṣarā, Smṛti-samuccaya and Hemādri. In the introduction he explicitly states that he composed the work after carefully examining the Kṛtyakalpadruma and Pārijāta, the Ratnākara and other works.¹²⁷⁹ The Dvaitacintāmaṇi is mentioned in his Kṛtyacintāmaṇi. The Nīticintāmaṇi is mentioned in the Vivādacintāmaṇi (p. 72). The Vivādacintāmaṇi (text) was published at Calcutta in 1837 (which edition is used in this work) and was translated into English by Prasannakumar Tagore (in 1863) with a learned preface. A translation into English of the Vivādacintāmaṇi made by Dr. Ganganath Jha, with an Introduction by Dr. Umesha Mishra, was published in the Gaikwad's Oriental Series (Baroda) in 1942. The Vivādacintāmaṇi was elaborately examined by the Patna High Court in I. L. R. 12 Patna 359-616 at pp. 420-538 which examined passages of the Vivādacintāmaṇi (from two editions of that work viz. one published in 1837 and another published by the Venkateshwar Press, Bombay in 1898). It explicitly states that the author carefully studied the Kṛtyakalpadruma, Pārijāta and Ratnākara.¹²⁸⁰ The work deals exhaustively with the eighteen titles of law (vṛvāhārapadas). The principal authors and works, besides the usual smṛtis and Purāṇas, mentioned in the work are noted below.¹²⁸¹ In this work he mentions several vernacular equivalents for Sanskrit terms. The Vyavahāracintāmaṇi¹²⁸² deals with judicial procedure, viz. the four principal topics thereof, viz. bhāṣā (the plaint), uttara (reply of defendant), kriyā (evidence), nirṇaya (decision). An excellent edition of the Vyavahāracintāmaṇi was published at Ghent in 1956 by Dr. Ludo Rocher, based on seven mss., with an English translation and several appendices giving the first words of the verses (quoted), the authors quoted or referred to, the passages where the Vyavahāra-cintāmaṇi has been expressly referred to and a glossary of technical terms. The Śuddhicintāmaṇi was printed at Benares in Bengali characters in śake 1814 (JASB for 1915. p. 396 n 2). The Śudrācārācintāmaṇi deals with the duties of śūdras (Mitra's Notices, vol. VI, p. 22, No. 2001). The Śrāddhacintāmaṇi is a standard work and was printed at Benares in Bengali characters in śake 1814. The Vivāda-cintāmaṇi (p. 151, ed. of 1837) states that all persons that are sonless have been dealt with at length in Śrāddha-c. and are therefore not dealt with by him in Vivāda-c.

1282 भाषोत्तरक्रियापादा निर्णयः सोपदेशकः । चतुष्पात्तत्त्वविषयो व्यवहारो निरूप्यते ॥ I. O. Cat. p. 417 No. 1400.

Besides the works and authors enumerated in the foot-note above, the others mentioned by him in his several Cintāmaṇis are noted below.¹²⁸³

Besides these there is a group of Vācaspati's works with the title 'Nirṇaya' on Tithi, Dvaita, Mahādāna, Vivāda, Śuddhi and some miscellaneous works under the headings 'Mahārṇava'; only one of which viz. Kṛtyamahārṇava was a large one, the rest being small; vide M. M. Chakravarti in JASB vol. XI (1915) pp. 398-99. The Tithinirṇaya¹²⁸⁴ starts with an invocation of the highest Being (paramātmān) while most of his works are begun with an obeisance to Hari or Kṛṣṇa. It first divides tithis into śuddhā and viddhā (commingled with another tithi) and then discusses all the tithis from the first to the fifteenth and also amāvāsyā; it deals with the questions as to the rites of that tithi which is kṣaya, with śivarātrivrata, naktavrata, holidays, fasts, jayantivrata, holikā festival etc.

The Dvaitanirṇaya of Vācaspatimiśra is one of his famous works. It has been published in the Śāstramālā Series of Benares in the year 1994 of Vikrama era (i. e. 1937-38 A. D.) and contains 105 closely printed pages. Its very name suggests that it states definite conclusions on some matters of Dharmaśāstra on which there are differences of opinion. There are twelve introductory verses. The first verse praises Kṛṣṇa and identifies him with brahman. Verses 2-6 praise King Bhairavendra of Mithilā and his queen Jayā who was the mother of king Puruṣottama, state that she assigned this task to him (v. 7) and verses 8-10 praise her as having dedicated many parks, got many reservoirs of water to be dug and made munificent gifts. For a work of 105 pages, it quotes numerous authors and works. It is impossible to convey in a few words its method of dealing with points of difference discussed by it. Two easy examples may be cited. A text says about naming a child (nāmakaraṇa) 'the father should on the 11th or 12th day give a name to the child'. This does not mean that there is an option, viz. that the father may choose at his sweet will any of the two days. An option like this is liable to have eight faults, according to mīmāṃsā rules (for which see H. of Dh. vol. V. pp. 1250-52). The real meaning is that nāmakaraṇa should be done as a rule on the 11th day after birth, but if that is impossible for some reason, then it should be done on the 12th day after birth. Most of the differences relate to religious rites. An instance of an ordinary transaction may be cited here. Manu (VIII. 151) states that when money is lent at interest the lender cannot recover more than double of what is lent when he demands the sum lent and the interest thereon at one time, but in VIII. 142 Manu says that the lender may take as interest on money lent at 2, 3, 4 or 5 per cent per month according to the varṇa of the borrower. The conclusion is that if interest is demanded only once it cannot exceed the dāmdupaṭ rule but if interest is taken month by month, the total interest received may be so much that the lender may have received in all much more than double the amount.

- 1285 अथर्ववेद, आचारचन्द्र, आचारपारिजात, कर्क, कल्पतरु, कात्यायनश्रौत, कात्यायन-स्मृति, कामधेनु, काशीखण्ड, गर्भोपनिषद्, गुरु (प्रभाकर), गोभिल, गौतमधर्मसूत्र, छन्दोगपरिशिष्ट, जैमिनि, तिथिनिर्णय, तीर्थचिन्तामणि, त्रैलोक्यसार, दक्ष, दानरत्नाकर, नारदस्मृति, न्यायरत्न, पञ्चशारदीय, पराशर, परिभाषा, पल्लव, पारस्कर, पारिजात, पितृभक्ति, पुराणानि, (आदि, आदित्य, कालिका, गरुड, नन्दि, नरसिंह, ब्रह्म, भविष्य, मत्स्य, मार्कण्डेय, वराह, विष्णु, स्कन्द), प्रतिहस्तक (57, 69, 81, 93), प्रदीप, प्रकाश, प्राभाकर, प्रायश्चित्तचिन्तामणि, बह्वचपद्धति, बह्वचपरिशिष्ट, बृहस्पति, ब्रह्मचारिकाण्ड, भगवद्गीता, भवदेव, भास्कराचार्य,

For a detailed treatment of the Mahādānas based on the Purāṇas vide the author's H. of Dh. vol. II pp. 869-877, where it is shown that Tulāpuruṣa (weighing a person against gold or silver and donating the metals to worthy brāhmaṇas) is the first. The Mahādānanirṇaya¹²⁸⁶ expatiates on the sixteen munificent gifts such as weighing against gold and silver. In the introductory verses Vācaspati gives the genealogy of his patron's family from Bhaveśa, whose son was Harasimhadeva, whose son was Narasimha, whose son Bhairavendra bore the biruda (appellation) Harinārāyaṇa. A verse¹²⁸⁷ at the beginning and one at the end attribute the work to Bhairavendra and to Rūpanārāyaṇa respectively. Rūpa-nārāyaṇa was the biruda of Rāmabhadra, a son of Bhairavendra. Therefore it looks probable that the work was commenced in the reign of Bhairava and was completed in the reign of his son Rāmabhadra. The Mahādānanirṇaya of Vācaspati is expressly named in (vol. I), Tithitattva p. 99, in Āhnika p. 420 and in (vol. II) Śuddhi, p. 241. M. M. Chakravarti says that Bhairava himself bore at one time the biruda Rūpanārāyaṇa. M. M. Haraprasad Sastri (Nepal Cat. p. 90) mentions a Vivādanirṇaya of Vācaspati. It appears probable that the Śuddhinirṇaya is the same as Śuddhi-cintāmaṇi and people were misled. The opening verse of the Śuddhicintāmaṇi published at Benares in Bengali characters over seventy years ago ends with the words 'Śuddhinirṇaya ucyate'. The Śuddhinirṇaya of Vācaspati deals with impurity, on birth and death, the religious acts that must be performed even in times of impurity, sapinda relationship, periods of impurity for the principal varṇas and mixed castes; periods of impurity on abortion, the deaths of infants and women, accidental deaths etc., overlapping of several periods of āśauca; impurity arising from carrying a corpse; rites after the death of a saṃyāsī; impurity from contact of lower castes, such as washermen and cāṇḍālās, freedom from impurity at tīrthas and marriages etc.

It may be noticed that many of his works run in pairs e. g. Dvaita-ci° and Dvaitanirṇaya, Śuddhi-ci° and Śuddhi-ni°, Vivāda-ci° and Vivāda-ni°. Why it was necessary to do so is not clear.

Besides these, Vācaspati appears to have either composed or contemplated writing seven works called Mahārṇava on kṛtya, ācāra, vivāda, vyavahāra, dāna, śuddhi and pitṛyajña. Of these the Kṛtyamahārṇava is found and deals with festivals and fasts and the proper times therefor (vide JASB for 1915, p. 398). The Kṛtyamahārṇava is mentioned by Raghu° in (vol. I) Tithi pp. 82, 103 and in (vol. II) Ekādaśī pp. 17, 46. He also wrote the Gayāśrāddhapaddhati, and the Dattakavidhi. Probably his last work, as stated above, was the Śrāddhakalpa alias Pitṛbhakti-taraṅgiṇī.

Apart from the works on dharmaśāstra, Vācaspati wrote also on the systems of philosophy. But those interested may refer to Prof. Dineshchandra Bhattacharya's paper on 'Vācaspatimisra's Nyāya Works' in vol. 4 of J. G. J. R. I. pp. 294-312. But it is not necessary for our purpose to go into that question.

Many of the works of Vācaspati are mentioned by Raghunandana in his Tattvas. The Ācāra-C. is mentioned in (Vol. I) Tithi p. 24, Āhnika 407 and in (vol. II) Maṭha (616); Āhnika-C. is mentioned in vol. I, Āhnika 357, (vol. II) Ekādaśī 58 (on 36 upacāras in devapūjā); Kṛtya-C. (in vol. I) Tithi 36, 44, 140, 142, 149, Srāddha 282; Jyotiś 583, 594, 605, 606; Saṃskāra 920; (in vol. I) Kṛtya-C. in 426, 473; Tīrtha-C. (in Vol. I) Prāyas. 500, 503; Mala 810; in (Vol. II) Śuddhi 300; Vivāda-C.

in vol. I, Prāyaś. 514; in (Vol. II) Udvāha 136, Dāya 176, Śuddhi 350, 357; Vyavahāra-C. in (Vol. II) Prāyaścitta p. 474, 512 (same verse in both which occurs on p. 139 of Dr. Rocher's ed.); Dvaitanirṇaya (very often cited sometimes criticized or rejected) p. 42, Tithi (cr.) 166, Śrāddha 256, Jyotistattva 607, Mala. 753, 794 (cr.), 802, 826; in (vol. II) Ekā. 42, 43, 91; Śuddhi 236, 282, 372; Chandogaviṣotsarga. 529; Śrāddha-C. (at least 20 times), in Tithi 20, 39, 118, 179; Śrāddha 192, 240, 258, 263, 278, 288, 290, 305, Prāyaś. 475, Malamāsa 753, 814, 844; (vol. II) Udvāha 132, Śuddhi 306, 327; Śūdrakṛtyavicāraṇa 634. The Śrāddhakalpa or Pitr̥bhakti-taraṅgiṇī is frequently quoted as in (vol. I) Tithi 181, Śrāddha 209 (Śrāddhakalpa), 229 (Pitr̥.), Śuddhi 237. (The letter p. for page is omitted in this paragraph).

Vācaspati vouchsafes very little information about himself or his family. In the colophons of his works he is generally styled mahāmahopādhyāya and miśra or sanmiśra. In the colophon of the *Śūdrācāra-cintāmaṇi*¹²⁸⁸ he is described as the pariṣad (the adviser of the king in finally deciding difficult points of Dharmaśāstra) of Mahārājādhirāja Harinārāyaṇa. We saw above that his Mahādānanirṇaya connects itself with two kings Bhairava and his son Rūpanārāyaṇa. At the end of the Śrāddhakalpa we are told that Vācaspati who was the pariṣad of Rāmabhadradeva alias Rūpanārāyaṇa, son of Harinārāyaṇa, composed the work at

In the Pitr̥bhakti-taraṅgiṇī (also called Śrāddhakalpa) also he is styled Pariṣad of king Rāmabhadra. Dr. S. C. Banerji states (in I. H. Q. Vol. 32 for 1956 pp. 386-392) that he found a single ms. of Sambandha-cintāmaṇi with a Pandit in East Bengal (the ms. being corrupt in some portions). It begins with the verse of Manu (III. 5, asapiṇḍā ca.), cites Yāj. I. 52 and Manu. V. 60 and other passages usually quoted in treatises on "Sambandha". It is incomplete and is ascribed to Vācaspati at the end. It contains only 4½ pages in print. I am not inclined to accept it as a work of the great Maithila writer and I think it is possible, that somebody copying from others or trying his hand at writing a tractate on Sambandha, wanted to pass it off as Vācaspati's.

the bidding of his patron.¹²⁸⁹ Varadhamāna in his Daṇḍaviveka says that one of his gurus was Vācaspati.¹²⁹⁰ It is probable that it is this Vācaspati that is meant. But as against this we must remember that Vācaspati in his Śrāddhakalpa quotes Vardhamāna Upādhyāya on śrāddha. Vardhamāna wrote his Daṇḍaviveka while king Bhairava was reigning and his Gaṅgākṛtyaviveka for Rāmabhadradeva. So Vācaspati was an elder contemporary of Vardhamāna.

Prasannakumar Tagore assigned 1423 A. D. as the time of the Vivādacintāmaṇi (vide preface p. xxviii). Ghose in his Hindu Law (vol. II. p. xiv) says that Vācaspati wrote the Śrāddhacintāmaṇi by order of queen Jayā, widow of king Bhairavadeva and mother of Puruṣottamadeva,¹²⁹¹ that Harinārāyaṇa

(i. e. Bhairava) ruled from 1513 to 1527 and that the latter was killed by Nasratshah, the Pathan king of Bengal. M. M. Chakravarti holds that the literary activity of Vācaspati lay between 1450 to 1480 A. D. (Vide JASB Vol. XI (N. S.) for 1915 on p. 400). Since Vācaspati mentions the Ratnākara (of Candēśvara) and Rudradhara as his authorities he must be later than about 1425 A. D. Vācaspati's works are quoted by Govindānanda and Raghunandana. Therefore Vācaspati is certainly earlier than 1540 A. D. The ms. of the Mahādānanirṇaya found in Nepal is dated in 392 of the Lakṣmanasena era (Monday of Vaiśākha, dark half, 12th tithi i. e. 22nd April 1511 A. D.). The ms. of the Śuddhinirṇaya (Mitra's Notices vol. X. p. 58, No. 3308) was copied in saṃvat 1416, which must in this particular case, be taken as equivalent to śake 1416 i. e. 1494–95 A. D., since Vācaspati could not have flourished about 1360 A. D. (which corresponds to Vikrama saṃvat 1416). Hence the period assigned by Chakravarti for the literary activity of Vācaspati appears to be correct. That date is further corroborated by the fact that Vācaspati wrote under Bhairavendra and his son Rāmabhadradeva, that were 4th and 5th in descent from king Bhaveśa of Mithilā, who, as we saw above, began to rule over Mithilā in the third quarter of the 14th century. Vide M. M. Chakravarti in JASB Vol. XI (New Series) pp. 394–400 for information on Vācaspati.

This Vācaspati, who flourished in Mithilā in the latter half of the fifteenth century, is very often confounded with other authors bearing the same name. The great philosopher Vācaspati, who was author of the Bhāmātī on the Śārirakabhāṣya of Śaṅkara and of several other commentaries on other systems of philosophy, flourished in the first half of the 9th century as he wrote his Nyāyasūcinibandha in 898 (most probably of the Vikrama era).¹²⁹² There was another (Candraśekhara) Vācaspati who wrote the Smṛtisārasaṃgraha (Cat. of Calcutta San. College mss. vol. II, p. 181, No. 203) and flourished in the first half of the 18th century.

Raghunandana, the foremost medieval Nibandhakāra of Bengal on Dharmaśāstra is conspicuous for his strong and frequent criticism of Vācaspati and Maithila writers. He often discusses the views of Vācaspati and in a large number of cases states that what Vācaspati says should be given up or not followed (heyam) or that what Vācaspati says has been rejected or shown to be wrong (nirastam). The present author will first mention a large number of cases by references to the pages of the Smṛtitattva of Raghu. where those words (heyam) or 'nirastam' or 'apāstam' are used about Vācaspati. (A) Important cases where the words 'heyam or nirastam' have been used are : (vol. I). Tithi p. 20; Śrāddha 224, 258, 275, 289, 294; Malamāsa 790, 794, 799, 816, 829, 854; (vol. II) Śuddhi 292, 306; Yajurvedi-Śrāddha 502. Once the word 'Pramāṇa-sūnyam' is used in vol. II Yajurvediśrāddha p. 488. Sometimes the criticism is a little milder viz. when phrases like 'mā evam' (in Tithi 20 or Śrāddha 288) or 'tad-ayuktam' (Śrāddha 290) are employed. The present author has not collected such cases. Then in many cases Raghu lumps together Maithila writers on certain topics and remarks that their views are 'heya' or 'nirasta' or 'apāsta'. The words 'Maithiloktam' heyam or 'nirastam') are also frequently employed by Raghunandana. What authors are included in those words it is difficult to say. Candēśvara, Śrīdatta, Rudradhara, Misarumiśra and Vardhamāna are all Maithila writers and there are several others less famous Mithilā writers. A few cases of the words 'Maithiloktam heyam' or 'nirastam' or 'apāstam' are mentioned here; (in vol. I) Tithi 9, 168 (apāstam); Śrāddha 207, 246, 274, 292 308 and 315 (nirastam), 341; Malamāsa 804, (vol. II) Śuddhi pp. 316, 332 (Maithilānām Vākya-racanā heyā). The difficulty of modern readers is that most of the works of Vācaspatimiśra and Vardhamāna are not yet available in print and they are not in a position to consider the fairness or otherwise of Raghunandana's criticisms. The words generally used are either वाचस्पति-मिश्रोक्तं or simply मिश्रोक्तम् or rarely refer to the name of the work (e. g. 'द्वैतनिर्णयोक्तं हेयं' as in Malamāsa. p. 794).

102. Daṇḍaviveka of Vardhamāna

In the first edition of this History, Vardhamāna was not dealt with, because none of his works was then available to me in print. His Daṇḍaviveka was first published in 1931 in the Gaikwad Oriental Series (Baroda) edited by Mahāmahopā-dhyāya Kamalakṛṣṇa Smṛtītīrtha of Bhatpara in West Bengal with an exhaustive Introduction in English and a brief one in Sanskrit.

The work deserves special mention in this history since it is probably the only extensive extant Sanskrit work (in 356 pages) on the law of crimes and punishments alone.

Smṛtis like those of Manu and Yājñavalkya deal with crimes and punishments, but the treatment is brief and mixed up with other matters. For example, Manu VIII. 20 (= Śāntiparva 15. 30) states that if the king were not vigilant in awarding punishment to those who deserve to be punished, the strong would devour the weak and further the king properly awarding punishments becomes endowed with the three goals of life viz. dharma, artha and kāma (Manu VII. 27, Śāntiparva 121. 10). Kauṭilya (in I. 4. 11-14) emphasizes the same things.¹²⁹³

Separate works on Vivāda (substantive law) and Vyavahāra (procedural law) were composed but those on Vyavahāra alone were few and far between viz. Vyavahāratnākara of Caṇḍeśvara,¹²⁹⁴ (vide Mitra's Notices, vol. VI p. 66 No. 2036) and Vyavahāra-Cintāmaṇi of Vācaspati (published long ago and lately published by Dr. Rocher). Halāyudha also appears to have composed either a work dealing with both Vivāda and Vyavahāra or two works dealing with the two branches of law separately.

In dozens of places the Vivādaratnākara mentions Halāyudha's work and sometimes styles it 'Hālayudha-nibandha' (as on pp. 41, 44 and 50). Halāyudha appears to have also dealt with the procedural law and with crimes and punishments.

Vardhamāna in the Daṇḍaviveka cites Halāyudha 33 times and sometime mentions his work Halāyudha-nibandha (as on pp. 72, 150, 275) and as Halāyudhiya (pp, 119. 152).

The Daṇḍaviveka is a large work in 355 printed pages. It starts with the eulogy of 'daṇḍa' contained in Manu VII. 14, 15, 17, 18, points out by quoting Manu VII. 20-21 that, if the king does not punish those who deserve punishment then what is called Mātsyanyāya will prevail. He further cites Manu VIII. 304 that the king shares one-sixth of the merit (dharma) of his subjects when he properly regulates them and takes 1/6th of the sins of his subjects if he does not regulate them properly. He quotes Bṛhaspati that Daṇḍa is of four levels viz. vāg-daṇḍa (i. e. censure by saying you did an improper act), dhig-daṇḍa (censuring a guilty person in the words 'fie on you who are guilty of an unworthy act), dhanadaṇḍa (fine, either a fixed amount or a varying amount), vadha-daṇḍa (inflicting bodily pain, mutilation of a limb or limbs and death); the circumstances on which the punishment depends such as jāti (caste), amount (of property), age (childhood, grown up man), time of offence (day or night &c). On pp. 22-30 he discusses at some length the fines in paṇas (lowest, middling, highest &c.) basing his remarks on Manu VIII, 138 and Yāj. I. 366 and discusses the scale of the values of guṇjā, kṛṣṇala, māṣa, suvarṇa (&c.) and of weights and measures called karṣa, pala, tolaka &c. and coins of copper, silver and gold. He discusses at some length the parts of an offender's body that are to be dealt with by way of punishment (quoting Manu VIII. 124) and states different views about bodily punishments for a brāhmaṇa offender (pp. 46-48). He has a long disquisition on fines with reference to various crimes in pp. 52 ff. Manu (VIII. 336) provides that, where for an offence an ordinary person would be fined one Kārṣāpaṇa, a rājan (king)¹²⁹⁵ should be fined one thousand paṇas. The Daṇḍa-

1295 It may be noted here that commentators like Kullūka state that the king in such a case should himself lay down the fine and that he should distribute the fine among eminent vaidika brāhmaṇas or throw it into waters, since Varuṇa is the lord of waters and of kings, as said by Manu (IX. 245). R̥gveda (VII. 49. 3) states that Varuṇa is the lord of waters and viveka explains that 'rājan' in this passage means only persons who are endowed with power (landlords &c.) and not the king himself. He quotes Manu VIII. 126 and Yāj. I. 368 and elaborates on them. He devotes pp. 88-140 to punishments for thefts of various kinds. He deals with adultery, rape and unnatural offences on pp. 54-195 and with defamation and cognate offences in pp. 196-218, with assault and battery in pp. 219-258, miscellaneous (prakīrṇaka) matters which are taken up by the king himself and not brought before the king by any person (pp. 259-272); he devotes pp. 273-292 to the rules about property or treasure lost and found or buried treasure found. He has a special discussion (pp. 293-320) on sāhasa (of five kinds viz. killing a person, robbery, carrying away a woman by force or rape and the two kinds of pāruṣya), special rules of punishment for Śūdra guilty of certain acts such as those described in Manu VIII. 272, 281 (both verses occur in Nārada also), such as wearing the sacred thread and thereby earning his livelihood or (Yāj. II. 304); cutting down trees growing near temples, burial places or on boundaries &c.; On pp. 325-33 he mentions the Vivāda-padas and details some punishments about some of them such as 'asvāmi-vikraya' (Manu VIII. 197-198); pp. 331-337 deal with fines arising on breach of court's temporary orders in a proceeding such as temporary injunction not to leave one's place of residence or not to do certain acts, pp. 337-355 are concerned with fines for members of the court (sabhya) in certain cases, review of judgment, fines for parties attributing faults to good witnesses, fines for false witnesses, fines for witnesses found to be false on account of being bribed (Manu VIII. 120-121), fines for witnesses called upon to depose but not coming to do so without any reason &c.

Vardhamāna gives about himself and his work some information. He wrote the Daṇḍaviveka while king Bhairava was the ruler of Mithilā and states that his elder brother was Gaṇḍakamiśra and the latter along with Śaṅkara and Vācaspati were his gurus (Intro. Verse 6). At the end he says that he wrote the Dandaviveka for the sake of the king of Videha, that he was the son of Bhavēśa of the Bilvapañcaka family. He mentions at the end that he wrote the work after consulting the following works and authors viz. Kalpataru, Kāmadhenu, Halāyudha, Dharmakoṣa, Smṛtisāra, Kṛtyasāgara, Ratnākara, Pārijāta, the two Saṁhitās of Manu and Yājñavalkya with the commentaries thereon; besides Vyavahāratilaka, Pradīpikā and Pradīpa. Besides those mentioned in the verses at the end and besides the two epics, Purāṇas, Dharmasūtras and smṛtis he mentions also Kṛtyasāra (p. 28), Graheśvaramiśra (pp 27, 134), Caṇḍeśvara, Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi (326, 346-7). Parāśarabhāṣya (p. 279), Bhava-deva (pp. 77, 238, 347, 353), Bhūpālapaddhati (136), Bālabhūṣaṇa (p. 135), Miśraḥ (i. e. Vācaspatimiśra, his guru 64, 65, 92, 195, 97, 282, 317), Vivāda-cintāmaṇi (211, 278), Samayaprakāśa (136), Smṛtisāgara (136), Śūlapāṇi (240), Harinātha (p. 251, 326), Harihara (182).

It appears that he composed nine works viz. Dandaviveka, Dvaitaviveka, Gaṅgākṛtyaviveka, Paribhāṣaviveka, Smṛtitattvaviveka, Dharmapradīpa, Smṛtiparibhāṣa, Smṛtitattvāmṛta, Smṛtitattvāmṛta-sāroddhāra (abridgement of the preceding). For the Smṛtitattvāmṛta, vide Mitra's Notices, Vol, VI No. 1992 pp. 12-13 on (Sāntika-Pauṣṭika) where his mother's name is given as Gaurī. The 2nd verse of that work is interesting.¹²⁹⁶ It says at present people's usages differ from Śāstra; when there is a conflict Śāstra is stronger and therefore it has been accepted in this work. For Smṛtitattvāmṛta-sāroddhāra Vide Mitra's Notices Vol. VI p. 57 (where at the end he refers to the Dandaviveka his as work). On p. 76 of the Dandaviveka he refers to his own Dvaitaviveka.¹²⁹⁷ At the end of the Smṛtitattvaviveka (Mitra's Notices Vol. V No. 1868 pp. 183-185 the colophon describes Vardhamāna as Mahādharmādhikārm (Judge).

1297 On a verse of Vyāsa about a murderer and his associates Vardhamāna remarks साक्षात्प्रयुक्त्यनुग्रहानुमतिनिमित्तभेदात् पञ्च-विधो वधः स चास्माभिर्द्वैतविवेके भेदप्रभेदाभ्यां विस्तरेण प्रपञ्चितः । दण्ड-विवेक p. 76.

Some of his references are interesting e. g. he quotes a prose passage of Viṣṇugupta about Rūpyamāṣaka, Dharāṇa, Niṣka and a verse of Viṣṇugupta stating that 1/70th part of a suvarṇa is called ropaka and a dīnāra is equal to 28 ropakas.¹²⁹⁸

On p. 28 he refers to another view of Viṣṇugupta on 'Māṣa'.¹²⁹⁹ In one place (p. 291-292) he cites some cases of conflict between Dharmaśāstra and Arthaśāstra and between two dharmaśāstras also.¹³⁰⁰

The English Introduction to the Daṇḍaviveka is an instructive one. It compares the provisions in the Daṇḍaviveka with the Indian Penal Code and the modern criminal law of India and well brings out the points of agreement and difference between them.

As to his date there is no much difficulty. He was a pupil of Vācaspatimiśra and refers to the Vivādacintāmaṇi of that great Maithila scholar and therefore was a junior contemporary of Vācaspati. He flourished under king Bhairava of Mithilā (5th Intro. verse of Daṇḍaviveka) who belonged to the Kāmeśvara dynasty. In J. A. S. B. vol. XI (New Series, p. 433) a complete list of the kings of this dynasty and the probable dates of the authors that flourished under the Kārṇāṭa and Kāmeśvara dynasties is set out, according to which Śaṅkaramiśra (one of the gurus of Vardhamāna) flourished in the 2nd and 3rd quarters of the 15th century A. D., while Vācaspati flourished in the 3rd and 4th quarters of the same century and Vardhamāna must have flourished some decades before La. Sam. 376 (i. e. 1496 A. D.), when a ms. of his Gaṅgākṛtyaviveka (one of his latest works) was copied (vide J. A. S. B. Vol. XI. p. 403). Vācaspati's Śrāddhacintāmaṇi refers to Vardhamāna's work on 'Paribhāṣā'. For the Smṛti-paribhāṣā of Vardhamāna, vide Mitra's Notices, vol. V pp. 160-161.

Raghunandana refers to him as Vardhamānopādhyāya or Navya-vardhamāna in order to distinguish him from another Vardhamāna, son of Gaṅgeśopādhyāya, who flourished in the 13th century. Vide Tithittattva (Vol. I, 122) where the Smṛti-paribhāṣikā is cited; for citations from Navya-Vardhamāna vide Smṛtitattva Vol. I, tithi pp, 19, 184, Śrāddha, 213, 224; Āhnika p. 332 (Raghu. differs), 352, 424, Mala. pp. 803, 815, 818. The Śrāddha-pradīpa of Vardhamāna is mentioned by Raghu. in Śrāddhatattava (vol I) p. 414.

In the Journal of Oriental Institute (Baroda), vol. II (pp. 71-85) Dr. Ludo Rocher (Ghent University) furnishes an analysis of all mss. of the Daṇḍaviveka with various readings.

103. Nṛsiṃhaprasāda

This is an encyclopaedic work on dharmaśāstra, no part of which had been printed when the first volume of the H. of Dh. was published in 1930. Since then, however, four parts of it have been published in the series called Princess of Wales Sarasvatibhavana Texts (the General editor being M. M. Gopinath Kaviraja) viz. Vyavahārasāra (edited by Pandit Vinayaksastri Tillu, Sanskrit College, Benares), Prāyaścitta-sāra (edited by Pandit Nandakishore Sharma and Nandakumar Sharma Sahitya-charya), Śrāddhasāra (ed. by Pandit Vidyadhara Misra, College of Oriental Learning, Benares, Hindu University), and Tīrthasāra (edited by Pandit Sūryanārāyaṇa Śukla, Assistant Professor, Govt. Sanskrit College, Benares), the first three being published in 1934 and the 4th in 1936.

The Benares Sanskrit College has a complete ms. of this vast work. I could examine the whole of it. Besides, the Deccan College collection has two mss. of portions of it, viz. of the Dānasāra (No. 353 of 1875-76) and of the Tīrthasāra (No. 352 of 1875-76). The Dānasāra and Śāntisāra are also noticed in Mitra's Cat. of Bikaner mss. (pp. 429-430) and six sections out of twelve are noticed in the I. O. Cat. p. 434 No. 1467. Unless otherwise stated the references here are to the Benares Sanskrit College ms. and to the four printed parts thereof.

The Nṛsiṃhaprasāda is divided into twelve¹³⁰¹ sections called 'sāra' on saṁskāra, āhnikā, śrāddha, kāla, vyavahāra, prāyaścitta, karmavipāka, vrata, dāna, śānti (the averting of evil foreboded by natural portents and other strange occurrences), tīrtha and pratiṣṭhā (consecration of temples, idols etc.). Each section¹³⁰² begins with an invocation of Nṛsiṃha (the man-lion incarnation of Viṣṇu) after whom the work is named Nṛsiṃhaprasāda (the fruit of the grace of Nṛsiṃha). In the Saṁskārasāra, after invoking Nṛsiṃha, the introduction tells us that¹³⁰³ when king Rāma ruled in Devagiri (modern Daulatabad), Śānavit was ruler of Delhi and that after the latter Nijāmasāha wielded power over the world. Then after pronouncing an eulogy on Nijāmasāha (verses 10-13) the author speaks of himself. We¹³⁰⁴ are told that the author was Dalapati (or Dalādhīśa), son of Vallabha, of the Bhāradvāja-gotra and of the Yājñavalkīya śākhā (i. e. Śuklayajurveda) and that he was the keeper of the imperial records of Nebajana (?). Should we read in note 1304 'श्रीमन्ने- quoted in the Intro. (p. 6) to the Vyavahārasāra.

श्रीमान्दलाधीश्वरः ॥ verse 14 of संस्कारसार. The third line is metrically faulty in the 6th syllable. This verse occurs in each सार at the end with variations. In the D. C. ms. No. 358 of 1875-76 the last two lines are श्रीमद्बलभसूनुरात्मनिरतस्तत्संप्रदायाग्रणीः

बजने समस्तकरणाधीशः' ? This will remove the defect in the metre, but the question would still remain 'who was Nebajana ?'. Besides, the printed तीर्थसार, प्राक्श्चित्तसार and श्राद्धसार read the latter half of the verse as श्रीमद्ब्रह्मसूत्रात्मनिरतः सत्सप्रदायाग्रणीः...श्रीमान्दलाधीश्वरः. There are elaborate colophons¹³⁰⁵ at the end of almost each section (called sara) in which we are told that Dalapati was the pupil of Sūryapaṇḍita, that he was a great exponent of the Vaiṣṇavadharma, that he was the chief minister and keeper of the records of Nijāmasāha, who was the overlord of all Yavanas (Mahomedans) and ruler of Devagiri. In some colophons 'Dalapati or Dalādhīśa' is styled Mahārājādhirāja. H. P. Shastri in his Preface to Vol. III of the Catalogue of Govt. Mss. (pp. XXIII-XXIV) in the custody of the Bengal Asiatic Society remarks that Dalapatirāya was chief of Gadhamandla and had a commanding position in the Nizamshahi kingdom of Ahmednagar. Dalapati's wife was the famous Durgāvatī who so bravely fought against the generals of Akbar that the latter had to come himself to invade her capital. It is doubtful whether Dalapati or Dalādhīśa was the real name of the author or was merely a title. It is not unlikely that Sūryapaṇḍita, said to be the guru of the author, is the same as Sūrya, the father of the great Maratha saint Ekanātha, who wrote his Bhāgavata at Benares in śake 1495 (i. e. 1573 A. D.) and who states that he was born in a family of devout Vaiṣṇavas.

The Nṛsiṃhaprasāda names numerous authors and works. In the beginning of the Saṁskārasāra, he mentions a host of writers and works that he consulted.¹³⁰⁶ Besides these he mentions Someśvara (commentator of the Tantravārtika) and Kāladīpa in the Saṃskārasāra; the Purāṇasāra in the Āhnikasāra; Pārijāta and Vādibhayaṅkara in the Vyavahārasāra; Kāmika, Jñānaratnāvalī, Balārkodaya in the Dānasāra.

The contents of some of the sections of the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda may be set out here. In the Saṃskārasāra the author treats of the meaning of dharma, śruti, smṛti, the authoritativeness of purāṇas, kalivarjya (uses prohibited in the kali age), punyāhāvācana, madhuparka, vṛddhiśrāddha, garbhādhāna, pūṃsavana, jātakarma, nāmakaraṇa, upanayana, marriage and other saṃskāras, the duties of brahmacārins, snātakas, householders, vānaprasthas and saṃnyāsins. In the Āhnikasāra the author, after dividing the day into eight parts, speaks of the actions appropriate to each viz.: in the first getting up from bed at the brāhma-muhūrta, śauca, brushing the teeth, decoration of the hair, bath etc.; in the second, study; in the third, looking after dependents and pursuit of one's livelihood; in the fourth, midday bath, brahmayajña, tarpana, vaiśvadeva, daily śrāddha, in the fifth dinner and foods prescribed and forbidden; in the sixth and seventh reflecting over itihāsa and purāṇas; in the 8th decision about worldly affairs, evening saṃdhyā etc. In the Kālasāra (which is incomplete in the Benares ms.) he defines the nature of kāla and gives rules and decisions about months, tithis and such festivals as Navarātra, Janmāṣṭamī etc. In the Vyavahārasāra the author deals with the meaning of vyavahāra, the eighteen titles of law, the four-fold method of deciding dharma, the pramāṇas (means of proof), dāyavibhāga etc. In the Vratasāra he speaks of the several principal vratas in each month, some of which are for both men and women, some for men only and some for women only. In the Dānasāra he dilates upon the nature of dāna, its varieties, the various results of dānas, the proper time and place for dānas, proper recipients of dāna, what things can be the subjects of gifts, units of gold, silver etc., the description of kuṇḍa, maṇḍapa and vedī, the sixteen great dānas such as tulā, hiranyagarbha, brahmāṇḍa, kalpapādapa etc., and three atidānas, viz. land, cows and learning; gifts of image, food, ornaments, bed-stead etc.; gifts on saṅkrānti and eclipses etc. The Tīrthasāra is interesting for this that as the author hailed from Devagiri he speaks principally of tīrthas of the Deccan and Southern India. In his work he speaks of Setubandha, Puṇḍarīka¹³⁰⁷ or Pauṇḍarīka (modern Pandharpur in the Sholapur District, it seems), Gayātīrtha, eulogies of Godāvarī, Kṛṣṇā-Veṇyā, Narmadā, Malaprahārīṇī etc.

As four parts of Nṛsiṃhaprasāda have been published, it would be necessary to say a few words on each of the four.

The Vyavahārasāra is rather a large work in 280 pages. It relies sparingly on the Dharmasūtras of Āpastamba, Gautama, Vasiṣṭha and Viṣṇu, quotes only a verse from Baudhāyana. It quotes from Nārada several hundred verses, also from Bṛhaspati and Kātyāyana. Similarly, most of the verses in Yājñavalkyasmṛti on Vyavahāra are quoted and the Manusmṛti also is profusely cited. But out of other Smṛtis only a few like those of Uśanas (p. 12), Pitāmaha (only on ordeals), Yama (p. 7), Vyāsa, Śaṅkha-likhita (p. 200), Saṁvarta, Hārīta (pp. 34, 35, 213) are quoted. The Saṅgrahakāra is quoted twice (pp. 69 and 219).

The Prāyaścitta-sāra has 236 printed pages and deals with the following matters. Derivation and meaning of the word Prāyaścitta; P. to be prescribed by a pariṣad; five mahāpātakas (killing a brāhmaṇa &c.); enumeration of pātakas that are equal to Mahāpātakas; those sins that are called Anupātakas and Upapātakas; those guilty of Mahāpātakas fall into terrible hells and after undergoing the torments of hell are born as dogs, donkeys, and the like and then they are again born as men suffering from such disease as consumption or are born as cāṇḍālas &c. (Yāj. III. 206-215); one should perform appropriate penances for sins; requesting the Pariṣad to declare the proper penance. It is unnecessary to set out the penances (in view of the fact that a good deal has been stated on them from the Prāyaścitta-viveka of Śūlapāṇi above.

Besides the Smṛtis¹³⁰⁸ and Purāṇas, the work mentions Dharmavivṛti (pp. 5, 201), Mitākṣarā (p. 189 and differs from it about the meaning of 'Brahmakūrca'), Rājanighaṇṭu (p. 138), Vākyamīmāṃsā (138-139), Subodhini (com. on Yāj. by Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa), Suśruta, Smṛtisāgara (206), Smṛtyarthasāra.

The Śrāddhasāra is comparatively a small work (in 168 printed pages) but it quotes a far larger number of authors and works than the other two. In the Śrāddhasāra (p. 106) the author refers to the fact that the portion on Dāna had been already composed, that Āhnika had already been dealt with, that Prāyaścittasāra preceded Śrāddhasāra¹³⁰⁹ (vide p. 64- 'uktam caitat-bahu Prāyaścitte'). On p. 29 it remarks that it will expatiate at length on the proper time for a certain śrāddha in Kālanirṇayasāra.

- 1308 In some cases Guru and Brhaspati are separately cited in the Vyavahārasāra on the same page; e. g. on p. 57 three verses are quoted as Brhaspati's and six verses are then quoted as from Guru that define some terms quoted from Brhaspati; On p. 21 Manu IX. 211 is cited as a text of Brahman and Manu IX. 104 is quoted as from Paramarṣi. The Nibandha writers and works are sparingly quoted. On p. 221 Aparārka, Viśvarūpa, Vijñāneśvara and Mādhavācārya are mentioned. On p. 228 are named Medhātithi, Vijñāneśvarabhaṭṭa and Mādhavācārya, Bhāruci, Smṛticandrikākāra (in plural), Dhāreśvara and Śrīdhara (page 256) and p. 257 refers to Nibandhas of Asahāya, Medhātithi, Vijñāneśvara and Mādhava. The Mitākṣarā is mentioned on p. 139. Once Kapiṇjalādhi-karaṇa is cited on p. 20 and on p. 231 a sūtra of Jaimini (X. 8. 5) is quoted. These are only patent Mimāṃsā references in this part.

Vide for Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa under Madanapāla above pp. 792 ff. On p. 138 the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda says:—(on the word गृज्जन) अज्ञानविधुरा परप्रद्वेषिण एव शास्त्रानभिज्ञा गाजरमेव गृज्जनं मन्यन्ते । and quotes वाक्यमीमांसा in support 'तदुक्तं वाक्यमीमांसायाम्-सुश्रुतोक्त-रत्ननालविषये तालकस्य (नालकस्य ?) गृज्जनशब्दस्य गाजरविषये गाजरत्वमन्त्र-परम्परान्वयायेन मन्यमाना गाजरमभक्ष्यं मन्यन्ते इति । प्रायश्चित्तसार pp. 138-139; vide श्राद्धसार (pp. 63-64 b) for almost the same words.

It quotes for its size numerous authorities, particularly smṛtis and Purāṇas,^{1309a} but nibandhas or digests rarely. It mentions the Mitākṣarā (p. 43), Mādhavācārya (p. 94), Smṛticandrikākāra (p. 71 in the plural), Smṛtiratnāvalīkāra (p. 94 in the plural).

The Tīrthasāra is a small work in 103 pages. It deals with the following tīrthas (16 in number) all in the Deccan and South India except Gayā¹³¹⁰ namely, Setubandha (and Rāmeśvara), Puṇḍarīka (Pandharpur on the Bhīmā, where there is Pāṇḍuraṅga's image), Āmardaka (Nāganātha pp. 21-30), Gayā, Godāvarī (and subsidiary tīrthas), Kṛṣṇa-Veṇī (and tīrthas subsidiary to them), Narmadā and eight more. The principal authorities are Purāṇas, viz. Kālikā, Kūrma, Garuḍa, Padma, Brahma, Brahmavaivarta, Brahmāṇḍa, Matsya, Vāmana, Vāyu, Viṣṇu, Saura, Skanda. The few other authorities that are quoted are Bṛhaspati (p. 34, several verses, probably from some purāṇa), Mahābhārata (on pp. 30, 41, 42-43), Yāj. (on p. 39, a half verse I. 261), Vasiṣṭhasmṛti (p. 33), Vyāsa (p. 89, two verses).

The Nṛsimhaprasāda being a work from the Deccan held the view that marriage with a maternal uncle's daughter was sanctioned by the Veda and was not to be censured.¹³¹¹ It says that where there is (irreconcilable) conflict between the smṛtis and purāṇas there is an option.¹³¹²

1309^a The Purāṇas quoted in Śrāddhasāra are: आदि (twenty-four verses), आदित्य, कालिका, कूर्म (pp. 4, 48), पद्म (p. 34), ब्रह्म (pp. 3, 4, 5, 7-8), ब्रह्मवैवर्त (pp. 3, 10-12), ब्रह्माण्ड (pp. 13, 14, 34, 48, 52, 55), भविष्य (p. 39), मत्स्य (pp. 29, 33, 107 &c.), मार्कण्डेय (pp. 18-19, 51, 53 &c.), वायु (pp. 9-10 ten verses, 13, 51 six verses, 102), विष्णु (pp. 5, 13, 9, 43, 44, 60, 61, 108-9), विष्णुधर्मोत्तर (pp. 5, 56, 96), स्कन्द 8 (in verses, 28).

1310 The Mahābhārata refers to Gayā at length. A famous verse quoted on p. 37 of the Tīrthasāra is : एष्टव्या बहवः पुत्रा यद्येकोपि गयां व्रजेत् । यजेत वाश्वमेधेन नीलं वा वृषमुत्सृजेत् ॥ This verse also occurs in विष्णुधर्मसूत्र 85 (last verse), वनपर्व 87. 10, मत्स्यपु. 22. 6, वायुपु. 105, 10, कूर्म II. 35.12, पद्म I. 38.17 and V. 11. 68, नारदीय (उत्तर) 44. 5-6. Vide H. of Dh. vol. IV pp. 643-679 for detailed treatment on Gayā.

As the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda relies upon the Mādhaviya and the Madanapārijāta, it is certainly later than 1400 A. D. As it is mentioned as an authority in the Dvaitanirṇaya of Śaṅkara-bhaṭṭa and in the Mayūkhas of Nīlakaṇṭha, it must be earlier than about 1575 A. D. If by the Dīpikāvivarana, which it enumerates among its principal authorities, is meant the com. of Nṛsiṃha, son of Rāmacandrācārya, on his father's commentary of the Kālanirṇaya (which is most probable), then the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda must be later than about 1500 A. D. Dr. Bhandarkar¹³¹³ says that Rāmacandrācārya lived about 1450 A. D. A ms. of the Dīpikāvivarana was copied in samvat 1604 (1548 A. D.).¹³¹⁴ The Benares Sanskrit College ms. appears to have been copied for Rāmapaṇḍita Dharmādhikarī at Benares, who is said to have been the father of Nandapaṇḍita¹³¹⁵ (see sec. 110 below). At the end of several sāras either samvat 1568 (1511–12 A. D.) or 1569 occurs as the date.¹³¹⁶ This may be said to be the date of the actual composition of the work or of the copying of the ms. for Rāmapaṇḍita. It seems difficult to believe that Rāmapaṇḍita for whom the ms. was copied in 1511–12 A. D. was the father of the famous Nandapaṇḍita. We know that Nandapaṇḍita composed his Vaijayantī in 1623 A. D. Rāmapaṇḍita must have been a man of middle age before he could order the copying of a huge ms. like the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda. If he did this in 1511–12 A. D. his son could hardly have been alive 120 years later. Therefore it looks probable that the dates (samvat 1568 and 1569) are not the dates when the ms. was copied for Rāmapaṇḍita, but rather the dates of the composition of the original work or of the copying the ms. from which Rāmapaṇḍita got his own ms. copied. At all events it is clear that the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda could not have been composed later than 1512 A. D. As the author was a minister of Nijāmasāha who ruled over Devagiri, it appears that he is referring to Ahmad Nizam Shah who ruled from 1490–1508 A. D. or to his son Burhan Nizam Shah (1508–1533 A. D.), most probably the former.¹³¹⁷ It may be taken as certain that the work was composed between 1490 and 1512 A. D.

The author Dalapati appears (if it is his proper name) to have been a south Indian. He mentions only a few authors and digests by name among which are South Indian Mādhavācārya, Mitākṣarā, Smṛticandrikā, Smṛtyarthasāra. There are also some other indications. In the Śrāddhasāra, while dilating on going to Gayā for śrāddha, the author first quotes a verse prescribing that the pilgrim intending to go to Gayā should first perform a śrāddha, should be dressed in a karpaṭa (worn out or ragged clothes) and should circumambulate his village.¹³¹⁸ The author says that provision is not restricted to one going to Gayā alone, but also applies to Godāvarī when Jupiter is in the sign of Leo.

It may be noted that the Nṛsiṃhaprasāda had become a well-known work of some authority before 1600 A. D. even at Benares. The Nirṇayasindhu composed in 1612 A. D. (2nd Pariccheda on Navarātra) refers to passages quoted on Navarātra in Nṛsiṃhaprasāda.

1317 Vide Lane-Poole's 'Muhammadan dynasties' (ed. of 1924) p. 320 for the names and dates of the Nizam Shahs. According to Lane-Poole the Nizam Shahs of Ahmednagar ruled from 1498 to 1595 A. D.

104. Pratāparudradeva

The Sarasvativilāsa was compiled by Pratāparudradeva, a king of the Gajapati dynasty who ruled at Cuttack (Kaṭakanagari) in Orissa. The Dāyabhāga portion of this work was published with an English translation by Rev. Thomas Foulkes in 1881. When the materials for the first volume were being collected, this work dealing with Vyavahāra was in the Press. It was edited by Dr. R. Sham Sastry and was published as a volume in the Oriental Library Publications of the University of Mysore. It is a large work containing 503 pages of the text with an Introduction of thirty-two pages containing an Index of the topics dealt with in it, errata and an account of the mss. on which the edition is based.

After invoking deities the work starts with the praśasti of the king and his family (pp. 2-11). Descent is traced to the Sun himself through Daśaratha, Rāma and his sons. Rāma, his son Kuśa, his son Atithi and in this family of the Raghus was born Kapilendra, founder of Gajapati dynasty, whose son was Puruṣottama. His queen was Rupāmbikā. Pratāparudradeva or Vīra-Rudra-deva was the son of Puruṣottama. He is spoken of as having given protection to Sultan (Suratrāṇa) Husanshah who threw himself on his mercy.¹³¹⁹ In the colophons¹³²⁰ the king is styled Gajapati, Gauḍeśvara (king of Gauḍa), lord of Kalubariga (modern Gulbarga) in the Karṇāṭaka country of nine crores (probably of revenue) and as the protector of Sultan Husanshah of Jamunāpura. It is significant that the same titles are applied to *Puruṣottama*¹³²¹ in his Poṭavaram grant of śake 1412 (1490 A.

D.) and in other inscriptions. Pratāparudradeva, while ruling his capital¹³²² Kaṭakanagarī, called together an assembly of Pandits and compiled an extensive digest of civil and religious law. The royal author feels qualms of conscience on the question of eulogising himself and his family but stifles them easily by saying that a poet can also be an appreciative critic of his own productions.¹³²³ He boasts that he composed the work for saving scholars the trouble of bringing harmony among the conflicting dicta of Vijñānayogī, Aparārka, Bhāruci and others, that there was no work that could equal his own and that his literary effort would make his predecessors' works afford illustrations of the maxim that when a certain purpose is served by one the existence of others is superfluous.¹³²⁴ Then it is said that the Vyavahārakāṇḍa was first taken in hand even before the Ācārakāṇḍa following the special desire of the king Vīrarudra Gajapati.¹³²⁵ But it appears from references in the Vyavahārakāṇḍa itself that before that part was finished the Ācārakāṇḍa had been completed.¹³²⁶ The Sarasvatīvilāsa, being a work composed under the express orders of a king for the benefit of his subjects, makes the nearest approach to the Austinian conception of law as a command addressed by political superiors to political inferiors and enforced by a sanction.

The principal topics dealt with in the Vyavahārakāṇḍa are : the hall of justice, the method of judicial procedure, the plaint, the reply, documents, possession, ṛnādāna, dāyavibhāga, sāhasa and other titles of law. In the beginning of the work he sets out at great length the views of ancient writers on politics about the constitution of the maṇḍala, such as those of Parāśara, Uśanas, Viṣṇu, Bṛhaspati, Viśālākṣa, Manu etc. He generally follows the views of Vijñāneśvara on dāyavibhāga, but here and there strongly criticizes him e. g. he says that Vijñāneśvara gave a very far-fetched interpretation¹³²⁷ of Yājñavalkya's verse 'rikthagrāha ṛṇam dāpyaḥ'. Another interesting example of criticism of Vijñāneśvara is found on p. 457 of Sar. V. 'विज्ञानयोगिना यदुक्तं विवादपदानां परस्परसङ्गतिर्नास्ति तत्परास्तं वेदितव्यम्'. This passage has in view the Mitākṣarā passage at the beginning of Svāmipālavivāda (taken up immediately after dealing with Simāvivāda) 'व्यवहारपदानां परस्परहेतुमद्भावाभावात् तेषामाद्यमृणादानमित्यादिपाठक्रमो न विवक्षित इति व्युत्क्रमेण स्वामिपालविवादोऽभिधीयते।' for 'तेषामद्य' vide Manu VIII. 4-7. Similarly another proposition associated with the Mitākṣarā is attacked by the Sar. V. (p. 396) viz. यत्तु विज्ञानयोगिना स्वत्वं लौकिकं लौकिकक्रियासाधनत्वाद् ब्रीह्यादिवदित्युक्तं तदुदग्रन्थं स्थूलमिव प्रतिभाति. On the other hand, Varadarāja refers to Vijñāneśvara as 'Brahmavit-pravara' (eminent or best among those who realized brahman on pp. 253 and 270 of Vyavahāranirṇaya).

It may be noted that the Sar. V. names (on pp. 13-14)¹³²⁸ 41 Smṛtikāras, some Upasmṛtis, 18 Purāṇas and makes a distinction between Ṭikākāras (like Vijñāneśvara) and Nibandhanakāras (i. e. digest-writers) like Lakṣmīdhara. On p. 12 he quotes a verse containing names of sages like Manu, and Vasiṣṭha and Yogiśvara and Nibandhanakāras like Bhāruci, Kulārka and Yogiśvara.

The Sar. V., though a late work, is of great importance in some respects. In scores of places it cites the different views or explanations of Vijñāneśvara and Bhāruci on the same topic or verse. A few examples may be cited here. (1) On Yāj. I. 312 (Sar. V. p. 23 on 'sthira'), Yāj. I. 313 (Sar. V. p. 20 on the 'uditodita'), Yāj. I. 317 (on 'pātreṣu', Sar. V. p. 24), Yāj. I. 327 ('no krama of the several acts is intended' says Bhāruci in Sar. V. p. 30).

Differences of opinion between Bhāruci and Vijñāneśvara are pointed out by Sar. V. as to several matters, e. g. on p. 308 Sar. V. states that Vijñānayogin, Asahāya and Medhātithi allowed recourse to ordeal in the case of a dispute about sale by one who was not the owner of the property sold (asvāmivikraya), while Bhāruci, Aparārka and Smṛticandrikā did not allow such recourse to ordeals in that matter. Recently Dr. Derrett (of the London School of Oriental and African Studies) came across a ms. of Bhāruci's commentary on some chapters of the Manusmṛti found at Trivandrum and he is thinking of bringing out an edition of the part available. Here and there the Sar. V. cites Bhāruci's explanations of several passages of Manu and also explanations of Vijñāneśvara. For example, on Manu VIII. 383 (Sahasram

The word * 'nibandhana' or 'nibandhanakāra' often occurs in the Sar. V. (e. g. pp. 52, 53, 149, 349, 451, 456, 468). It appears likely that Nibandhanakāra in these cases does not refer to one work only, but to different digests at different places. On p. 53 it is noted that a Nibandhanakāra followed Nārada as regards the order (Krama) of the 18 Vyavahārapadas and not the order given in the Manusmṛti.

brāhmaṇo daṇḍam &c.) he quotes the views of both Vijñāneśvara and Bhāruci;—vide also Sar. V. pp. 369–373 where Manu, Yāj. and Viṣṇu are quoted and the differing views of Bhāruci and Vijñāneśvara are pointed out. A few more cases, where Bhāruci's comments along with those of others on some verses of Manu are cited, may be pointed out. On p. 348 Manu IX. 103 is cited and the word 'Dāyadharmam' occurring therein is explained by Bhāruci as indicating both Dāyavibhāga and Dharmavibhāga. On p. 360 Manu IX. 118 (svebhyo &c.) is explained by Sar. V. which points out that Asahāya, Medhātithi, Vijñāneśvara hold views opposed to those of Bhāruci and Aparārka. Vide also Sar. V. pp. 389–90 where are cited Manu V. 197 and 161 and the different explanations of Vijñāneśvara and Bhāruci are set out.

Another interesting matter is that the Sar. V. cites in many places the explanations of certain sūtras and words of Viṣṇu and gives their interpretations by Bhāruci; vide for example pp. 160, 314–15, 318–19, 422–23, 427–28, 430–32, 447–48, 487, 488–89. The question arises whether Bhāruci wrote a commentary on Viṣṇu as well as on Manu or whether he embodied many comments on Viṣṇu in his commentary on Manusmṛti. That question cannot be answered until Bhāruci's commentary on Manu is available in print.

It may be mentioned here that the Sarasvatīvilāsa paid high honour to Bhāruci, since on p. 428 it refers to Bhāruci as 'bhagavat' and it appears that Pratāparudra and his helpers possessed a copy of the commentary of Bhāruci on Manu.

On p. 457 Sar. V. quotes a verse of Viṣṇugupta for explaining a sūtra of Viṣṇu. Who this Viṣṇugupta is cannot be definitely stated. Kauṭilya, who also is called Viṣṇugupta in the Mudrārākṣasa, has some of these terms (in II. 19. 2–9) but there is no such verse in the Kauṭīliya. It may be pointed out that the Brhāj-jātaka of Varāhamihira in VII. 7 and XXI. 3 mentions the views of Viṣṇugupta and that Utpala (who comments on Brhāj-jātaka) quotes two Āryā verses of Viṣṇugupta. So a Viṣṇugupta (writer on astrology) flourished before 500 A. D. Whether Cānakya and Viṣṇugupta are identical is discussed by the present author in his paper on ' Varāhamihira and Utpala ' in JBBRAS New Series Vol. 24. 3 at p. 19.

The Sarasvativilāsa quoted the views of Varadarāja in several places (e. g. on pp. 135, 179, 268–69, 276, 319)¹³²⁹ his work must be earlier than about 1500 A. D., as Pratāparudra ruled from 1497 to 1538 A. D. and the king refers to him as an ādhunika (recent writer) on p. 325 (of the Sarasvativilāsa under ‘Kṛtvānuśaya’). It is noteworthy that the Sarasvativilāsa, which quotes Aparārka many times (as on pp. 230, 262, 264, 308) and Smṛti-candrikā dozens of times (as on pp. 212, 230, 235, 242, 264, 267, 275, 308, 350) does not speak of Aparārka or the Candrikā (or Smṛti-candrikā) as ‘ādhunika’. The Smṛticandrikā would have to be placed between 1200 A. D. to 1240 A. D., as it quotes Aparārka and is very largely quoted by Hemādri. Therefore Varadarāja has to be assigned to a period between 1450 to 1500 A. D. in order that in a work like the Sarasvativilāsa composed in the first quarter of the 16th century he may be called ‘ādhunika’ (recent, modern).

The Sarasvativilāsa is a work of authority in Southern India on matters of Hindu Law, though inferior to the Mitākṣarā.¹³³⁰ It informs us that, though the Smṛticandrikā passed over the ordeals of water and poison on the ground that they had gone out of vogue, in Utkala the ordeal of water alone was resorted 1329 Some decisive references may be given here to the passages in Varadarāja’s Vyavahāranirṇaya (ed. by the late Prof. Rangaswami Aiyangar), which are quoted in Pratāparudra’s Sarasvativilāsa (on Vyavahāra).

1. On p. 135 of Pratāparudra’s work there is a long quotation of the respective strength of title and mere possession in different circumstances, which repeats what Varadarāja says on p. 132 of the Vyavahāranirṇaya.

2. On pp. 275–76 of the Sarasvativilāsa a passage is quoted as cited from Kautilya by Varadarāja : अत्र विशेषमाह विष्णुः । अथ ऋत्विजि मृते पश्चादन्यं वृणुयात् । पूर्ववृत्तस्यैव दक्षिणा । पश्चादाहूतः यत्किंचिद्भ्रमे चेति । यत्किंचिच्छब्दार्थमाह कौटिल्यः । अग्निष्टोमादिषु दीक्षणीयाया ऊर्ध्वं याजकोऽवसन्नः, पञ्चमंशमन्य आहूतो लभेत ।... प्रातःसवनादूर्ध्वं पादोनम् । माध्यन्दिनसवनादूर्ध्वं समग्रं नीतासु दक्षिणासु भवतीति वरदराजः । This occurs in व्यवहारनिर्णय of वरदराज (pp. 284–85); it is found in Kautilya III. 14. 29–32 p. 120 (ed. by Prof. Kangle).

to and in Śūrasena (Mathurā) and Magadha (Bihar) the ordeal of poison alone was administered.¹³³¹

Besides the usual dharmasūtras and other smṛtis, the principal authors and works named in the Sarasvativilāsa are noted below.¹³³² The Sarasvativilāsa presents in the case of the dharmasūtras, particularly of Viṣṇu and Gautama, great variations from the printed texts of these works (vide sec. 10, p. 127 above). The Sarasvativilāsa in scores of places gives the conflicting views of Bhāruci and the Mitākṣarā (for which see under Bhāruci, sec. 62). The Sarasvativilāsa also contains valuable information about the views of such authors as Asahāya, Bhava-deva and Śrīkara whose works have not yet come to light.

Burnell (introduction to Varṇa Brāhmaṇa p. vii) took Pratāparudradeva to be the king of that name who belonged to the Kākatiya-Gaṇapati dynasty of Warangal and who was carried captive to Delhi in 1332 A. D. But in this he was wrong. It has been shown above that the king connected with the composition of the Sarasvativilāsa belonged to the Gajapati dynasty that ruled at Cuttack and not at Warangal. Pratāparudradeva ruled from 1497 to 1539 A. D. Therefore the Sarasvativilāsa must have been composed in the first quarter of the 16th century. Foulkes thinks (Intro. p. xx) that the work was composed about 1515 A. D. His argument is that though the commentary of Mādhavācārya was written about two hundred years before the Sarasvativilāsa, the latter is entirely silent about it in his work and that the reason of this is to be sought for in the rivalry of the two dynasties of Pratāparudra and Kṛṣṇarāya of Vijayanagara which was set at rest by a marriage alliance about 1516 A. D. Vide Prof. S. Krishnaswami Aiyangar's 'Sources of Vijayanagar History' (p. 116), where we are told that the daughter of the Orissa king married to Kṛṣṇadevarāja was named Jaganmohinī (according to some) or Tukkā (according to others) and Sewell's 'A Forgotten Empire' p. 320. Another argument advanced by Foulkes for 1515 A. D. as the date of the work is that during the latter part of his reign Pratāparudradeva had come under the influence of the great Vaiṣṇavite saint Caitanya, who made Pūrī his residence during the last years of his life and that the Sarasvatīvilāsa has in the beginning an invocation of Śiva. Caitanya was born in śake 1407 Phālguna Full-moon (i. e. in 1486 A. D.); vide Bhandarkar's 'Vaiṣṇavism and Śaivism' (p. 83) and Caitanya is said to have gone to Pūrī about 1510 A. D. and died in 1533 A. D. (Beames in Ind. Ant. vol. II, p. 1 ff.). Both these arguments are not of much weight. As a matter of fact in some mss. there is an invocation of both Viṣṇu (Hayagrīva) and Śiva; vide Descriptive Cat. of Government S. mss. at Madras vol. VI, p. 2426 No. 3221.

Among the latest works and authors of certain dates that the Sarasvatīvilāsa names are the Smṛticandrikā and Varadarāja. Some confusion has been caused by the fact that there were two kings called Pratāparudra viz. King Pratāparudra Gajapati (ruler of Orissa) and Pratāparudra Kākatiya (of Warangal). There is a work called Pratāparudra-Yaśobhūṣaṇa on Sanskrit Poetics (including dramaturgy composed by Vidyānātha and published in the Bombay Sanskrit Series (in 1909) edited by K. P. Trivedi. In that work while dealing with dramaturgy a Sanskrit drama is put forward in which Pratāparudra Kākatiya is the hero (p. 135) (vide pp. 131-218 of that work). He ruled over Āndhradeśa called Triliṅga because that country has three famous liṅgas (Śrīśaila, Kāleśvara and Drakṣārāma) and he was also called Vīra-rudra or Rudra. He was the son of Mahādeva and Mummudi or Mummudamba. It would be seen that the parents of the two Pratāparudras were different and that their capitals were different (Kaṭakanagara of the Gajapati king and Ekasilā of the Kākatiya king).

An interesting question about the authorship of the Sar. V. was raised by the late Dr. P. K. Gode in the Calcutta Oriental Journal, Vol. II (1934-35) pp. 229-231 and he suggested that the real author of the Sarasvatīvilāsa was Lolla Lakṣmīdhara, who wrote a commentary on the Saundaryalaharī of Śrī Saṅkarācārya. In the journal of the Bihar Research Society (for 1950), Vol. 36 (parts 3-4 pp. 15-18) Mr. R. Subrahmanyam raises the same question and answers it by saying that the Sarasvatīvilāsa was really composed by Lolla Lakṣmīdhara. The arguments advanced are flimsy and worth little. He boldly asserts that the author of the Sar. V. nowhere gives his own opinion or hazards his bonafides. One fails to understand what he means by the first part of his dictum. In dozens of places the author of Sar. V. gives his own opinions on the varying interpretations of Vijñāneśvara and of Bhāruci and others. Vide above and notes for striking examples of the decisive conclusions reached by Pratāparudra (such as that on the question of Svatva cited above).

I regret to say that Mr. Subrahmanyam has not made clear what he means by saying that he (Pratāparudra) nowhere gives his opinion and I am afraid that he has not read the original text carefully. In many cases he gives his opinions and prefers one explanation to another. Vide p. 208; he employs the words 'tan-mādam' against Vijñāneśvara and expressly says 'asmad-uktaiva vyavasthā samyak'. On pp. 160-161 he refers to the differing explanations of the Smṛticandrikā and Bhāruci and expressly says Bhāruci's explanation is the proper one. For reasons of space it is not possible to dilate at length on this first charge against Pratāparudra. Only a few references to pages where he prefers one view to another are given here. Vide pp. 109 (Vijñāneśvaramatameva samyak), 154 (where the views of both Bhavadeva and Aparārka are declared as heya i. e. to be rejected); p. 384 (asahāya-vyākhyānamasahāyam), p. 458 (Medhātithi-vyākhyānam svamatikalpitam iti mantavyam). The criticism against his reference to Ganapati, Sarasvatī, Hanumān is to say the least worth little. Even a Vaiṣṇava king has to pay regard to the views of the subjects in his realm and when he comes forward as an author he may follow the usual pattern of his predecessors viz. of making obeisance to Ganapati and to Sarasvatī. But even when making homage to Hanumat in introductory stanza he emphasizes that Hanumat learnt from his

Upādhyāya (ādyād-upādhyāyāt) viz. Raghuvara (i. e. Rāma who was an incarnation of Viṣṇu) and verse 6 refers to Kṛṣṇa (who was a child of the Yādavas). Therefore, there is hardly anything in the Introductory verses to detract from his being a staunch Vaiṣṇava. Further, Mr. Subrahmanyam is offended by the use of the words 'Kāntānām Kāmadevaḥ' and remarks that nobody would write like this. All that is meant is that women looked upon the king as the paragon of beauty. Lastly Mr. Subrahmanyam complains that the king has overdone the permitted bounds of self-laudation. No limits have been set anywhere for self-laudation. But one example of another royal author several centuries earlier than Pratāparudra may be cited for comparison viz. of Aparārka who in the 5th Introductory verse of his commentary on Yāj. states that even God Śiva was astonished by the King's bhakti and that Bṛhaspati himself was astonished by the king's intellect and the Sun by his brilliance (svatva).¹³³³

Lolla Lakṣmīdhara appears to have been a braggart. In his com. on the Saundaryalaharī he gives at the end of his commentary a long list of his several ancestors and credits each of them with the authorship of works, hardly any one of which has been noticed so far in the numerous reports on Sanskrit Mss. It is possible that he might have been one of the Pandits called to help king Pratāparudra. He must have been paid for his trouble and there the matter ended. This is like the case of Vśveśvarabhṭṭi who helped Mandanapāla in his works and whose name occurs as the author in the ms. of some of those works. It is known that Godāvaramiśra was a learned court poet of Pratāparudra (vide Dr. Gode commemoration volume pp. 63-67 for him).

Vide JBORS. vol. V, pp. 147-148 and Ind. Ant. for 1929, pp. 28-33 for information about the Empire of Orissa and its emperors, Kapilendra (who died in 1470 A. D.), Puruṣottama-deva (1470-1497) and Pratāparudra-deva.

ascribed to Pratāparudra, ruler of Utkala, whose capital was Kāṭaka on the banks of the Citrotpalā. It mentions Kapileśvara Gajapati, his son Puruṣottama, father of Pratāparudra. In the colophon the king is described as 'Gajapati-Gauḍeśvara-nava-koṭi-kalabarageśvara-rūpa-nārāyaṇa' &c. The work is divided into five Prakāśas on Padārthanirṇaya, Vatsarādinirūpaṇa, Tithinirūpaṇa, Vratanirṇaya (such as Navarātra &c.), Viṣṇubhakti. He expressly mentions as his authorities Hemādri, Kalpataru, Ratnākara, Mitākṣarā, Mādhaviya, Anantabhaṭṭa, Smṛticandrikā Aparārka, Pārijāta, Kālādarśa, Devadāsa. Here there is an express mention of Mādhava which refutes Foulkes' theory set out above.

105. Dharmatattvakalānidhi or Pr̥thvīcandrodaya-Vyavahāraprakāśa.

This work was not dealt with in the first edition published in 1930 but brief references were made to it in Appendix A pp. 566 and 584 and Appendix B p. 712. Since then a small portion of the very large digest on Dharmaśāstra named above has been published (in 1962) as Vol. No. 21 of the Bhāratīya-vidyā series edited by Mr. J. H. Dave, M. A. LL. B., Advocate (Supreme Court of India). Now that some portion is available in print it is briefly noticed here. The work means 'The Moon (Kalānidhi) of the essence of Dharma, or also Pr̥thvīcandrodaya 'the rise of Pr̥thvīcandra'. This last was a king. The volume now published contains a portion of Vyavahāraprakāśa, one of the several parts of a huge digest on dharma. The Introduction (on pp. v-vi) states that only seven parts of the work are available (each in a single ms.) at different places viz. three parts called prakāśas on Vyavahāra, Vrata and Samaya are available in the Anup Sanskrit Library; there is a ms. of Śrāddha-prakāśa in the Bombay University's library. A ms. of the Āśauca-prakāśa is available in the Library of the Baroda Oriental Institute, a ms. of Gṛhasthaprakāśa exists in Sarasvati-Bhavan Library of Benares and a ms. of Ācāra-prakāśa is available in the Adyar Library, Madras. It is not possible to say how many parts were included or intended to be included in the whole work. But Kalānidhi means 'the Moon' and as the Moon is supposed to have sixteen kalās (kalā tu ṣoḍaśo bhāgaḥ – Amarakośa), it was probably intended to spread the digest over sixteen parts. The section on Vyavahāra is called Vyavahāraprakāśa and is divided into 14 ullāsas (lit. 'flashes' or coruscations). Mr. Dave publishes ten out of the 14 ullāsas and is going to publish the remaining four in the near future.

The Vyavahāraprakāśa (which is the 7th part of the proposed work) deals with judicial procedure as well as with substantive law. The present volume contains the whole of judicial procedure (technically called Vyavahāra) in 202 pages and some titles out of the 18 titles of law (in pp. 203–331), viz. from ṛṇādāna to boundary disputes.

The present work is beautifully printed by the Nirnayasaagar Press (Bombay) and contains (besides the introduction, (pp. v–xi), the Index of subjects (xiii–xvi), Sanskrit text (pp. 1–331), Index of the verses (p. 333–357, in all over 2000 verses) and an Index of the names of authors and works (pp. 358–359) which inadvertently omits the names of Garuḍapurāṇa (p. 271), Govindarāja (p. 132), Candēśvara (p. 161), Bhavadeva (p. 116) and all passages that are ascribed to the joint authorship of Saṅkhalikhita in the text as those of Likhita.

The very first verse claims that king Pṛthvīcandra personally looked into the causes of the citizens day after day along with learned brāhmaṇas and the judge and states that he begins the composition of a work on vyavahṛti (vyavahāra, including both substantive and procedural law).

More than 50 authorities are cited in the portion published. Among the sūtrakāras on Dharma, Viṣṇu is most frequently quoted, next come Gautama and Saṅkhalikhita. Among metrical Smṛtis Manu is quoted about a hundred times and Yājñavalkya about 120 times. Among the other metrical Smṛtis Kātyāyana, Nārada and Bṛhaspati are all quoted more than 160 times each. Vyāsa is quoted 40 times and Pitāmaha is quoted not only on ordeals but also on several other matters. The Rāmāyaṇa is quoted twice and the Mahābhārata thrice. Many Purāṇas such as Agni, Kālikā, Brahma, Bhaviṣya, Matsya, Mārkaṇḍeya are quoted but not at great length. Among digests and writers on Dharmaśāstra are mentioned Kalpataru (several times), Candēśvara (on p. 161), Candrikākāra (i. e. author of Smṛticandrikā) once on p. 55, Pārijāta (several times), Vijñānayogiśvara (on pp. 7, 249), Sarvajña-nārayaṇa, commentator of Manu VIII. 53-54, (on p. 63) and on Manu VIII. 41, 42, 46, (on p. 33), Halāyudha on p. 161 and 284 (on Nārada's verses.).

From the colophons at the end of certain sections (Ullāsas) of the portion printed, it appears that the author was the son of Nāgamalla, was a great devotee of Viṣṇu and had such birudas as Kalikāla-karṇa, Pratāpa-lāṅkeśvara, Ripujayasimha. On p. 279 he refers to Brahmacāriprakāśa as already composed.

This Vyavahāraprakāśa, when completely printed, would be recognised as a treatise on law and procedure applicable to Hindus in Northern India. The quotations from authorities are ample, to the point, lucid and not burdened with lengthy discussions on Mīmāṃsā. It keeps throughout a practical end in view viz. to explain the law in easy and clear language. Not only the Vyavahāraprakāśa, but other sections on non-legal topics have been quoted extensively by writers on Dharmaśāstra from the 16th century onwards such as the Nirṇayasindhu (which quotes it hundreds of times), the Mayūkhas of Nīlakaṇṭha who quotes it in Ācāra-m., Samaya m. and Śrāddha-m. and others.

His date can be settled without much difficulty. Mr. Dave points out (in Intro. p. VIII) that on the last leaf of a ms. of the Vyavahāraprakāśa the scribe (named Śrīvāstavya Kāyastha) states that he finished the copying of the work on the 15th of the bright half of Phālguna on Wednesday in Saṃvat 1530 i. e. (1474 A. D.) in the city called Sehunda when king Pr̥thvīcandra was reigning.

Therefore it follows that the work was composed sometime before 1474 A. D. This date is corroborated by the fact that it cites the Smṛticandrikā and Candēśvara and so it must be placed later than about 1375 A. D. Mr. Dave states that Sehunda is now a town in Bundelkhand. It is a remarkable coincidence that three great digests on Dharmaśāstra were composed in Bundelkhand, viz. the Pr̥thvīcandrodaya, the Bhagavantabhāskara of Nīlakaṇṭha in twelve parts called Mayūkhas (rays) and the Vīramitrodaya of Mitrāmīśra (the last two in the first half of the 17th century).

In A. vs. B. (54 Bom. L. R. pp. 725-754) Mr. Justice Tendulkar had to deal with a case in which a suit had been brought by the husband against the wife for nullity of marriage on the ground that the woman was impotent at the time of marriage and continued to be so thereafter and a decree for nullity of marriage was passed. Many authorities from original Sanskrit texts were cited in the arguments and in the learned judgment (pp. 743-754). In the same volume on pp. 115-119, Dr. Derrett deals with the question in dispute and relevant Sanskrit texts and Mr. Dave, Advocate in the case of A. vs. B. cited above, contributed a paper in the Journal portion (pp. 25-32) of 55 Bom. L. R. The above mentioned case is a converse of the case Ratan Moni vs. Nagendra Narayan (1945) 1 Cal. 407.

106. Govindānanda

Govindānanda wrote several works out of which four have been printed in the Bibliotheca Indica series, viz. : the Dāna-kaumudī, Śuddhikaumudī, Śrāddhakaumudī, Varṣakriyā-kaumudī. The last work deals with tithinirṇaya, vratas on several tithis all the year round, festivals like Durgotsava, Kojāgara etc. Besides these he wrote a commentary called Arthakaumudī on the Śuddhidīpikā of Śrīnivāsa which was printed in Bengali characters, and also a commentary called Tattvārtha-kaumudī on Śūlapāṇi's Prāyaścittaviveka (published by Jīvananda at Calcutta). This commentary is extensive and learned. A verse eulogising his father's great learning in Astronomy, Vedānta and Smṛti occurs in the commentary as well as in Śrāddhakriyākaumudī (it is quoted below).¹³³⁴ His works are of great utility on account of the numerous authors and works quoted therein. The following deserve special mention.¹³³⁵ He was the son of Gaṇapatibhaṭṭa and was styled Kavikaṅkaṇācārya. From the introductory and final verses of his works it appears that he was a Vaiṣṇava. His father was a resident of Bāgri in the Midnapur District of Bengal.

Since he quotes Rudradhara-upādhyāya (pp. 115, 116) and his Śrāddhaviveka in Śrāddha-kriyākaumudī and Vācaspatimiśra on p. 452 of the same and Śrāddhacintāmaṇi sixteen times in the same work, he is not earlier than about 1500 A. D. His father composed his astronomical work Jyotiṣmatī in Kali year 4613 (i. e. 1512 A. D.), when his name had become famous. Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya in his paper 'Govindānanda the least appreciated Bengal Nibandhakāra' (in JOR, Madras, Vol. XXIX for 1963 pp. 101-107) blames me for not mentioning (in the first edition of the H. of Dh. vol. I) all the years in which intercalary months occurred near about Govindānanda's time and for not making use of a verse (quoted below) about the composition of the work of Govindānanda's father contained in the editor's Preface to the Varṣakriyākaumudī. I must enter a protest against these references to my not dilating on matters occurring even in prefaces to editions. I had to deal in H. of Dh. with more than one hundred authors in less than 500 pages. I could not indulge in long discussions as one can do in papers in journals. Even without referring to the date in the preface to Varṣakriyākaumudī I placed Govindānanda between 1500-1540 A. D. Dr. Bhattacharya himself (in J. O. R. Madras, Vol. XXIX pp. 101-107 at p. 103) holds that my conclusion (in H. of Dh. vol. I 1930 on p. 415) 'we shall be very near the truth if Govindānanda's literary activity be placed between 1500 and 1540 A. D.' was justified. My reason for stating only a few intercalary months was to find out the latest dates (which Govindānanda cited) for arriving at the date of composition of that work (Śuddhikaumudī). Dr. Bhattacharya is not quite accurate when he says on p. 500 of his paper on the Varṣakriyākaumudī of Govindānanda in Adyar Library Bulletin (Vol. XXV pp. 505-510) that Dr. Hazra's paper on 'works and period of literary activity of Govindānanda' (J. O. R. Madras, Vol. XVIII pp. 97-108) has settled with certainty Govindānanda's date as 1510-40 A. D. The only settled date (if at all) is that of the composition of Jyotiṣmatī (an astronomical work of which only a single ms. is said to have been found) of Gaṇapatibhaṭṭa (written in 4613 Kaliyuga i. e. about 1512-13 A. D.). Dr. Hazra towards the end of his paper (pp. 107-108) relies on the three epithets (of self-praise) applied to Gaṇapatibhaṭṭa by himself viz. whose name was famous (prasiddhāhvayaḥ), who was superior on account of his well known qualities (khyātaguṇottara) and the leader among astronomers. There is nothing to show that all these epithets were really deserved. There is nothing to show that the epithet ' bhaṭṭa ' had been conferred upon him. Further, we do not know whether a son had already been born to him about or before 1512 or whether the son was 10 or 20 or 40 years old at the time.

It may be noted that Govindānanda himself was loose in giving the names of some of his own works ; for example, the 5th Introductory verse in his work on Dāna employs the word ' Dānakriyākaumudī ', while the verse preceding the last one in the same work employs the word ' Dānakaumudī '. Similarly, the fifth Introductory verse of the Śrāddhakaumudī has ' Śrī-Govindakaviḥ karoti gahanām Śrāddhakriyākaumdīm ', while at the end of the same work he says ' Govindānandakṛtīnā kṛteyam Śrāddhakaumudī '. But as regards the Śuddhikaumudī the Introductory verse is ' Śrī Govindakaviḥ karoti gahanām śuddher-imām kaumudīm ' and at the end we have the verse ' Gaṇapatibhaṭṭa-tavjyo Govindānanda panditaḥ śrīmān | samakṛtā santoṣārthaṁ sudhiyām Śrī Śuddhi-kaumudīm-etām ' ||.

The Dānakriyākaumudī mentions no other Kaumudī but is itself mentioned by Śrāddhakriyākaumudī on pp. 340 and 529 and by Śuddhikaumudī on p. 160 and by the Varṣakriyā-Kaumudī on pp. 352, 487. The Śrāddhakaumudī mentions the Dānakaumudī on pp. 340 and 529 and the Śuddhikaumudī on pp. 323, 342, 348, 440 and 483 and is mentioned by the Varṣakriyākaumudī¹³³⁶ on pp. 352, 487. The Śuddhikaumudī mentions the Dānakaumudī on p. 160 and is mentioned by the Varṣakriyākaumudī on p. 359. The Varṣakriyākaumudī mentions all the other three works as stated above but is not quoted by any of the other three Kaumudīs and therefore it is the latest among his four works.

On pp. 266-267 of the Śuddhikaumudī it is stated by Govindānanda that in 1414 śake (i. e. 1492 A. D.) Vaiśākha was intercalary, in śake 1416 (1494 A. D.) Bhādrapada was so, in śake 1419 (1497 A. D.) Śrāvaṇa was intercalary in the 36th month from the time when an intercalary month occurred before that year and it remarks that there is not certain rule about these intercalary months, except this that an intercalary month does occur in the 3rd solar year after the occurrence of an intercalary month in some year. Then on p. 270 he quotes a Jyotiṣa verse and states that in śake 1449 (1527 A. D.) there was an intercalary month, Āṣāḍha, that in 1452 śake Vaiśākha was an intercalary month, then in 1454 śake (1532 A. D.), Bhādrapada was an intercalary month and in 1457 śake (1535 A. D.) there was Śrāvaṇa as intercalary month and remarks that all this about intercalary months is not certain, but it is only prāyika (probable).

The learned editor of the Varṣakriyākaumudī appends in the Preface (pp. III-V) a list of fourteen matters on which Govindānanda differs from Raghunandana. Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya in his paper on the Varṣakriyākaumudī (Adyar Library Bulletin, Vol. XXV on pp. 506-507) gives (on the fourteen points of difference between the two great scholars) references to the pages of Varṣakriyā and of the Tattvas on Ekādaśī, Kṛtya and Tithi.

The Śrāddhakriyākaumudī mentions Śūlapāṇi several times (on pp. 31, 71, 138, 374, 380, 549) and once on p. 71 includes him along with Aniruddha among the ancient ones (vid note 1263

above prācāmasammata). ‘Prācām’ may also mean ‘eastern’ but that meaning would not be proper here, since Aniruddha, Śūlapāṇi and Govindānanda are all men from Bengal. It mentions the Śrāddhacintāmaṇi of Vācaspati sixteen times and often says that its opinion deserves to be rejected (heyam or apāstam) as on p. 354 or is stupid (mandam) as on pp. 185, 280, 296, 319.

Govindānanda wrote a learned and extensive commentary called Tattvārthakaumudī on the Prāyaścittaviveka of Śūlapāṇi. The verse describing his father’s attainments in Astronomy, Vedānta and Smṛtis also occurs there. On p. 142 of that commentary he holds an elaborate discussion on the Holākādhikaraṇa (Jaimini’s Sūtras I. 3. 15–23) and he finds fault with Jīmūta-vāhana’s interpretation of it in the Dāyabhāga. Vide H. of Dh. vol. V. pp. 237–241 and 1281–82. It is not possible (for reasons of space) to say more about the Tattvārthakaumudī here.

Raghunandana does not mention him by name or his works nor does Govindānanda refer to Raghunandana or his works or views. Govindānanda appears to be the earlier of the two, though they were contemporaries.

Govindānanda mentions Śrīdharasvāmin, the famous commentator of the Bhāgavatapurāṇa, in Varṣakriyākaumudī (p. 56) and declares that a certain verse (kalārdhām dvādaśīm dṛṣṭvā &c.) quoted by him appears to be amūla (baseless), while Raghunandana also quotes him (i. e. Śrīdharasvāmin) in (vol. I) Tithi 107, Prāyaścitta 517 (refers to his commentary on the 12th adhyāya of the 10th Skandha), (vol. II) Ekādaśī 25, Kṛtya 430 (Śrīdharasvāmi-vyākhyānam-atra grāhyam).

On p. 559 of the Śrāddha-kriyākaumudī, while dealing with Śrāddha in honour of ancient sages like Sanaka and the use of the word ‘hanta’ therein, Govindānanda remarks ‘the rite (offering śrāddha to Sanaka and others) may be seen in Kriyākaumudī’. Several explanations of these words are possible viz. that it is a marginal note introduced by scribes in the text or that Kriyākaumudī is a work of Govindānanda himself or that Kriyākaumudī is a work by some other author. Raghunandana

(in Āhnikatattva, 343) quotes two verses from Kriyākaumudī (attributed to Vasiṣṭha) that enumerate seven trees or plants called 'ṭṇarāja' and condemns the use of the skins or leaves of those trees for 'dantadhāvana' and on p. 344 cites a verse from Kriyākaumudī that requires that if a man knowingly touches a jalaūkā (leech) or similar worm he should forbear from performing daily religious duties (unless he bathes or washes the hands). On p. 376 of Āhnikatattva Raghu. quotes a half verse from *Kaumudī*¹³³⁷ forbidding for tarpaṇa the use of water taken from a sūdra or water falling from clouds.

It appears that the Bengal Asiatic Society has a ms. of a work called Kriyākaumudī.¹³³⁸ I learn from Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya that Dr. Shrimati Vani Chakravarti in her recently published Bengali work (in July 1964) named 'samāja-saṁskāraka Raghunandana' has shown that all the quotations from Kriyākaumudī found in Raghunandana's Smṛtitattva (which are only four or rather 3½ verses) can be identified in the ms. of Kriyākaumudī belonging to the Bengal Asiatic Society. Those quotations by Raghunandana appear, according to Dr. Miss. Vani, on folios 7, 8 and 34 of the A. S. Ms. of Kriyākaumudī. Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya assures me (from personal examination of the ms.) that the prayoga alluded to in p. 559 of the Śrāddhakriyākaumudī occurs on folio 36 of the ms. (in the Asiatic Society). This makes the conclusion certain that the Kriyākaumudī was a work of Govindānanda. There is evidence in the Śuddhikaumudī that he describes the details of a subject in one Kaumudī (viz. on Dāna) and sets out the mere prayoga in another work (viz. in Śuddhikaumudī).

Dr. Hazra in J. O. R. (Madras) Vol. XXIII pp. 97-108 sets out all the works of Govindānanda (eleven in all) with some 1337 It is difficult to say why the quotation on p. 376 is cited from 'Kaumudī' and not from 'Kriyākaumudī', while the other two are cited from Kriyākaumudī.

details in each case and holds (pp. 99–101) that the Kriyākaumudī (m. in Śrāddhakriyākaumudī p. 559) is his (Govindānanda's) work.

The learned editor of the Varṣakriyākaumudī (M. M. Kamalakrisna Smṛtītīrtha) stated clearly in his Introduction to Varṣakriyākaumudī (page II) that the author Govindānanda lived in the village of Bāgri in the Midnapure District, that he was a devout Vaiṣṇava (as appears from the Introductory verses of the Varṣakriyākaumudī and his other works), that some of the pāścātya vaidikas of the Gautama family assert that they are descendants of Gaṇapati-bhaṭṭa and Pandit Haranchandra Tarkavagīsa of Bāgri (who supplied to the editor the date of the Jyotiṣmatī) traced his descent from Gaṇapatibhaṭṭa (p. III of Introduction). The eminent scholar M. M. Dr. Haraprasad Sastri in the Preface to his Descriptive Cat. of Sanskrit Mss. vol. III (published by the Asiatic Society of Calcutta in 1925) made two statements which are inaccurate. One statement was that at the end of the 15th century a leader of the foreign brāhmaṇas settled in the outskirts of Bengal in the district of Bankura, wrote a code for the brāhmaṇas of his own persuasion entitled Varṣakriyākaumudī, complete in six books; (p. XXI). The second inaccurate statement was that Govindānanda Kavikaṇkaṇācārya was a Drāviḍa Brāhmaṇa settled in the District of Bankura in Bengal and that he wrote a comprehensive work entitled Kriyākaumudī of which Dānakriyā and Varṣakriyā are represented in Nos. 2691 and 2692 (of the Society's mss.). One mistake is that the so-called code is called Varṣakriyākaumudī and another is that it is in six books. It is one of his books (and not the whole code) that is called Varṣakriyākaumudī and the code is not in six books but only in four (or at the most in five). There is nothing to show that Drāviḍa brāhmaṇas settled in West Bengal in the 14th century. The only probable migration might have been from Kanoj (which can be described as being to the west of Bengal).

I am inclined to hold that the Kriyākaumudī is Govindānanda's work. He had already given some directions about the śrāddha in honour of Sanaka (and other sages on pp. 557–58) and therefore added that the detailed procedure of Sanaka's Śrāddha would be found in Kriyākaumudī. The note below collects in one place some references to the pages of detailed procedures mentioned in his works. In this case he did not like to dwell long on Sanakādiśrāddha (which was a daily one) and referred to another work for details. It would be noticed that (in some cases mentioned in the note)¹³³⁹ he expressly says that he has already explained some matters in another work and uses the words 'asmābhiḥ' and 'vivecanam...kṛtam' &c.

For information about Govindānanda vide JASB (New Series) Vol. XI for 1915 pp. 351-57. His Śuddhi-kaumudī examines intercalary months¹³⁴⁰ from śake 1414 to śake 1457 (i. e. from 1492 A. D. to 1535 A. D.). Therefore it appears that he wrote his Śuddhikaumudī immediately after śake 1457 (i. e. 1535 A. D.). He wrote the Śrāddha-kaumudī and Varṣa-kriyākaumudī after the Śuddhikaumudī. Therefore we shall be very near the truth if his literary activity be placed between 1500 and 1540 A. D.

Vide M. M. Chakravarti in JASB for 1915 p. 355 for information about Govindānanda.

107. Raghunandana

Raghunandana is the last great writer of Bengal on dharmaśāstra. He compiled an encyclopædic work on the different branches of dharmaśāstra styled Smṛtitattva, divided into 28 sections called tattvas. He cites the names of over 300 authors and works in his encyclopaedia, which have been collected together by M. M. Chakravarti (JASB for 1915 pp. 363–375). His wonderful mastery over smṛti material and his erudition displayed in the Smṛti-tattva earned for him the appellation smṛtabhaṭṭācārya or simply ‘smārta’ from later writers. For example, the Vīramitrodaya refers to him in that way and so does Nilakaṇṭha in his Vyavahāramayūkha.¹³⁴¹ His Smṛtitattva was printed at Serampore in Bengali characters so far back as 1834–35 A. D. The Smṛtitattva was published by Jivananda in 1895 (in two volumes) in 1631 pages. Out of 28 tattvas the Rgvedivṛṣotsargatattva is not included in Jivananda’s edition; but for a brief note on Rgvedivṛṣotsargatattva, vide Mitra’s Notices, vol. VII p. 119 No. 2349 (which follows the procedure laid down by Śaunaka). The Śrāddhatattva (in Jivananda’s ed. vol. I. pp. 189–325) is really Sāmaśrāddhatattva, since Raghunandana being a Bengali Rādhiya brāhmaṇa was a Sāmavedin. He begins by quoting in the very first lines of this part Gobhila: ‘Atha Pārvaṇaśrāddham tatra Gobhilāḥ । Atha śrāddham amāvāsyāyām piṭṛbhyo dadyāt’. On many pages he quotes Gobhila gr̥hysūtra, as on pp. 195 (twice), 196, 203, 207, 209, 210, 213, (twice), 218, 228, 233 (twice), 235 (several times), 238, 240, 242, 245, 259, 273 (five lines quoted), 282, 288, (6 lines), 307 (6 lines). The Tithitattva (in Jivananda’s edition) mentions on p. 93 (vol. I) a Durgāpūjātattva (pūjāyām viśeṣastu Durgāpūjātattveṣvasandheyah) and at the end of the 2nd vol. of Jivananda’s edition there is Śrī-Durgārcanapaddhati, which is the same as the Durgāpūjā-prayogatattva published by the Sanskrit Sāhitya Pariṣad, Calcutta. He wrote also a Tīrtha- yātrātattva, dealing only with pilgrimages to Gayā,¹³⁴² Prayāga and Vārāṇasī. He also wrote a commentary on the Dāyabhāga. It has also been published by Jivananda (in two volumes). Some tattvas have been separately published as e. g. the Vyavahāratattva and the Dāyatattva (published at Calcutta in 1828 by the Department of Public Instruction). His Dāyatattva was translated into English by Golapendra Sarkar. In his Mala-māsatattva the names of his tattvas are given.¹³⁴³ Vide Mitra's Notices, vol. III. p. 50 No. 1081 and I. O. Cat. p. 420 No. 1405 for an enumeration of the tattvas and for reference to the volumes and pages in the Serampore edition. The tattvas are not arranged in the verses quoted below according to their chronological order, but according to the exigencies of the metre. In this work I have used Jivananda's edition.

1341 Vide वी० p. 697 on गौतम’s sūtra ‘स्त्रीधनं दुहिदृणामप्रत्तानामप्रतिष्ठितानां च’; व्यवहारमयूख (text p. 112 of my edition) ‘सार्तदरिनाथावप्येवमेव’.

The 28 तत्त्वs are on मलिम्लुच (intercalary months), दाय, शुद्धि, संस्कार, प्रायश्चित्त, विवाह, तिथि, जन्माष्टमी, दुर्गोत्सव, व्यवहार, एकादशी, तडागभवनोत्सर्ग, वृषोत्सर्ग (3 तत्त्वs on छन्दोगवृषो०, यजुर्वृषो०, and ऋग्वृषो०), व्रत, प्रतिष्ठा (two on देवप्रतिष्ठा and मठप्रतिष्ठा), दिव्य (i. e. परीक्षा), ज्योतिष, वास्तुयज्ञ, दीक्षा, आह्निक, कृत्य, पुरुषोत्तमक्षेत्र, सामश्राद्ध, यजुःश्राद्ध, शूद्रकृत्य. In the Serampore edition ऋग्वृषोत्सर्ग is not printed (vide Chakravarti in JASB 1915 p. 363). In Jivananda's edition also the ऋग्वृषोत्सर्ग is not included and the जन्माष्टमीतत्त्व seems to be included under तिथितत्त्व. (Vide Smṛtitattva, vol. I pp. 41-54). Raghunandana treats of Durgotsava at some length in Tithitattva (vol. I pp. 64-104) and winds up with the words 'iti Vandyaghaṭīya...Śrī Raghunandana-bhaṭṭācārya-Viracita-Durgāpūjātattvam samāptam'. I think that it is very likely that these words were added by scribes. We have to understand the word Pratīṣṭhā as meant for Devapratīṣṭhā only (vol. II pp. 502-513) and that the word 'Tālāgabhavanotsarga' in the note is meant both for 'Jalāśayotsargattva' (vol. II. pp. 513-528) and 'Māṭhapratīṣṭhādi' (vol. II pp. 613-633).

It is not feasible to give even brief summaries of Raghunandana's tattvas. Their very names indicate the subject matter. But one of them, the Dāyatattva, deserves special mention. It treats of partition made by father, partition among brothers after their father's death, persons not entitled to a share, property not liable to partition, evidence of separation, stridhana and its devolution, inheritance to one dying sonless etc. His Tithitattva contains a description in Sanskrit of the game called Caturaṅga played on the full moon of Āśvina by four players. Vide (in vol. I) Tithi-tattva pp. 137-139 (for a description of 'caturaṅgakṛīḍana').

Besides the 28 tattvas Raghunandana is said to have composed several other works. There is a commentary on the Dāyabhāga attributed to him. Colebrooke suspected its genuineness, but the colophon of the commentary¹³⁴⁴ gives the same details about Raghunandana as are found in his admitted works. It is to be noticed that the Dāyatattva of Raghunandana sets forth the same principles of Hindu law that are peculiar to Īmūtavāhana, though in matters of detail they disagree in a few cases. The Vīramitrodaya styles the author of the Dāyatattva a follower of Īmūtavāhana.¹³⁴⁵ It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that Raghunandana's is the best commentary on the Dāyabhāga and that the authority of Raghunandana is acknowledged and respected universally in the Bengal School.¹³⁴⁶

Besides the above, Raghunandana wrote also Tīrthatattva or Tīrthayātrāvidhitattva, the Dvādaśyātrātattva (on the principal festivals at Jagannāthapurī, one in each month), Tripuṣkaraśānti-tattva, Gayāśrāddhapaddhati and Rāsayātrāpaddhati. His works however are not very much in vogue elsewhere than in Bengal.

Raghunandana was the son of Hariharabhaṭṭācārya and was a Bengal Vandyaghaṭīya Brāhmaṇa. He was a pupil of Śrīnātha-ācārya-cūḍāmaṇi, whose works are frequently quoted in the several tattvas (vide Chakravarti in JASB for 1915 p. 351 n. 2). According to tradition Raghunandana and the great Vaiṣṇavite saint Caitanya were pupils of the same teacher, Vāsudeva Sārva-bhauma, who was the shining light of the new logic (navyanyāya) at Navadvīpa and were residents of that place (Sarvadhikari's Tagore Law Lectures, first edition p. 403 ff.).

Among the authors and works quoted in his encyclopaedia by Raghunandana those noted below deserve mention.¹³⁴⁷

In the Malamāsatattva, after citing the names of the tattvas and mentioning the topics to be dealt with in Malamāsatattva, he states (vol. I. p. 738 lines 1-2) that he is writing the work after looking into many nibandhas (nibandhān bahudhālocya nibadhyante satām mude). It may be noted further that he enumerates the names of the 18 Purāṇas from the Viṣṇupurāṇa (III. 6. 21-23) and quotes from the Kūrma the names of 18 upapurāṇas (in Smṛtitattva, vol. I. pp. 792-93). Raghunandana profusely quotes all the 18 Purāṇas, but the Upapurāṇas are sparingly cited except the Ādi, Āditya, Kālikā, Devī, Nandikeśvara, Narasimha, Nāradya.

It may be noted that Raghunandana in Malamāsatattva (vol. I. p. 792) quotes a passage accepted by great people (or by many people) viz. ' Śūdras are Vājasaneyins in all matters and should follow the procedure laid down by the sages of that Veda'.¹³⁴⁸ In another place i. e. in the Śūdrakṛtyavicāraṇatattva (vol. II. p. 634) he quotes the passage 'Ārṣakrameṇa sarvatra &c.' and remarks that the mantra to be recited is to be taken from the Grhya relating to Yajurveda. The Smṛti of Yājñavalkya (I. 121)¹³⁴⁹ provides that he (the śūdra) should perform the five daily yajñas to the accompaniment of the word 'namaḥ' as the mantra. The Mitākṣarā on Yāj. I. 121 says the same thing and adds that the śūdra should perform five daily yājñas to the accompaniment of the word 'Namaskāra' as the Mantra and then states that some prescribed a mantra for Śūdras as noted in the footnote¹³⁵⁰. This establishes that at least in some parts of India śūdras could even in the 11th century A. D. repeat a mantra cited in the note below. It appears that the opposite view viz. that a śūdra could repeat only the word 'namaskāra' as a mantra had begun to be emphasized in the 11th century A. D. and had been prescribed some centuries before Christ in some works such as the Gautama-Dharmaśūtra (X. 66 'anujñātosya namaskāro mantraḥ').

How the attitude of our learned writers towards women and śūdras went on becoming stiffer and stiffer may be very briefly indicated here. In the daily tarpaṇa (satiating by offering water) three women are included in the tarpaṇa of sages viz. 'Gārgī-

Vācakanvī, Vāḍavā Prātitheyī and Sulabhā Maitreyī' (vide H. of Dh. Vol. II. p. 691). Further, in the Bṛhadārāṇyakopaniṣad, the great sage Yājñavalkya imparts to his wife Maitreyī the knowledge of brahman (Br. Up. II. 4-5). Śāṅkarācārya¹³⁵¹ on Brahmasūtra I. 3. 38 quotes a portion of Śāntiparva 328. 49 for establishing that Smṛti declares that men of all four varṇas have the right (or privilege) to acquire knowledge of Itihāsa and Purāṇas. The Dharmasindhu¹³⁵² says (p. 77) 'Kṣatriyas and Vaiśyas have the privilege (or capacity) to perform rājasapūjā containing offerings of flesh and to perform japa and homa; similarly, in the case of śūdras, tāmasapūjā without mantras and japa with offerings of even flesh is allowed, but the Sāttvikapūjā consisting of japa of saptaśatī and homa should be got performed through brāhmaṇas, (since) śūdras and women have no privilege of reciting even the mantras from Purāṇas and that in the bhāṣya (commentary) on the words 'the śūdra may secure happiness', it has been said that the śūdra reaps the fruit of religious rites viz. merely by listening to the mantras and not by repeating the mantras himself; therefore it should be understood that the śūdra secures the desired fruits (results) of religious rites by merely listening to the Purāṇa mantras and not by himself reciting them; from this it should be understood that personal recitation by women and śūdras of the Gītā and the thousand names of Viṣṇu would lead to sin in their case. This dictum of the Darmasindhu is opposed to that of Gīta¹³⁵³ itself (IX. 32) and the words of Śaṅkarācārya who places the Śūdras on the same footing as the three Varnas.

The Bhāgavatapurāṇa¹³⁵⁴ (I. 4. 25) expressly states 'As the three vedas cannot reach the ears of (i. e. are not or cannot be studied by) women, śūdras and those who are merely somehow related to the twice-born, the sage (Vyāsa) composed the Bhārata story (i. e. the epic Mahābhārata) out of compassion for them'. Some writers from Mithilā, says Raghunandana in Śūdrakṛtyavicāranatattva (vol. II, p. 635), held that in śrāddhas a śūdra could repeat a Purāṇa mantra; to this Raghunandana replies that the Varāha and Matsya Purāṇas are opposed to this.¹³⁵⁵ The result would be that there is an option, the Mahābhārata can be studied by women and śūdras just as men of the first three varṇas study the Veda. Even granting that some Purāṇas like the Matsya and Varāha are opposed to this, that does not matter. There would be an option as the Bhāgavata purāṇa states that the Mahābhārata takes the place of Veda in the case of women and śūdras, while some Purāṇas deny this in certain matters.

Aufrecht placed Raghunandana between 1430-1612 A. D. Dr. Jolly (Tagore Law Lectures p. 10) places him early in the 16th century. In I. L. R. 48 Cal. 643 (F. B.) at p. 695 it is said that Raghunandana belongs to the latter half of the 15th century. As Raghunandana's works are quoted and criticised by the Vīramitrodaya (pp. 79, 531, 683, 697, 703 etc.,) and by Nilakaṇṭha, Raghunandana is certainly earlier than 1600 A. D. As he names Mādhavācārya, Śūlapāṇi, Rāyamukuta, Rudradhara and Vācaspati, he is later than about 1500 A. D. If tradition is to be believed that he was a fellow-student of Caitanya he must have been born about 1490 A. D. Caitanya is said to have been born in 1485 or 1486 A. D.¹³⁵⁶ In his Jyotistattva he mentions śake 1421¹³⁵⁷ in connection with the position of Viṣṇu. That shows that the work was not composed probably very much long after that date (i. e. 1499–1500 A. D.). In the same Tattva (vol. I. p. 568) for calculating ravi-samkrānti he takes śake 1489 as the basis (i. e. 1567 A. D.). So that Tattva was composed just about that year. A ms. of the Chandoga-śrāddha-tattva was copied in śake 1497 (1575–76 A. D.)¹³⁵⁸ and a ms. of the Maṭha-pratiṣṭhā-tattva was copied in śake 1498 (i. e. 1576–77 A. D.).¹³⁵⁹ Therefore he must have flourished before 1575. Raghuṇandana, as shown above at some length (on pp. 853–54) very often criticizes Vācaspati, whose literary activities have been placed above between 1450–1480 A. D. Besides, Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, who was born in 1513 A. D. (as will be shown under Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa) and was the paternal grandfather of the famous cousins Kamalākara (who composed the Nirṇayasindhu in 1612 A. D.) and Nīlakaṇṭha, is mentioned with great respect as ‘Bhaṭṭa-nārāyaṇacaraṇāḥ’¹³⁶⁰ by Raghuṇandana in (vol. I) Tithitattva (pp. 99–100), Śrāddhatattva (pp. 201, 245), Samskāratattva pp. 868, 878 (in vol. II). Śuddhitattva (p. 251). Therefore Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa must have been an honoured contemporary of Raghuṇandana. The latter very rarely differs (if at all) from Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa and never employs words like ‘heyam’ or ‘nirastam’ about Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa’s views (as Raghu. does in the case of Vācaspati). So Raghuṇandana may be said to have flourished between 1510–1580 A. D. It may be noted that the Nirṇayasindhu (2nd. Pari. p. 83) mentions the Tithitattva as quoting Kālikāpurāṇa about bath in the waters of the Brahma-

Raghunandana was a great writer with wide reading, a wonderful memory, patient industry and a logical mind.

Several papers have been written about him. I have read some of them. The following may be mentioned.

1. J. A. S. B. New Series, Vol. XI, pp. 351–357 by M. M. Chakravarti, with an Index of Writers and Works in English characters (pp. 363–375) based on the text in the Serampore edition of 27 tattvas (omitting ‘ Rgvṛṣotsaraga-tattva ’) published in 1834–35). This index loses much of its usefulness because very few libraries in modern India have got the very old Serampore edition and the only procurable edition now for many is that of Jivananda’s. The present author had to spend weeks over preparing an index of authors and works by reference to the pages of the edition of Jivananda.

2. Dr. R. C. Hazra’s note on the ‘ works and time of Raghu ’. in (journal) Bhāratīya Vidyā, Vol. XI part 2 (1950) pp. 178–182 (where he places Raghu. between 1520–75 A. D.)

3. ‘ Raghunandana’s indebtedness to his predecessors ’ by Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya (published by the Asiatic Society, Calcutta, 1953–54) in its Journal, part 1 pp. 153–201 of vol. XIX (Letters), part 2 pp. 68–173 in vol. XX; part 3 in vol. XX pp. 229–312 and the same writer’s paper on ‘ Raghunandana’s indebtedness to Caṇḍeśvara ’ in N. I. A. vol. I pp 534–35.

4. ‘ Rāmāyaṇa and its influence on Ballalasena and Raghunandana ’ by Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya in J. O. I. (Baroda), Vol. II pp. 18–22.

5. “ Devotional element in Raghunandana’s works ”¹³⁶¹ in Siddhabhārati in honour of Dr. Siddheshwar Varma, pub. by V. V. R. Institute, Hoshiarpur, part I pp. 225–229 (1950).

The Tattvas in the Smṛtitattva enable us to see clearly, what subjects falling under Dharmaśāstra had assumed importance and gripped people's minds in the 16th century A. D. and a few centuries before. The Tattvas¹³⁶² are arranged here in the order of the number of pages devoted to each tattva in Raghunandana's Smṛtitattva. (1) Tithi 188 pages (vol. I pp. 1-188); 2 Śuddhi, 180 pages, (vol. II. pp. 233-412); 3 Jyotistattva pp. 177 (vol. I pp. 559-735); 4. Āhnika, 140 pp. (vol. I pp. 326-465); 5. Śrāddha 137 pp. (vol. I. pp. 189-325); 6. shed by the Calcutta Asiatic Society in 1955) he has exhaustively dealt with the Bhagavadgītā quotations on pp. 50-51. He is sometimes uncharitable when dealing with others as (e. g.) when he says on p. 225 of 'Siddhabhāratī,' part I "Though Prof. P. V. Kane and Dr. S. K. Dey have occasionally repeated the fact of particular digest-writers having been quoted by Raghunandana from the above-mentioned list of Chakravartī, yet, far from identifying the quotations, they have nowhere even mentioned the fact of the Bhagavadgītā or the Śrīmad-Bhāgavata having been quoted by Raghunandana". The History of Dharmaśāstra vol. I (published in 1930), contains only 466 pages on details of about 113 authors and their works and it was irrelevant and absolutely unnecessary to say anywhere in the History of Dh. (vol. I) that the verses from the Gītā had been mentioned by a writer of the 16th century.

- 1362 It may be noted that the Kṛṣṇajanmāṣṭamī-tattva is included in Tithitattva (pp. 41-54). So also the Durgāpūjā-tattva has been dealt with in Tithitattva (pp. 64-104) which has at the end the words 'Durgāpūjātattvam samāptam'. The Durgārcanapaddhati at the end of the 2nd volume (pp. 659-683) is not Durgāpūjātattva; it is the additional matter.

(vol. II pp. 645-658); 20. Devapratīṣṭhā, pp. 12 (vol. II pp. 502-513); 21. Vāstuyāga, pp. 12 (vol. II pp. 412-423); 22. Śrī-puruṣottama, pp. 11 (vol. II pp. 563-573); 23. Vrata, pp. 10 (vol. II pp. 151-160); 24. Yajurvedi-Vṛṣotsarga, pp. 9 (vol. II pp. 636-644); 25. Śūdrakṛtya-vicāraṇa pp. 4 (vol. II pp. 633-636); 26. Durgārcanapaddhati pp. 659-683. It would be noticed that religious duties on the different tithis of the year occupy, as regards extent, the first place; then comes Śuddhi (āśauca on death and impurity on birth), then astronomical and astrological matters, then āhnikā (the daily religious duties), then Śrāddhas, then religious duties in intercalary month. It may be noticed that inheritance and partition cover only 36 pages and so do administration of justice, substantive and procedural law; and ordeals are assigned more pages than even Dāya and Vyavahāra.

The first volume of the tattvas (Jivananda's edition) contains only nine tattvas in 948 pages, while the second volume of 683 pages contains 18 tattvas. There is hardly anything to prove or to show that this was Raghunandan's own arrangement. Probably it is due to modern editors. There is some internal evidence to establish the order in which at least some of the tattvas were composed. For example, pursuing the Sanskrit alphabetical order of the names, the following brief statement is made.

Of the tattvas ¶(1) the Āhnikā was composed before Śrāddha (vide p. 233 of Śr.), while Āhnikā (p. 375) mentions Śuddhi as already composed; (2) The Udvāha was composed before Saṃskāra (vol. I p. 884) and after Śuddhi (vol. II p. 107) and after Dāyatattva (vol. II. p. 127); (3) The Ekādaśī was composed before Tithi (vol. I pp. 6 and 150), before Malamāsa, (as Ekādaśī vol. II p. 19 says ' Vakṣyate '). 4. Chandoga-Vṛṣotsarga was written after Śuddhi (vol. II p. 532); (5) Jyotis. was composed after Malamāsa (vol. I p. 775); (6) Tithi was written after Ekādaśī (vide vol. I pp. 6, 150), after Śuddhi and Śrāddha (p. 15 vol. I), after Malamāsa (vol. I, Tithi pp. 152, 167);

(7) Dāyatattva was composed before Udvāha (vol. II p. 127) and after Śuddhi (vol. II pp. 190–197); (8) Divya was composed before Vyavahāra (vol. II p. 211); (9) Durgāpūjā mentioned by Tithitattva (vol. I p. 93 as ‘as anusandheyah’) does not show priority or posteriority; (10) Malamāsa was composed after Jyotistattva (vol. I p. 775) and after Śrāddha and Udvāha (vol. I p. 884); (11) Vyavahāra was written after Divyattattva (vol. II p. 228); ((12) Śuddhi was composed before Tithi (vol. I p. 15) and after Ekādasi (vol. II p. 307) and also before Udvāha (vol. II p. 107); (13) Śrāddha was composed before Tithi (vol. I p. 15) and Samskāra (vol. I p. 884) and after Āhnika (Śrāddha vol. I p. 233); (14) Samskāra was composed before Chandogavṛṣotsargatattva (vol. II pp. 543–547) and after Śrāddha and Udvāha (vol. I p. 884).

Another method which may be briefly indicated for finding the order in which the tattvas were composed is as follows : One may say that when Raghu says about a topic that it has been ‘vivṛta’ (expounded) or ‘prapañcita’ (dealt with in detail) or uses past passive participles of the same meaning, one may reasonably hold that that subject had been already dealt with in a tattva. But when he uses words like ‘anusandheyam’ (may be consulted) or jñeyam (may be known or understood from) a conclusion about priority or posteriority cannot be reasonably drawn. A very learned man (particularly before the advent of printing) may have been engaged in or contemplating the composition of two or three works at the same time and one day he might write a chapter of one book and the next day or a few days later he might compose a chapter for another work of his by way of change or variety. Therefore, the words ‘anusandheyam’ and ‘jñeyam’ may be employed with reference to a work already composed or yet to be composed.

The present author holds that the mention of 28 tattvas contained at the beginning of the *Malamāsatattva*¹³⁶³ was only a draft (of the tattvas to be described) prepared at some time before Raghunandana began to describe the several tattvas. It appears that some tattvas at least had been composed before the Malamāsatattva was actually written. For example the Malamāsa. (vol. I p. 834) quotes Manu IV. 103 (vidyut-stanita &c.) and adds that it was explained in Tithitvttva. On p. 775 (vol. I) the Malamāsa^o expressly says ' Tajjyotiḥśāstroktakāla...iti Jyotistattve-bahudhā vivṛtam '. From the Ekādaśītattva (vol. II p. 19) it appears that the Malamāsatattva was yet to be composed when the former was composed (evaṁ ca Gobhilā-nukteṣvannaprāśanādiṣu yad-Vṛddhiśrāddham tan-malamāsatattve mātṣyapurāṇādivacanād vakṣyate '. The most extensive tattvas are (as shown in detail above) those on Tithi, Śuddhi, Jyotis, Āhnika and Śrāddha, whereas Malamāsa comes only next to these five in extent.

Raghunandana was a master in the application of the Mīmāṃsāsūtras and Nyāyas. I shall only mention a few of the most important pages where Jaimini's sūtras are actually cited; (in vol. I. Tithi 95 and Śrāddha 221 definitions of ṛk, yajus, sāma); Āhnika (p. 338); Prāyaś, p. 479 (Jai. III. 4. 17), 480 (Jai. I. 2.1) Malamāsa (p. 806), Ekādaśī p. 88 and p. 97 (Jaimini VI. 3. 18). Raghunandana employs two kinds of Nyāyas viz. those based on the discussions in Jaimini and the explanations given by his commentators and nyāyas (maxims) that are more or less of a popular nature. A few examples of the two kinds may be mentioned by way of illustration. Two nyāyas of the first type cited by Raghu. may be mentioned as examples. There is ' Saṁ-yogapṛthaktvanyāya (based on Jaiminisūtra IV. 3. 5-7 which is mentioned and explained by Raghu. in Tithi (vol. I p. 44), Pr. T. (vol. I pp. 474-475) and (also in vol. II) Ekādaśī pp. 29-30. Another well-know Nyāya is Sarvaśākhāpratyaya-nyāya (Jaimini II. 4. 8-33). Raghu. relies on it in (vol. II) Śuddhi p. 378. Examples of a popular sort of nyāyas are Gobalivardanyāya that occurs (in vol. I Tithi p. 142) and Daṇḍapūpanyāya (that occurs in Dāyatattva, vol. II. p. 170); vide H. of Dh. vol. V pp. 1343, 1344 for the elucidation of these two and pp. 1339-1351 for over 171 nyāyas explained briefly.

- 1364 The work of Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa is called Gādhi-vamśānucarita. The first leaf of the ms. is missing and the work comes abruptly to an end. Even in ancient times there appears to have been a rivalry between the two great sages of the Ṛgveda viz. Vasiṣṭha (to whom and his family are ascribed the verses in the VII Maṇḍala of the Ṛgveda) and Viśvāmitra (to whom are ascribed the verses of the 3rd Maṇḍala of the same Veda). It appears from Ṛg. III. 53. 9-12 that Viśvāmitra's ancestor was Kuśika and that his prayers helped Bhārata people. At least as early as the Mahābhāṣya (vol. II p. 254 of Kielhorn's ed.) of Patañjali (on Pāṇ IV. 1. 104) the pedigree was Kuśika-Gādhi-Viśvāmitra. The name Gādhi does not occur in the Ṛgveda. The Mahābhārata and some of the Purāṇas are full of stories about the rivalry between Viśvāmitra and Vasiṣṭha. For enmity (vaira) between the two sages, vide Ādi chap. 175-176, Chitrashala ed. The gotra of the family was Viśvāmitra and the family is known as Gādhivamśa. In Ṛg. III. 33. 5 Viśvāmitra is said to be sūnu (son) of Kuśika. The plural of Kuśika occurs frequently in the Ṛg. Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa also composed a work called Dvaitanirṇaya, an account of which contributed by the present author will be found in ABORI vol. III pp. 67-72 (for 1921-22). The Gādhivamśānucarita of Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa does not mention the fact of the re-establishment of Viśveśvara by his father Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa. It is later descendants of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa that refer to this deed of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa. It is possible that Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa wrote the Gādhivamśānucarita before the restoration of Viśveśvara shrine.

Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa appears to have composed a work called 'jīvac-chrāddhavidhi' (based on the Brahmapurāṇa and other works) enabling a person to perform his own śrāddha while he was alive. Vide Prof. G. V. Devasthali's Des. Cat. of Sanskrit and Prakrit Mss. in the Library of the Bombay University No. 1045 p. 376 and Prof. Velankar's Des. Cat. of the Sanskrit Mss. in the Iccharam Desai Collection of the Bombay University Nos. 292-294 pp. 60-61. family of Benares, vide I. A. vol. 41 pp. 7-13 and for a detailed account of some members of that family and their works (particularly on Dharmaśāstra), vide the present author's Introduction to the Vyavahāramayūkha (pp. v-xlv) published by the B. O. R. I. in 1926. From several references it appears that Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa wrote a bhāṣya on the Gobhila-grhya-sūtra; vide Smṛtitattva (vol. I)-Tithi p. 14 ' Kuśāntarapratidinidhir-Bhaṭṭanārāyaṇair - Gobhila-bhāṣya uktaḥ); Saṁskāratattva pp. 878 and 904; (vol. II) Udvāhatattva p. 130. A few more examples of the use of the honorific plural Bhaṭṭa-Nārāyaṇacaraṇāḥ ' by Raghu. may be added here. Vide (vol. I) Śrāddha pp. 201, 245; Saṁskāra p. 868; (vol. II) Maṭhapraṭiṣṭhā 620, Śuddhi 251. M. M. Haraprasad Śāstri has brought to light a biography of this family written by Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa, a son of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa (Ind. Ant. for 1912 vol. 41, pp. 7-13). Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa's father Rāmeśvarabhaṭṭa whose gotra was Viśvāmitra migrated from Pratiṣṭhāna (Paithan) in the Deccan to Benares. Rāmeśvarabhaṭṭa was a very learned man and his learning drew to him students from the whole of India. Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa was born according to Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa's biography in śake 1435 in the month of Caitra (i. e. about March 1513 A. D.). Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa was the eldest of three sons, the other two being Śrīdhara and Mādhava. Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa learnt all the śāstras at the feet of his father. Pandits all over India looked up to him as their leader and patron and he was an assiduous collector of Sanskrit mss. It is said that Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa brought down by his holiness rain in a season of drought and thereby induced the Mahomedan ruler that had razed the temple of Viśveśvara at Benares to the ground to allow him to rebuild it. For his erudition and piety Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa was honoured with the title 'Jagadguru' and his family was given the first place of honour in the assembly of learned Brāhmaṇas and at the recitations of the Vedas. It was Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa and his equally worthy descendants that raised dākṣiṇātya pandits to the position of high eminence at Benares which they still hold. Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa wrote numerous works on dharmaśāstra among which may be mentioned the Antyeṣṭipaddhati (printed by Nirṇayasāgara Press), the Tristhālī-setu (dealing with the ceremonies to be performed generally at all sacred places and particularly at Prayāga, Kāśī and Gayā) and the Prayogarātna (printed at the Nirṇayasāgara Press, 1915 A. D.). This last contains detailed descriptions and rituals of the saṃskāras from garbhādhāna to vivāha. His are standard works on the subjects they deal with and are used even now almost throughout the whole of India. He composed a commentary on the introductory verses contained in the Kālamādhava (vide Madras Triennial Cat. vol. III. Sanskrit C. p. 4114 No. 2852) and a commentary on portions of the Śāstradīpikā of Pārthasārathimiśra. He composed a work on ordeals which is referred to in the Vyavahāratattva of Nīlakaṇṭha (vide p. 457 of my edition of the Vyavahāramayūkha and Bikaner cat. p. 387 No. 832 for a Divyānuṣṭhāna-paddhati of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa) and also paddhatis on the dedication of gardens, tanks etc. For a Jalāśayotsargavidhi of Nārāyaṇa, vide I. O. Cat. No. 1717 and Mitra's Notices V. p. 146 and Prof. Velankar's Cat. of the Bombay University's Desai Collection of Mss. pp. 41-42 No. 204. He exercised a profound influence over later writers directly and indirectly through his sons and grand-sons. Vide Cat. of India Office Sanskrit Mss. (part III p. 547 where the दानही (हा ?) रावलि-प्रकाश of दिवाकर son of महादेव says so) and Hultsch's Report on South Indian Sanskrit mss. vol. III. p. 106 which quotes a verse from भाट्टदिनकर about the re-installation of Viśveśvara by Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa : श्रीरामेश्वरतस्ततः समभवच्छ्रीभट्टनारायणः शास्त्रान्नायपरायणः खलमतध्वान्तैकविद्रावणः । काश्यां पातकिविदुतं भगवतो विश्वेश्वरस्याचलं लिङ्गं भाग्यवशात्सुखाय जगतां संस्थापयामास यः ॥ 5th verse at the end of the work.

This was a perverse extension of the original idea of Śrāddha. It may however be noted that the Vāyupurāṇa (on Gayā) chap. 83. 34 refers to the offering of śrāddha to oneself at Gayā. आत्मनस्तु महाबुद्धे गयायां तु तिलैर्विना । पिण्डनिर्वापणं कुर्यात्तथा चान्यत्र गोत्रजाः ॥ quoted in त्रिस्थलीसेतु p. 350 from स्मृतिरत्नावली; vide also पिण्डो देयस्तु सर्वेभ्यः सर्वे वै कुलतारकैः । आत्मनस्तु तथा देयो ह्यक्षयं लोकमिच्छता ॥ वायु 105. 12 and अग्निः 115. 68 The त्रिस्थलीसेतु p. 350 remarks ' इदं चान्यस्यात्मनो वा जीवतः पिण्डदानं जनार्दनहस्त एव कार्यं न तु गयातीर्थमात्रे ।

Those interested in the several eminent writers of this gifted Bhaṭṭa family of Benares may refer to the present author's Introduction to the Vyavahāramayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha (published by the Bhandarkar Oriental Institute, Poona, in 1926 pp. v-xxvii). Only a brief pedigree of the family is added here: ¹³⁶⁵

As he was born in 1513 A. D. and composed the commentary on the Vṛttaratnākara in 1545 A. D., his literary activity must be placed between 1540 and 1570 A. D. This is further corroborated by the fact that his grandson Kamalākarabhaṭṭa composed the Nirṇayasindhu, one of his earliest works, in 1612 A. D.

It appears that Kāntānāthabhaṭṭa, a descendant of Kamalākarabhaṭṭa, published a work called 'Bhaṭṭa-vaṃśa-Kāvya' in 1903 at the Ananda-kādamini press of Mirzapur. Kāntānāthabhaṭṭa was head Pandit at the Sanskrit Pāṭhaśālā at that place. In the Hindi Preface to that work he said that he saw Śaṅkara-bhaṭṭa's work called Gādhivaṃśavarṇana and Mandlik's edition of the Vyavahāramayūkha and that induced him to write the work. It is in 10 sargas and contains 429 verses in several metres. The pedigree he gives differs from Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa's work in several respects. It is unnecessary to pursue this matter here.

There is a work on dharmaśāstra called Dharmapravṛtti composed by a Nārāyaṇa. Mr. K. P. Jayasval holds that this was composed by jagadguru Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa (JBORS for 1927, vol. XIII, parts III-IV, p. xi). The same view is held by M. M. Haraprasad Śāstri (Ind. Ant. for 1912 p. 7). Prof. Velankar in his Cat. of the Sanskrit Mss. in the Iccharam Suryaram Desai Collection of the Bombay University (p. 45) appears to identify Nārāyaṇa, author of Dharmapravṛtti (mss. No. 217 and 218 on p. 45) with the famous Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, author of Prayogaratna. But this identity is extremely doubtful. The benedictory verses¹³⁶⁶ in the Dharmapravṛtti are different from those of the Prayogaratna and Tristhalīsetu, the method of treatment and the style are different and the colophons are also different. The author of the Dharmapravṛtti does not mention his ancestors as Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa does. Nīlakaṇṭha in his Vyavahāramayūkha finds¹³⁶⁷ fault with the Dharmapravṛtti by saying that certain quotations therein are unauthoritative.

109. Ṭoḍarānanda

Rājā Ṭoḍaramalla, the celebrated finance minister of Akbar, compiled an extensive encyclopædia of civil and religious law, astronomy and medicine. I gave in the first edition some information about this work gathered from several sources. No part of the work had been printed when the first edition of the first volume was published in 1930. In 1945 Pandit K. Madhav Krishna Sarma contributed a paper on Ṭoḍarānanda to the Journal of the G. J. R. I. of Allahabad, vol. III. pp. 63-66. There he stated that the Anup Sanskrit Library at Bikaner has the most complete set of the parts of the Ṭoḍarānanda. In 1948 Dr. P. L. Vaidya published a volume containing two parts of the text of the encyclopaedic work viz. on Sarga (creation of the world) and Avatāras, in the Gaṅgā Oriental Series of Bikaner with a Foreword by Sardar K. M. Panikkar (the then Prime Minister of the Bikaner State), with a learned Introduction (by Dr. Vaidya), Text (in 386 pages) and some Appendices (Appendix A, giving a brief sketch of the life of Raja Todarmal, B containing a few stanzas glorifying Todarmal found in Maṇirāma's Padyasaṅgraha and three verses from the Benares Draupadī-Kuṇḍa Inscription of Saṁvat 1616 (i. e. 1589 A. D.) inscribed by order of Todarmal, Appendix C (pp. 395-414) supplying information on several sections of the Ṭoḍarānanda derived from mss. in different libraries.

Dr. Vaidya (in his Introduction pp. xvii-xxxI) brings together valuable information about Todarmal and his work.

After a few Introductory verses containing obeisance to Brahman, Kṛṣṇa, Gaṇeśa and Manu (in six verses), a few verses (I. 7-18) deal with the family and ancestors of Todarmal. Todarmal came of a Kṣatriya family of Oudh called Ṭaṇḍana. The first ancestor named is Bāla (I. 7) who was a devotee of Kṛṣṇa. His son was Attali - son Dāma (Dāmodara) - son Assū (a warrior and devotee of Kṛṣṇa) - his son Dvārakādāsa, patron of learned men - son Dvijamalla - son Bhagavatīdāsa - son Ṭoḍaramalla born at Laharpur in Oudh. The family was in straightened circumstances owing to Bhagavatīdāsa's large charities which the Pandit (who composed the Intro. verses) says uprooted poverty for a long time (Intro. v. 13). He had to accept service under Akbar as a clerk. Akbar soon found out Todarmal's great talents and sent him to Gujarat (which had recently been conquered by him) as a gifted revenue settlement officer and also a warrior. Later, Akbar sent him to Bihar and Bengal for the same purpose. Akbar made him a commander, Wazir and Diwan in 1582 A. D.). Todarmal was not only endowed with high qualities but was also highly interested in learning and spent much of his wealth in charities, in building or renovating temples, consecrating images of Kṛṣṇa and constructing large tanks and wells. He is said to have rebuilt the temple of Viśveśvara at the instance of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa about 1585 A. D. This temple was later demolished in 1669 A. D. by Aurangzeb. The Ṭoḍarānanda is divided into 22 sections called Saukhyas and each Saukhya has sub-sections called harṣas.

The question is whether Todarmal is the author of the work called Ṭodarānanda, that he was the inspirer, there can be no doubt. Verse 19 (of Introduction) states that he called together learned Pandits of pure character, honoured them and instructed them to compile this work which would be the quintessence of the several Purāṇas and Smṛtis.¹³⁶⁸ Dr. P. L. Vaidya says that the Ṭodarānananda must have been composed between 1572 A. D. (which is the year mentioned in Jyotisaukhya p. xxx of Intro.) and 1589 A. D. (the year in which Todarmal died). We have also to remember that the extent of the Encyclopaedia (as Dr. Vaidya says on p. 414) cannot be fixed with certainty, since the Rājanīti and Karmavipāka sections have not yet been traced and the Śrāddhasaukhya Ms. has no beginning nor end. He further says that we can roughly ascertain the extent of the remaining sections which put together comes to be of 72150 Ślokas (each śloka of 32 syllables). He further conjectures that the extent of the entire Ṭodarānanda may be in the neighbourhood of 80000 Ślokas.

The several parts of that encyclopædia dealing with ācāra, dāna, vyavahāra, śrāddha, viveka, prāyścitta, samaya were called saukhyas. An account of some of the saukhyas that were available to me may be concisely given here. The Vyavahārasaukhya (D. C. ms. No. 366 of 1875-76) begins with an invocation of Śiva, speaks of the pārasika emperor¹³⁶⁹ (Akbar) of Hind (India) and then deals with the several topics of judicial procedure such as the king's duty to look into disputes, the sabhā, judge, meaning of the word vyavahāra, enumeration of 18 vyavahārapadas, time and place of vyavahāra, the plaint, the reply, the agent of the parties (pratinidhi), pratyākālita, the superiority of one mode of proof over another, witnesses, documents, possession, inference, ordeals and oaths, grades of punishments and fines. The Vyavahārasaukhya does not dwell on the exposition of the several titles of law. Besides the smṛti writers, it principally relies on the Kalpataru, the Pārijāta, Bhavadeva, the Mitākṣarā, the Ratnākara, Harihara, and Halāyudha. The several sections are styled harṣas.

The Vivāhasaukhya (D. C. Ms. No. 916 of 1886-92 in folios 54) is chiefly concerned with the astrological aspects of marriage viz. the proper year, month, day, zodiacal sign, nakṣatra for marriage, good characteristics of a marriageable girl and bridegroom; proper age for marriage for a girl and a male; many authors and works are quoted (most of which are mentioned below).¹³⁷⁰

The Śrāddhasaukhya (D. C. ms. No. 257 of 1884-87) is an extensive work and deals with the usual topics such as the different kinds of śrāddhas, the time and place for śrāddha, the proper brāhmaṇas, sapīṇḍikaraṇa &c. The sections of this work also are divided into harṣas. Besides those enumerated above the authors and works mentioned are noted below.¹³⁷¹

The Jyotiḥsaukhya (D. C. ms. No. 915 of 1886-92) constitutes the Samhitā branch of Indian astronomy and deals with such topics as the results of eclipses, the appearance of comets, the rise of Agastya, Ursa major, the signs of the Zodiac &c. It frequently refers to Kāśyapa, Garga (or Vṛddhagarga), Parāśara, Mayūracitra, Varāha. The colophons state that Ṭoḍaramalla was a scion of the Ṭaṇḍala (or - na) family and that the work was compiled by Nīlakaṇṭha at the order of Ṭoḍaramalla.¹³⁷² This Nīlakaṇṭha appears to be the author of the Sañjñātāntra on which a commentary was written by his son Govinda in 1622 A. D., in which it is stated that Nīlakaṇṭha was honoured by Akbar and had composed the Ṭoḍarānanda.¹³⁷³ In the Tājika-Nīlakaṇṭhī of Nīlakaṇṭha it is stated that the author composed works on the three branches of Jyotiṣa which gave delight to Ṭoḍara.¹³⁷⁴

The Jyotiṣsauhya was composed in śake 1494¹³⁷⁵ (i. e. 1572 A. D.). The ms. of the Vyavahārasauhya bears at the end the date saṁvat 1638 (1581-82¹³⁷⁶ A. D.) which seems to be the date of its composition. Ṭoḍaramalla was a man of versatile genius. He distinguished himself as an able commander as well as a great financier and statesman. The Ṭoḍarānanda gives some information about the family of Todarmal and his ancestors (as briefly set out above). Besides, Blochman's English translation of the Ain-i-Akbari (Vol. I. pp. 351-52) gives some information. On p. 352 we are told that his son Dharu i. e. Govardhanadhārī) was a commander of 700 horse and was killed in a campaign in Sindh. Beveridge's Akbarnama (Index Vol. p. 62) refers to two sons of Todarmal viz. Dhari (i. e. Govardhanadhārī) and Kalyāṇa. Other useful works are; Vincent Smith's biography of Akbar in the series called "Rulers of India"; and Dr. A. S. Altekar's History of Benares (pp. 39-43). Todarmal was born at Laharpur in Oudh and not at Lahore as is often

Dr. Vaidya's edition of the first two parts (on p. 6 verses 24-27) enumerates the twentytwo parts (called Saukhyas) in which the subjects were distributed (vide not below).¹³⁷⁷

Several parts of this huge work are described as viracita (composed) by Todarmalla e. g. the printed text of Dr. Vaidya's edition of the first two Saukhyas (vide note below). Dr. Vaidya (in Intro. p. xxvi) argues that these words are not to be taken literally, that all that is meant is that Todaramalla conceived the project and provided for all the expenses incurred in engaging learned Pandits for collecting the material, for arranging it under proper heads and making copies of the several parts of it. I agree with him in this matter. But Dr. Vaidya goes further and argues (Introduction pp. xxvii-viii) that considering all the facts he would ascribe the authorship of the Todarānanda to Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa chiefly (p. xxviii of Intro.). I demur to this conclusion. In verse 19 of the Introduction quoted above, it is expressly stated that Todarmal invited learned men of pure character and directed them to compose the work. There was nothing to prevent him from saying that he called 'Bhaṭṭa-Nārāyaṇa' among the Pandits to preside over the task of preparing a huge work on Dharmaśāstra.

Dr. Vaidya agrees (p. xxx of Introduction) that the work was undertaken and finished between 1572 to 1589 A. D., the year in which Todarmal died.

To me it appears probable that Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa refused to undertake such a heavy task because he had become old (in

The colophon at the end of the printed text is इति श्री निरुपमसमर स्वीकार साहस-निरन्तरानन्त हयहस्ति हेमहीरादिदान-कृतार्थीकृतार्थिसार्थवचोतिष्ठाकनिष्ठीकृत प्रथमपार्थ-पारसीकाधिनाथश्रीमज्जलाल-दीनामाकबरमाहप्रथमामाल्य-महाराजाधिराज-श्रीमटोडमल्लविरचिते टोडरानन्दे अवतारसौख्ये दशमो हर्षः ।

1572 he would have been about 59 years old). There is another important circumstance indicating that Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa must not have anything to do with this encyclopaedia, since we know for certain that the Jyotiḥsaukhyā, (a part of the Ṭoḍarānanda) was composed by Nīlakaṇṭha, son of Ananta (vide p. 398 of Dr. Vaidya's edition). If the name of one Pandit Nīlakaṇṭha is expressly mentioned as regards the Saṁhitāsaukhyā, no acceptable reason can be advanced as to why Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa's name is not mentioned anywhere, if he had been responsible for the other parts of the encyclopaedia or for the whole work.

It may be noted that the Ṭoḍarānanda came to be mentioned as an authoritative work at least from about 1610 A. D. For example, the Nirṇayasindhu (of Kamalākaraḥṭṭa) cites it and so does the Vyavahāramayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha, paternal cousin of Kamalākara (vide note below).¹³⁷⁸

The Vivāhasaukhyā refers to the Rājanītisaukhyā, to the Gaṇītasaukhyā, Saṁskārasaukhyā, Horāsukha (these last three said to be already composed).¹³⁷⁹

The Marathi magazine ' Itihāsasamgraha ' publishes an inscription on a stone found in the Draupadīkūṇḍa at Benares wherein it is said that Ṭoḍara of the Ṭaṇḍana family construc-

Dr. Vaidya describes at some length (in Appendix C pp. 395-414) the mss. material available for the several Saukhyas in addition to the Āgamasaukhyā or Mantrasaukhyā not enumerated among the 22 Saukhyas. Page 402 (of Dr. Vaidya's appendix) shows that the Vāstusaukhyā (or Deśa-saukhyā) also appears to have been entrusted to Nīlakaṇṭha, son of Ananta.

ted that beautiful reservoir in 1646 of the Vikrama era¹³⁸⁰ (i. e. 1589 A. D.). Therefore it follows that literary works were compiled under the patronage of Todarmal between 1570-1586 A. D.

It is not possible for reasons of space to deal with all or most of the Saukhyas of Ṭodarānanda but it would be interesting for scholars to know something more of one or more of the other Saukhyas like the Vivāhasaukya of this large Saukhya called Ṭodarānanda.

He begins by saying that the person who has completed his studies (snātaka) and has returned from the Gurukula is required by the Smṛtis e. g. Manu III. 2, VI. 34 to become a householder. Therefore our śāstras require every young man to be married and in order that he should get married he has to look into the Astrological matters which are omitted here. Manu and others praise Vivāha very much which is unnecessary to set out here. Manu recommends (chap. IX) a girl that has attained puberty to be married by her parents and guardians to a worthy bride-groom and that if such a bride-groom is not secured she might remain unmarried for her life. While arranging for the matter parents or guardians require that an astrologically proper conjunction of heavenly bodies is secured. According to Saṃskāra-saukhya based on Parāśara and other writers the girl should be married between 8 to 10 years. One writer called Śrīdhara in his work called Vivāhapāṭala quotes that the marriage may be performed at all times. Many authors and works have been quoted in this Vivāhasaukhya No. 916 of 1886-92 at B. O. R. I. Dozens of Smṛtis and authors are quoted as also astrological and astronomical works. But it is not possible to enter into greater details here for want of space.

It refers to the Gaṇitasaukhya on fol. 26 a. He also refers to Horāsaukhya on folio 46b, Rājanīti-Saukhya on folio 53 b.

This ms. is well written and the present author feels that an edition of it can be easily brought out on one ms. alone.

110. Nandapaṇḍita

Nandapaṇḍita was a voluminous writer on dharmaśāstra. An account of his principal works on dharmaśāstra is given below, particularly because most of them are yet unpublished. He was also called Vināyaka as stated in his commentary (named Śuddhi-candrikā) on the Śaḍasīti (also called Āśaucanirṇaya) of Āditya of the Kauśika-gotra. Nandapaṇḍita came of the Dharmādhikāri family of Benares and is described as the son of Dharmādhikāri Rāmapaṇḍita. There were several families in Benares famous for their learned works on Dharmaśāstra and other branches such as the Bhāṭṭa family (to which belonged Bhaṭṭanārāyaṇa, Kamalākara and Nīlakaṇṭha), the Dharmādhikāri family and the Śeṣa family. This last had Śeṣakṛṣṇa, his son Viśveśvara, whose three pupils viz. Jagannāthapaṇḍita, Bhaṭṭoji Dīkṣita and Aṇṇambhaṭṭa, author of Tarkasaṅgraha, distinguished themselves as great scholars in their own special studies.

He composed a commentary called Vidvanmanoharā on the Parāśarasmiṭi. He expressly mentions therein that he follows the commentary of Mādhavācārya.¹³⁸¹ This commentary is referred to in his Vaijayantī.¹³⁸²

He also appears to have written a commentary called Pramitākṣarā or Pratītākṣarā on the Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara.¹³⁸³ This commentary was probably not completed, as only fragments are found with his descendants.

Nandapaṇḍita also composed a work called Śrāddhakalpalatā, which is referred to in his Śuddhicandrikā¹³⁸⁴ and in the Vaijayanti. In this work¹³⁸⁵ he refers to a city called Sādhārana (probably modern Saharanpur) where the Sahagila family ruled. He speaks of Simhamalla, Vasāvana, Rūpacandra, Bhūpacandra and Paramānanda as successive members of the dynasty and says that he was urged to write the work by the last of them and that he relies upon the Śrāddhadīpikā of Govindapaṇḍita.¹³⁸⁶ At the end of the ms. of the Vaijayantī in the Deccan College Collection it is said that the Vidvanmanoharā, the Smṛtisindhu and the Śrāddhakalpalatā were the commentaries composed by Nandapaṇḍita.¹³⁸⁷ But from the contents given in the India Office Catalogue it does not appear that the work was a commentary. It is divided into five stabakas and deals with the usual topics, viz. what is śrāddha, the proper time and place for it, the proper brāhmaṇas, various kinds of śrāddhas &c. The principal authors and works named therein are given below.¹³⁸⁸ The Śrāddhakalpalatā was published in the Chowkhamba S. Series (1935) in 262 pages. In Poona Orientalist (vol. 15 pp. 60-64) Dr. S. L. Katre shows that a ms. of the Śrāddhakalpalatā is dated in Saṃvat 1641 (i. e. 1584-85 A. D.). The same scholar shows (in I. H. Q. vol. 28 for 1952, pp. 91 ff.) that a ms. of Śuddhicandrikā (which mentions the Śrāddhakalpalatā at least five times) was copied in Saṃvat 1960, Śrāvaṇa-vadi (i. e. in July 1603 A. D.). Therefore Śrāddhakalpalatā must have been composed several years earlier than 1603 A. D.

The Śuddhicandrikā of Nandapaṇḍita on the Śaḍaśiṭi of Ādityācārya has been published in the Chowkhamba Sanskrit Series of Benares (1928).¹³⁸⁹ The Śuddhicandrikā, a commentary on the Ṣaḍaśīti or Āśaucanirṇaya of Kauśikāditya, is also one of the works of Nandapaṇḍita. It is referred to in his Vaijayanti.¹³⁹⁰ The Bhadkamkar collection made by Prof. Velankar contains a ms. of this work and it has recently been published in the Chowkhamba Sanskrit Series. The principal authors and works quoted therein are noted below.¹³⁹¹

Another work of Nandapaṇḍita is the Smṛtisindhu, which seems to have been an extensive digest of smṛti material. Portions of it have been recovered. In the Deccan College Collection there is a ms. of the Saṁskāra-nirṇayatarāṅga of the Smṛtisindhu, which, according to a verse at the end, was composed by Nandapaṇḍita at the command of king Harivaṁśa-varman of the Māhendra family and son of king Maṅga.¹³⁹²

It appears that he compiled a summary of the doctrines of his work Smṛtisindhu. That summary was called Tattvamuktāvalī.¹³⁹³ It is almost certain that the fragment of the Tattvamuktāvalī noticed in the BBRAS Cat. at p. 217 is a part of this work. That fragment contains 8 verses on upākarma and three on holikā with commentary and the verses are numbered from

A few words may be said there about the edition of Nandapaṇḍita's commentary Vaijayantī on the Viṣṇusmṛti published (in 1960) at Adyar (in its library series). It is in two volumes containing 1070 pages in all. The text and com. are printed in beautiful type at the Vasant Press, the Theosophical Society of Adyar. There is a preface (4 pages), Introduction (pp. ix-xxvii) by Pandit V. Krishnamacharya, also a Bibliography, 100 chapters of the Viṣṇudharmaśāstra, the text of the Smṛti in large and beautiful type, the commentary Vaijayantī in a smaller but clear type, several Indexes, viz. alphabetical index of the sūtras of Viṣṇusmṛti, an Index of the words occurring in the sūtras, an Index of the mantras cited in the Viṣṇusmṛti, an Index of the authors and works cited in the commentary; an Index of the texts cited as authorities in the Vaijayantī (pp. 952-1667); Addenda and Corrigenda (two pages). In this work he refers to a Brāhmaṇa dynasty of the Vasiṣṭha gotra at Vijayapura (Vijayanagara?) in Karpāṭa country, in which was born Koṇḍapanāyaka, whose son was Keśavanāyaka, whose son was Ananta alias Vāvarasa, whose sons were Keśava and Rudra. Keśava, son of Koṇḍapa, seems to have gone to Benares with his sons and grandsons and made extensive gifts of all kinds.¹³⁹⁵ There is a hyperbolic description of his great gifts (mahādānas including tulā, i. e. weighing against gold or silver). In verses 76-77 of the printed edition of Vaijayantī, Keśavanāyaka enjoined upon Nandapaṇḍita the task of composing a commentary on the Viṣṇusmṛti.¹³⁹⁶ In the colophons at the end of the chapters of Viṣṇu, Koṇḍapanāyaka is styled Mahārājādhirāja and it is said that Nandapaṇḍita was encouraged in the task by Keśavanāyaka alias Tammanāyaka.

At the end of chapter 101, we are told that Keśavanāyaka, Nandapaṇḍita's patron, secured mokṣa by breathing his last on the Maṇikarnikā in Benares.¹³⁹⁷ There are six verses at the end one of which says that in the Kali age there is no one more liberal than Vāvarasa (a son of Keśavanāyaka) and no one more learned than Nandapaṇḍita.¹³⁹⁸ As he wrote on the encouragement of Keśava, the commentary is also styled Keśava-Vaijayantī. Among the authors and works mentioned in this commentary are Devasvāmī, Budhasmṛti, Bhavadeva, Mādhavācārya, Vācaspati, Sarvajña, Subodhini (com. on the Mit.), Haradatta, Hemādri. In the Vaijayantī he refers to no less than six of his works viz: the Vidvan-manoharā, the Pramitākṣarā, the Śrāddhakalpalatā, the Śuddhicandrikā, the Dattaka-mīmāṃsā (vide note 1382 above). But in the Dattaka-mīmāṃsā itself he refers to his Keśava-Vaijayantī as already composed.¹³⁹⁹ Therefore it follows that both works were probably being composed at the same time. The Vaijayanti was held by the British Indian Courts as one of the leading authorities of the Benares School of modern Hindu Law.¹⁴⁰⁰

Nandapaṇḍita, though he generally follows the Mitākṣarā, was not a slavish admirer of Vijñāneśvara. He does not accept the explanation the Mitākṣarā gives of Yāj. II. 17 (sākṣiṣūbhayataḥ etc.). Similarly on Viṣṇu 8. 12, 22. 41, 23. 11, 27. 2 he emphatically says that the Mitākṣarā is wrong.¹⁴⁰¹ He prefers the father to the mother as an heir (on Viṣṇu 17. 6-7) and seems to have placed the paternal grandmother as an heir after the mother but before the brother (folio 101 b). He explains sapinda relationship in the same way as the Mit.¹⁴⁰² does. He says that the word 'bhrātaraḥ' in Yāj. should be explained as standing for 'brothers and sisters' and that in the father's line, after the brother and brother's son, the brother's grandson succeeds and, on failure of the brother's grandson, the paternal grandfather, his son and grandson are heirs one after another, i. e. in each line three generations succeed and then there is a devolution in favour of the next higher line. This view is opposed to that of the Subodhinī and the Smṛticandrikā, which take only the son and grandson of each paternal ancestor. Vide my notes to the Vyavahāramayūkha for fuller details (pp. 253-254). Nandapaṇḍita stands alone among modern nibandhakāras in having recognised a uterine brother¹⁴⁰³ (i. e. the son of the same mother but of a different father) as an heir. It is remarkable that Nandapaṇḍita preferred a person's predeceased son's widow (i. e. widowed daughter-in-law) as an heir to that man's own daughter.¹⁴⁰⁴

The Dattaka-mīmāṃsā is the most famous work of Nandapaṇḍita. It was translated very early by Sutherland in 1821 A. D. (comprised in Stoke's Hindu Law Books). In the following the edition of Bharatacandra Śiromaṇi (published in 1885 with his own commentary) has been used. In this work he lays down rules as to the person who may adopt, when he may adopt, who can give in adoption, who may be adopted, the motives of adoption, the necessary ceremonies of adoptions, the results of adoption. Among the authors and works quoted or referred to, those mentioned below may be noted.¹⁴⁰⁵

The Anandashram Press of Poona brought out (in 1941 A. D.) an edition of the Dattakamīmāṃsā with a modern Sanskrit commentary called Mañjarī by Śaṅkara, son of Raṅganātha.

From very early days of the British rule in India the Dattakamīmāṃsā came to be regarded as the standard work on adoption. In *Collector of Madura v. Mootoo Ramalinga*¹⁴⁰⁶ the Privy Council says "Again of the Dattakamīmāṃsā of Nandapaṇḍita and the Dattakacandrikā of Devaṇṇabhaṭṭa, two treatises on the particular subject of adoption, Sir William Macnaghten says that they are respected all over India; but that, when they differ, the doctrine of the latter is adhered to in Bengal and by the southern jurists, while the former is held to be the infallible guide in the provinces of Mithilā and Benares." That this estimate is somewhat too strongly put has been said by the Privy Council itself in *Bhagwansingh v. Bhagwansingh*¹⁴⁰⁷ 'to call it infallible is too strong an expression and the estimates of Sutherland and of West and Bühler seem nearer the true mark; but it is clear that both works must be accepted as bearing high authority for so long a time that they have become embedded in the general law.' The Privy Council further lays down 'their Lordships cannot concur with Knox J. in saying that their (of the Dattakamīmāṃsā and Dattaka-candrikā) authority is open to examination, explanation, criticism, adoption or rejection like any scientific treatises on European jurisprudence.'¹⁴⁰⁸ Even in those parts of the Bombay Presidency where the Vyavahāramayūkha is a work of paramount authority, the Dattakamīmāṃsā has on the subject of adoption been preferred in certain matters to the Vyavahāramayūkha. For example, the Bombay High Court, following the Dattakamīmāṃsā, has laid down that among the three higher castes a man cannot adopt his own daughter's, sister's, or mother's sister's son. The view of the Vyavahāramayūkha, on the contrary, is that he can take these in adoption. The limits to which Nandapaṇḍita will be followed by the courts are laid down in Ramachandra v. Gopal : 'The authority of Nandapaṇḍita must be accepted except where it can be shown that he deviates from or adds to the smṛtis or where his version of the law is opposed to such established custom as the Courts recognise'.¹⁴⁰⁹

Several views expressed in the Dattakamīmāṃsā have been set at naught in the various provinces by the British Indian Courts. Nandapaṇḍita held that a widow could not adopt at all.¹⁴¹⁰ Except in Mithilā this view has nowhere been entertained in India and the Courts have held that the Law of Benares, Bengal, Madras and Bombay is different. Nandapaṇḍita put forward the position that the brother's son must be preferred for adoption over any other sagotra or sapiṇḍa.¹⁴¹¹ This has, however, been treated in all provinces as no more than a mere recommendation and that failure to observe it entails no legal or religious consequences whatever. The expression 'putracchāyā' in 'putracchāyāvaham' occurring in the text of Śaunaka was explained by Nandapaṇḍita to mean 'similarity to a son born' and he said that the similarity consisted in the possibility of being begotten by means of niyoga and the like.¹⁴¹² Sutherland wrongly introduced the word 'marriage' after niyoga in his translation and some of the High Courts in India, following this wrong translation, evolved the rule that no one could be adopted whose mother the adopting father could not have legally married in her maiden state.¹⁴¹³ But the Bombay High Court has laid down that the rule is restricted to the three specified cases of the daughter's son, the sister's son, and the mother's sister's son.¹⁴¹⁴ From the text (brāhmaṇāditraye nāsti bhāgineyaḥ sutaḥ kvacit), Nandapaṇḍita evolved the curious rule that a widow cannot adopt to her deceased husband her own brother's son. But the Privy Council has refused to follow this dictum on the ground that the gloss of Nandapaṇḍita is an extension not based on the authority of any smṛti and has upheld such an adoption.¹⁴¹⁵

It should be noted that the 'Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act' (No. 78 of 1956) passed by the Indian Parliament has made far-reaching and radical changes in the Law of Hindu Adoption and section 4 of that Act overrules all texts, rules or interpretations of Hindu Law or customs and usages as part of that law, except in so far as they may have been expressly saved by that Act.

About the personal history of Nandapaṇḍita we do not know much. Mandlik in his Hindu Law (LXXII, n. 3) gives what information he could gather from descendants of Nandapaṇḍita living in Benares. According to him the founder of the family was Lakṣmīdhara who was a resident of Bidar (now in the Nizam's dominions) and who went to Benares. Nandapaṇḍita was the sixth in descent from him. Dr. Jolly visited at Benares Pandit Dhunḍirāja Dharmādhikārī who was 9th in descent from Nandapaṇḍita (Tagore Law Lectures, p. 15) and Mandlik's information also was gathered from persons who were 9th in descent from Nandapaṇḍita. Mandlik also gives a detailed genealogical tree. We learn from several works of Nandapaṇḍita and their colophons that he was also named Vināyakapaṇḍita and was the son of Rāmapaṇḍita of Benares who is styled Dharmādhikārī. Nandapaṇḍita also is described as Dharmādhikārī in the Saṁskāranirṇaya-taraṅga of the Smṛtisindhu (vide note 1392 above). It appears that Nandapaṇḍita was at different times patronised by rich patrons from different parts of India. He composed the Srāddhakalpalatā for Paramānanda of the Sahagila family of Sādhārana, the Smṛtisindhu for Harivaṁśavarman of the Māhendra family and the Vaijayanti for Keśavanāyaka of Madhurā.

Mandlik notes that Nandapaṇḍita is credited with the authorship of 13 works. Eight works of Nandapaṇḍita have been named and described above. Mandlik names six of these. Besides these he is said to have written Navarātra-pradīpa which has been published in the Princess of Wales Sarasvatī Bhavana Series, three sections of a work named Harivaṁśavilāsa (viz. dānakautuka, āhnikakautuka and saṁskārakautuka), Bālabhūṣā, Tīrthakalpalatā, Kālanirṇayakautuka, Kāśīprakāśa, Mādhavānanda. But we saw above (note 1393) that the Bālabhūṣā is only a commentary on the Tattvamuktāvalī (probably composed by another writer). The Kāśīprakāśa was certainly composed by Nandapaṇḍita as he is described in the India Office ms. to have been the son of Rāmapaṇḍita.¹⁴¹⁶ That work was composed at the order of one Sarvabhaṭṭa, who was the guru of Kṛṣṇanāyaka of Madhurā. In Mitra's Notices two works, Jyotiḥśāstrasamuccaya and Smārtasamuccaya, are described as composed by Nandapaṇḍita, son of Devaśarman and Vṛndā.¹⁴¹⁷ The latter seems to have been an extensive work and dealt with tithinirṇaya, intercalary month, marriage, sapinda relationship, the saṁskāras, daily observances, antyeṣṭi (funeral rites), āśauca, śuddhi, śrāddha, prāyaścitta, dāyabhāga and vyavahāra. Though the name of the father, Devaśarman, creates suspicion in one's mind, both these works must be regarded as the works of Nandapaṇḍita, son of Rāmapaṇḍita, as in the Smārtasamuccaya the author refers his readers to his Dattaka-mīmāṁsā for the subject of adoption. It is not unlikely that just as Nandapaṇḍita had the alias Vināyaka, his father Rāmapaṇḍita was also called Devaśarman.

Mandlik (Hindu Law LXXII, n. 3) notes that on a copy of the Mādhavānanda-kāvya composed by Nanda the year saṁvat 1655 (1599 A. D.) is given, probably in Nandapaṇḍita's own handwriting. The Vaijayanti was one of Nandapaṇḍita's latest works. That work, we are told, was composed at Kāśī in Vikrama saṁvat 1679 (Nov. 1623) on the Full moon of Kārtika when the sun was in Scorpion and the moon in Taurus.¹⁴¹⁸ Therefore the literary activity of Nandapandita must be placed between 1580 and 1630 A. D. Mandlik in his Hindu Law (p. 281) says that the Vaijayantī of Nandapandita is referred to in the Vyavahāramayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha. I have not been able to find the reference in the latter work.

111. Kamalākarabhaṭṭa

Kamalākarabhaṭṭa was one of the foremost scions of the Bhaṭṭa family. He was a grandson of the famous Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa and a son of Rāmakṛṣṇabhaṭṭa. He was one of three brothers, the eldest being Dinakara alias Divākara¹⁴¹⁹ and the youngest was Lakṣmanabhaṭṭa,¹⁴²⁰ who studied under Kamalākarabhaṭṭa. Kamalākarabhaṭṭa's father Rāmakṛṣṇa also was a very¹⁴²¹ learned man and a profound mīmāṃsaka and his mother Umā immolated herself as a satī. Kamalākara was a man of profound erudition and composed works on almost every śāstra. In some of his own works there are high eulogies of his learning and proficiency in Tarka, Nyāya, grammar, mīmāṃsā (in both the schools of Kumārila and Prabhākara), Vedānta, Poetics, dharmaśāstra and Vedic sacrifices.¹⁴²² He composed more than twenty-two works. At the end of his Vivādatāṇḍava it is said that he composed the Nirṇayasindhu, a commentary on the Vārtika (of Kumārila), a work on the mīmāṃsā (śāstratattva) and a series of 20 other works.¹⁴²³ At the end of a ms. of the Śāntiratna in the Bhau Daji collection there is a list of 22 works of his out of which the Nirṇayasindhu is said to have been the first.¹⁴²⁴ More than half of these works are concerned with topics

The verses enumerating the 22 works are found not in all mss. of the Śāntiratna, but occur in the ms. described in Prof. Velankar's Cat. of Sanskrit and Prakrit Mss. in the Library of the B. B. R. A. S. (p. 234) published in 1925. Though in the Śāntiratna it is stated that the Nirṇayasindhu was Kamalākara's first work, yet it appears probable that Kamalākara made additions to that work from time to time e. g. on p. 248 of the Nirṇayasindhu he says ' अन्येषु मूलादिकक्षेषु शान्त्यादि प्रयोगपारिजाते मत्कृते शान्तिरत्ने च ज्ञेयम् ' ; the word ज्ञेयं is rather of doubtful import. It is possible that he had then only planned to write that work. On p. 257 of the same work on ' abhapūrti ' he refers to his work Śūdrakamalākara " विशेषो मत्कृते शूद्रधर्मे ज्ञेयः " On p. 293 (of Nirṇaya.) he mentions his Pravaradarpaṇa. The Śāntiratna is a large work dealing with rites for averting the evil consequences of portentuous phenomena or for birth on certain tithis, nakṣatras (like Mūla, Jyesthā, Āśleṣā) or evil influences of planets. The Śāntiratna is also called Śāntiratnākara, as in the Ms. in the Bhau Daji Collection of Mss. of the Bombay Asiatic Society (No. 305 of that collection, the extent being 357 folios); vide Prof. Velankar's Cat. of the Mss. with the B. of Dharmaśāstra, viz. the Nirṇayasindhu, the Dānakamalākara, Śāntiratna, Pūrtakamalākara, Vratakamalākara, Prāyaścittaratna, Vivādatāṇḍava, Bahvṛcāhnika, Gotrapravaradarpaṇa, Karmavipākaratna, Śūdrakamalākara, Sarvatīrthavidhi. The Śūdrakamalākara, the Vivādatāṇḍava and the Nirṇayasindhu are the most famous of his works on dharmaśāstra. Brief references may be made here to some of the works of Kamalākarabhaṭṭa other than the three mentioned above. It appears from the introductory verses of the Vratakamalākara that Kamalākara intended to compose a digest on dharma called Dharmatattva in ten paricchedas¹⁴²⁵ and not only carried it out but added some more works on dharma. It will be noticed that nine out of these 10 sections are enumerated under the same names at the end of the Śāntiratna quoted above, the one not named being the section on ācāra. Burnell mentions a work called Ācāradīpa by Kamalākara on daily duties and on the same page notices another work on āhnika by Kamalākara.¹⁴²⁶ It is difficult to say whether both are names of the same work. It is not unlikely that the ācāra section of the digest Dharmatattva is the same as the Bahvṛcāhnika enumerated at the end of the Śāntiratna. There is a ms. of the Bahvṛcāhnika at Bikaner.¹⁴²⁷ It deals with daily duties commencing with rising from one's bed at the brāhma muhūrta. In this work Kamalākarabhaṭṭa refers to his own Prāyaścittaratna, and

pp. 568-69 No. 1758. He expresses his difference even from his very famous grandfather Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa : e. g. on p. 214 he says “माघस्नानं काम्यमेवेति भट्टाः, विष्ण्वादिवाक्ये सदावश्यशब्दान्नित्यत्वा-वागतेनित्यकाम्यमिति तु युक्तम्” Similarly on p. 215 he differs from Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa “एतस्यार्थवादत्वाच्चत्किंचिदिनत्रयमिति भट्टाः। तत्त्व तु ‘सन्दिग्धेषु वाक्यशेषादिति न्यायात्रोदश्याद्येवेति। प्रयागं विनापि पादमे ‘असिन्योगे त्वशक्तोपि स्नायादपि दिनत्रयमिति। He differs from his father Rāmakṛṣṇabhaṭṭa also e. g. on p. 160. “आहिताग्नेः पिण्ड-पितृयज्ञकल्पेन श्राद्धं निषेधार्थमिदं न साकल्यादेरपि-इत्यस्मद्गुरवः। कृष्णपक्षश्राद्ध-मन्यदिनेषु प्राप्तमाहिताग्नेर्दर्शनं नियम्यते इति तु वयम्।” to the Madanapārijāta, Madanaratna, Mādhava and Śūlapāṇi. The Pūrtakamalākara¹⁴²⁸ was an extensive work and dealt with the dedication of tanks, wells, trees and gardens to the public, the dedication of Aśvattha tree and five sacred trees, dedication and laying the foundation of public buildings, consecration of sacred images, of Śālagrāma, of temples and flags, repairing of images, accidental breaking of temples, consecration of Vināyaka, pacification of planets, coronation of kings and emperors. In this work he mentions his own Dānakamalākara.

The Śāntiratna or Śāntikamalākara is a huge work.¹⁴²⁹

It deals with various rites for propitiating Vināyaka, the nine planets, and for averting the consequences of portentous occurrences and evil omens, birth on such constellations as mūla, the observances known as Ekādaśinī, Laghurudra, Mahārudra, Śata-candī &c. He refers to his own Nirṇayasindhu in this work.

The Nirṇayasindhu (on pp. 293, 300–301) mentions Pravara-darpaṇa as his work on Gotras and Pravaras.

In the Bombay Asiatic Society's Library there is a ms. of his Saṁskāra-prayogakamalākara which appears to be over and above the 22 works enumerated above.¹⁴³⁰ He starts with an enumeration of the 48 saṁskāras mentioned by Gautama, deals with the several saṁskāras of puṁsavana, jātakarma, marriage &c., and with utsarjana and upākarma, propitiatory rites on the first appearance of menses, the Aṣṭakā śrāddha &c.

His Tattva-kamalākara appears to have been a work of considerable interest dealing with the bearing of the doctrines and maxims of the Mīmāṃsā system on ritual and dharmaśāstra.¹⁴³¹ A ms. of it is dated saṁvat 1695 Caitra śukla 4 Friday (i. e. 9th March 1638 A. D.). Tattvakamlākara and Mīmāṃsā-kautūhala are two separate works, incomplete mss. of which are in possession of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. Vide 'Indian Culture' Vol. V.

pp. 211–214 (paper by Prof. Chintaharan Chakravarti). The first is briefly mentioned in Mitra's Notices, vol. III. p. 335 and it is stated in 'Indian Culture' Vol. V. that it comments on some selected sūtras of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā system. The Mīmāṃsā-kau-tūhala gives a brief outline of the principal doctrines of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā system. Of the Mantrakamalākara a ms. (complete in 126 leaves) is in the possession of the A. S. of Bengal. The work was composed for the benefit of Ananta, son of Kamalākarabhaṭṭa.

I was able to secure a ms. of the Vivādatāṇḍava from the Mandlik collection in the Fergusson College at Poona. That work closely resembles in method and matter the Vyavahāramayūkha of Kamalākara's cousin Nīlakaṇṭha, the section on ordeals being almost the same in both. It treats of the following subjects : the sabhā; members of the sabhā; judge, amātya; the scribe and the accountant; conflict of smṛtis; the plaint, the reply, the modes of proof, viz. documents, witnesses, possession; modes of punishment; the principal and secondary sons; the enumeration of the eighteen titles of law; partition of heritage and detailed description of the other titles. Like the Vyavahāramayūkha, the Vivādatāṇḍava quotes the Madanaratna as frequently as (or perhaps more frequently than) the Mitākṣarā. The other writers and works quoted are noted below.¹⁴³² As it mentions several works of his own, viz. Nirṇayasindhu, the Dānakamalākara, the Prāyaścittaratna and the Śūdradharmā (i. e. Śūdrakamalākara), the Vivādatāṇḍava was one of his latest works. On several points he differs from his own cousin Nīlakaṇṭha. For example, he prefers the mother to the father as an heir and does not give the sister a high place among the gotraja heirs as Nīlakaṇṭha does. The Vivādatāṇḍava has been frequently noticed in judicial decisions.¹⁴³³

The Vivādatāṇḍava was published in "Our Heritage" Vol. VII part 2 pp. 1–23 edited by Dr. Herambanath Chattopadhyaya.

The work is a small one. About half of its 23 pages contain foot-notes covering half or more of each page. Pages 2-5 have only 1/3 page for the text. Its first verse is quoted below¹⁴³⁴

The Śūdrakamalākara (also called Śūdra-dharmatattva or Śūdradharmatattvapraśāsa) has been printed in Bombay several times (with Marathi translation). I used the Nirṇayasāgara edition of 1895. In this work he refers to his own Dānakamalākara, Pūrtakamalākara, Prāyaścittaratna and Nirṇayasindhu. Out of about two hundred authors and works quoted therein, prominent ones are noted below.¹⁴³⁵ This work is a standard treatise on the duties and religious observances of Śūdras.

Kamalākaraḥṭṭa was at least prepared to say, following his father Rāmakaṇṣabhaṭṭa, that in spite of the statement in some Purāṇas that in the Kaliyuga only two varṇas viz. the first (Brāhmaṇas) and the last (viz. Śūdras) exist, Kṣatriyas and Vaiśyas that have given up their proper religious and other activities do exist here and there.¹⁴³⁶

He first starts with the discussion that the Śūdra is not authorised to study the Vedas, but that he can listen to the recitation by Brāhmaṇas of smṛtis and purāṇas and religious rites are to be performed for Śūdras with Purāṇic mantras. Then the following subjects are dealt with:—worship of Viṣṇu and other deities by Śūdras and the observances of vratas and fasts by them; Śūdra can make gifts of works of public utility (pūrta); Śūdra can adopt a son; the conflicting views as to the number of saṁskāras for a Śūdra, most authors holding that he is entitled to ten saṁskāras (without Vedic mantras), viz. garbhādhāna, pūmsavana, śīmanta, jātakarma, nāmakaraṇa, śiśuniṣkramaṇa, annaprāśana, cūḍākarma, kaṇṇavedha, and vivāha; the five great daily yajñas were to be performed for the śūdra according to the Vājasaneyasākhā;¹⁴³⁷ śrāddhas for Śūdra (to be performed with uncooked food); actions prescribed and forbidden in the case of Śūdras; the details of various rites and saṁskāras of Śūdras; the daily duties of Śūdras; impurity on birth and death; rites after death; duties of wives and widows; persons of mixed castes who have to follow the rules laid down for Śūdras; rules for those who are born of pratiloma connections; about Kāyasthas.

The Nirṇayasindhu or Nirṇayakamalākara is the most famous of Kamalākara's works. It is a monument of erudition, industry and lucidity. It has been judicially referred to as a work of authority.¹⁴³⁸ I have used the Nirṇayasāgara edition of 1905 (with Marathi translation). In the whole range of nibandhakāras there is hardly any other writer, except perhaps Nīlakaṇṭha and Mitrāmīśra, who lays under contribution as many works as Kamalākara does. In the Nirṇayasindhu about one hundred smṛtis and over three hundred nibandhakāras are mentioned by name. In the introductory verses he expressly says that he pondered over the views of Hemādri, Mādhava and other learned writers. The work is divided into three paricchedas. The following is a very concise statement of the contents of this voluminous work. The principal subject is to give decisive opinions as to the proper times for various religious acts; the various views about the year being solar, lunar, sidereal etc., months of four kinds, lunar, solar etc., saṁkrānti rites and gifts; intercalary month; kṣayamāsa; about tithis, śuddhā and viddhā (combined with another tithi on same day); vratas; the various vratas and festivals during the twelve months of the year; the saṁskāras from garbhādhāna onwards; sapinda relationship; consecration of images; auspicious times (muhūrtas) for various actions such as sowing operations, buying horses and cattle &c.; śrāddha;

The time when Kamalākara flourished can be determined with great accuracy. We saw above that the Nirṇayasindhu was one of his earliest works and that it is referred to in several works of his. According to a verse at the end of the Nirṇayasindhu the work was composed in 1668 of the Vikrama era on the 14th day of the dark half of the month of Māgha when cyclic year was Raudra (i. e. on the 20th February 1612 A. D.). In a ms. noticed by M. M. Haraprasāda Śāstri the same verse is read differently, so as to refer the composition to Vikrama saṁvat 1678; but it is clearly a copyist's error or misreading, since the cyclic year Raudra cannot tally with Vikrama 1678.¹⁴³⁹ We saw above that a ms. of the Tattvakamalākara is dated 1638 A. D. Kamalākara was a voluminous writer and therefore we shall be not far wrong if his literary activity be assigned to the period between 1610 A. D. and 1640 A. D. This date is corroborated in several ways. His grandfather Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa was born in 1513 A. D. and he quotes in his Nirṇayasindhu the Ṭoḍarānanda compiled in the last quarter of the 16th century.

The Ṭoḍarānanda is quoted by the Nirṇayasindhu on p. 26, on p. 96 (on Nṛsimhajayanti) and on p. 104 (the Tithisaukhya of Ṭoḍarānanda is quoted in Cātur māsyānirṇaya).

Though he expressly states in the Introductory verse 7 of the Nirṇayasindhu that he bestowed proper thought on the views of Hemādri and Mādhava and quotes both of them hundreds of times, he differs, in some places, from both of them or one of the two. On the pāraṇā (breaking the fast) on Śivarātri there are contradictory texts and both Hemādri and Mādhava evolve the same order out of contradictions, but Kamalākara does not accept that vyavasthā (vide pp. 224-25 of the Nirṇaya-sindhu).

Another interesting remark of Kamalākara shows that he probably introduced changes long after the Nirṇayasindhu was composed in 1612 A. D. In the Nirṇayasindhu (3rd pari. pūr-vārdha p. 250 on the subject of adoption) he holds that there is ownership in the father as regards his son and pompously declares that he, who says that there is no ownership in one's son, is a fool.¹⁴⁴⁰ The Nirṇayasindhu was Kamalākara's first work. The latter was the 2nd son of Rāmakṛṣṇa, who was the eldest son of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa, while Nīlakaṇṭha was the youngest of four brothers, who were the sons of Śaṅkarabhaṭṭa, the 2nd son of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa. So though both were first cousins, it is very likely that Nīlakaṇṭha, author of the twelve Mayūkhās, was junior to Kamalākara by some years at least and could not have been the author of a work before 1612 A. D., the date of the Nirṇayasindhu, the first work of Kamalākara.

He desired his work to be encyclopaedic and therefore, he remarks that the rites called Śatacaṇḍī, and Sahasracāṇḍī are not described in the great works (on Dharmaśāstra), but as those rites had become popular among people, he describes them in the Nirṇayasindhu (in his section on Navarātra pp. 185-86).¹⁴⁴¹ He quotes the Tristhalīsetu of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa dozens of times (e. g. pp. 16, 89, 99, 151, 208, 209, 214, 274 &c.) and also the Prayogarātna of the same, though not so frequently (as on pp. 53, 259, 266, 267). He quotes Raghunandana's work frequently e. g. Tithitattva (vol. I. pp. 135-36) quotes four verses from Liṅga-purāṇa (Āśvina paurṇamāsyām tu &c.) which are quoted in the Nirṇayasindhu (p. 191, 2nd pariccheda). Similarly, about the amāvāsyā of Āśvina the Nirṇayasindhu (p. 200) mentions a passage quoted in Tithitattva¹⁴⁴² (Jivananda, vol. I p. 185).

On p. 82 he refers to the Koṅkaṇas¹⁴⁴³ that rely on certain passages (about 7 verses) as contained in the Varāhapurāṇa about the Jayantīs (tithis) of the ten avatāras of Viṣṇu (viz. from Matsya to Kalkin) and remarks that they are obligatory on the devotees of the respective ten avatāras and optional for others. Here the word Kaṅkaṇas refers probably to learned men from Koṅkaṇa residing in Benares in Kamalākara's times or to authors from Koṅkaṇa (probably the latter).

The Nirṇayasindhu frequently mentions an author called Nārāyaṇa-vṛtti-kṛt. (e. g. pp. 37, 55, 58, 116, 153, 191, 291 &c.) on the Āśvalāyana Śrauta and Gṛhya sūtras. He is to be distinguished from Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa (the grandfather of Kamalākara).

He notes that the works of Gauḍa authors,¹⁴⁴⁴ such as the Tithitattva, hold that, after an invitation to officiate at a śrāddha is given and accepted, if there is death of a relative of the person inviting a brāhmaṇa or a relative of the invitee dies, both are not affected by āśauca, since the Viṣṇusmṛti provides that there is no āśauca for the performer (of śrāddha) nor for the officiating priest after the invitation to officiate is given and accepted. The Nirṇayasindhu remarks that the text applies to marriage and not to śrāddhas, since the word 'śrāddha' does not occur therein.

Kamalākara sometimes differs from his great ancestor Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa. For example, on p. 325 he quotes from the Prayogaratna a verse ' If the newly married bride makes her first entrance into her husband's house on the first, third or fifth day or the 2nd or 4th day from the day of her marriage, it is auspicious, but if she enters on the 6th day after her marriage she would incur sorrow in the form of separation or disease'. The Nirṇaya-sindhu avers that a passage in support of this has to be found (i. e. the assertoin made is baseless).¹⁴⁴⁵ On p. 337 (of N. S.) he further points out that in the Tristhalisetu his venerable grandfather stated that śūdras have no right to instal images of deities like Viṣṇu or Śaṅkara and relied on a passage of the Skandapurāṇa quoted in the Bṛāhan-Nāradiya but he (Kamalākara) says ' we hold that, on account of other passages from the Devīpurāṇa quoted in the Kṛtyakalpataru, in the case of śūdras there is an option as to establishing images of Viṣṇu or Śaṅkara.¹⁴⁴⁶ Vide p. 553, where he differs from Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa about suicide by a brāhmaṇa in certain circumstances and p. 554 where Mādhava, Aparārka and Hemādri approve of it for certain persons suffering from incurable diseases.

In some matters the N. S. takes a position far in advance of what some orthodox brāhmaṇas in modern times would like to recommend or follow; e. g. on p. 304 he provides that when a girl reaches the age of puberty, one should not wait to consider whether Jupiter's position is favourable but she should be got married even when Jupiter is in the 8th place from the rāśi at her birth (after performing Bṛhaspati-śānti thrice).

There are some interesting observations he makes. For example, if a man does not know his gotra and pravara he quotes Satyāṣāḍha to the effect that he should take the gotra and pravara of his purohita or ācārya; if he does not know them he should adopt the gotra and pravara of some one else or he should adopt Jamadagni as his gotra.¹⁴⁴⁷

People in the medieval times seem to have been frightened by the very names of some of the nakṣatras on which children were born. It is stated in the Brahmayāmala quoted in the Nirṇayasindhu that the effects of the birth of a child on one of the ten parts of the Jyeṣṭhā-nakṣatra are respectively as follows:— (1) death of the child's mother's mother, (2) death of the child's mother's father, (3) death of the mother's brother, (4) death of the child's mother, (5) death of the child itself, (6) destruction of the gotra (of the child), (7) destruction of the families of the child's mother and father, (8) death of the elder brother (of the child), (9) death of the father-in-law of the child, (10) death of relations. Similarly, very dire results of the birth of a child on Mūla nakṣatra are stated; viz. a child born in the first two ghaṭikās of Mūla should be abandoned or the father of the child should not see its face for eight years; birth of a child born on the four quarters of the Mūla nakṣatra portends respectively death of the father, death of the mother, loss of father's wealth and the 4th quarter is auspicious.

The Nirṇayasindhu is a very large work and is divided into three Paricchedas (sections). The first section (pp. 1-77) deals with Kāla divisions viz. Abda (year), ayana (half year), ṛtu (seasons), māsa (months), divasa (days); the year is of five sorts acc. to Mādhava viz. Sāvana, Saura, Cāndra, Nākṣatra and Bārhaspatya; the year for Dharmaśāstra purposes, acc. to Hemādri, is only of three kinds (the last two not being required in Dharmaśāstra); months are twelve; the cāndra years have respectively sixty names Prabhava, Vibhava &c.; Malamāsa, Kṣayamāsa; tithis are either śuddhā (that is not mixed with or joined to another tithi on the same day) or viddhā (joined to another tithi on the same day); vratas; installations of images; matters to be avoided on the tithis (from 1st to 15th); eclipses and rites on them ; bath in the sea. The 2nd pariccheda (pp. 79–230) deals with the first tithi of the year and nirṇayas (decisions about it) throughout the twelve months of the year from Caitra onwards and discusses the religious acts (kṛtya) to be performed on the tithis of the months from Caitra onwards ; the third pariccheda is called prakīṛṇaka (miscellaneous) and is divided into two parts ; The first (pūrvārdha on pp. 231–371) deals with the Saṁskāras from Garbhādhāna to Vivāha (marriage), with Vedic mantras for three varṇas and without Vedic mantras for śūdras ; time for Agnihotra ; proper times for performing certain religious acts such as dedication of tanks and wells to the public, planting groves, installing images of gods for worship, and their worship ; muhūrtas (proper or auspicious times) for certain acts such as agricultural operations, shaving the head, for beginning to take medicines, for oil bath, for beginning to build a house, or for occupying it for the first time Kalivarjya (actions forbidden in the Kaliyuga) ; the latter part of the third section (Uttarārdha) occupies pp. 372–636 and deals with the following :

Śrāddhas (pp. 372–510) in all twelve varieties of śrāddhas, of which Pārvaṇa, ekoddiṣṭa, Vṛddhiśrāddha and Sapiṇḍana are the principal ones ; āśauca (impurity on birth and death) pp. 510–622, Sahagamana (pp. 623–626) ; Vidhavādharmaś (duties of widows) and Sannyāsa (pp. 627–635).

On several topics in the Nirṇayasindhu, Kamalākarabhaṭṭa, quotes verses composed by himself, such as on the best or middling brāhmaṇas to be invited in śrāddhas and those that should not be invited at Śrāddhas (on pp. 396, 399) and remarks ‘ the basis for such selection may be understood from Hemādri (pages 396–97 of Nirṇayasindhu) and for those to be avoided from Hemādri and Pṛthvīcandrodaya (p. 399) ’. On p. 459 he cites a verse composed by himself about the Vaiśvadeva homa on the day of Śrāddha. Gāgābhaṭṭa alias Viśveśvarabhaṭṭa, who officiated at the coronation of the great Shivaji in 1674 A. D., was Kamalākarabhaṭṭa’s nephew.

112. Nīlakaṇṭhabhaṭṭa

In my introduction to the Vyavahāramayūkha (Poona, 1926) pp. v–XLIV, I have dealt exhaustively with the personal history of Nīlakaṇṭha, his works, their contents, their position in dharmaśāstra literature, the period of Nīlakaṇṭha's literary activity and his position in modern Hindu Law. In the following a brief résumé of the conclusions there arrived at is given.

Nīlakaṇṭha was a grandson of Nārāyaṇabhaṭṭa and a son of Saṅkarabhaṭṭa. Saṅkarabhaṭṭa was a profound mīmāṃsaka and composed several works on mīmāṃsā, viz. a com. on the Śāstradīpikā, the Vidhiraśāyaṇadūṣana, the Mīmāṃsābālaprakāśa. He also wrote Dvaitanirṇaya (vide Annals of the Bhandarkar Institute, vol. III part 2. pp. 67-72 for an account of it) and the Dharmaprakāśa or Sarvadharmaprakāśa. Nīlakaṇṭha composed an encyclopaedia of religious and civil law, styled Bhagavanta-bhāskara, in honour of his patron Bhagavantadeva, a Bundella chieftain of the Seṅgara clan, that ruled at Bhareha near the confluence of the Jumna and the Chambal. This work is divided into 12 sections (called mayūkhas 'rays') on saṃskāra, ācāra, kāla (or samaya), śrāddha, nīti, vyavahāra, dāna, utsarga, pratiṣṭhā, prāyaścitta, śuddhi, śānti. These have been printed at Benares and some of them have been printed in Bombay at the Gujarati Press and all twelve between 1921-28 A. D. by Mr. Gharpure. Besides this encyclopaedia he composed also a work called Vyavahāratattva, which is a summary of the Vyavahāramayūkha, and probably a work styled Dattakanirṇaya. The Vyavahāratattva has been for the first time published by me as appendix I to my edition of the Vyavahāramayūkha.

In Mss. of the several Mayūkhas there are introductory verses which set out a royal family called Seṅgara, the first named king being Karṇa, followed by more than a dozen kings. King Bhagavantadeva of that family directed Bhaṭṭa Nīlakaṇṭha to write a work (nibandha). The work was called Bhagavanta-bhāskara and as the sun (Bhāskara) is also called 'Dvādaśātma' (as in Amarakośa) the work is divided into twelve parts (called Mayūkhas). It appears from some Mss. that Śaṅkara, son of Nīlakaṇṭha, had something to do with the Saṃskāramayūkha (vide footnote).¹⁴⁴⁸

1448 Several Mayūkhas have the following verses 'आज्ञप्तस्तेन राज्ञा विबुधकुलमणिर्दाक्षिणात्यावृतंसो भट्टः श्रीनीलकण्ठः स्मृतिषु दृढमतिर्जैमिनीयेऽ-

Nilakanṭha is one of the foremost nibandhakāras. Being brought up in a family that had made the study of mīmāṃsā its own for several generations, he is very acute in applying the maxims and rules of mīmāṃsā to dharmaśāstra. He stands unsurpassed by any mediaeval Sanskrit writer on dharmaśāstra in mastery over the vast smṛti lore, in lucidity of exposition, in conciseness and ease of style, in clarity of vision and sobriety of judgement. Though he admired the learning and labours of such predecessors as Vijñāneśvara, Hemādri and others, he does not slavishly follow their dicta and expresses his dissent from them most frankly.

His Vyavahāramayūkha was held to be a work of paramount authority by the Bombay High Court before 1956 (when Hindu law was codified) in certain parts of India—Gujarat, the island of Bombay and northern Konkan.¹⁴⁴⁹ Even in the other parts of the Bombay Presidency such as the Maratha country and the Ratnagiri District the Vyavahāramayūkha occupies a very important place though it was subordinate to the *Mitākṣarā*¹⁴⁵⁰ The general principle, on which the Bombay High Court acted in construing the rules laid down in the Mitākṣarā and the Vyavahāramayūkha, is that the two works are to be harmonized with one another wherever and so far as that is reasonably possible.¹⁴⁵¹ Though the Mitākṣarā is a paramount authority in the Maratha country and the Ratnagiri District and though it is silent about the sister's right as a gotraja heir, the courts, in deference to the authority of the Vyavahāramayūkha, have assigned to the sister a high place as an heir even in the Maratha country and in Ratnagiri. Among the other Mayūkhas, the Samskāramayūkha has been frequently relied upon by the courts.¹⁴⁵² The Prāyaścittamayūkha and the *Pratiṣṭhāmayūkha*¹⁴⁵³ have also been relied upon in the High Court.

The period of Nīlakaṇṭha's literary activity can be settled within very narrow limits. He was the youngest son of Śaṅkarabhāṭṭa. In the Dvaitanirṇaya, Śaṅkarabhāṭṭa quotes the views of the Tōdarānanda which, as we saw above, must have been composed between 1570 and 1589 A. D. So the Dvaitanirṇaya could not have been composed before 1590 A. D. Nīlakaṇṭha, the youngest son of Śaṅkarabhāṭṭa, could hardly have commenced his literary career earlier than Kamalākarabhāṭṭa who was the second son of Śaṅkarabhāṭṭa's elder brother. Kamalākara composed his Nirṇayasindhu in 1612 A. D. The Nirṇayasindhu is mentioned in the Samayamayūkha (p. 67) and in Suddhimayūkha p. 23 (both in Gharpure's ed.) and Bhaṭṭoji-Dīkṣita is mentioned in Ācāramayūkha (p. 54). Nīlakaṇṭha refers to his father's Dvaitanirṇaya in Śrāddhamayūkha p. 59.

It may be noted that a work called Śāntikaustubha by Nīlakaṇṭha is described in Prof. Devasthali's Cat. of the Sanskrit mss. in the Bombay University Library (No. 1162 on p. 415). It seems to be different from the Śāntimayūkha of Nīlakaṇṭha. The ms. is dated śake 1698 (1776 A. D.) So Nīlakaṇṭha's literary activity must have commenced a good deal after 1610. One ms. of the Vyavahāratattva bears the date saṃvat 1700 (1644 A. D.) This shows that the Vyavahāratattva was composed not later than 1644 A. D. The Vyavahāratattva refers to the Vyavahāramayūkha as already composed. Hence we may say, without being far from the truth, that Nīlakaṇṭha's literary career falls between 1610 and 1645 A. D. This date is confirmed by the fact that Nīlakaṇṭha's son Śaṅkara wrote the Kundabhāskara in 1671 A. D. and Divākarabhaṭṭa, the son of Nīlakaṇṭha's daughter, composed his Ācārārka in 1686 A. D. It appears that there was probably a rivalry between the two great cousins Kamalākarabhaṭṭa and Nīlakaṇṭha. On many matters their views diverged. Though the Nirṇayasindhu is said to have been composed in 1668 of the Vikrama era, yet from the references to several works of his own in the Nirṇayasindhu it looks as if Kamalākara revised it from time to time by adding on references to his own other works and to those of others. The Nirṇayasindhu (III pariccheda, section on Dattakagrahaṇa) emphatically says that he who asserts the absence of ownership in one's son in spite of Vedic indications is a fool.¹⁴⁵⁴ It is not unreasonable to suppose that this is a hit at Nīlakaṇṭha who must have been younger than Kamalākara and who tries hard in his Vyavahāramayūkha to establish that there is no ownership in one's wife and children.

113. The Vīramitrodaya of Mitramiśra

The Vīramitrodaya is a vast digest composed by Mitramiśra embracing almost all branches of Dharmaśāstra. Excepting the Caturvarga-cintāmaṇi of Hemādri, this work is probably the largest known on dharmaśāstra. But it surpasses in interest and usefulness even Hemādri's work since it deals with vyavahāra also. It was divided into sections called prakāśas. When the first edition of the His. of Dh. was published in 1930, the prakāśas on vyavahāra, Paribhāṣā, saṃskāra, rājanīti, āhnikā, pūjā, tīrtha and lakṣaṇa had been published, the first by Jivananda (Calcutta 1875) and the rest in the Chowkhamba Sanskrit series. The text of the dāyabhāga portion of the Vyavahāraprakāśa was also published by Golapchandra Sarkar Sastri with an English translation (Calcutta 1879). It appears that Mītramiśra wrote on prāyaścitta also.¹⁴⁵⁵ Of the Prāyaścittaprakāśa there is a complete and well written ms. (No. 2610) in the Anup Sanskrit Library at Bikaner and there is also another ms. of Lakṣanaprakāśa (No. 239 p. 49 of Val. Cat. of. mss. in I. C. Desai collection). The very names of the sections of the Vīramitrodaya convey an idea of the subjects dealt with in them. The Lakṣanaprakāśa deals with the auspicious signs of men, women, the several Parts of human body, elephants, horses, thrones, swords, bows and with the characteristics and qualities of the queen, the ministers, the astrologer, physician, door-keeper, description of śalagrāma, śivaliṅga, rudrākṣa beads etc. In the Āhnikaprakāśa he dilates upon the daily duties beginning with one's rising from bed on brāhmamuhūrta, śauca, ācamana and ending with going to bed. The Vyavahāraprakāśa is probably the leargest nibandha on vyavahāra. This is divided into four parts. The first part deals with the meaning of vyavahāra, the constitution of the sabhā (court of justice), the appointment of judges, conflict of dharmaśāstra and arthaśāstra, assessors, the various grades of courts, the procedure about plaints and defendant's replies and their faults; the burden of proof and the means of proof. The second gives a detailed exposition of the means of proof, viz. witnesses, documents, possession and ordeals. The third treats of the eighteen titles of law including dāyavibhāga and the fourth very briefly speaks of those matters which were to be started suo motu by the king and not by a private individual. The dāyavibhāga portion of the Vyavahāraprakāśa occupies a little more than-one-fourth of the whole of the work.

In the Tīrthaprakāśa he deals with the nature of tīrthas, the utility thereof for men, the persons entitled to undertake pilgrimage, the proper times for pilgrimage, the ceremonial acts to be performed at tīrthas such as shaving, fasts, bathing, gifts, the description of the several varṣas and dvīpas and of sacred rivers like the Ganges, Narmadā, sacred places like Gayā, Prabhāsa, Badrī, Puṣkara and Purī.

In the Pūjāprakāśa he speaks of the definition of pūjā, persons entitled to perform pūjā (worship of gods), the rewards of pūjā, proper times and places for pūjā, śālagrāma, the proper articles and clothes for the worship of idols, proper flowers, fragrant substances, naivedya, the detailed method of worshipping Viṣṇu, Śiva, the Sun, Durgā, Brahmā etc. In the printed edition there are no introductory verses here.

In the Samśkāra-prakāśa the author enumerates the saṁskāras and describes in detail garbhādhāna, pūṁsavana, anavalobhana, śimantonayana, jātakarma, nāmakaraṇa, śiśuniṣkramaṇa, anna-prāśana, cūḍā, upanayana, vivāha etc., the duties of brahmacārins, gotras, *pravara*s and sāpīṇḍya, all astrological matters in connection with marriage, pīṇḍapitṛyajña, sarpabali, aṣṭakāśrāddha, sūlagava.

The Rājanītiprakāśa treats of the definition of rājan, the proper time and procedure of coronation, the daily routine for kings, the qualifications of ministers, commander-in-chief and the dependents of king, forts, capital, places, the four expedients of sāma etc. the six guṇas, auspicious and evil signs, marching for battle, Kaumudī and Indradhvaja festivals etc.

In all his works Mitramiśra mentions hundreds of authors and works. The portion on vyavahāra is full of long-drawn controversies in which he refutes the views of numerous predecessors. The Vīramitrodaya enters into polemics far more frequently than Nīlakaṇṭha. He generally upholds the Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara against all its critics, particularly the writers of the Bengal school. But he does not slavishly admire the Mitākṣarā in every thing. Now and then he rebukes even Vijñāneśvara. For example, he does not approve of what the Mitākṣarā says about the son called Kānīna.¹⁴⁵⁶ He finds fault with Vijñāneśvara's explanation of the verse ' anyodaryastu ' as extremely forced and far-fetched and as simply exhibiting the author's pedantry,¹⁴⁵⁷ Out of the host of works and writers that he names in the vyavahāra section the important ones are noted below.¹⁴⁵⁸

The Viramitrodaya was held to be a work of high authority by the Privy Council in the Benares School of Hindu Law. The Vyavahāraprakāśa was published in the Chowkhamba Series in 1932. The Privy Council has laid down that 'the Viramitrodaya is properly receivable as an exposition of what may have been left doubtful by the Mitākṣarā and declaratory of the law of the Benares school.'¹⁴⁵⁹ Similarly it has been said by the same high tribunal that the Viramitrodaya may be referred to even in Bengal where the Dāyabhāga is silent.¹⁴⁶⁰ But where the text of the Mitākṣarā on any point is quite clear, the gloss of the Viramitrodaya on the text of any sage, which is in conflict with the rule laid down in the former, cannot be referred to for the purpose of casting a doubt on the clear rule of the Mitākṣarā.¹⁴⁶¹ The Viramitrodaya is inferior to the Vyavahāramayūkha in Western India¹⁴⁶² and its doctrines are not followed in those provinces when in conflict with those of the other two works. Their Lordships of the Privy Council say in Vedachala v. Subra- *mania*¹⁴⁶³ 'although the Smṛticandrikā in the Southern Presidency is regarded as the most authoritative commentary on Vijñāneśvara's work, the Vīramitrodaya holds, as in Western India, a high position. It supplements many gaps and omissions in the earlier commentaries and illustrates and elucidates with logical preciseness the meaning of doubtful prescriptions.'

There is a ms. of the Dānprakāśa in the Deccan College (No. 305 of 1884-1887). It is an extensive work and contains the usual topics about gifts.

Besides the digest called Vīramitrodaya, Mitrāmīśra composed a commentary on the smṛti of Yājñavalkya. The Com. of Mitrāmīśra on the Yājñavalkyasmṛti was published (after the first volume of the H. of Dh. had been sent to the Press) in the Chowkhamba Sanskrit Series in several fascicules (from 1927-1930). Besides the works noted above he quotes the Karmapradīpa and the Smṛtisāra. In this work he does not quite approve of the reasons for the preference shown to the mother over the father as an heir by the Mitākṣarā, viz. the occurrence of the word 'mātā' as the first word when the word 'pitarau' is dissolved and the greater propinquity of the mother as compared with the father, since the latter can beget sons from another wife.¹⁴⁶⁴ The commentary gives three varieties of dāśī.¹⁴⁶⁵ Vide I. O. cat. p. 371 No. 1288 and Peterson's 2nd report pp. 49-53 for further details about this commentary.

In the introductions to the several sections of his digest and also in the colophons therein Mitramiśra furnishes considerable information about himself, his family and the family of his patron. Mitramiśra was the son of Paraśurāmapāṇḍita and grandson of Hamsapāṇḍita. Hamsapāṇḍita seems to have been a native of Gopācala (Gwalior) and was endowed with the rare combination of wealth and learning. One Caṇḍeśvara of Kāśī was the guru of Paraśurāmapāṇḍita. Mitramiśra indulges in hyperbolic¹⁴⁶⁶ descriptions of his own learning and naively tells his readers that they need study only his work and may neglect all other nibandhas. Mitramiśra was commanded by Vīrasimha to compose his great digest.¹⁴⁶⁷ The introduction to the Āhnikaparakāśa starts with king Medinīmalla who was a scion of the Kāśīrāja family. His son was Arjunadeva who became ruler of Bundelkhand. His son was Malakhāna, whose son was Pratāparudra (founder of the capital Orchha). In the commentary of Mitramiśra on the Vyavahāra section of Yāj. Smṛti the second verse begins 'आस्ते क्षेणि-प्रशस्तिस्तनुरिव गिरिशम्योऽङ्घ्र्यापूरपूर्वा' i. e. the capital is called ओङ्घ्र्यापूर (or 'पुर). His son was Madhukarasāha, whose son was Vīrasimha. Jujhāra who is described as 'young' (yuvā in verse 23). His son was Vikramārka whose son was Narasimhadeva. There is no such introduction to the printed Pūjāprakāśa and Narasimhadeva is not mentioned in the introductions to the other prakāśas. From the article of Mr. Lala Sitaram in the Calcutta Review (May and July 1924) further information can be gathered about Birsinghdeo (i. e. Virasimhadeva). In the article it is shown how and under what circumstances Virasimha killed Abul Fazal, the friend of Emperor Akbar and a great literary genius. We are told there that there is a work called Virasimhadeva-carita composed in Vikrama year 1664 (1607-8 A. D.) by Keśavadāsa, author of Kavipriyā and Rasikapriyā. Virasimha was 7th out of the eight sons of Madhukarasāha. Not only was he a soldier, but he was a great builder. He built the palace forts of Orchha and Datia, the temple of Keśavadeva at Mathurā, several lakes called Bīrasāgara, Simhasāgara and Deosāgara (after the three parts of his own name). He is said to have ruled at Orchha from 1605 to 1627 A. D. From the introduction to the commentary¹⁴⁶⁹ on Yājñavalkya it appears that Virasimha commanded Mitramiśra to write it and that a learned man Sadānanda, the ornament to Tīrabhukti (Tirhoot) received directions to collect materials from Mitramiśra who was a wealthy person. It will be seen that the title Viramitrodaya very cleverly suggests that Mitramiśra wrote it under the patronage of Virasimhadeva. The title may mean ' the rise of Vira and Mitra' or 'the rise of the friend of Vīra' or 'the rise of the sun, viz. Vīra'.

The Introductory verses to several parts of the Vīramitrodaya furnish information about the family of the author.

The editor of the Vyavahāraprakāśa (Pandit Visnu Prasad Bhandari) gives some additional information about Mitramiśra. It is stated that Mitramiśra also composed a campū called 'Ānandakanda', at the end of which he gives some information about his family and himself. He was a brāhmaṇa of the Sānnādhya class (a section of Gauda brāhmaṇas); he had two elder brothers, named Vīreśvara and Cakrapāṇi and a younger brother called Yogāditya and a sister named Susīti. The editor quotes a verse (see note below)¹⁴⁷⁰ occurring at the end of the Ānandakanda-campū.

The time when Mitramiśra flourished can be easily settled on account of his relations with Vīrasimhadeva. In his Āhnika-prakāśa (vide footnote 1468 above) he mentions the great-grand son of Vīrasimha. Therefore that section must have been written when Vīrasimha was advanced in age. Vīrasimha ruled at Orchha from 1605 to 1627. Hence the literary activity of Mitramiśra must be placed in the first two quarters of the 17th century. This date agrees with the fact that he names Vācaspati and Raghunandana. We thus see that Mitramiśra was almost a contemporary of Kamalākarabhaṭṭa and Nīlakaṇṭha. The two latter do not refer to him nor does Mitramiśra name them.

The Chowkhamba Sanskrit series of Benares has published twelve prakāśas of the Vīramitrodaya viz. on Paribhāṣa, Saṁs-

But here Śake cannot be taken to be the Śāli vahanaśaka (as the year then would be 1766 A. D.) which is impossible to equate with Mitramiśra being a pupil patronized by Vīrasimhadeva. If we held it to be the Vikrama reckoning then only can he be the patron (Vikrama 1688 would be 1631-32 A. D.). In north India the era used for many centuries has been that of Vikrama alone, the Śāli vahana era called Śaka being confined to the Deccan and countries to the south.

kāra, Āhnika, Pūjā, Lakṣaṇa, Rājanīti, Tīrtha, Vyavahāra, Śrāddha, Samaya, Bhakti, Śuddhi. A few words may be said here on some of them. The last three here are comparatively smaller than the others.

The Paribhāṣāprakāśa (a small part extending to 116 printed pages) describes the genealogy of the family to which¹⁴⁷¹ Vīra-siṃha belonged, then mentions Haṁsapandita, who belonged to a brāhmaṇa family of Gopācala (i. e. modern Gwalior) whose son was Paraśurāma (verse 30, whose teacher was Caṇḍīśvara, verses 30-31), whose son was Mitramiśra (verse 32) who became a great favourite of king Vīra-siṃha (v. 35) by whose order the work (called Vīramitrodaya) was composed by Mitramiśra (v. 36); twenty-two parts called prakāśas were composed by Mitramiśra. They are : Paribhāṣā, Samiskāra, Āhnika, Pūjā, Pratiṣṭhā, Rājadharma, Vyavahāra, Śuddhi, Śrāddha, Tīrtha, Dāna, Vrata, Samaya, Jyotis, Śānti, Karmavipāka, Cikitsā, Prāyaścitta, Prakīrṇaka, Lakṣaṇa, Bhakti, Mokṣa. Eleven (excluding Samiskāra) cover about 4500 printed pages. The 22 parts must have covered about two lakhs of ślokas (each of 32 syllables) i. e. they came to double of the Mahābhārata in extent. Among those published in the Chowkhamba series, six cover about 500 or more printed pages each viz. those on Samiskāra, Āhnika, Lakṣaṇa, Rājanīti, Tīrtha, Vyavahāra. The Vyavahāraprakāśa is a large work ; it deals with legal procedure (viz. plaint, reply, evidence, witnesses, documents, possession ; oaths and ordeals) ; the eighteen titles of law (from ṛṇādāna to Dāyabhāga) i. e. it deals with both substantive law and adjective law. In the Vyavahāraprakāśa he quotes and discusses numerous works and authors (the important ones are quoted in the note below)¹⁴⁷²

An attempt has to be made to convey the matters dealt with in a few of the 22 parts. The Rājanītiprakāśa covers 493 printed pages. A very brief summary of it would be interesting. The meaning of the word 'rājan'; praise of king's office; coronation of a king and the proper times for the coronation and those that are prohibited for it. Description of the ceremony of coronation; the good qualities required in a king and actions prescribed for kings and those forbidden; his daily duties; persons who are helpers of the king viz. the Chief Minister the Commander-in-chief, the heads of departments, envoy, chamberlain, guard, servants; forts and capital; treasury, army, friends; the Upāyas Sāma, Dāna, Daṇḍa, Bheda; taking counsel with ministers; guarding the heir to the throne; the aspects of policy; the circle of kings; the six guṇas laid down by Manu VII. 160 and Yāj. I. 347; marching on an invasion; king's dreams and their meaning; the good or evil omens; preparing the king for actual fight; public festivals like Kaumudī; raising Indra's banner; worship of Bhadrakālī; Lohābhisārika; Vasor-dhārā; homa causing destruction of enemies; the rite called Ghṛtakambala described in Viṣṇudharmottara; prakīrnaka (miscellaneous matters); sights and dreams that are auspicious and those that are inauspicious; nimittas (i. e. throbbing of certain parts of the body such as eyes); Jayābhiṣeka according to the Liṅga-

The Tīrthaprakāśa of the Vīramitrodaya occupies 610 printed pages. After mentioning the several members of the family of his patron Vīrasimha, he praises himself to the skies in verses 32-33, (vide note 1471 above). In 18 verses he gives a summary of its contents, viz. the large provinces and mountains of Jambudvīpa (India), description of Kāśī, Prayāga, Gayāvidhi, of rivers like Sarasvatī, Gaṅgā, Yamunā, Narmadā, holy places like Kurukṣetra, Kokāmukha, Pṛthādaka, Prabhāsa, Puṣkara, Badarī, Lohārgala, Kedāra, Naimiṣa. Indraprastha, Ayodhyā, Mathurā, Citrakūṭa. Ujjayinī, Dwārakā, Tāpī, Payoṣṇī, Godāvarī, Sahya, Gokarna, Saptakoṭīśvara, Kāverī, Setubandha, Rāmeśvara, Puruṣottama, Ekāsurā, Koṇārka, Vīrajakṣetra, Kāmarūpa, Karatoyā, Brahmaputranadā. He proposes to restrict the word Tīrtha only to such places or rivers as are enumerated as tīrthas by the learned or by great sages.

He profusely quotes the Mahābhārata in the Tīrthaprakāśa. Tīrthas are either Daiva (such as Vārāṇasī, Prabhāsa, Puṣkara), or āsura (such as Gayā); or ārṣaṇī (those that are established by ṛṣis) and mānuṣa are those established by rulers of Sūrya-vaṁśa or Somavaṁśa. Men of all varnas and āśramas are entitled to perform tīrthayātrā (p. 19). The Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas are full of descriptions of tīrthas and pilgrimages. Kurukṣetra¹⁴⁷⁴ as a tīrtha is described in Vanaparva 83. 1-8. Vanaparva chapters 87-90 speak of the tīrthas in the east, south, west and north respectively. Śalyaparva (chapters 35-39) describes the tīrthas which were visited by Balarāma in his pilgrimage. The Anuśāsanaparva (chapter 26) is full of the greatness of the Ganges.¹⁴⁷⁵ Two typical verses are quoted below from it. On p. 315 of the Rājanītiprakāśa¹⁴⁷⁶ he quotes a verse of Vyāsa in which different words are given to indicate what Daiva is and which distinguishes Puruṣakāra (human effort) from Daiva; vide also Manu VII. 205, Yāj. I. 349 and 351. Vanaparva (82. 9-12) deals with this topic of Daiva and Puruṣakāra.¹⁴⁷⁷

In the Indian Historical Quarterly (Vol. 24 for 1948 pp. 336-7) Pandit K. Madhav Krishna Sarma informs scholars that the Anup Sanskrit Library at Bikaner has a ms. of the Mokṣa-prakāśa. The first folio is missing. There are in all 342 paper folios, 8 lines on each page and 40 syllables in each line. The main topics dealt with are stated in the note below.¹⁴⁷⁸

His Bhaktiprakāśa is a substantial work of 175 printed pages. In his Introductory verses he states the philosophical doctrine that God is one, but he further states that Mukti is difficult; the mind does not give up all the worldly by matters. Therefore devotion to Hari is the only way. He mentions the nine aspects of 'bhakti' (the verse is quoted below)¹⁴⁷⁹ and dilates on them in pp. 31-128. He points out each of the nine aspects may be Sāttvikī, Rājasī or Tāmasī and expounds these. He mentions the Bhāgavatapurāṇa and the commentator Śrīdharasvāmin frequently. He frequently quotes the Purāṇas and the Bhagavad-gītā. At the end (on pp. 134-175) he deals with 'bhajānīya-nirṇaya' (exposition on the object of worship).

In the Vyaṅgyārtha-kaumudī of Anantāśrama¹⁴⁸⁰ of Puṇya-stambha (Puṇtāmbe) on the Godāvarī, a commentary on the Rasamañjarī of Bhānūdatta, the author gives a pedigree of his patron. He describes the Kāśīrāja family at Benares, in which was born Pratāparudra whose son was Madhukarasāha, whose son was Vīrasimhadeva. Ananta wrote the commentary for Candrabhānu, a son of Vīrasīṃhadeva, in 1635 A. D. This corroborates the dates above given by Mr. Lala Sitaram. Therefore it is almost beyond doubt that the literary activity of Mitramiśra lies between 1610 and 1640 A. D.

114. Anantadeva Anantadeva compiled a vast digest called Smṛtikaustubha divided into several sections on saṁskāras, ācāra, rājadharmā, dāna, utsarga, pratiṣṭhā, tithi and samvatsara. The section on saṁskāras and that on rājadharmā are also called Saṁskāra-kaustubha and Rājadharmā-kaustubha. Each Kaustubha is subdivided into parts called dīdhiti. The Saṁskāra-kaustubha is the most popular and most well-known of his. It has been printed several times, the best editions being that of the Nirṇayasāgara Press (1913) and that issued at Baroda (1914) under the patronage of H. H. the Maharaja Gaikwad (with a Marathi translation by Sastri Venkatakarya Upadhyaya). The Saṁskāra-kaustubha was recognised as an authoritative work for India by the Privy Council and the Bombay High Court¹⁴⁸¹. It is a large work dealing with the saṁskāras from Garbhādhāna to vivāha (marriage) and is full of quotations and discussions. The following is a very brief summary of the contents :-

The sixteen saṁskāras, the first being garbhādhāna, the astrological aspects of the first appearance of menses and the various propitiatory rites therefor; the proper times for garbhādhāna and the several rites connected therewith; puṇyāhavācana, nāndīśraddha, mātṛkāpūjana; nārāyanabali and nāgabali; pañcagavya, kṛcchra and other prāyāścittas; cāndrāyānavrata; adoption, who is entitled to adopt, who can be adopted, rites of adoption, gotra and sāpiṇḍya of the adopted son, mourning to be observed by the adopted, succession of the adopted; putra-kāmeṣṭi; pūṁsavana; anavalobhana; śimantonnayana; rites on the birth of a child or son; impurity on birth; propitiatory rites for evil aspects at birth; nāmakarana; niṣkramana; annaprāśana; piercing the ear; celebration of birth day; caula; upanayana, proper times for it, the necessary materials for it, the gāyatrī, the vows of a brahmacārin; samāvartana; marriage, sāpiṇḍya for it, gotras and pravaras, proper times for marriage, forms of marriage, vāg-niścaya, śimāntapūjana, madhuparka, kanyādāna, vivāhahoma, saptapadī, homa on the entrance of the married couple etc.

The portion of the Saṁskāra-kaustubha on the subject of adoption is frequently cited separately as Dattakadīdhiti and is so entered in the catalogues of mss. It is a treatise of great importance and deserves to be studied along with the Dattakamīmāṃsā, the Vyavahāramayūkha and other similar works. The more important of his views are set out below. Like the Dattakamīmāṃsā he recommends that the nephew is the most suitable for adoption, then one may select any sagotra sāpiṇḍa, then an asagotra sāpiṇḍa, then a sagotra but asāpiṇḍa, then any one of the same caste though not sagotra, but a daughter's or sister's son cannot be adopted nor can a brother, a paternal or maternal uncle be adopted. A Śūdra may adopt a daughter's or sister's son. The person to be adopted must not be an only son or the eldest. A wife can adopt with the consent of her husband and a widow does not require the express permission of her husband. The boy to be adopted may be below five or above five and may be taken before or after the cūḍā ceremony is performed in the natural family. Anantadeva refers to the¹⁴⁸² view of some that the verses of the Kālikāpurāṇa on this subject are not found in several mss. and so are unauthoritative and tells us that others hold that the whole passage refers to the adoption of an asagotra boy. Anantadeva himself holds, like the Vyavahāramayūkha, that even an asagotra boy may be adopted after his upanayana is performed in the natural family. When the ceremony of caula and the rest are performed in the family of the adopter, the adopted boy belongs to the gotra of the adopter, but where the upanayana alone is performed in the adoptive family or the adoption is made after upanayana the boy belongs to both gotras. But this holds good only as regards obeisance, śrāddha etc. while for marriage every adopted boy has to avoid the gotra and pravara of both families. If a natural son be born to the adopter after he takes a boy in adoption, the adopted boy becomes an equal sharer with the aurasa, if all the saṁskāras up to upanayana are performed by the adoptive father for the adopted boy, or he takes only a fourth share if only some of the saṁskāras ending with upanayana are performed by the adopter and he gets no inheritance but only provision for marriage if he was adopted after upanayana is performed in the natural family. Anantadeva, disagreeing with Nīlakaṇṭha, holds that a girl may be adopted.¹⁴⁸³

Like the Nirṇayasindhu and the mayūkhās of Nīlakaṇṭha, Anantadeva in the Saṁskārakaustubha and elsewhere names several hundred authors and works. It is not necessary to set out the whole lot. His authorities are practically the same as those of the former. He principally relies among nibandhas upon the Mitākṣarā, Aparārka, Hemādri, Mādhava, Maṇanaratna, Madanapārijāta. The Smṛtikaustubha was divided into several dīdhitis (rays, parts). In the Smṛtikaustubha published by the Nirṇayasagara Press it is expressly stated that the tithidīdhiti has been already¹⁴⁸⁴ expounded. At the end also it is said that the work is only the complete abdadīdhiti (i. e. portion dealing with saṁvatsaras of five kinds). The year is said to be of five kinds, cāndra, saura, sāvana, bārhaspatya and nākṣatra. The printed work treats of the several rites, observances, festivals and vratas on the important tithis of the twelve months of the cāndra year with the intercalary month and observances thereof, the rites proper to saura year and saṁkrāntis

In Introductory verses 10-14 of the *Rājadharmakaustubha*¹⁴⁸⁵ edited by M. M. Kamalakṛṣṇa Smṛtītīrtha and his son Mr. (now Dr.) Bhabatosh Bhattacharya in 1935 in Gaekwad's Oriental Series, it is stated that the work was composed for the greater glory of king Baj-Bahadur and is divided into several dīdhitis (rays, parts) viz. four; the first dīdhiti (pp. 3-128) dealing with the founding of the capital, the palace, temples with idols and liṅgas, villages, forts, construction of wells and lakes, laying out parks; the 2nd part (in pp 129-232) treats Vāstupūjā, vāstu of various parts, the deities to be established thereon, vāstu-yāga-prayoga, Śānti laid down by Āśvalāyana &c., rules about constructing and dedicating wells, reservoirs of water, gardens, establishment of images of gods. The third dīdhiti called Rājyābhiṣeka (pp. 233-380) is concerned with the crowning of the king, characteristic qualities which a king should possess, the characteristics and qualities desirable in the chief queen (agramahiṣī), of the mantri (such as being an expert in the four means of royal policy viz. sāma, dāna, bheda and Danḍa, Yāj. I. 346), the Purohita (Yāj. I. 313), Jyotirvit (well-versed in astrology and astronomy having 64 aṅgas and upāṅgas as described by Garga); procedure of homas and śāntis (like Aindri); procedure of the abhiṣeka (ceremonies of crowning the king) as described in the Purānas (particularly in the Viṣṇu-dharmottara) pp. 346-63; actions and rites to be performed after the crowning of the king; Puṣyābhiṣeka (in Atharva sapariśiṣṭa); the 4th part (dīdhiti) is concerned with prajāpālana (protecting and governing the subjects), covers pp. 381-496 and deals with legal procedure (including ordeals) and decisions of the various matters of dispute among the subjects. There is hardly anything new or striking in it and often it is very meagre as compared with even Yāj. smṛti e. g. on 'Sambhūyasamutthāna' it quotes only four verses (without a word of comment) that are Yāj. II. 259-60, 263-265, while Yāj. devotes seven verses to the same topic viz. II. 259-265¹⁴⁸⁶

The Rājadharmakaustubha quotes profusely from the Matsyapurāṇa, the Viṣṇudharmottara-purāṇa and the Brhatsaṃhitā (whole chapters being quoted sometimes from these). Dr. Miss. Priyabala Shah published Khaṇḍa III of the Viṣṇudharmottara (chapters 1-118) in two parts in the Gaekwad Oriental Series. Vide also 'Studies in Dharmaśāstra' by Dr. Bhabatosh Bhattacharya (1964), pp. 22-23 for Anantadeva.

The name Smṛtikaustubha (cf. the Nir. ed. of 1908) is misleading. It does not deal with all or many topics treated of in Smṛtis. It deals only with the religious rites to be performed in the Cāndra year in its several months and on several tithis and the religious rites to be performed in the other four kinds of years and their months. The Smṛtikaustubha is really 'Abdadīdhiti'

1486 I would like to devote here a few lines to the memory of the learned editor of the Rājadharmakaustubha, Mahāmahopādhyāya Kamalakṛṣṇa Smṛtitīrtha. He was born in 1870 in a Pandit family at Bhatpara (well-known as Bhattapalli) in West Bengal about 22 miles north of Calcutta) and was 11th in descent from Nārāyaṇa, the original settler in the town. He accompanied M. M. Haraprasad Shastri in his tour for search of Sanskrit Mss. in Nepal in 1897. He worked as Prof. of Smṛti in the Sankrit College at Bhatpara till his last day (i. e. 25th January 1934). He edited many works viz. the Hāratalā of Aniruddha, three Ratnākaras of Caṇḍeśvara (in Kṛtya, Gṛhastha and Vivāda), the Tīrthacintāmaṇi of Vācaspati, four Kaumudīs of Govindānanda (on Varṣakriyā, Dāna, Śrāddhi and Śuddhi); all the nine published in the B. I. Series Rājadharmakaustubha of Anantadeva, Daṇḍaviveka of Vardhamāna (both published in the Gaekwad's Oriental Series). The Govt. of India conferred on him the title of Mahāmahopādhyāya in 1926. He also edited some works in Bengali, e. g. he translated the Agastyasaṃhitā in Bengali and published it in Bengali script; he translated into Bengali the latter half of Soṇadeva's Kathāsaritasāgara (and it was published after his death).

or 'Samvatsaradīdhiti'¹⁴⁸⁷ as Anantadeva expressly says in Introductory verse 20 of the Smṛtikaustubha that he is going to expatiate on 'Abdadīdhiti'.

In this work, while describing the religious rites to be performed on certain tithis he frequently cites at some length the kathās (stories) connected with those tithis; vide, for examples, the Vata-Sāvitṛivṛatakathā on Jyeṣṭha Paurṇamāsī pp. 44-50, Mahā-lakṣmīkathā on pp. 148-150, Anantacaturdaśivṛatakathā (pp. 170-175), Śivarātrivṛatakathā (pp. 398-410).

Hemādri¹⁴⁸⁸ deals only with three kinds of abdas or samvatsaras viz. Lunar (cāndra), Saura (solar) and Sāvana, while Mādhava added two more viz. Bārhaspatya and Nākṣatra. The Smṛtikaustubha (pp. 462-63) quotes Yājñavalkya (I. 265-268) which set out the results of performing Śrāddhas on the nakṣatras from Kṛttikā to Bharanī. The Manusmṛti III. 277 provides what one secures by performing śrāddhas on the even tithis (2nd, 4th &c.) and even Nakṣatras (Bharanī, Rohinī &c.) and on 1st, 3rd and other uneven tithis and nakṣatras (Aśvinī, Kṛttikās etc.).

It is unnecessary to go into details about the other treatises on prāyaścitta, &c. It is said by Eggeling (I. O. Cat. No. 1475) that Anantadeva's Smṛtikaustubha comprised twelve parts. For Bhagavadbhaktinirṇaya vide Velankar's Cat. of Iccharam Desai collection p. 49. Anantadeva also wrote several prayogas such as the Agnihotraprayoga, Cāturmāsya prayoga. In the Bhadkamkar collection there is a ms. of a drama called Kṛṣṇa-

In the Smṛtikaustubha (Nirṇayasāgara edition of 1909) Anantadeva gives a pedigree¹⁴⁸⁹ of his patron's family. The family claimed descent from the moon. Whether the first three kings, mentioned in the Smṛtikaustubha, were related as father and son is doubtful. Lakṣmanacandra is said to have been the son of Rudracandra and it was he who conquered several chiefs wielding sway over the Himalayan territories.¹⁴⁹⁰ Trimallacandra, the successor (and probably the son) of Lakṣmanacandra, is praised for his continual liberality to the learned men of Benares.¹⁴⁹¹ It was at the command of Baz Bahadurcandra and for pleasing him that Anantadeva compiled his Smṛtikaustubha.¹⁴⁹² At the end Anantadeva tells us that Baz Bahadurcandra conquered several mountain forts in the Himālayas.¹⁴⁹³ After giving a pedigree of his patron's family Anantadeva gives some information about himself. He was a descendant of the great Marāṭha saint Ekanātha whom he describes as endowed with Vedic sacrifices and as a devotee of Kṛṣṇa.¹⁴⁹⁴ That this Ekanātha is the same as the great Maratha saint is vouchsafed by Kāśīnātha, author of Dharma-sindhu, in another work of his.¹⁴⁹⁵ Anantadeva was the great-great-grand-son of Ekanātha and he was the grandson of Ananta and son of Āpadeva, the author of the Mīmāṃsā-nyāyaprakāśa alias Āpadevī. Mīmāṃsā lore seems to have been a hereditary endowment in the family as in the case of the Bhaṭṭas of Benares. In all his works, particularly in the Samśkārakaustubha, Anantadeva applies at every step the maxims and doctrines of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā for the decision of doubtful points of Dharmaśāstra. Anantadeva had a younger brother Jivadeva whose Gotrapravarānirṇaya he draws upon in the Samśkārakaustubha after dealing with sāpīṇḍya for marriage in his own way. The quotation is a long one beginning with the words 'अथ गोत्रप्रवरनिर्णयो मदनुजजीवदेवकृत एवा-सिन्नवसरे प्रदर्श्यते' on p. 179 (b) of संस्कारकौस्तुभ (oblong Nir. edition of 1913) and ending on p. 196 (a) with the verse: कृत्स्नक्षमातलवर्ति-पण्डितजनालङ्कारचूडामणिर्गोदातीरजनिर्गुणोच्चयखनिर्नाम्नापदेवोग्रणीः । तत्सूनोरिह जीवदेवकृतिनः सद्धर्मशास्त्रे कृतो गोत्राणां प्रवरैः सहेयमभवन्निर्णीतिरीशार्पणम् ॥. For account of the गोत्रप्रवरनिर्णय of जीवदेव vide Prof. Devasthali's Cat. No. 1029 p. 369 and Nos. 1210-12 pp. 436-38. Dr. Bhandarkar notices an Āśaucanirṇaya of Jivadeva in which the Nirṇayasindhu is cited as an authority.¹⁴⁹⁶

West and Bühler in their digest¹⁴⁹⁷ thought that Anantadeva flourished about the same time as the author of the Nirṇayasindhu. But this requires some correction. Baz Bahadur, the patron of Anantadeva, seems to have been a scion of the Candra (or Chand) family and ruled over Almora and Nainital from 1638 to 1678 A. D. It is said in the Imperial Gazetteer¹⁴⁹⁸ that the first of the Chandrarājas was Somachand who hailed from Jhūsi near Allahabad and came to the Himalayan regions in the 10th century and that in 1563 the capital was transferred to Almora by Kalyancanda, whose son Rudracandra was a contemporary of Akbar and made his obeisance to the latter in 1587 A. D. at Lahore. The Smṛtikaustubha does mention the ancestors Kalyanacandra and Rudracandra of Baz Bahadur. Between Baz Bahadur and Rudracandra there are three names. Supposing that they are the three direct ascendants of Baz Bahadur and following a period of 25 years for each after Rudracandra's known date of 1587 A. D., we get the year 1662 A. D. for Baz Bahadur. We are told in the Gazetteer that in 1672 Baz Bahadur introduced a poll tax, the proceeds of which he remitted to Delhi as tribute. Therefore Anantadeva must have been patronised by Baz Bahadur between 1645 and 1675 A. D. A greater approximation can be made in another way. The saint Ekanātha finished his Marathi Bhāgavata at Benares in śake 1495 and 1630 of the Vikrama era on Kārtika full-moon day (i. e. 9th November 1573) as he himself tells us.¹⁴⁹⁹ Anantadeva was the fourth in descent from him (exclusive of Ekanātha). Counting 25 years for each of the four generations, Anantadeva should have been a grown up man in 1673 A. D. There are controversies about the dates of the birth and death of Ekanātha, the commonly accepted dates being śake 1450–1521 (b. 1528–d. 1600 A. D.). The date of his death is śake 1521 Phālguna dark half 6th day

(25 February 1600). Others give 1548–1599 A. D. as the dates. Whichever date is correct, the literary activity of Anantadeva must be assigned to the third quarter of the 17th century. This date is confirmed by the fact that in the Āśaucanirṇaya of Jivadeva, younger brother of Anantadeva, the Nirṇayasindhu composed in 1611–12 A. D. is cited as an authority.

Doubts were expressed by some Marathi writers as to whether Ekanātha, mentioned as the ancestor of Anantadeva, is identical with the well-known Marathi poet and saint Ekanātha. It is unnecessary in this work to discuss that matter. The present author holds that they are identical. Those interested may read the contribution of Dr. P. K. Gode in 'Studies in literary History' vol. II (for 1954) pp. 39–41.

Anantadeva was a very learned man. He was at home in both Pūrvamīmāṃsā and Dharmaśāstra. He wrote a learned commentary called Bhāṭṭālaṅkāra on Āpadeva's Mīmāṃsānyāyaprakāśa.

On p. 469 of the Smṛtikaustubha (Nir. ed.) Anantadeva refers to a work called Bhaktiviveka composed by his grandfather (Anantadeva I, grandson of Ekanātha).

Anantadeva wrote many works on Dharmaśāstra. A few may be mentioned here. He composed Antyeṣṭipaddhati (vide Prof. Velankara's Cat. No. 665 p. 209), Cātur māsyaprayoga (the same cat. p. 184 No. 575), Bhagavadbhaktinirṇaya (vide Velankar's Cat. of Iccharam Desai collection (No. 231). On भगवन्नामकौमुदी of लक्ष्मीधर he wrote a commentary called Prakāśa (vide Velankar's Cat. No. 115).

115. Nāgojibhaṭṭa

The learning of Nāgojibhaṭṭa was of an encyclopaedic character. Though his special forte was Vyākaraṇa (grammar) he wrote standard works also on poetics, dharmaśāstra, yoga and other śāstras. The number of works ascribed to him is very large. Aufrecht in his Cat. Catalogorum, part I pp. 283–284 mentions 47 works as composed by him. Dr. P. K. Gode in volume III of his 'Studies in Indian Literary History' pp. 214–219 deals at some length with the works of Nāgoji on Vyākaraṇa (Grammar), Poetics and Dharmaśāstra (in its several branches). On dharmaśāstra he composed several works, viz. Ācārenduśekhara, Āśaucanirṇaya, Tithīnduśekhara, Tīrthenduśekhara, Prāyaścittenduśekhara or Prāyaścittasāra-saṁgraha, Śrāddhenduśekhara, Sapiṇḍīmañjarī and Sāpiṇḍya-dīpikā or Sāpiṇḍyanirṇaya. Of his far-famed works on the Pāṇinian system, such as the Mahābhāṣya-pradīpoddyota, the Paribhāṣenduśekhara, the Vaiyākaraṇasiddhāntamañjūṣā, (in large and small recensions), the Śabdenduśekhara (big and small) and of his commentaries on the Kāvya-prakāśa-pradīpa, the Kuvalayānanda, the Rasagaṅgādhara, the Rasataraṅgiṇī, the Rasamañjarī, nothing can be said here for want of space.

For his Prāyaścittenduśekhara, vide Mitra's Notices vol. V, p. 23 No. 1735, where detailed contents are given; for the Śrāddhenduśekhara, Ulwar cat. extract No. 360 p. 139, for the Tīrthenduśekhara, Ulwar cat. p. 120, extract No. 312.

Some of Nāgojibhaṭṭa's (or Nāgeśabhaṭṭa's) works on Dharmaśāstra may be mentioned here. He composed the Tithinirṇayatattva containing 101 stanzas (in writing which he relied upon the conclusions of the Nirṇayasindhu).¹⁵⁰⁰ The names of his works on Dharmaśāstra are mentioned in the note below.¹⁵⁰¹ Nāgoji's surname was Kāla (i. e. Kāl in these days) but in some Mss. it is given as Upādhyāya (vide note below).¹⁵⁰²

The Paribhāṣās dealt with by Nāgeśa are 122, the first being 'व्याख्यानतो विशेषप्रतिपत्तिर्न हि सन्देहादलक्षणम्' and the last being 'अर्थमात्रालाघवेन पुत्रोत्सवं मन्यन्ते वैयाकरणाः' Kielhorn's edition of the परिभाषेन्दुशेखर covers 116 printed pages.

He composed works on Kāvyaśāstra, such as the Kāvya-pradīpoddyota, the Rasagaṅgādhara-marmaprakāśa (Nir. ed.), and very learned works on Vyākaraṇa (grammar) such as the Paribhāṣenduśekhara (vide Dr. P. K. Gode's 'Relative chronology of Nāgoji's works' in his 'Studies in Literary History' vol. III pp. 212-219).

Nāgojibhaṭṭa was the son of Śivabhaṭṭa and Sati and was a Mahārāṣṭra Brāhmaṇa surnamed Kāla (Kale). At the beginning and end of several works of his (such as Rasagaṅgādhara-marmaprakāśa, the Mañjūṣā) he tells us that he was patronised by Rāma of the Bisena family,¹⁵⁰³ the ruler of a city named Śṛṅgavera (which seems to be on the Ganges above Allahabad). He was the pupil of Haridīkṣita,¹⁵⁰⁴ son of Vireśvara and pupil of Rāmāśrama and grandson of the great grammarian Bhaṭṭoji-dīkṣita.¹⁵⁰⁵ Tradition says that he composed the grammatical work Śabdaratna and ascribed it to his teacher Haridīkṣita in gratitude. In the¹⁵⁰⁶ commentary on the Praudhamanoramā Haridīkṣita refers to the Śabdaratna as his own work and to the Śabdenduśekhara as that of his pupil.

Bhaṭṭojidīkṣita was a pupil of the Mīmāṃsaka Śaṅkara-bhaṭṭa and of Śeṣa Śrīkṛṣṇa and almost a contemporary of Jagannāthapaṇḍita. Bhaṭṭoji's pupil Nīlakaṇṭha Śukla wrote a work in samvat 1663 (Dr. Belvalkar in 'Systems of Sanskrit Grammar', p. 47). Therefore he flourished in the first half of the 17th century. For the date of Bhaṭṭoji, vide J. O. I. (Baroda) vol. IV pp. 33-36 and J. of Veṅkateśvara O. I. vol. I part 2 pp. 117-127. In Kane Festschrift Dr. Gode places Varadarāja, a pupil of Bhaṭṭoji, between 1600-1650 A. D.

(pp. 188-199) and so Bhaṭṭoji, who was a pupil of Śaṅkara-bhaṭṭa, may be assigned to the period between 1575-1645 A. D. Nāgojibhaṭṭa was a pupil of Bhaṭṭoji's grandson. Therefore Nāgojibhaṭṭa must have flourished towards the end of the 17th century and the first half of the 18th century. Nāgojibhaṭṭa's literary activities, looking to his vast out-put, must have extended over a long period of more than 50 years. The pedigree¹⁵⁰⁷ from Bhaṭṭojidīkṣita, through a succession of teacher and pupils or father and son, is given below. Vide introduction to the Rasagāṅgādhara (Nirn. ed.); Trivedi's introduction pp. 18-20 to the Vaiyākaraṇabhūṣana of Koṇḍa-bhaṭṭa, a nephew of Bhaṭṭoji (B. S. series); Dr. Belvalkar's Systems of Sanskrit grammar pp. 46-50 and Kielhorn's preface to the Paribhāṣenduśekhara p. xxv (where the succession of teacher and pupil is brought down to the days of Kielhorn himself) for further details. In the Indian Antiquary, vol. 41

1507 For a discussion of the the date of Bhaṭṭojidīkṣita, vide Prof. P. K. Gode's paper in 'Annals of Oriental Institute at Tirupati' (vol. I, part 4 pp. 1-16). The pedigrees are :—

p. 247. Mr. S. P. V. Raṅganātha Svāmi makes Bhaṭṭoji a pupil of Śeṣa Vīreśvara and not of Śeṣa Kṛṣṇa. But the passage of the Manoramākucamardana, if properly interpreted, makes it clear that Bhaṭṭoji was the pupil of Śeṣa Kṛṣṇa and not of Vīreśvara.¹⁵⁰⁸ A ms. of Nāgojibhaṭṭa's commentary on the Rasamañjarī is dated saṃvat 1769, Māgha 7th bright half, Wednesday, i. e. 21st January 1713 A. D. (vide I. O. cat. vol. III p. 365). It is not unlikely that Nāgojibhaṭṭa first composed his commentaries on the comparatively easy śāstra of poetics and that he then worked upon Dharmaśāstra and Vyākaraṇa. The edition of the Rasagaṅgādhara in the Kāvya-mālā series says that there is a tradition that Nāgoji was invited by king Savai Jaising of Jaipur to a horse-sacrifice in 1714 A. D., but that Nāgoji declined on the ground of Kṣetra-saṃnyāsa. That Savai Jaising of Amber performed the Aśvamedha sacrifice was scouted by Prof. D. C. Sarakar, but long and forceful arguments have been advanced against this theory by Dr. P. K. Gode (in his ' studies in literary history ', vol. III pp. 166-180) and in J. I. H. (Madras) vol. 15 pp. 364-367 ; vide also ' Poona Orientalist ', vol. II pp. 166-178 for Savai Jaising. Therefore his literary activity must be placed between 1700 and 1750 A. D. Mahāmahopādhyāya Haraprasāda Śāstri says (Ind. Ant. vol. 41 p. 12) that Nāgoji died about 1775. But this appears rather improbable. If one of his works was copied in 1713 A. D. he could hardly have lived up to 1775, unless he was about 100 years old at that time.

If पादुका means 'pupil' here as Mr. Ranganath Svami contends (Ind. Ant. vol. 41 p. 251), why should the dual be necessary or be used and not the singular or plural ? The प्रक्रियाप्रकाश is a com. on the प्रक्रियाकौमुदी of रामचन्द्राचार्य. Vide Journal of Oriental Research vol. III, part 2, p. 146 where it is said that Jagannātha was a pupil of वीरेश्वर, son of शेषकृष्ण, who lived under the patronage of Giridhārī, son of Tōḷarṇal and that Bhaṭṭoji was pupil of शेषकृष्ण and later of अप्पयदीक्षित.

116. Bālakṛṣṇa or Bālabhāṭṭa

The Lakṣmīvyākhyāna alias the Bālabhāṭṭi is a commentary on the Mitākṣarā of Vijñāneśvara, ascribed to a lady named Lakṣmīdevī. The commentary is a voluminous one and displays uneven workmanship. The commentary on the ācāra section of the Mitākṣarā is the most learned part of the whole book and is almost an independent work. The late Mr. J. R. Gharpure published all the three parts on ācāra (pp. 626), Vyavahāra (pp. 402) and Prāyaścitta (pp. 220). The portion on Prāyaścitta is very meagre as compared with the portion of the com. on Ācāra and Vyavahāra. The commentary on the Prāyaścitta portion of the Mitākṣarā covers in Mr. Gharpure's edition (published in 1924) 220 pages, while the Bālabhāṭṭi on the ācāra and Vyavahāra sections in the same series is very exhaustive, covering respectively pp. 626 and pp. 402.

In the Bālabhāṭṭi the author quotes by name a host of writers and works. As the Bālabhāṭṭi is almost the latest work of Dharmaśāstra worth special mention in this work, no useful chronological purpose will be served by giving the names of all such writers and works. It may, however, be stated that he names the Nirṇayasindhu, the Vīramitrodaya, the Mayūkhas of Nīlakaṇṭha, the Saṃskārakaustubha, Siddheśvarabhāṭṭa the nephew of Nīlakaṇṭha, Khaṇḍadeva the author of Bhāṭṭadīpikā on the Mīmāṃsāsūtra, the Kāyasthadharmapradīpa of Gāgābhāṭṭa and the author's father's commentary thereon.

Of the Bālabhāṭṭi ascribed to Lakṣmīdevī, West and Bühler say 'she generally advocates latitudinarian views and gives the widest interpretation possible to every term of Yājñavalkya. Her opinions are held in comparatively small esteem and are hardly ever brought forward by the śāstris, if unsupported by other authorities'.¹⁵⁰⁹ For example, in the Bālabhāṭṭi the word 'bhrātarah', occurring in Yājñavalkya's verses laying down the order of succession to a man dying without male issue, is interpreted as including sisters and the author says that sisters succeed immediately after brothers.¹⁵¹⁰ This dictum of Bālabhāṭṭi

bhṛṣṇa taken along with the words of the Vyavahāramayūkha seems to have influenced their Lordships of the Privy Council in Vinayak v. Lakshmibai on the question of the rights of the sister as an heir.¹⁵¹¹ In *Sakharam v. Sitabai*¹⁵¹² Sir Michael Westropp C. J. went so far as to say on the construction of the term 'brethren' in the Mitākṣarā as including sisters, which construction was adopted in that case (in Vinayak v. Lakshmibai) both by the Supreme Court and the Privy Council, "we must treat the Mitākṣarā also as preferring sisters to half brothers, whom it brings in after brothers." But this was a mere obiter dictum, since the case in which these observations were made was governed by the law of the Vyavahāramayūkha which expressly prefers full sisters to half brothers. It has been laid down in several cases in Bombay¹⁵¹³ that Bālabhṛṣṇa's doctrine that the word 'brothers' includes 'sisters' has not been accepted in that Presidency and that Sir Michael Westropp was under a misapprehension as to the exact drift of the Bālabhṛṣṇa which nowhere says that the term 'brothers' excludes half brothers and which does not bring in the full sister before the half brother, but expressly says that the full brother inherits first, then the half brother and then comes the sister. The Bālabhṛṣṇa not only brings in the sisters after full and half brothers, but places the sons and daughters of sisters after the sons and daughters of brother's, full or half. This is in direct conflict with the order of succession expressly mentioned by the Mitākṣarā and the Bombay High Court has refused to give the sister's son the place which the Bālabhṛṣṇa assigns to him and treats him as a mere bandhu.¹⁵¹⁴ The Bālabhṛṣṇa is regarded as of little authority in the interpretation of the Mitākṣarā in the Bombay Presidency and its interpretations cannot be accepted without due caution and examination.¹⁵¹⁵ Even in the Benares¹⁵¹⁶ School where the Bālabhṛṣṇa bhaṭṭi has been accepted as one of the leading authorities, the authority of Bālabhaṭṭa has been held to be inferior to that of Nandapaṇḍita in matters of adoption, it being held that a widow cannot adopt in the Benares School without express authority from her husband (while Bālabhaṭṭa holds that she can adopt without such authority). Similarly it has been held that the Bālabhaṭṭi cannot prevail over the views of the Vīramitrodaya and that a daughter-in-law is not in the line of heirs at all though the Bālabhaṭṭi says that she is so.¹⁵¹⁷

The author of the Bālabhaṭṭi is somewhat of an enigma. Such women as Śilā, Vijjā, Avanti-sundarī have been worshippers at the shrine of the Muse of Poetry. A lady has been associated with the composition of a work on Mathematics, viz. the Līlāvati. Inspiration for several works on Dharmaśāstra was, we know, derived from queens and princesses, as in the case of the Vivādacandra compiled by Queen Lakṣmidevī through Misarumiśra, the Dānavākyaṇḍī compiled by Mahādevī Dhīramatī of Mithilā through Vidyāpati, the Dvaitanirṇaya composed by Vācaspati at the bidding of queen Jayā, wife of king Bhairavendra. It gives one great pleasure to contemplate that at least one work on Dharmaśāstra, the Bālabhaṭṭi, is claimed by a lady as her own. But this pleasure receives a rude shock if the question of the authorship of the Bālabhaṭṭi is dispassionately considered. The introductory verses no doubt start by saying that Lakṣmī, the wife of Vaidyanātha Pāyagunḍa, and the daughter of Mahādeva of the Mudgala gotra and surnamed Kheraḍā composed the work, her maiden name being Umā.¹⁵¹⁸ The colophon at the end of the ācāra portion says that the work was composed by Lakṣmī, the daughter of Mahādeva and Umā, the wife of Vaidyanātha Pāyagunḍa and the mother of Bāla-krṣṇa.¹⁵¹⁹ At the end of the vyavahāra section in the printed editions we have the words ‘mother of Lālākṛṣṇa’ but this is obviously a misreading of the mss. or a mistake of the copyists. The pretence that the work was composed by a lady is made extremely plausible by the frantic efforts made in it for the rights of women in matters of inheritance. But this pretence is not kept up in the body of the work at all. In several places the author of the Bālabhāṭṭi refers to the Mañjūṣā and other works of his guru and to works of his father.¹⁵²⁰ We know that Vaidyanātha Pāyagūṇḍa was a pupil of Nāgojibhāṭṭa,¹⁵²¹ who composed several Mañjūṣās (on grammar) and a work on prāyaścitta. Therefore it follows either that the Bālabhāṭṭi was composed by Vaidyanātha himself and ascribed to his wife or that the work was composed by Bālakṛṣṇa alias Bālabhāṭṭa, son of Vaidyanātha, and was ascribed to his mother. Nāgojibhāṭṭa who certainly attained a very advanced age was the guru of Vaidyanātha as well as of the latter’s son Bālakṛṣṇa. That Bālakṛṣṇa or Bālabhāṭṭa Pāyagūṇḍa was a learned man like his father Vaidyanātha follows from several circumstances. He wrote a work called Upākṛtitattva.¹⁵²² Gopāla alias Manudeva, in his commentary called Laghubhūṣaṇakānti on the Vaiyākara- nabhūṣaṇasāra, styles Bālabhāṭṭa Pāyagūṇḍa his guru.¹⁵²³ Looking to the colophons where Lakṣmī is referred to as the mother of Bālakṛṣṇa and to the fact that the work is known as Bālabhāṭṭī, we must conclude that it was composed by Bālabhāṭṭa and not by his father Vaidyanātha. What motive impelled Bālabhāṭṭa to publish the work in the name of his mother it is difficult to say. Tradition says that he did so to console Lakṣmīdevī in her bereavement on the death of a child. Vaidyanātha composed several commentaries on grammatical works such as on the Mahābhāṣyapradīpodyota of Nāgajibhāṭṭa, on the Paribhāṣenduśekhara (com. called Kāśikā and Gadā), on the Vaiyākaraṇa-siddhāntamañjūṣā (com. called Kalā), on the Laghuśabdenduśekhara (com. Cidasthimālā), on the Laghuśabdaratna (com. Bhāvaprakāśa). Mr. Govinda Das (p. 27 in Mr. Gharpure's edition of ācāra portion) says that these works were really composed by Bālabhāṭṭa and ascribed to his father. In these grammatical works the names of Vaidyanātha's parents are given as Mahādeva and Venī.

The I. O. cat. (pp. 458-59, No. 1507) notices an incomplete work called Dharmaśāstrasamgraha compiled by Bālaśarman Pāyagūṇḍa, son of Vaidyanātha and Lakṣmī and patronised¹⁵²⁴ by Colebrooke. The work dealt with topics of civil law, viz. definition of vyavahāra, sabhā, the judge, the sabhyas, the relative strength of smṛtis etc., return of debts etc. It breaks off at folio 79. On the ms. there is a note in Colebrooke's own hand (which is not complimentary to the honesty of Bālaśar-man) dated 1st May 1800; “fresh sheets were received from Bālaśarma Pāyagūṇḍa on this date. This is little else but the Vīramitrodaya revised. As it is a scarce book and very little known Bālaśarma and his pupil Manudeva did not suspect, I could detect the plagiarism.”

The foregoing shows that Bālakṛṣṇa Pāyagūṇḍa was a Deccani Brāhmaṇa, that his father and mother were Vaidyanātha and Lakṣmī, that his maternal grandfather was Mahādeva, also a Deccani Brāhmaṇa surnamed Kheraḍā, that he was the pupil of Nāgojibhaṭṭa and that he was a pandit of Colebrooke. Mr. Govinda Das is not right when he identifies (p. 27) Vaidyanātha the commentator of several grammatical works of Nāgojibhaṭṭa with Vaidyanātha the author of several commentaries on Alaṅkāra works (such as the Udāharaṇacandrikā on Kāvya-prakāśa and the Prabhā on the Kāvya-pradīpa). The reasons are two. Vaidyanātha, author of the Udāharaṇacandrikā, was the son of Rāmabhaṭṭa, son of Viṭṭhala Tatsat, while Vaidyanātha the grammarian was a son of Mahādeva and Venī. Besides the Udāharaṇacandrikā was composed¹⁵²⁵ in saṃvat 1740 Kārtika śuddha 8, Wednesday (i. e. 17th October 1683). We saw above that Vaidyanātha Pāyagūṇḍa was a pupil of Nāgoji, who flourished towards the end of 17th and the first half of the 18th century. If Vaidyanātha, the writer on poetics, were the same as the commentator of Nāgoji, he could not have composed a work on poetics so early as 1683 A. D. Dr. Belvalkar (Systems of Sanskrit Grammar p. 60) says ‘Lakṣmīdevī, the wife of king Candrasimha of Mithilā, was probably his patroness in whose honour he is reported to have composed a commentary on the Vyavahāra-kāṇḍa of the Mitākṣarā.’ This throws to the winds all chronology. We saw above (pp. 399 and 404) that the Mithilā princess Lakṣmī or Lachimādevī flourished in the first half of the 15th century, while the Bālabhaṭṭi quoting, as it does, writers and works like Gāgā-bhaṭṭa and the Kaustubha could not have been composed before 1700 A. D.

Mr. Govinda Das says that a ms. of the ācārakāṇḍa of the Bālabhaṭṭi in the Benares palace library is dated saṃvat 1831 (i. e. 1774–75 A. D.). The I. O. cat. (pp. 458–459) notices that Bālabhaṭṭa was about 80 years old when Colebrooke entrusted the Dharmaśāstrasamgraha to him about 1800 A. D. Besides both Bālabhaṭṭa and his father Vaidyanātha were the pupils of Nāgojibhaṭṭa. The ms. of the Upākṛtitattva (Stein's Jammu cat. p. 302) is dated saṃvat 1848 i. e. 1791–92 A. D. and the ms. of the Laghubhūṣanakānti of Bālabhaṭṭa's pupil is dated saṃvat 1856 (i. e. 1799–1800 A. D.). Hence it follows that Bālabhaṭṭa must have flourished between 1730 and 1820 A. D. Mr. Govinda Das says that Bālabhaṭṭa died at the age of 90 and gives his dates as 1740 to 1830 A. D. (p. 29 of Mr. Gharpure's ācāra section of Bālabhaṭṭi at the end).

117. Kāśīnātha-Upādhyāya

Kāśīnātha Upādhyāya or Bābā Pādhye composed an extensive work called Dharmasindhusāra or Dharmābdhisāra, which is popularly known as Dharmasindhu. It is now the leading work in matters of religious observances in the Deccan and has been referred to even in judicial decisions.¹⁵²⁶ It has been published several times. In the following the Nirṇayasāgara edition of 1936 has been used. He says that he consulted former nibandhas and, following the order of the subject-matters in the Nirṇaya-sindhu, composed the work which sets forth only the established conclusions after eliminating the original smṛti texts.¹⁵²⁷

Introductory verses 3 and 4; then at the end the following verse states the object he has in view and how he is going to achieve it and also the persons for whom his work is intended :

He (Kāśīnātha Upādhyāya) expressly mentions Mādhavācārya in the Introductory verse (3) and states that he consulted former nibandhas such as the Nirṇayasindhu that establish conclusions (in matters of Dharma). He sometimes employs the very words of the Nirṇayasindhu as, for instance, on defining Vaiṣṇava and Smārta.

The following are among the principal authors and works mentioned by the Dharmasindhu : Akhaṇḍādarśa, Agnipurāṇa, Kālatattvavivecana (frequently), Kaustubha (frequently), Gr̥hyāgnisāgara, Puruṣārthacintāmaṇi, Pārijāta, Pūrtakamalākara, Bhaktinirṇaya, Bhaṭṭojidīkṣita, Bhāskararāya (described as Navīnatara on p. 77), Mahārṇava, Mādhava, Muhūrta-Cintāmaṇi, Muhūrtamārtanḍa, Rāmārcanacandrikā, Śāntimayūkha, Śāntisāra, Śūdrakamalākara, Śrāddhasāgara, Sāpiṇdyadīpikā.

The Dharmasindhu is divided into three *pariccheda*s (sections) and contains 433 closely printed pages (in the Nir. ed. of 1936). The first pariccheda covers 34 pages and deals with the divisions of the year, seasons, months (lunar, solar, sāvana, nākṣatra, Bārhaspatya), discussion on matters to be avoided on certain days and tithis and to be performed on them. The 2nd pariccheda (covering pp. 35-116) deals with religious acts to be done in the several months from Caitra onwards to Phālguna and p. 115 states that authoritative texts should be found from works like Kaustubha, Nirṇayasindhu, and those of Mādhava. The third pariccheda is divided into two parts, the first covering pp. 117-314 and the second covering pp. 315-433. The first part of the third pariccheda deals with the Saṁskāras from Garbhādhāna onwards. In each case it starts with the consideration of proper times (months, tithis, the week days, the astrological yogas) and discusses the results of eclipses, night, evening and other times for different acts; Nārāyaṇabali, Nāgabali, listening to the recitation of Harivaṁśa, adoption of a son and discussion about the gotra of an adopted son and his sapīṇḍa relationship; other rites like pūṁsavana, ṣaṣṭhīpūjana, Śānti such

Kāśinātha was a very learned man and a great devotee of God Viṭhobā at Pandharpur in the Sholapur District. He wrote several other works such as the Prāyaścittenduśekhara (Bühler 3. 110), an exposition of the Vedastuti in the Bhāgavatapurāṇa (X. 87) and a work called Viṭṭhala-ṛṇmantrasārabhāṣya.¹⁵²⁸ In the latter he takes several Rk verses (such as Rgveda I. 95. 1-11 and I. 164. 31) and explains them as applying to God Viṭṭhala.¹⁵²⁹

We know a good deal about the family of Kāśinātha Pādhye from his own works and from the biography of the great Marathi poet Moropant published by Mr. L. R. Pangarkar (ed. of 1908, chap. 16 pp. 107-119). His family hailed from Golavali, a village in the Ratnagiri District. They were Karhādā Brāhmaṇas and had the Joshi and Upadhye vṛtti of seventy-two villages in the Saṅgameśvara taluka of the Ratnagiri District. At the end of the Dharmasindhu he says that his grandfather was Kāśyupādhyāya who had two sons Yajñeśvara and Ananta. Ananta was a very pious man and a great devotee and left his native land Koṅkaṇa, and resided at Pandharpur on the Bhīmā. The Dharmasindhu does not give the reason for Ananta's migration from Koṅkaṇa. But it is said that the Pādhyes had a dispute with another family about the upadhye vṛtti, took it for decision to the Peshwa's Court at Poona and were defeated, on which they cursed the Peshwa, vowed not to stay in the territories under the Peshwa's rule and migrated to Pandharpur. Kāśinātha was related to the great Marathi poet Moropant, as his daughter Āvaḍī was married to Rāmakṛṣṇa, the second son of the poet. He had great veneration for Moropant and refers to the Mantrabhāgavata of the latter.¹⁵³¹ Kāśinātha became a saṁnyāsin and died in śake 1727 i. e. 1805–6 A. D.¹⁵³²

several Pandits (whose names are given in the note below)¹⁵³³ to compile a digest in Sanskrit; this was translated into Persian and the Persian version was rendered into English by Nathaniel Brassey Halhed with a long Preface in English in which on p. XLIV he quotes the Gītā verse (II. 22) – ‘Vāsāmsi Jīrṇāni’ in original Sanskrit. Vide for this I. O. Cat. p. 458. This was a very unsatisfactory work. Another attempt was made by Trivedi Sarvoruśarman who compiled in 1789 for Sir William Jones another Digest of law called Vivādasārāṇava¹⁵³⁴ in nine tarāṅgas. This digest was suggested by Sir William Jones and two parts of it on contracts and succession were translated by Colebrooke in 1796. The translation was first published in 1797 A. D. and is known to the legal profession as Colebrooke’s Digest. This work exercised great influence over the courts in their administration of Hindu Law in the early days. The work is divided into dvīpas, each dvīpa being subdivided into ratnas. The principal topics dealt with are : recovery of debts, deposits, sale without ownership, partnership, rescission of gifts, non-payment of wages, rescission of sale and purchase, emancipation from slavery, disputes between master and servant, duties of man and wife, inheritance and partition. Jagannātha is said to have died at the venerable age of 111 in 1806.¹⁵³⁵ Vide ‘Dictionary of Indian Biography’ by C. E. Buckland published in 1906, where on p.415 the dates of his birth and death are put as 1695–1806 A. D. with question marks against both dates. It is said ‘the date of his birth is based on tradition.’ He had a wonderful memory, became a remarkable logician and unrivalled his knowledge of Hindu Law; he was consulted by Sir William Jones and Harrington, he was held in great respect by the highest Hindu nobles

Though Jagannātha exercised great influence in moulding Hindu Law in Bengal, his work has been held from very early times not to have any binding authority in Western India.¹⁵³⁶

119. Conclusion

In the foregoing pages most of the classical works and the most prominent writers on Dharmaśāstra during a period of about twenty-five centuries have been passed in review. The number of authors and works on dharmaśāstra is legion. All these numberless authors and works were actuated by the most laudable motives of regulating the Aryan society in all matters, civil, religious and moral, and of securing for the members of that society happiness in this world and the next. They laid the greatest emphasis on the duties of every man as a member of the whole Aryan society, as a member of the particular class to which he belonged and very little emphasis on the privileges of men. They created great solidarity and cohesion among the several classes of the Aryan society in India in spite of their conflicting interests and inclinations and enabled Hindu society to hold its own against successive aggressions of foreign invaders. They preserved Hindu culture and literature in the midst of alien cultures and in spite of bigoted foreign domination. There is no doubt that the authors on dharmaśāstra in their desire to evolve order out of chaos and to adjust and harmonise the varying practices of people with the dicta of ancient sages were guilty of the faults of raising hair-splitting arguments, divisions and sub-divisions and also of thinking that religious rites and formularies were the be-all and end-all of human existence. But living as, most of the later writers did, in the midst of aggressive and violently unsympathetic cultures and rulers and possessing no powerful central government that sympathised with their ideals, they were driven more and more to revolve within their own narrow grooves and could not see far in order to regulate society in a free and buoyant spirit. In spite of these defects, the work done by the writers on dharmaśāstra should excite our admiration and entitles them to the regard of all those that are interested in the study of the vicissitudes of Hindu society for thousands of years.

Brief Note on Dharmaśāstra Works and Writers from Kāmarūpa (i. e. Assam)

Raghunandana in his Smṛtitattva several times mentions 'Kāmarūpiya-nibandha'. For example, in (vol. I) *Tithitattva*¹⁵³⁷ p. 86, Prāyaścitta p. 555, Mālamāsa p. 820; (vol. II) Ekādaśī-tattva p. 102. The Tithitattva (p. 76) says that the Smṛtisāgara quotes the 'Matsyasūkta' and the Prāyaścittatattva (p. 535) says that the Smṛtisāgara is Kāmarūpiya-nibandha. It may be noted that on pp. 530 and 532 of the Prāyaścittatattva (vol. I) a work entitled Smṛtisāgarasāra is cited and verses of Bṛhad-Aṅgiras are quoted from it. The Nirṇayasindhu under the topic of 'mahānavamī' (p. 186 of Nir. edition of 1935) mentions Kāmarūpa-nibandha and quotes the same verse as is quoted by Raghunandana (in vol. I. p. 86) as from Smṛtisāgara, a Kāmarūpiya nibandha.

On the occasion of the 22nd session of the All-India Oriental Conference held at Gauhati (Assam) in January 1965 a 'Prāgyyotiṣa souvenir' was published by Dr. Maheswara Neog (Local Secretary of that Conference). Among the several papers contained in that souvenir, Pandit Manaranjan Sastri, Principal of the Sanskrit College at Nalbari (Assam), contributes (on pp. 91-114) a very interesting and informative paper on the Kāmarūpa School of Dharmaśāstra. In the brief account that I present here I can refer only to a few salient points.

1537 The verse अष्टम्याः शेषदण्डश्च नवम्याः पूर्वं एव च। तत्र या क्रियते पूजा विज्ञेया सा महाफला॥ quoted by Raghu (vol. I) Tithitattva, p. 86 and on p. 23 of the स्मृतिसागरसार of महामहोपाध्याय दामोदर compiled in śaka 1308 (1386 A. D.).

One of the early and famous writers from Kāmarūpa is Nīlāmbarācārya. He is credited with the authorship of four works viz. (i) Aṁśaparakāśikā, a Com. on the Viṣṇupurāṇa; (ii) Śrāddhaprakāśa or Śrāddhabhāṣya; (iii) Kālakaumudī (on the appropriate times for religious acts and rites) and (iv) Candraprabhā – a digest of Smṛti material dealing with sins and prāyaścittas to be performed for the removal of the effects of sins. He tells us little about himself. At the end of the Śrāddhaprakāśa he tells us that his father was a learned man named Saṅkarṣaṇa and gave himself up at the confluence of the Ganges with the ocean. He learnt the śāstras from his father. He holds the view that the word māsa means by itself the lunar (cāndra) month, while other Kāmarūpa writers held and hold till these days the view that māsa means Saura (solar) month. As Śūlapāṇi in his Durgotsavaviveka, and Govindānanda in the Śuddhikaumudī (p. 275) mention him, he must be earlier than about 1375 A. D. and as he mentions the Kalpataru, Jīmūtavāhana, Govindarāja, Bhavadevabhāṭṭa, he must be later than about 1225 A. D. In his Śrāddhaprakāśa (when treating of ‘adhimāsas’ intercalary months) he says that he himself has observed about intercalary months, certain irregularities and mentions śake 1199 (i. e. 1277 A. D.) as the year in which the irregularity occurred. So Nīlāmbara must have flourished between 1240 and 1300 A. D.

The Kālakaumudī is mentioned several times by Raghunandana e. g. vol. I, Tithi pp. 73, 129, 141 and (vol. II) in Ekādaśītattva p. 51. A work called Smṛtisāgara is quoted several times by Raghunandana e. g. (in Vol. I) Tithi p. 76 (three verses are quoted as from Matsyasūkta cited by Smṛtisāgara), Tithi p. 86 (Smṛtisāgara is a Kāmarūpiyanibandha), Prāyaścitta-tattva p. 474 (quoting Devala), Prāyaścitta-tattva p. 554 cites Smṛtisāgara quoting Yama and Matsyatantra, (vol. I. p. 555); Raghunandana also quotes Smṛtisāgara (vol. I. Prāyaścittatattva pp. 530, 532 one verse on each page quoted from Bṛhad-Aṅgiras). It is clear from the above passages that the word ‘Kāmarūpiya’ ‘Kamarūpanibandha’ is not the name of one work, but that it is a general name for works composed by scholars from Kāmarūpa.

The Matsyasūkta is frequently quoted by Raghunandana, as in (vol. I) Tithi. p. 86, Malamāsa. p. 814, Saṁskāra p. 886; (in vol. II.) pp. 61, 69, 83 (several verses), 141 (when Strīdhvani is śubha Ekādaśī pp. 61, 69, 83; Udvāha p. 141.

Six verses from Svalpamatsyapurāṇa are cited by Raghunandana in (vol. II) Chandogavṛṣotsargatattva p. 537 (bearing on the Śraddha of a man's father.). For some details about this work, vide Journal of Ganganath Jha Research Institute, vol. IX parts 2-4, November 1953. The first five chapters are only a summary of the first six chapters of the Matsya-purāṇa. The interlocutors are God incarnated as Matsya and the hearer is sage Manu.

Recently (in December 1964) Dr. P. C. Choudhury (Director of the Department of Historical and Antiquarian Studies, Assam) published a work edited by Pandit Manoranjan Shastri and himself entitled ' Smṛtijyotiṣasāra-saṅgraha ' containing three Dharmaśāstra works from Kāmarūpa viz. I. Smṛtisāgarasāra by Dāmodaramiśra (composed in śake 1308 i. e. 1386 A. D.) 76 pages; II Grahana-kaumudī (pp. 79-121) by Mahamahopādhyāya Pītāmbara-Siddhāntavāgīśabhaṭṭācārya, the most famous among Kāmarūpa writers on Dharmaśāstra (composed in śake 1530 i. e. 1608 A. D.); III. Jyotirmālā (pp. 125-163) on several astrological matters by Lakṣmīpati in śake 1613 (1691 A. D.).

It appears from the 2nd Introductory verse of the Smṛtisāgarasāra that it was epitome of a vast work and was condensed as Smṛtisāgarasāra for the benefit of the sons and pupils of Dāmodaramiśra¹⁵³⁸ and it was compiled in śake 1308 (i. e. 1386 A. D.). That it is a mere epitome is made clear in various places by the words ' vidhistu mūle ' p. 43 or Vistarastu mūle (p. 73). It criticizes Nīlāmbara¹⁵³⁹ and mentions many works that preceded him, such as Kalpataru (p. 36), Jīmūta-vāhana, Rājamārtanḍa (p. 69), and Bṛhad-Rājamārtanḍa (pp. 63, 65), several Purāṇas etc.

The colophon at the end of Grahana-kaumudī declares that Pītāmbara was patronized by the king Lakṣmīnārāyaṇa of Kāmarūpa. He quotes numerous authorities and in the Grahana-kaumudī he quotes the Kṛtyacintāmaṇi several times e. g. pp.

101, 102, 103 and 118). In his ' Prāgjyotiṣa Souvenir ' Pandit Manoranjana Sastri points out (on p. 107) that one Pandit Taranath Goswami of Gauripur mentions 18 works called Kaumudīs as composed by Pītāmbara-vāgīśa, while another Pandit adds ten more Kaumudīs, as composed by Pītāmbara (in all 28) and Pandit Manoranjana Sastri gives his own list of 31 Kaumudīs of Pītāmbara (pp. 108-116 of Prāgjyotiṣa Souvenir). Pandit Manoranjana Sastri postulates that Pītāmbara lived for about 90 years from about 1525 to 1615 A. D. (Prāgjyotiṣa Souvenir, p. 111).

The printed Smṛtitattva apparently mentions three works called Smṛtisāgara, Smṛtisāgarasāra and Smṛtisārasāgara. This last, is quoted only once by Raghunandana (vol. I Tithi p. 181, three verses) and it appears to the present author a copyist's mistake (for Smṛtisāgarasāra).

Besides these three, there are other Kāmarūpa writers on Dharmaśāstra, such as Vedācārya author of a Dharmaśāstra digest called Smṛti-ratnākara (vide Journal of the Assam Research Society, Hemachandra Goswami Commemoration vol. XIV, 1960 pp. 63-77).

There is a large field for work by Kāmarūpa scholars on the Dharmaśāstra works composed in Assam during the last seven or eight centuries.

APPENDIX A.

List of Works on Dharmaśāstra

It is necessary to say a few words about the methods followed in preparing this list of the works on dharmaśāstra. Purely śrauta works have generally been excluded, except where they have been profusely quoted or relied upon by dharmaśāstra writers. Works of the Tantra class and the Purāṇas have been passed over, inasmuch as they form in themselves independent and extensive branches of Sanskrit literature requiring an exhaustive and detailed treatment, which from considerations of space had to be abandoned here. All individual prayogas, mātmyas, vidhis, vratas, śāntis, stotras have been omitted, except where the names of the authors are well-known or there is some importance or peculiarity attaching to them. Purely astrological works on jātaśāstra, and tājika have not been included, but works of the muhūrta class that are closely connected with everyday religious practices have been included. Though the grhyasūtras and their commentaries were not dwelt upon in the body of the present work, they have been included in this list as their subject-matter is closely allied to dharmaśāstra. Only works up to about 1820 A. D. have been entered here. Works on politics (arthaśāstra) have also been included. I am afraid that all the restrictions set out above have not been rigorously observed in the following and crave the indulgence of scholars in this respect. I must gratefully acknowledge, as everyone engaged in preparing a similar list on any branch of post-Vedic literature must do, my indebtedness to the monumental Catalogus Catalogorum of Dr. Aufrecht. But even that catalogue leaves many things doubtful and necessarily gives meagre information. For removing such doubts I was compelled to read and compare the original catalogues of Sanskrit mss. such as that of the India Office, the Notices of Sanskrit mss. by Dr. Mitra and M. M. Haraprasāda. Besides the third part of Aufrecht's Catalogue was published in 1903. Since then several other catalogues, such as the Descriptive Catalogues and Triennial Catalogues of the Madras Govt. mss. Library, Notices of mss. (new series, part III) by M. M. Haraprasāda Śāstri, Catalogue of Palmleaf and Paper mss. of Nepal Durbar Library by M. M. Haraprasāda Śāstri, Hultsch's Report (part III), Catalogue of Central Provinces Sanskrit mss. by Rai Bahadur Hiralal and Catalogue of the mss. collected by the Bihar and Orissa Govt. (vol. I), have been published. Moreover I have consulted hundreds of mss. from collections like those at the Deccan College (now in the Bhandarkar O. R. Institute at Poona), at the Ānandāśrama Institution (Poona), the Bhadkamkar memorial collection started by Prof. H. D. Velankar in Bombay at the Wilson College and the vast collection of the Baroda Oriental Institute. In preparing this list I give, wherever possible and desirable, the names of the authors and of their ancestors, the names of the works quoted by them or of the works that quote them, the age of the work (or of the mss.) their contents &c. In most cases the very name of the work indicates its subject-matter. In spite of all this many doubtful points are still left. Various circumstances tend to create confusion in preparing such lists as are offered here. The same work appears under two, three or even more names in the mss. and the catalogues. Sometimes the names of the authors and even their fathers' names are the same as in the case of Divākara, son of Mahādeva and Śaṅkara, son of Nīlakaṇṭha. Very often portions of a large work appear separately as distinct works in the Catalogues. The same author appears under several forms, as Narasimha and Nṛsimha, Nāgeśa and Nāgoji. I have made great efforts to remove such doubts as far as I could and hope that I have been able to make my own humble contributions to the work so ably done by Aufrecht and others. I do not give references to catalogues in the case of each work, nor do I give all possible references to catalogues against each entry. Only in important cases have I given references to catalogues. It has been my endeavour to give earlier references to work and authors wherever I could, than those given by Aufrecht and to find out the age of a work or author by resort to various devices. Only a detailed comparison with Aufrecht can show this, which task I must, in all humility, leave to the readers who will use this list. One more feature of this list to which I wish to draw the attention of the reader is that I have pointed out what works have been printed. In doing this I generally refer only to well-known series and editions like the Bombay Sanskrit series, the Benares Sanskrit series and have not set out editions to which very few can have access. For those who want exhaustive information on this point, the catalogues of printed works in the British Museum Library which have now been brought up to 1928 will be found helpful.

धर्माधर्मप्रबोधिनी of प्रेमनिधि ठकुर, son of इन्द्रपति ठकुर. He hailed from माहिष्मती in the territory of निजामशाह but compiled the digest in Mithilā in संवत् 1410 (1353-54 A. D.). Contains twelve chapters on आह्निक, पूजा, श्राद्ध, आशौच, शुद्धि, विवाह, religious benefactions, आपद्धर्म, optional feasts, pilgrimages, प्रायश्चित्त, कर्मविपाक and duties common to all classes. Vide N. vol. VI. pp. 18-20. M. M. Chakravarti (JASB for 1915 pp. 392-393) says that संवत् 1410 must be taken to be śake, since विक्रम era was not in use in मिथिला. But this is not very convincing.

धर्मास्मृत m. by वर्धमान in तत्त्वामृत-सारोद्धार. Probably धर्मास्मृत may not be a work at all, but may refer in general to works on धर्म.

C. रत्नमाला or दीपिका by कृष्णभट्ट

निर्णयानन्द m. in अहल्याकामधेनु.

son of सिद्धलक्ष्मण at the direction of prince सूर्यसेन who ruled एकचक्रपुर on the Jumna. Gives a genealogy of the ब्राह्मण
(चाहुवाण ?) kings of एकचक्रपुर.
The introductory verses (which vary to some extent in different mss. enumerate authorities on which he relies viz. मिताक्षरा, अपरार्क, अर्णव, स्मृतिचन्द्रिका, धवल,
पुराणसमुच्चय, अनन्तभट्टीयगृह्यपरि-
शिष्ट, रामकौतुक, संवत्सरप्रदीप,
देवदासीय, रूपनारायणीय, विद्याभट्ट-पद्धति, विश्वरूपनिबन्ध. One verse occurring in some mss. mentions हेमाद्रि, कालादर्श, चिन्तामणि. But हेमाद्रि's कालनिर्णय p. 34 mentions a निर्णयामृत. The work is mentioned in निर्णयदीपक श्राद्ध-क्रियाकौमुदी. So the work is earlier than 1500 A. D. and certainly later than 1250. There are four sections on व्रततिथि-
निर्णय, श्राद्ध, द्रव्यशुद्धि and आशौच
(pr. by Ven. P.).

निर्णयामृत of गोपीनारायण, son of लक्ष्मण, under सूर्यसेन (Calcutta
Sanskrit Col. Mss. vol. II.
p. 78). Seems to be the same as निर्णयामृत of अल्लाड, though गोपीनारायण causes some misgiving. The Bik. Cat. p. 426 also refers to गोपीनारायण and सूर्यसेन.

preface p. 4.

निर्णयामृत (पाश्चात्य) m. in the शुद्धितत्त्व of रघु.

by राघवभट्ट. Mentions निर्णयविन्धु and स्मृतिदर्पण. So later than 1650 A.D. (Ulwar Cat. extract 326). Vide तिथिनिर्णय of राघवभट्ट.

LIST OF AUTHORS ON DHARMAŚĀSTRA

While preparing this list, great difficulties were experienced in stating all the works composed by an author. In the case of such names as Ananta, Kṛṣṇa, Gaṅgādhara, Nārāyaṇa, Rāmakṛṣṇa, Śaṅkara which are extremely common, the only method that could be followed, in the absence of materials to identify the authors bearing these names, was to place the same name several times in the list against the work composed by that author. Since the authors themselves very often convey no more information than their own names and since some of the reports on the search for mss. do not give even what little information about the author can be gathered from the ms. of his work, Aufrecht also was compelled to follow this method. In order to avoid repetition and save space, I have not repeated in this list the information that was given under the works contained in the list A. Dates are given principally under the names of authors and sometimes under works also. For further information readers will have in many cases to refer to the works put down as composed by an author. In the case of authors who have written on several śāstras, their works on dharmaśāstra alone have been mentioned. Wherever possible parentage has been noted and dates assigned. In a few cases information which became available after list A was prepared has been incorporated here.
